A Bloody War Likely in a Kentucky County.

TROUBLE OVER A RAILROAD TAX.

It Was Voted 20 Years Ago in Aid of a Road That Never Ran a Train—The Court of Last Resort Has Affirmed That the Tax Must be Paid, and Citizens Are Arming Themselves to Resist Collectors.

PRINCETON, Ky., Jan. 3.—There is a most serious situation in Muhlenberg county. Hundreds of old muskets and Winchesters have been brought out, and war of the bloodiest description is a possibility. The trouble is due to an attempt to collect the railroad tax voted 20 years ago in aid of a railroad that did a vast amount of work, but finally failed to run trains.

Payment of the tax was resisted years ago, and has been fought in every way through every court, the courts holding that the tax should be paid, and the court of last resort has affirmed the action of the lower courts.

Previous attempts at collection have resulted in loss of life, and now that the end of litigation is reached and the people have lost, they are furious and desperate. A few days ago certain of the citizens who got a judgment against of the tax [illegible] Capps, a citizen

When it came to make the collection cripts the Assessor's books and duplicates had to be taken [illegible] re- State Auditor's book. The collection n begun, and the excitement in the county districts is increasing.

Capps is assisted by an armed posse of deputy sheriffs, and bloodshed seems a certainty, as the farmers say they will not pay the tax nor allow their goods to be attached. The original levy has now increased to $800,000 through costs and penalties, and is half the assessed value of the taxable property of the county.

A MONSTER IRRIGATION DAM.

Albany and New York Capitalists to Build It Across the Rio Grande.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 3.—Gaylord Logan, a prominent lawyer and banker, of Albany, N. Y., and who represents a strong syndicate of capitalists in that city and New York, has been here for some two weeks looking into the feasibility of building a dam across the Rio Grande just above El Paso for the purpose of irrigation.

He has carefully studied the question from all points of view and to-day for the first time expressed his opinion as to the wisdom of investing in the enterprise. The company has been organized and to-morrow Mr. Logan will announce to the public the details of his plans for the prosecution of the work of building the largest dam for irrigation purposes in the Southwest.

The whole work is estimated to cost about $2,500,000, and will require more than a year for its completion. For years this has been recognized as the enterprise most important to the prosperity of this section of the country.

NEW YEAR'S IN WASHINGTON.

The Day Not Observed as Usual by the Officials.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—There has never been a quieter New Year's in Washington. Not even the pleasant sunshiny weather which followed the rainstorm could enliven the prevailing dullness.

The White House was not only a house of mourning, but was quarantined by reason of infectious fever. Consequently, there could have been no Presidential reception had not domestic bereavement forbidden it.

Cabinet officers and leading officials of the Government, of course, followed the example of the Chief Executive, and the entire omission of all of the official receptions deprived the day of all the life and color which the brilliant uniforms of the Diplomatic Corps and of the officers of the army and navy usually give to the occasion.

EXPLOSION IN A CON-

Escaping Gas Blows Up the Street in Front of the Blaine Residence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—An explosion, followed quickly by the rattling sound of falling iron, occurred at an early morning hour in front of the residence of ex-Secretary Blaine on Lafayette square.

The report could be heard in the house, but only faintly, and did not disturb Mr. Blaine, who was asleep at the time.

The explosion was caused by leaky gas mains, which filled the electric conduit with illuminating gas, and coming in contact with an imperfectly insulated wire, set the gas afire.

The heavy iron manhole was blown up a distance of fifteen feet and fell, breaking the inch-thick castiron into a dozen pieces. The conduit for a distance of several squares was cracked. Other manholes along the conduit were also blown off.

Aside from the loss to the company, which is trifling, no damage was done, and no alarm was created.

He Received a Handsome Floral Piece Which Greatly Pleased Him.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Flower received as a New Year's present an immense floral piece, nine feet long, representing the ship of State, and named the "Empire State." It was placed on the Governor's desk.

From the masthead floated two streamers, one bearing the words: "I don't care a d—— for votes," and the other the words "No debt. No cholera."

It was a gift from James Oliver of New York city, the sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic National Committee, and pleased the Governor very much.

HIS LETTER WAS BURNED

The Facts About Dr. McGlynn's Excommunication.

RESTORATION THE POPE'S OWN ACT.

Leo Believes That Injustice Has Been Done the New York Priest—An Ecclesiastic of the Church Says That Another Who Received the Letter for Transmission to Rome Destroyed It.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The Rev. Dr. Edward F. McGlynn has been welcomed back into the fold of the Catholic Church simply because the Pope considered that injustice was done him when he was excommunicated.

Archbishop Corrigan's charges against Dr. McGlynn, disobedience and preaching false doctrine, have not been acted upon at all by Monsignor Satolli in restoring Dr. McGlynn to his full powers as a priest.

These charges still hang over the head of Dr. McGlynn, but it is extremely [illegible] if they ever will be pushed. "contumacy" [illegible]ably never be reopened. when summoned [illegible] municated for the charges made [illegible] ng to Rome bishop Corrigan. He was [illegible] cated because a letter which he despatched to the Pope, after receiving the cablegram from him ordering him to Rome within forty days, was "suppressed" before it reached its destination.

An ecclesiastic, who occupies a high position in the archdiocese, and who is a close friend of Dr. McGlynn, made public yesterday the above facts regarding Mgr. Satolli's settlement of the case, and told an interesting story of the suppression of the Doctor's letter.

He declared that the letter had been "burned by a high ecclesiastic," into whose hands it was given for transmission to the Pope.

Had this letter reached the Pope, it was said, Dr. McGlynn would not have been excommunicated.

The Doctor did not know that his letter had miscarried, and was surprised at the end of the 40 days to find himself excommunicated.

The Pope did not learn until long after the Doctor had been excommunicated that he had written a letter to him. When he did find it out he had Cardinal Simeoni write to the Rev. Dr. Burtsell, Dr. McGlynn's counsel, a letter in which he stated in specific terms that had the letter been received the "scandal" would have been averted.

"I have seen Cardinal Simeoni's letter with my own eyes," said the informant, "and I know what I am talking about. It was written in Italian, and I can remember the exact words."

The reverend gentleman here repeated the words in Italian, and gave this interpretation to them:

"Unfortunately, that letter was not delivered, and if it had been delivered it would have prevented this contumacy or contempt of court and the resultant scandal and disturbance."

"Who was the high ecclesiastic who burned this letter?" was asked.

"It would only create ill feeling and animosity to reveal his name now, and I do not care to rake up a matter that is past and gone. The ecclesiastic I refer to was high in authority, but showed the white feather, and did not dare send the letter to Rome for fear that McGlynn's case would have been decided differently from the way in which it was decided.

"I have been informed on high authority that McGlynn has been restored to all his functions as a priest. He can say mass, hear confessions, preach or perform any priestly function, just as he could before he was excommunicated. Dr. McGlynn stands now exactly in the same position as he did when he left St. Stephen's parish."

"Why didn't Dr. McGlynn write another letter to the Pope when he found that his former one had miscarried?"

"He considered the suppression of it and his excommunication an added insult and never asked for a reconsideration of his case.

"It has been held in abeyance ever since. Mgr. Satolli has now rectified the great injustice done the Doctor after learning the facts and his explanation of why he did not go to Rome."

THEY UNDERSTOOD EACH OTHER.

The Cunarder Captains Were Satisfied that the Umbria Could Make New York.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—On the arrival at Liverpool of the Cunard line steamer Gallia, Capt. Ferguson, from New York, Dec. 24, for Liverpool, a press representative at once boarded the steamer and questioned Capt. Ferguson in relation to the report that he had refused assistance to the Umbria.

Capt. Ferguson said that he would decline to make any statement until he had communicated with the headquarters of the Cunard company.

Both Captain Ferguson and his officers and the passengers on the Gallia were delighted to learn that the Umbria had arrived safely, although they seem to have had no serious doubt on that score.

At the Cunard company's office it was said, after Captain Ferguson's report had been received, that the Umbria did not signal to the Gallia to stand by to save life, and that, therefore, the Gallia proceeded on her voyage.

There is a growing impression in the minds of the public that the Gallia and the Umbria understood each other and that the Umbria meant that its signals should be interpreted and acted upon just as they were interpreted by the Gallia, the commanders of both vessels being satisfied that the Umbria could make its way to New York unaided and in safety.

The officials of the Cunard line, from the beginning, placed no confidence in the story that the Gallia refused assistance to the Umbria. They all along regarded the alleged refusal to be based on the imagination of some of the passengers.

They pointed out that it would tend greatly to the advantage of the captain of the Gallia to tow the Umbria to New York, and that it was just possible that the signals of the Umbria were mistaken.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—Last Saturday the body of a man was recovered from the water at Prison Point bridge, and it has been identified as that of Gardiner Wilson of North Raymond, Me., by his brother Alfred, who has been here some days searching for him.

Upon the body was found a railroad mileage book and an insurance policy for $2,000, but a gold watch, a valuable stud, [illegible] amount of money known to House in Need by Wilson, were missing. [illegible] vestigation it was [illegible] that Wilson was drugged, the Wilson while in the city proper, the [illegible] dazed condition he wandered to the station on the tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad and walked into the water.

The New York Legislature Commences Work.

SULZER FOR SPEAKER OF ASSEMBLY.

Chosen at the Democratic Caucus Last Night—Malby Will Lead the Republican Minority—Other Officers—Governor's Message Presented—The Legislature Will Probably Adjourn Until Next Monday—The Senatorship—Legislative Proceedings in Other States.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 3.—The Legislature was formally opened shortly after noon and the Governor's message received. This afternoon will be devoted to the drawing of seats and the introduction of the new Constitutional Convention bill.

Unless this bill is blocked the men will return to their homes at nightfall, leaving the Speaker to study the make up of the committees.

Democratic Assembly Caucus.

At 8:15 p.m. George F. Webster, of New York, called the convention to order. Mr. Sullivan moved that Henry E. Guenther, of Erie, be appointed permanent chairman. The motion was carried, and Messrs. Sullivan and Townsend escorted him to the chair.

Messrs. Rice, of Ulster, and Farquhar, of New York, were elected permanent secretaries.

The roll was then called, and Mr. Quigley, of Kings, put in nomination for Speaker Hon. William Sulzer, of New York.

The nomination was seconded, and on motion of Mr. Smith, of Erie, the selection of Mr. Sulzer for speaker was made by acclamation.

The nominations for officers of the Assembly in each case were carried by acclamation.

Charles R. De Freest was named for clerk.

Michael B. Redmond was named for sergeant-at-Arms.

Edward A. Moore was named for doorkeeper.

Thomas J. Hassett of Steuben was named for stenographer.

All the Republican members except Mr. Devo were present.

Mr. Malby of St. Lawrence was selected for Speaker over Hamilton Fish, jr., by a vote of 28 to 23.

Reuben L. Fox of Oneonta was nominated for clerk, J. H. Manville of Whitehall, for sergeant-at-arms, Albert Needick of Ithaca for doorkeeper and Wm. Loeb of Albany for stenographer.

Messrs. Ainsworth of Oswego, Woodbury of Chautauqua, Fish of Putnam, Pierson of Tompkins and Nussbaum of Albany were appointed a caucus committee, and the caucus adjourned.

Constitutional Convention to be Postponed

While the Assembly caucuses were being held the Democratic Senators met and discussed in caucus the Constitutional Convention bill passed last year.

It was decided to postpone the convention until the second Tuesday of May, 1894, and to elect the delegates at the next November election as follows:

One hundred and twenty delegates by districts, four from each Senate district and 28 at large, no elector to vote for more than 16 delegates at large.

The remaining six delegates at large are to be chosen as follows:

Two shall be chosen by either of the leading parties receiving the second highest number of votes; two from any other organization, nominating by certificate, and casting the third highest number of votes; and the remaining two in the same way from the organization casting the fourth highest number of votes.

This bill gives the Prohibitionist and Labor parties representation, and avoids the constitutional objection to the law passed last winter, regarding the appointment of delegates by the Governor.

Senator Cantor will introduce the bill to-day, and expects to have it passed at once.

The bill will also be introduced in the Assembly.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Chas. R. DeFreest of Troy, said to-day that Edward Murphy, jr., wouldn't open headquarters here to contest his canvass for the Senatorship, although several of Mr. Murphy's friends in Troy have engaged quarters at the Delevan House and will keep open house here until a Senator is chosen.

The New York Senatorship.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—It is stated that but little time will be wasted before a caucus for the settlement of the Senatorship question will be held. Next Monday the Governor will receive the members of the Legislature and the Electoral College, and on the following night, it is thought, the caucus will be held. The election of a Senator cannot be held until January 17, but if Mr. Murphy is chosen as the Democratic candidate in caucus all fear of a candidate rising against him will be swept away.

Pennsylvania House Caucuses.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3.—The caucus of Republican members of the House selected C. C. Thompson of Warren for Speaker and Charles E. Voorhees of Philadelphia for Chief Clerk. The Democratic caucus of the Lower House nominated Walter E. Ritter of Lycoming for Speaker and E. B. Kearnes of Pittsburg for Clerk.

CITIZENS WILL NOT PAY

TROUBLE OVER A RAILROAD TAX.

It Was Voted 20 Years Ago in Aid of a Road That Never Ran a Train—The Court of Last Resort Has Affirmed That the Tax Must be Paid, and Citizens Are Arming Themselves to Resist Collectors.

PRINCETON, Ky., Jan. 3.—There is a most serious situation in Muhlenberg county. Hundreds of old muskets and Winchesters have been brought out, and war of the bloodiest description is a possibility. The trouble is due to an attempt to collect the railroad tax voted 20 years ago in aid of a railroad that did a vast amount of work, but finally failed to run trains.

Payment of the tax was resisted years ago, and has been fought in every way through every court, the courts holding that the tax should be paid, and the court of last resort has affirmed the action of the lower courts.

Previous attempts at collection have resulted in loss of life, and now that the end of litigation is reached and the people have lost, they are furious and desperate. A few days ago certain of the bondholders who got a judgment against the county, induced A. M. Capps, a citizen of the county, to undertake the collection of the tax.

When it came to preparing the tax receipts the Assessor's books were stolen, and duplicates had to be taken from the State Auditor's book. The collection has begun, and the excitement in the county districts is increasing.

Capps is assisted by an armed posse of deputy sheriffs, and bloodshed seems a certainty, as the farmers say they will not pay the tax nor allow their goods to be attached. The original levy has now increased to $800,000 through costs and penalties, and is half the assessed value of the taxable property of the county.

A MONSTER IRRIGATION DAM.

Albany and New York Capitalists to Build It Across the Rio Grande.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 3.—Gaylord Logan, a prominent lawyer and banker, of Albany, N. Y., and who represents a strong syndicate of capitalists in that city and New York, has been here for some two weeks looking into the feasibility of building a dam across the Rio Grande just above El Paso for the purpose of irrigation.

He has carefully studied the question from all points of view and to-day for the first time expressed his opinion as to the wisdom of investing in the enterprise. The company has been organized and to-morrow Mr. Logan will announce to the public the details of his plans for the prosecution of the work of building the largest dam for irrigation purposes in the Southwest.

The whole work is estimated to cost about $2,500,000, and will require more than a year for its completion. For years this has been recognized as the enterprise most important to the prosperity of this section of the country.

NEW YEAR'S IN WASHINGTON.

The Day Not Observed as Usual by the Officials.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—There has never been a quieter New Year's in Washington. Not even the pleasant sunshiny weather which followed the rainstorm could enliven the prevailing dullness.

The White House was not only a house of mourning, but was quarantined by reason of infectious fever. Consequently, there could have been no Presidential reception had not domestic bereavement forbidden it.

Cabinet officers and leading officials of the Government, of course, followed the example of the Chief Executive, and the entire omission of all of the official receptions deprived the day of all the life and color which the brilliant uniforms of the Diplomatic Corps and of the officers of the army and navy usually give to the occasion.

Speaker Crisp being sick, but not seriously so, Mrs. Crisp did not receive.

At nearly all the leading hotels the custom which has been observed for many years by the women guests of holding a reception in the parlors was this year omitted. Very few private residents kept open house.

EXPLOSION IN A CONDUIT.

Escaping Gas Blows Up the Street in Front of the Blaine Residence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—An explosion, followed quickly by the rattling sound of falling iron, occurred at an early morning hour in front of the residence of ex-Secretary Blaine on Lafayette square.

The report could be heard in the house, but only faintly, and did not disturb Mr. Blaine, who was asleep at the time.

The explosion was caused by leaky gas mains, which filled the electric conduit with illuminating gas, and coming in contact with an imperfectly insulated wire, set the gas afire.

The heavy iron mantrap was blown up a distance of fifteen feet and fell, breaking the inch-thick castiron into a dozen pieces. The conduit for a distance of several squares was cracked. Other manholes along the conduit were also blown off.

Aside from the loss to the company, which is trifling, no damage was done, and no alarm was created.

FLOWER'S NEW YEAR'S PRESENT.

He Received a Handsome Floral Piece Which Greatly Pleased Him.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Gov. Flower received as a New Year's present an immense floral piece, nine feet long, representing the ship of State, and named the "Empire State." It was placed on the Governor's desk.

From the masthead floated two streamers, one bearing the words: "I don't care a d—— for votes," and the other the words "No debt. No cholera."

It was a gift from James Oliver of New York city, the sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic National Committee, and pleased the Governor very much.

HIS LETTER WAS BURNED

The Facts About Dr. McGlynn's Excommunication.

RESTORATION THE POPE'S OWN ACT.

Leo Believes That Injustice Has Been Done the New York Priest—An Ecclesiastic of the Church Says That Another Who Received the Letter for Transmission to Rome Destroyed It.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The Rev. Dr. Edward F. McGlynn has been welcomed back into the fold of the Catholic Church simply because the Pope considered that injustice was done him when he was excommunicated.

Archbishop Corrigan's charges against Dr. McGlynn, disobedience and preaching false doctrine, have not been acted upon at all by Monsignor Satolli in restoring Dr. McGlynn to his full powers as a priest.

These charges still hang over the head of Dr. McGlynn, but it is extremely doubtful if they ever will be pushed. The case will probably never be reopened.

Dr. McGlynn was excommunicated for "contumacy" in not having gone to Rome when summoned by the Pope to answer the charges made against him by Archbishop Corrigan. He was excommunicated because a letter which he despatched to the Pope, after receiving the cablegram from him ordering him to Rome within forty days, was "suppressed" before it reached its destination.

An ecclesiastic, who occupies a high position in the archdiocese, and who is a close friend of Dr. McGlynn, made public yesterday the above facts regarding Mgr. Satolli's settlement of the case, and told an interesting story of the suppression of the Doctor's letter.

He declared that the letter had been "burned by a high ecclesiastic," into whose hands it was given for transmission to the Pope.

Had this letter reached the Pope, it was said, Dr. McGlynn would not have been excommunicated.

The Doctor did not know that his letter had miscarried, and was surprised at the end of the 40 days to find himself excommunicated.

The Pope did not learn until long after the Doctor had been excommunicated that he had written a letter to him. When he did find it out he had Cardinal Simeoni write to the Rev. Dr. Burtsell, Dr. McGlynn's counsel, a letter in which he stated in specific terms that had the letter been received the "scandal" would have been averted.

"I have seen Cardinal Simeoni's letter with my own eyes," said the informant, "and I know what I am talking about. It was written in Italian, and I can remember the exact words."

The reverend gentleman here repeated the words in Italian, and gave this interpretation to them:

"Unfortunately, that letter was not delivered, and if it had been delivered it would have prevented this contumacy or contempt of court and the resultant scandal and disturbance."

"Who was the high ecclesiastic who burned this letter?" was asked.

"It would only create ill feeling and animosity to reveal his name now, and I do not care to rake up a matter that is past and gone. The ecclesiastic I refer to was high in authority, but showed the white feather, and did not dare send the letter to Rome for fear that McGlynn's case would have been decided differently from the way in which it was decided.

"I have been informed on high authority that McGlynn has been restored to all his functions as a priest. He can say mass, hear confessions, preach or perform any priestly function, just as he could before he was excommunicated. Dr. McGlynn stands now exactly in the same position as he did when he left St. Stephen's parish."

"Why didn't Dr. McGlynn write another letter to the Pope when he found that his former one had miscarried?"

"He considered the suppression of it and his excommunication an added insult and never asked for a reconsideration of his case.

"It has been held in abeyance ever since. Mgr. Satolli has now rectified the great injustice done the Doctor after learning the facts and his explanation of why he did not go to Rome."

Matters Before Massachusetts Legislature.

THEY UNDERSTOOD EACH OTHER.

The Cunarder Capitalus Were Satisfied that the Umbria Could Make New York.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—On the arrival at Liverpool of the Cunard line steamer Gallia, Capt. Ferguson, from New York, Dec. 24, for Liverpool, a press representative at once boarded the steamer and questioned Capt. Ferguson in relation to the report that he had refused assistance to the Umbria.

Capt. Ferguson said that he would decline to make any statement until he had communicated with the headquarters of the Cunard company.

Both Captain Ferguson and his officers and the passengers on the Gallia were delighted to learn that the Umbria had arrived safely, although they seem to have had no serious doubt on that score.

At the Cunard company's office it was said, after Captain Ferguson's report had been received, that the Umbria did not signal to the Gallia to stand by to save life, and that, therefore, the Gallia proceeded on her voyage.

There is a growing impression in the minds of the public that the Gallia and the Umbria understood each other and that the Umbria meant that its signals should be interpreted and acted upon just as they were interpreted by the Gallia, the commanders of both vessels being satisfied that the Umbria could make its way to New York unaided and in safety.

The officials of the Cunard line, from the beginning, placed no confidence in the story that the Gallia refused assistance to the Umbria. They all along regarded the alleged refusal to be based on the imagination, of some of the passengers.

They pointed out that it would tend greatly to the advantage of the captain of the Gallia to tow the Umbria to New York, and that it was just possible that the signals of the Umbria were mistaken.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

Believed That Hotelman Wilson Met With Foul Play in Boston.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—Last Saturday the body of a man was recovered from the water at Prison Point bridge, and it has been identified as that of Gardner Wilson of North Raymond, Me., by his brother Alfred, who has been here some days searching for him.

Upon the body was found a railroad mileage book and an insurance policy for $5,000, but a gold watch, a valuable stud and a large amount of money known to have been carried by Wilson, were missing.

Wilson was part owner of the Wilson House in North Raymond, Me. From investigation it appears almost certain that Wilson was drugged and robbed while in the city proper, that while in a dazed condition he wandered to Charlestown on the tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad and walked into the water.

ANNUAL SESSION BEGUN

The New York Legislature Commences Work.

SULZER FOR SPEAKER OF ASSEMBLY.

Chosen at the Democratic Caucus Last Night—Malby Will Lead the Republican Minority—Other Officers—Governor's Message Presented—The Legislature Will Probably Adjourn Until Next Monday—The Senatorship—Legislative Proceedings in Other States.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 3.—The Legislature was formally opened shortly after noon and the Governor's message received. This afternoon will be devoted to the drawing of seats and the introduction of the new Constitutional Convention bill.

Unless this bill is blocked the men will return to their homes at nightfall, leaving the Speaker to study the make up of the committees.

Democratic Assembly Caucus.

The Democratic members of the Assembly gathered slowly in the Assembly Chamber last evening. There were a large number of spectators, and the Chamber behind the rails was crowded.

At 8:15 p. m. George P. Webster, of New York, called the convention to order. Mr. Sullivan moved that Henry K. Guenther, of Erie, be appointed permanent chairman. The motion was carried, and Messrs. Sullivan and Townsend escorted him to the chair.

Messrs. Rice, of Ulster, and Farquhar, of New York, were elected permanent secretaries.

The roll was then called, and Mr. Quigley, of Kings, put in nomination for Speaker Hon. William Sulzer, of New York.

The nomination was seconded, and on motion of Mr. Smith, of Erie, the selection of Mr. Sulzer for speaker was made by acclamation.

The nominations for officers of the Assembly in each case were carried by acclamation.

Charles R. De Freest was named for clerk.

Michael B. Redmond was named for sergeant-at-Arms.

Edward A. Moore was named for doorkeeper.

Thomas J. Bassett of Steuben was named for stenographer.

Mr. Webster moved that a committee of five be named as a caucus committee for the year, and Chairman Guenther appointed the following: Messrs. Webster and Sullivan of New York, Cooney of Kings, Quackenbush of Schenectady and Callahan of Erie.

The caucus then adjourned.

Republican Assemblyman Meet.

The Republican Assembly caucus to nominate a Republican candidate for Speaker and thus to designate the leader of the minority during the session of 1893, was called to order in the Assembly parlor at 8:30 o'clock, by William E. Wheeler of Cattaraugus, who nominated Edward Gallagher of Erie, for Chairman. W. H. Jemison of Monroe and William E. Wheeler of Cattaraugus acted as Secretaries.

All the Republican members except Mr. Doyo were present.

Mr. Malby of St. Lawrence was selected for Speaker over Hamilton Fish, jr., by a vote of 28 to 23.

Reuben L. Fox of Oneonta was nominated for clerk, J. H. Manville of Whitehall for sergeant-at-arms, Albert Needick of Ithaca for doorkeeper and Wm. Loeb of Albany for stenographer.

Messrs. Ainsworth of Oswego, Woodbury of Chautauqua, Fish of Putnam, Pierson of Tompkins and Nussbaum of Albany were appointed a caucus committee, and the caucus adjourned.

Constitutional Convention to be Postponed

While the Assembly caucuses were being held the Democratic Senators met and discussed in caucus the Constitutional Convention bill passed last year.

It was decided to postpone the convention until the second Tuesday of May, 1894, and to elect the delegates at the next November election as follows:

One hundred and twenty delegates by districts, four from each Senate district and 38 at large, no elector to vote for more than 16 delegates at large.

The remaining six delegates at large are to be chosen as follows:

Two shall be chosen by either of the leading parties receiving the second highest number of votes; two from any other organization, nominating by certificate, and casting the third highest number of votes; and the remaining two in the same way from the organization casting the fourth highest number of votes.

This bill gives the Prohibitionist and Labor parties representation, and avoids the constitutional objection to the law passed last winter, regarding the appointment of delegates by the Governor.

Senator Cantor will introduce the bill to-day, and expects to have it passed at once.

The bill will also be introduced in the Assembly.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Chas. R. DeFreest of Troy, said to-day that Edward Murphy, jr., wouldn't open headquarters here to contest his canvass for the Senatorship, although several of Mr. Murphy's friends in Troy have engaged quarters at the Delevan House and will keep open house here until a Senator is chosen.

The New York Senatorship.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—It is stated that but little time will be wasted before a caucus for the settlement of the Senatorship question will be held. Next Monday the Governor will receive the members of the Legislature and the Electoral College, and on the following night, it is thought, the caucus will be held. The election of a Senator cannot be held until January 17, but if Mr. Murphy is chosen as the Democratic candidate in caucus all fear of a candidate rising against him will be swept away.

Pennsylvania House Caucuses.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3.—The caucus of Republican members of the House selected C. C. Thompson of Warren for Speaker and Charles E. Voorhees of Philadelphia for Chief Clerk. The Democratic caucus of the Lower House nominated Walter E. Ritter of Lycoming for Speaker and E. B. Kearnes of Pittsburg for Clerk.

Will Meet in Joint Caucus Jan. 17.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3.—At the Republican Senatorial caucus last evening a resolution was adopted providing for the holding of a joint caucus of the Republican members of both houses on Jan. 17, to consider the nomination for United States Senator.

—B. T. Barnes has leased the store now occupied by A. Vanderbeek on Park avenue next to the corner of North, and will occupy it from April 1 next. It is undoubtedly the best stand in the city for the confectionery and ice-cream business.

—Dr. J. P. Hecht, of Raritan, who was called to attend young Charlie McWilliams, the boy who was accidentally shot in the groin by Willie Creeden on the ice Friday night, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, said to-day that little hopes were had of the boy's recovery.

Subjects: "Women in the Business World"; "Moral Effects of Wage Earning"; "Necessities vs. Luxuries"; followed by a discussion. All women are invited.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Joseph Sattells of this city left town Saturday evening for a visit to Maine.

Mrs. W. H. Warner slipped on an icy board in her garden, yesterday, and broke her arm.

Beautiful solos will be rendered by Messrs. Hoople and Wright of Brooklyn, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening at 9. All men are invited.

Thomas J. Nicholl is now president of the Fanwood Fireman's Aid association, and A. D. Beeken vice-president. J. A. F. Simpson is treasurer, and Norman Dunn secretary.

The Rev. J. W. Richardson will preach in the chapel of the Park Avenue Baptist church Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. Topic to-night, "No Figs" Meetings open to all.

Both to Eat and a Six Hours' Programme.

The reception given by the Y. M. C. A. to the men of Plainfield at their rooms yesterday afternoon and evening, was very largely attended and was greatly enjoyed. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flags and flowers, and bountiful refreshments were served by the ladies' committee.

An almost continuous musical and literary programme was rendered from 3:30 to 9:30 p. m., as follows: Music on the harp and saxophone by Mr. and Miss Mecklem of East Orange; vocal solos by D. E. Titsworth, A. E. Holmes and E. E. Runyon; quartette singing by Messrs. Hazell, VanArsdale, Gavett and Holmes; the Dresden trio composed of the following gentlemen: Alfred Norbury, alto, Frederick A. Lewis, tenor, Frederick J. Pope, baritone; Messrs. Mills, Vanderhoof and Randall rendered the literary portion of the programme.

Desires to Bear Testimony.

Henry Thorne, traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A., writes from Exeter Hall, Strand, London, February 2, 1888:

"I desire to bear my testimony to the value of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. I have used them for pains in the back and side arising from rheumatism and other causes never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting. Those engaged as I am in public work which involves exposure to sudden changes of temperature, will do well to keep a supply of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in their portmanteaus."

THE 1893 COUNCIL.

PRESIDENT GINNA AND CITY CLERK RUNYON BOTH RE-ELECTED.

Lone-Star Frazee Makes the Only Opposition—Worthy Janitor Mundy Continued in Office—Excellent Financial Showing—Standing Committees for the Year—New Year's Jokes in a Freezing Atmosphere.

The Plainfield common council for 1893 met and organized last night. Councilman Case was the only absentee. Councilmen Fisk and Erickson were in full evening dress in honor of the occasion.

Stephen A. Ginna was re-elected president by acclamation, and was conducted by councilmen See and Frazee to the chair. He thanked the members for the renewal of their evidence of regard, expressed his appreciation of the extension of honor, and said that feeling assured of their unanimous support made it especially pleasant.

The following standing committees were announced by Mr. Ginna:

Alms—Bird, Frazee, Weber.
Auditing—Millington, Weber, Frazee.
Fire and Buildings—Erickson, Bird, Marsh.
Finance—Fisk, Marsh, Johnston.
Law and Ordinance—Johnston, See, Fisk.
Licenses—Weber, Case, Millington.
Police and Lights—Marsh, Johnston, Erickson.
Printing and Stationery—Frazee, Millington, Bird.
Streets—See, Fisk, Case.
Water and Sewerage—Case, Erickson, See.

Frank W. Runyon was re-elected city clerk, the only opposition vote being cast for Aaron W. Rand by councilman Frazee, on whose motion Mr. Runyon's election was subsequently made unanimous. The city clerk's father was a conspicuous figure among the councilmen before the meeting. His personal influence may have been a factor in changing the caucus opposition.

Janitor Wm. V. Mundy was re-elected, Mr. Frazee first voting for James Laing and then for Mr. Mundy.

The rules of '92 were adopted for '93, and the Courier, News and PRESS were continued official papers.

The clerk was authorized to procure printed roll calls and committee cards. The name of each chairman of the committees is to be printed in full, with his address. Mr. Bird of the alms committee tried to beg off from this.

The mayor's message as printed in full in another column was listened to with earnest interest. Its various suggestions and recommendations were referred to the proper committees.

Councilman Fisk of last year's finance committee presented a final report and complete balance sheet for the year. This gratifying result was secured through the personal effort of Mr. Fisk, who recently retained Patterson & Corwin, accountants, of this city, to reorganize the city accounts. The city has no bonded debt save $2,500 for the former fire department which it assumed upon the dissolution of that department in 1888. Of this sum $1,000 will mature next July; the balance July 1, 1894.

The city's floating debt amounts to only $176. Its bills payable discounted only in anticipation of taxes levied and unpaid amount to $18,300 and will be retired as they mature in January and February. The amount of outstanding taxes as per balance sheet, including city school taxes, is $82,014.82.

The city property, real and personal, in use by the fire department, has been appraised and shows an inventoried value of $94,542.25.

The assets over liabilities, including unpaid taxes, are as follows: General fund, $65,429.60; fire department fund, $43,250.40; poor, $4,498.30; library, $38,022.28.

On motion of Mr. Fisk the final reports of all the city departments, together with the mayor's message, were ordered printed in pamphlet form, instead of in the official papers where they would be read.

The final report of street commissioner Meeker for the year was read, showing a total expenditure of $17,000, of which $2,000 was paid by property-holders' contributions. 3,620 feet of roadway had been newly macadamized, and 15,850 repaired and dressed. The Liberty street flood nuisance had been abolished. Mr. Meeker recommended that the old railroad embankment be ploughed up and the earth used to fill the gravel-pits.

Councilman Marsh was in his usual facetious mood. He held up a yard of printed and written paper and said that though the room was cold he wished to make a few remarks. The paper was a new ordinance to amend the methods of paying city bills. It was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

The committee on fire and buildings were authorized to obtain bids for the new engine-house construction on architect Fosgate's plans.

The room was cold as Greenland, and a resolution was adopted requesting owner Coward to provide a new thermometer for the chamber, as the present one could never be got to register higher than 58°, and now the bottom had dropped out of it altogether.

The finance committee was authorized to investigate the matter of putting all the city offices into the Coward building.

Council adjourned to Jan. 16.

AUGUSTUS MARTIN STABBED.

But He Would n't Press the Case, and the New City Judge Could Only Impose a Fine for Disorderly Conduct.

Two strangers entered a Second street restaurant last night at 10 and were so disorderly before the women present that Aug., brother to asst. fire chief James Martin, and Wm. Brown expostulated with them. The strangers replied with abuse and worse disturbance, followed by a blow at Mr. Brown.

Mr. Martin promptly knocked both men down and proceeded to throw them out. During the scuffle he was stabbed in the right shoulder, but not seriously hurt. The men ran away but subsequently one sneaked back and coming up behind Brown, who was searching for them in a shed, raised his arm to stab him just as Martin shouted a cry of warning and Brown jumped out of the way.

The assailant turned and ran but was chased into a policeman's arms. This morning he was the new city judge's first case. He was fined $15 for disorderly conduct. Martin, although urged by the judge, would not make any charge of assault, and the fellow, who said his name was Gildersleeve, and his home New York, was released.

ANOTHER GOOD MESSAGE

MAYOR GILBERT'S CAREFUL CONSIDERATION OF MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

Congratulation on Financial Prosperity—Caution in Street Expenditure—Abolishment Urged of the Disgraceful Poor-house Nuisance, and a Poor-farm Advocated With Competent Overseer — Safeguards Against Cholera—The Need of a Pest-house—Sewerage and Gravel-pit Nuisances—Proposal to Bond the City—Fire Department Needs—Other Important Topics Thoughtfully and Ably Treated.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

GENTLEMEN—While an annual message from the mayor to the common council accords with conventional usage, it hardly seems necessary in the present instance. With the exception of one new member the council of 1893 is practically a continuation of that of 1892. Its meetings have been held monthly during the past year and its members are thoroughly familiar with all of the questions which are of importance as affecting the welfare of the city. It is not likely, therefore, that I can present to you any entirely new suggestions or direct your attention to any department with the working of which you are not more or less familiar. I submit this communication, however, for the purpose of giving prominence to a few thoughts which have come to me as a part of my experience of the past year, with an earnest desire to co-operate with you in the effort to secure to the people an efficient and economical city government.

FINANCES.

It is interesting to note the change that has taken place during the past few years with reference to the annual expenditure of the public funds.

Ten years ago in addition to the amount required for the support of the city poor and the cost of maintaining the fire department, ten thousand dollars was all that our charter permitted us to raise by taxation in any one year for city purposes. This sum together with the small amount received from licenses, fines, etc., for many years was all that we could rely upon to defray the expenses of the city.

In 1892 the sum required to meet the demands upon the city treasury was about seventy thousand dollars. Of this amount there was expended:

For work upon streets	$15,250
For police	8,000
For lights	9,400
For fire department	13,100
For salaries and commissions	9,000
For city poor	3,000
For library	3,700
For miscellaneous purposes	7,900

This seems to be a very marked and rapid increase, but in fairly considering the wants of the city it is difficult to see how any material saving can be effected. Salaried officers to attend to the business affairs of the city, police protection, an efficient fire department, street lights, good roads, these are all essential to the well being of the community, and as the city increases in population and property the expense of providing these is more likely to increase than diminish.

It is encouraging to know that the taxable valuation of the city shows a uniform yearly increase. In 1882 in amounted to $4,400,000 and in 1892, $6,600,000. This increase will undoubtedly continue and should enable us to meet the extra demands upon the treasury without increasing the tax rate.

To meet the reasonable and growing demand of the people for street improvements, police protection, street lighting, etc., a demand which is incident to the rapid growth of the city, and at the same time keep expenditures within a proper limit, requires good judgment, business capacity and a patriotic purpose. With the natural growth of the city it is but reasonable to look for increased expenditures, which makes it very necessary that economy and good management should be kept constantly in view.

STREETS.

Looking over the disbursements of the past five years it appears that the average yearly expenditure upon the public streets for the period referred to, including the amount contributed by property owners, the street commissioner's salary and the amount paid for surveying, is about $18,000. This may not be considered extravagant when the amount of work that has been done is considered, but is it not too large an amount to expend year after year as we are at present situated? Having macadamized so large a number of our streets, which includes all of the principal thoroughfares, should we not confine our efforts in this department to keeping the streets already macadamized in good repair, and limit the amount of new work to be done each year to a reduced appropriation? In this connection I would suggest the propriety of inviting competitive bids for our street work, all work to be done under the supervision of the street commissioner. A decision can be reached early in the year as to the amount of repairing necessary, to be done, also the amount of new work that can be done during the year. Estimates for doing the work can then be invited from several contractors, the contract to be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. I have no doubt that a considerable saving can be effected in this way. At all events I think the suggestion is worth a trial.

While I do not wish to be considered as underrating the importance of the work that has been done upon our streets, I realize that other wants are pressing their claims upon us, and will continue to do so, and that a too generous expenditure in any one department may result injuriously to the public service in other departments. Demands for unnecessary improvements should not be encouraged; we should not try to go ahead too fast, our growth should be easy and natural and should be hedged about by those business safeguards that will protect the people against unnecessary expenditure.

CITY POOR.

The care of the poor is still a vexatious problem. During the past year a new foundation has been built to the poor house, otherwise the same conditions prevail as did a year ago. The house can very properly be called a public nuisance, and in its present condition should no longer be tolerated. Several complaints have been made during the year concerning the uncleanly condition of the place and the disorderly character of some of the inmates. It seems to me that we owe it to the community as well as to the city poor to provide a building wherein the pauper class can be cared for under proper moral and sanitary regulations. My own judgment is that we shall never reach a proper solution of this question until the city owns the poor-house and becomes directly responsible for its condition.

In considering this matter I have counseled with those who are earnestly engaged in relief work and who have bestowed much thought upon this subject, and of all the various plans considered none seems to meet with as much favor as the poor farm.

The purchase of a few acres of land with a small house upon it not far from the city would be a good beginning and would not cost very much. To this add such a building as would be necessary to accommodate the dependent poor, and appoint an overseer who would live in the farm-house and have supervision over the inmates of the poor-house with authority to compel labor from those able to work. With official supervision and compulsory labor, we could with safety count upon doing away with the immoral and unsanitary conditions of our present system, and at the same time compel the beneficiaries to contribute something to their own support. That this would result in the moral and physical improvement of the beneficiaries, more especially the children, can hardly be questioned. I believe that the people are quite ready to pay the slight increase in the tax rate that would be necessary to relieve the city from the reproach that now rests upon it in connection with its care of the poor.

In the meantime I recommend that the present poor-house be abandoned and provision made to give to the inmates the same care and assistance that we are extending to that portion of the poor who have never resorted to the poor-house.

Should this recommendation not meet with favor, then require the landlord of the present house to put it in thorough repair as a condition of a longer rental by the city. This having been done let the place be kept in a thoroughly clean condition inside and out at the expense of the city.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

In view of the possible appearance of cholera in this country next spring, the importance of proper sanitary conditions throughout the city should be kept constantly in mind. The streets should be kept clean, the North avenue sewer should be closely watched, especially at its outlet, to prevent the accumulation of any unhealthful deposit. The condition and influence of this sewer should be made a special study. The receiving basin on North avenue having no outlet for the escape of noxious gases, except through the pipes, the question arises whether these gases go through these pipes to the Green Brook outlet, or escape into the houses having connection therewith. Another question of importance is whether permission should be granted houses east of the receiving basin to make connection? A number of houses have already connected and the sewerage from these flows directly into the brook, which, in my judgment, is all wrong. Originally a receiving basin existed on Peace street to receive the sewage from houses east of the North avenue basin, but this having been filled up by order of the board of health, should not all the connections east of the North avenue receiving basin be discontinued?

The gravel-pit should be filled up and the further deposit of ashes there should be prohibited. The fact that so many householders mix garbage with their ashes renders it unsafe to permit the deposit of ashes within the city limits, and this should be prohibited by ordinance. Every ash or garbage cart or wagon should be required to use a cover of canvas or other suitable material to properly cover ashes or garbage when carrying the same through the public streets.

Care should be taken to discover and prevent any direct household connections with Green Brook.

An appropriation should be made for the purchase of a pest-house outside the city limits. This is very important and should not be neglected. In case of the outbreak of any contagious disease such a place will become an immediate necessity for the isolation of patients.

All low places throughout the city where water stands to the detriment of public health should be filled up.

The people should be frequently reminded of the importance of proper sanitary conditions at their homes. The occasional publication in the newspapers of the instructions issued by the board of health last year will be useful in keeping the subject before the people. A house to house inspection may also be desirable.

SEWERAGE.

The sewerage problem has been under consideration during the past year by the committee appointed by the common council at its meeting of Feb. 1, 1892. The committee has been painstaking in its efforts to thoroughly investigate and understand the subject, and I think will be prepared to submit a report early in the year.

One very encouraging result of the committee's work is the demonstration of the fact that an efficient system can be provided at a moderate cost. No system is possible, however, without the issue of bonds. It is only right that the people should understand this at the outset. The cheapest and most businesslike way to accomplish this work is to avail ourselves of the city's splendid credit by borrowing the money at a low rate of interest, and thus put ourselves in a position to do the work on a strictly cash basis. Under the supervision of men working only for the good of the city, the sewer can be built by an issue of bonds having not more than fifteen years to run, and through the establishment of a sinking fund the bonds can be entirely paid off at maturity without subjecting the people to much more of a burden than is now imposed by the present expense of cleaning cesspools.

Under existing State laws the council has authority to issue bonds for the purpose of constructing sewers, not to exceed $50,000 in any one year, but I should not, and I feel quite sure that the council will not, favor the issuance of bonds without first obtaining the consent of the people. If the sewers are necessary for the maintainance of the public health, then it is proper to borrow the money to build them, and of course it follows that it is legitimate to issue bonds in order to distribute the payment over a term of years. Should the people not favor this view, then of course the sewerage project will have to be abandoned for the present.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

In my last annual message I suggested that the introduction of water for fire purposes would possibly permit of changes in the fire department that would benefit the city. I am still of the same opinion. One of the steamers, it seems to me, can be dispensed with entirely, while the other will only be required occasionally. Hose carts can now be used with greater economy. They can be drawn by one horse instead of two, and they require no engineer and no fuel. I would recommend that one of the steamers be sold and the purchase instead of a chemical engine, as I am informed by the board of engineers that at least, seventy-five per cent. of all our fires could be extinguished by such an engine.

I would also suggest the advisability of locating one of our companies in the neighborhood of the rapidly growing manufacturing district west of Plainfield avenue. This district is composed almost entirely of frame buildings and should have fire protection close at hand.

Provisions should also be made for the Netherwood district at the earliest possible moment.

The time is not far distant when other important changes tending to the greater efficiency of the department will have to be considered.

AMENDMENT OF LIQUOR ORDINANCE.

Section 14 of the ordinance regulating the sale of liquor, provides that whenever a fine shall be imposed and collected for the violation of any of its provisions, one half of such fine shall be paid to the person making the complaint. The corporation counsel informs me that this provision as it applies to our regular policemen is contrary to State law, and makes it difficult for him to secure a conviction in cases of trial by jury. I would therefore suggest that the section of the ordinance referred to be so amended that the regular policemen shall be excepted from the provision referred to.

BUSINESS METHODS.

The reforms instituted by you during the past year in the books of the city treasurer suggest the propriety of making a more systematic provision for the care of public documents and vouchers in the custody of the city clerk. The city clerk should be provided with a fire-proof safe sufficiently large to contain all important papers intrusted to his care. These papers should be properly filed for ready reference, and care should be taken to properly preserve them. The introduction of a proper system now may save much trouble in the future.

In this connection I would also suggest the adoption of some safeguard against the payment of claims a second time. The large number of bills presented at each monthly meeting, and the haste to get them through the various committees before adjournment, renders possible the payment of the same claim twice over. Claims against the city cannot be too closely scrutinized. If it could be arranged that the city clerk could occupy a portion of the mayor's office and keep his books and papers there, I think it would be of advantage to the city.

We must not lose sight of the fact that the influence of our administration of public affairs may last many years after we shall have relinquished our trust. The adoption to-day of correct business methods, and the appointment of competent, trustworthy men to fill the various public offices, will give a right direction to public affairs which will require years of maladministration to overcome. The reverse of this is also true. With lax business methods, and incompetent public officials, public affairs will drift into disorder and confusion, the public will suffer therefrom, and it will become very difficult to correct the evil.

Let us, therefore, be watchful and diligent lest we may leave to our successors an example of waste and extravagance as the legitimate result of a perfunctory performance of public duty.

Respectfully submitted.

A NEWSBOY TURNS AUTHOR.

Tommy Muir, "Press" Carrier, Writes a Story for the Irving School.

On the staff of the carriers of THE PRESS is Thomas Muir, a bright-eyed little chap aged 12. Tommy is quite a star pupil at the Irving school, and a notable part of the recent Christmas entertainment was an original story from his pen. He was too modest to read it himself. It is pretty good for a young schoolboy; indeed, so meritorious that it is published herewith:

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

"Oh, I wish I was rich so that I could get a whole lot of things, and I'd have all the fun I want", said George Shaw. "Oh, George", said his sister, "you know mother does not like to hear you say that". "Well, I only hope Santa Claus won't forget us this year although he did last year", said George. But suddenly his face lit up, saying nothing to his sister, he went to the woodshed, and chose a smooth board. Then he went into the house and heated the poker red hot. After a half hour's hard work he finally had this inscription. Mr. S. Claws Plese Cum-Tew Widder Shaws. After dinner he took the board some nails and a hammar and went to the old apple tree that stood by the cross roads and nailed it to the tree. He had just gone home when old John Atkins came along. The quere sign caught his eye, he stopped his horses and after studying about ten minutes he finally made it out. "Wal" "Wal" he exclaimed, thats ther queerest sign I ever saw this side of Hillsborough County but now I tell yer Mr. Santa Claus will stop at widder Shaws tonight if I kin help it" and still laughing at the sign he drove away As soon as he reached home he let his wife in to the secret and she was very much pleased as the same night was christmas eve, Farmer Atkins drove off to Old Town which was seven miles away and which boasted of about ten stores and a mill. Among these was quite a larg toy shop which Mr. Atkins went to as soon as he arrived. Before he was through purchaseing he had quite a large sleigh full of toys and all kinds of playthings. He then went to a meat market and added quite a large turkey and a goose, putting his things into the sleigh he started for home, His wife added a dress a shawl and some other things, As soon as the old clock struck twelve that night Farmer Atkins took the sleigh with its load and started for Widow Shaws He had no trouble in getting in as George had left the door unlocked Quickly unloading the bundles from the sleigh he drove away. He laughed as he passed the old tree and saw the sign still nailed. But the laughter was louder and the joy greater in the Shaw household as George triumphantly remarked that it was his sign that brought it all, and the sign was taken down and put away for the next year to remind Santa Claus where Widow Shaw lived.

Here's a Juror Who Tells a Different Story.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I saw an article in your valuable paper of the 31st with regard to the Schorb jury not being allowed to have anything to eat by the judge, which was false. To the contrary he told the officer to get us what we wanted to eat. They also complained that the heat was turned off, which too was false. The article would have the public believe the two jurors had won two to their side, which is incorrect. On the first ballot they had five for the defendant, which in subsequent ballots dwindled down to two, so one can readily see they lost three instead of gaining two as their article claims. A JUROR.

Plain Talk From Mr. Harte.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The editor of the Courier in Friday night's issue of that ridiculous publication incorporated in his report of the Schorb case the statement that I had been employed as a special reporter on THE PRESS.

The editor of the Courier personally knew that the statement was false when he permitted it to appear in his paper. The editor of the Courier also personally knows that I made no affidavit in connection with my denial of the silly and idiotic lies which he published in the Courier regarding me. GRISWOLD HARTE.

Advice from a Postmaster-Editor.

[Bound Brook Chronicle.]

It is reported that the people of North Plainfield are about to make application to the authorities to secure a post office separate and distinct from the Plainfield office, through which they now get their mail. If they are wise they will do no such thing. Any act which tends to lessen the business of a post office will surely depreciate its efficiency. Aside from this a great amount of confusion will arise as many North Plainfield people, even with a post office in their town, would continue to have their mail addressed to the Plainfield office, and correspondents would never be sure of sending their letters to the proper place. Such a state of affairs has existed to a certain extent in the Bound Brook office, since the post office of Bloomington, or South Bound Brook, was established.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

BY RAIL TO JERUSALEM.

Interesting Facts About Railroads at Home and Abroad.

The Great American Railroad Combine Effected by the Managers of the Reading—The Jaffa & Jerusalem Railroad.

The railroad is the romance of this age in iron. The railroad king is Monte Cristo realized. Compared with America's lords of transportation, Croesus is not in it. But the height of the romance is reached in this, that while this new nation has developed a railroad system beyond that of all others, it and its allies in civilization have carried the work into the oldest countries. While England is connecting her Indian cities with lines of wire and rail, and the United States is working marvels in the west, the Russians are building the great Transcaspian into ancient Bactria, and the same daily paper tells us of the consolidation of Reading with Boston and Maine, and of the inauguration of the Jaffa and Jerusalem line.

These two, says the New York Advertiser, present the great contrast and illustrate the spirit of the age, so let us summarize the facts, giving the new the preference. It was only a few months ago that the country learned with astonishment that the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company had combined under one management all the roads in the anthracite coal region and its outlets to New York, Philadelphia and minor cities. The intelligence seemed to strike those most interested with a sort of bewildering effect, and the first figures put out were that the combination embraced a capital of $500,000,000.

The figures were really much below that, but still big enough to scare small capitalists. Now the combine has taken in the Boston & Maine road and its related lines, and is, taking all things into consideration, probably the greatest corporation in the world. The Vanderbilt system has more miles of road—18,248—and has 125,000 employes, and the Atchison system embraces 10,100 miles and 75,000 employes, but the 50,000 men, or thereabouts, in the Reading coal property put it ahead. The system, as now organized, has 8,394 miles of road, 80,000 acres of land, about $300,000,000 in bona fide capital and 180,000 men in its employ—over five times the standing army of the United States.

At the head of this wonderful combination, as president of the principal roads and trustee or lessee for others, is a man only forty-five years old, who began his career as a rodman on the Northern Pacific line. Archibald Angus McLeod, this new monarch of the rail, is of Scotch parentage, but of American birth, born in 1847. Beginning while but a lad in the lowest walks of railroad life, he rose so rapidly that in 1886 he was called from the northwest by parties interested in the Reading road, and made its general manager. He rapidly renovated the entire line, inaugurated a new and more efficient train service, and had already acquired a high standing as a practical railroad man when he astonished the world by engineering the great combine of last winter.

He now declares that this last deal is, strictly speaking, not a combination. The Boston & Maine retains its identity as does the Reading, only he is president of both; the same men own a controlling interest in the stock of both, and the two will run in complete unison. A railroad man say it amounts to the same thing, and that McLeod will have free swing from Boston to the far southwest, and northeastward as far as railroads go.

To turn from this gigantic Yankee enterprise to the first railway in the Holy Land seems like making fun of sacred places. "Jaffa and Jerusalem Through Line!" It does sound like a burlesque, doesn't it? And all the humorists have tried their hand in inventing cries for the brakemen, such as "Golgotha station—twenty minutes for refreshments;" "Capernaum junction—all out for turnpike to Mount of Olives." Just the same, the road is completed, and was opened with great ceremony on September 26, the governor of Jerusalem—Ibraham Hakki Pasha—and the sultan's special envoy—Djela Pasha—being prominent figures. One would almost as easily conceive of Pontius Pilate presiding at the dedication of a cotton mill.

Jaffa (pronounced Yahfa)—is the seaport nearly straight west of Jerusalem, and two trains leave there daily for Jerusalem, making the run in three hours and a half. The terminal station is on the opposite side of the valley to Hinnom from Jerusalem, so there is no omnibus ride of half a mile thence to Jaffa gate. Good French hotels are at Jaffa and Jerusalem, and the trip can be made in great comfort. The French company owning this road is running it as a pure matter of business, and the prospects are that it will pay.

Misnomers Both.

"Curious name," said Hicks. "The idea of calling a worm that is all curves an angle-worm. 'Bout as bad as calling a cake that raises the deuce with you an angel cake."—Judge.

In a Bad Box.

Friend—That type-written letter I received from you was abominably printed—just full of blunders.

Business Man (sadly)—I know.

"Why don't you discharge the fellow?"

"It's a girl."

"Well, discharge the girl."

"Never! I'm in love with her."

"Then marry her."

"She won't have me."—N. Y. Weekly

His Preference.

"Oh, George," said Clara, drawing back suddenly with a little shudder; "Oh, George, I fear I am too extravagant to make you a good wife."

"Never mind, dear," said George, soothingly, as he drew her prunp form to his proud and manly bosom. "I think I like you all the more because you are a little waist-ful."—Truth.

Had an Object.

"You seemed to forget that you were talking to an audience composed entirely of blind persons," said the wife of the speaker on the way home after the meeting was over. "You gesticulated violently and incessantly."

"I was practicing for ordinary audiences, Emily," briefly explained the orator.—Chicago Tribune.

Of Course.

"You see, it was this way. They were all three so dead in love with her, and all so eligible, that to settle the matter she agreed to marry the one who should guess the nearest to her age."

"And did she?"

"I don't know. I know that she married the one who guessed the lowest."—Indianapolis Journal.

Disobedient Whitty.

"I'm not going to play with Whitty any more," said Jimmieboy. "He's a awful disoberent boy."

"Why, what has Whitty done?" asked Jimmieboy's mamma.

"He doesn't mind me at all," said Jimmieboy.—Harper's Young People.

Infantile Philosophy.

"Hello, Shanks! Did yer hear dat Jimmy Jinkses' dad is dead?"

"No. Did he leave Jimmy anything?"

"I dunno; but I guess he didn't leave him nuthin' but a orphan."—Life.

A Misfit.

Little Girl—Mamma, I guess these shoes are a little too big.

Mamma—Why so?

Little Girl—They stopped hurting me the first week.—Good News.

Before and After Marriage.

I used to call her angel, glad to own
She had no wings to fly to Heavenly climes;
But one might think since then those wings has grown,
To see the way she flies at me these times.
—Puck.

A DROP TOO MUCH.

—Demorest's Magazine.

The One She Wanted to See.

"This is the cow that gives the milk you drink," said Farmer Meddergrass to his little niece from the city.

"How nice!" exclaimed the interested girl. "Now won't you please show me the cow that gives the ice cream?"—Judge.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

LEGISLATORS AT WORK

Holiday Recess Over, Congress Resumes Its Sessions.

DOINGS OF STATE LAWMAKERS.

New York's Legislature Will Adjourn To-day Until Next Monday—Governor Flower's Message—Address of Pennsylvania's Executive to the General Assembly—Connecticut Caucus Nominations—Proceedings in Other States.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Senators and Representatives who go home during the holiday recess rarely hasten their return to the capital, so there was a small attendance in both Houses this morning when Congress met. The seats will probably not be well filled before next week.

In the Senate there are indications of a struggle for place between the Anti-Option bill, the bill for the repeal of the Purchase of Silver act, and the Quarantine and Immigration Suspension bills.

The first business in order is the McGarrahan bill, which comes up by unanimous consent in the morning hour.

Senator Wilson, of Iowa, and others have speeches to deliver on this subject, and they promise to occupy the morning hours during the week.

The Immigration Committee is extremely anxious to take some action on the Quarantine and Suspension bills, and if Mr. Washburn does not succeed in pushing his anti-Option bill to a vote by Friday, the indications are that they will make a determined effort to displace that measure as the unfinished business.

In this attempt they will have the support of some Senators who fear the cholera and others who fear the anti-Option bill or who want to get on with other business.

The only business of importance likely to be transacted this week in the House is the passage of the Fortification Appropriation bill, which is in the charge of Mr. Breckenridge of Kentucky. The Appropriation Committee expect that there will be little if any, general debate upon it, and that it will pass Thursday.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Proceedings in Senate and Assembly—The Governor's Message.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Speaker Sulzer has received over 500 telegrams from friends throughout the State congratulating him on his election to preside over the State Assembly.

He will appoint a committee on contested seats to-day to immediately look into the contest of George H. Bush for the seat of Mr. Lounsberry, the Republican member of Assembly from Ulster county, and also to consider the Columbia county contest.

Both branches of the Legislature will adjourn over from to-day, according to the present programme, until next Monday night.

It was the intention to adjourn over from yesterday, but the leaders thought it best to remain here and will endeavor to-day to pass the Constitutional amendment bill, postponing the election of delegates until the November election in both Houses.

Assembly Proceedings.

After a prayer by Bishop Doane, the House proceeded to the election of a Speaker, each member rising in his seat and naming his choice.

The vote was: For Wm. Sulzer, 71; Geo. R. Malby, 52.

Messrs. Quigley and Malby were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Sulzer to the Chair. He made a neat little address.

The following officers were then elected: Clerk, C. R. DeForest; sergeant-at-arms, M. B. Redmond of Cohoes; doorkeeper, E. A. Moore of Richmond county; first assistant doorkeeper, A. J. Wolkowial of Erie; second assistant doorkeeper, W. C. Filkins of Oneida; stenographer, T. Hassett of Steuben.

In the Senate.

When the members of the Senate took their seats they found the first bill of the session newly printed lying on their desks. It was the Constitutional Convention bill.

The Senators devoted an hour to handshaking and the exchange of New Year's greetings.

All the Senators were present when Lieut. Governor Sheehan's gavel fell. The Rev. Dr. Battershall offered prayer. Lieut. Governor Sheehan then addressed the Senate briefly.

The usual committees were then appointed to notify the Governor and Assembly that the Senate was ready to proceed to business, and a short recess was taken to give them time to do their errand.

When they returned the Governor's message was read.

The Governor's Message.

He describes his visit of inspection to the various State institutions and praises the efficiency and honesty with which, as a rule, they are administered.

"The financial condition of the State is very satisfactory. There is practically no State debt. The only outstanding obligations are virtually already provided for. They consist of $150,000 balance of canal debt, which matures next October, and for the liquidation of which there is now sufficient money in the Canal Fund, and of $800,000 Niagara Reservation bonds, the last of which do not mature until 1895, but all of which can be paid at any time from surplus moneys now in the Treasury, with the proper legislative authority."

Until the joint committee of Senate and Assembly, appointed at the last session of the Legislature to investigate present methods of taxation in the different States, submit their report, the Governor refrains from making any recommendation on the subject.

Referring to the recent Buffalo strike, the attention of the Legislature is called to the deficient condition of the equipment of the National Guard, and a recommendation is made that provision be made to supply the lack.

Regarding the World's Fair he says: "While the present appropriation is all that could well be expended during the year, the commissioners will need an additional appropriation of $800,000 to complete their work properly, and that amount of appropriation is herewith recommended.

Changes in the law whereby State agents for discharged convicts might find these persons homes and employment is recommended as a means of permanently reforming convicts after they leave prison.

Speedy action against a coal combine is urged.

The attention of the Legislature is earnestly called to the matter of better highways.

The subject of precautions against the introduction of cholera into the State from foreign countries is considered at some length, and the work of last summer at New York is reviewed. The Legislature is warned to make ample preparation against a possible invasion of the disease next spring and summer. The Governor says:

"I am not opposed to a national quarantine, but to an exclusive national quarantine, such as is urged in contemporary discussion.

"A rigid system of inspection at foreign ports, under the direction of the consular service, would form the best kind of national quarantine. As for the rest, it can safely be left to State jurisdiction and control."

Report on the Coal Deal Next Week.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—The special Senate Committee investigating the Reading coal deal met after the session, when the committee's counsel, Daniel G. Griffin, read a report which he had prepared to be submitted to the Senate. Final action will be taken next week.

GOV. PATTISON'S MESSAGE.

State Debt, $8,394,462—Cost of the Homestead and Moorewood Labor Troubles.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 4.—The biennial message of Gov. Pattison, sent to both branches of the General Assembly yesterday, is practically a review of the operations of the State government for two years past, and touches upon some three score subjects of public interest and of official concern.

The executive refers to the general prosperity of the State. The total receipts during the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1892, were $10,748,759, which with the balance on hand Nov. 30, 1891, $8,979,854, amounted to $17,728,613.

The aggregate amount of expenditures for the year ending Nov. 30, 1892, was $11,727,986, leaving a balance in the treasury of $6,000,644. The public debt of the State on Dec. 1, 1892, was $8,394,462.

The Baker Ballot law is commended as satisfactory upon the whole.

Renewed attention to quarantine matters is urged in view of the threatened return of cholera.

Considerable space is taken up with an account of the labor troubles and the National Guard at Moorewood and Homestead. The experience at the former place cost the State $35,850.13, and at Homestead $430,056.88.

The Governor with reference to the labor trouble at Homestead and the way the sheriff dealt with them says: "There was really no effort made on the part of the civil authorities to suppress the disorder. The entire community seemed to surrender to the disorderly element. At the beginning, fifty determined men, moved by a love of order and a patriotic spirit, would have suppressed this whole disturbance. I therefore suggest to the Legislature that the costs incurred in the suppression of local disturbances in which the civil authorities call upon the military power of the Commonwealth should be placed upon the county calling for troops. This may be an incentive to local authorities to determined action in the beginning of a disturbance, rather than have their treasury mulcted in a large sum to defray the expenses.

In this connection legislation should be had looking to the prevention of the introduction of armed bodies of men without the consent of the authorities of the county or State.

There is no necessity for any company or corporation introducing armed men who are not citizens of the State and who are unknown to its officers or to its authority.

IN CONNECTICUT.

Nominations by the Democratic and Republican Caucuses.

HARTFORD, Jan. 4.—The Republican House caucus last night nominated Isaac W. Brooks of Torrington for Speaker, Andrew F. Gates, the present assistant clerk, for Clerk. The Democratic House caucus nominated George M. Gunn of Milford for Speaker and Timothy F. McCarthy of Windsor Locks for Clerk.

The Democratic Senate caucus nominated Frederick W. Holden of Ansonia for President pro tem. and Charles W. Comstock of Montville for Clerk.

The Senate is a tie politically, with the Democratic Lieutenant-Governor for presiding officer. The Republican Senators held a caucus, but made no nominations.

California's Legislature.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 4.—The California Legislature assembled yesterday. Republicans organizing the Senate by electing R. B. Carpenter of Los Angeles, President pro tem., and the Democrats organizing the Assembly with F. B. Gould of Merced as Speaker, and George Peckham of Santa Clara as Chief Clerk. Gov. Markham's message was not presented and no business was transacted.

Cadets May be Again Imprisoned.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 4.—The 16 cadets who were lately imprisoned on the Santee for escorting Fred. I. Perkins, a dismissed cadet, to the main gate are in danger of going back to the Santee for terms ranging from 60 days downward. They all failed to file statements at the beginning of their incarceration, and now having handed them in at a late day they are subject to punishment for tardiness.

Killed by an Express.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—The New York express struck a carriage containing Henry Wallace, his wife and daughter, of Fort Ann, at Whitehall yesterday. Wallace was instantly killed. Mrs. Wallace was badly injured and may die. The daughter's right arm was cut off by the wheels, and she may also succumb.

ASSAULTED BY BURGLARS.

An Aged Massachusetts Couple Injured and Compelled to Give Up Their Money.

WEST BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Jan. 4.—The house of Francis P. Dunbar, a prosperous farmer, who lives near the Brockton line, was entered through the night by two masked burglars.

Dunbar is 74 and his wife is 73 years old.

The aged couple were awakened from their sleep by the intruders, one of whom seized the old man by the throat and demanded to know where his money was concealed.

The old man struggled to free himself whereupon the burglar pounded him into insensibility with a club.

Mrs. Dunbar, screaming for help, was silenced by threats of bodily harm and told the men that the money was in her husband's trousers pocket.

The burglars quickly secured some $30 from the garment and escaped.

A pocketbook with a much larger sum in it was under the pillow and escaped the notice of the thieves.

His physicians think Mr. Dunbar's injuries will prove fatal, owing to his advanced age.

There are several deep cuts on his head, his face is beaten almost to a jelly and several of his fingers are broken.

One of the burglars dropped his mask on the bed and left it behind in his hurry to depart. The mask is made of gray cloth and was fastened with a piece of string such as is used to tie shoes together in shoe factories, of which there are a number in Brockton.

There is no clue at present to the identity of the robbers.

PROF. SMITH'S CASE.

Difference of Views in Regard to His Retention at Lane Seminary.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 4.—The question of what will be done by the trustees of Lane Seminary with Prof. Smith, the member of its faculty who has just been suspended from the Ministry by the Cincinnati Presbytery for alleged heresy, is exciting much comment.

Some of the trustees have been asked whether they favor the retention of Prof. Smith and the answers so far as given have either been non-committal or have been very pronounced in favor of Prof. Smith.

Another question that naturally arises is whether, if Prof. Smith is retained, Prof. Roberts will not be requested to resign. The two professors represent the two divisions of the Church as drawn by the result of the Smith trial.

MR. BLAINE'S CONDITION.

Not Quite so Favorable But the Change Not Considered Serious.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Mr. Blaine's condition has taken a backward turn, but the change is probably not of a character to excite serious apprehension, for the physicians of the distinguished patient were not summoned in haste, as has been the custom when Mr. Blaine became worse.

For the past two days Mr. Blaine has suffered from constipation, and yesterday his condition was not so favorable as it had been for several days preceding.

Chinese Act Used to Extort Money.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Chinese Inspector Wicker reports to the Treasury Department that opposition to the Chinese Exclusion act is being presented with a view of getting money out of the Chinese. He cites a recent case in New Orleans where a Chinaman succeeded in collecting $200 from Chinamen under the pretext that it would be used to employ counsel to contest the law.

Interceding for Dr. Hill's Slayers.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 4.—Gov. Brown has received several petitions asking commutation of the death sentence to that of imprisonment for life in the case of the five colored boys convicted, with three men, of the murder of Dr. J. M. Hill, of Chestertown. They now stand sentenced to be hanged at Chestertown Jan. 13 unless executive clemency is exercised.

The Scaffold Gave Way.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Jan. 4.—A scaffold on which men were working at Bawker's shoe factory fell yesterday afternoon, and three men fell 30 feet to the ground. Samuel L. Bullock had his hip and wrist broken. Joseph Crockford had his hip broken and his back injured. Both will probably die. William Kirkbride was injured internally, but will recover.

The Riddle-Hoffman Fight.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 4.—The investigation in the Riddle-Hoffman Senatorial contest has been resumed before Master in Chancery Samuel E. Perry. Hoffman's majority has been reduced to 31, not counting the disputed ballots.

Senator Kenna No Better.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—This morning Senator Kenna's condition is about the same. No hope of his ultimate recovery is held out by his physician. The Senator himself, however, is said not to have lost all hope, and believes he will pull through as he has done in times past.

Adams Express Changes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—"It is not generally known, but we have stepped into control of the Queen & Crescent route, with nearly 2,000 miles of road and 6,000 stations formerly 'worked' by the United States Express company," says Manager Sexton, of the Adams Company.

Murphy Again Endorsed.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 4.—The Chemung County Democratic Committee met and passed resolutions endorsing Edward Murphy, jr., for United States Senator, and Dr. R. Bush for Superintendent of State Prisons.

A PLACE FOR LAMONT

Said That He is Slated for Postmaster-General.

THE ONLY OFFICE HE CARES FOR

He is Ambitious to Display His Executive Abilities in that Position—His Appointment Reported to be a Certainty—Ex-Senator Eustis Mentioned for Secretary of State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Daniel S. Lamont is to be the next Postmaster-General of the United States. There is high authority for saying that this first appointment has been decided by President-elect Cleveland within the past forty-eight hours.

Mr. Lamont had been mentioned for Secretary of the Navy. He is reported to have said to Mr. Cleveland that if it was really the purpose to honor him by a Cabinet office, there was only one that he really hankered for. It was that of Postmaster-General.

Mr. Lamont has been a successful newspaper man, a successful private secretary, and he is ambitious to put his executive abilities to the supreme test of the Post-office Department. Mr. Cleveland, it is understood, has promised him the opportunity.

Mr. Lamont is now general manager of the allied street railway lines of New York. The office was given him through the influence of Mr. Whitney, and he receives, it is said, $15,000 a year—about twice the salary of the Postmaster-General.

Mr. Cleveland is said to be earnestly considering the name of ex-Senator Jas. B. Eustis, of Louisiana, for Secretary of State.

He is not well known as a national politician, but he is a man of a great deal more than average ability. He is a man of wealth, and would be able to entertain handsomely, which is always expected of the Secretary of State.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Louis Wagner Kills Mrs. Fannie Speir in Boston, Then Shoots Himself.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—Late last evening at 412 Tremont street, Louis Wagner shot and killed Mrs. Fanny Speir, then committed suicide.

Death in both cases was almost instantaneous. The wounds were in identically the same parts of each body.

It is thought that the deed was committed in a fit of jealousy. Mrs. Spier was 32 years old, and was married to Charles Spier of Lowell 12 years ago. They soon separated, however, and later Mrs. Spier obtained a divorce.

It is stated that her acquaintances were mostly of the male sex and that she has been living in the same apartments with Wagner for the last ten months.

LONG ISLAND CITY'S MUDDLE.

Gleason Persists in Refusing to Give Up the Mayor's Office.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—The Board of Aldermen met and organized for the new year with Michael Claven as president.

The latter, accompanied by Alderman Knauer, went to Mayor Gleason's office. Mayor Gleason again refused to give it up saying:

"Of course I refuse. When you fellows get brains enough to understand plain English you can come here and I will talk with you. I have no time to waste on you now."

Carter Concedes the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Chairman Carter of the Republican National Committee concedes the control of the Senate to the Democrats after the 4th of March. Successfully Stopped a Runaway

Freeman Shotwell had a runaway this noon on New street.

The westward-bound B. and O. "flyer" which passes through this city at 12:15, at a 50-mile-an-hour clip, frightened his horse, which plunged and kicked until the traces became unfastened, thereby rendering the animal unmanageable. As it neared Second street, a wreck seemed inevitable, as Dr. Tomlinson's carriage, occupied by his son Edward, was in the centre of the roadway and several drain-pipes were in the gutter. Mr. Shotwell, however, retained his presence of mind and cleared them both, and stopped the frightened animal by guiding him into an electric light pole on the corner of Orchard place.

MR. WELLS AS SANTA CLAUS.

He Is Caught Napping on Park Avenue, with a Bag of Gifts for All Souls' Sunday-School and Another for the Children's Home—Mrs. W. J. Leonard's Clever Original Conception.

The last of the Christmas festivals enjoyed by the Sunday-schools of this city took place Saturday evening in All Souls' church. It was an occasion that will be long remembered by the school and the large company of friends present.

The entertainment consisted of an original juvenile play entitled, "Christmas Fairies; or, Santa Claus Caught Napping". The first scene was a beautiful illuminated tableau in which five fairies appeared in their glittering room in Wonderland at the North Pole, as helpers to Santa Claus, and talked over the plans for his last trip of the season. The fairies were named Peace, who was the queen on her throne, Hope, Love, Joy and Fun. The second scene represented the fairies still in their dainty, bespangled room, busy and happy in preparing Santa Claus for the journey, singing here, as elsewhere in the play, songs composed for their parts. In the third scene the old saint is seen on his way loaded with two generous-sized bags—one for the Unitarian school and the other for the Children's Home. Overcome with fatigue, he stops to rest and falls asleep. The fairies overtake him and a mischievous spirit prompts them to run off with the bag of presents for the school. When the weary traveler awakes and discovers his loss he feels humiliated, but resolves to face the fact and tell the Sunday-school the truth about his mishap. The fourth scene finds him in the presence of the school telling his tale of woe. The fairies, however, have been alive to his discomfiture, and intend to come to his relief. So while he is describing his adventure the five little sprites appear with the missing bag, and peace, hope, love, joy and fun reign again. Mrs. Santa Claus at this point was seen to approach with a smoking-hot plum pudding, about whose virtures she discourses at length. It proved to be a stack of baskets filled with candy. Then followed the distribution of these and the gifts among the children and the spectators.

This is only an imperfect description of what was really a very ingenious conceit, that was worked out to the evident enjoyment of all present, though under unavoidable limitations, such as a lack of stage facilities and the like. To Mrs. Wm. J. Leonard is due the credit for this very unique adaptation of the old legend of Christmas-tide.

The festival merged into a church sociable, at which a very delightful collation was served under the auspices of the entertainment committee of the Women's Alliance of All Souls' church.

The fairies of the pretty little play were dressed in white gauze and tinsel. Red light enhanced the beauty of the scenes. Henry Wells impersonated Santa Claus, and Mrs. Philip Wells was Mrs. Santa. The fairies were: Peace and queen, Christine Nichols; Love, Margaret Harned; Fun, Roger Nichols; Joy, Horace Harned.

They Paired Off in a Ghost Dance.

A New Year's "ghost dance" was given Monday evening at the home of George Rockfellow jr.. Besides the light fantastic tripping there was abundant refreshment, and the event was greatly enjoyed. The guests included Miss Ella Gardener and George Rockfellow, Miss Cora Gardener and Joe Fuller, Miss Lessa Luesey and George Fuller, Miss Adelaide Runyon and Ned Close of Bound Brook, Miss Nora Williams and Arthur Serrell, Miss Florence Smith and Walter Coriell, Miss Mabel Darling and Edward Randolph, Miss Lilla Luesey and Gerald Oliff, Miss Clara Williams and Will Jessop, and Miss Nell Rockfellow and Frank Howland.

Twenty New Communicants on a Stormy Sunday.

The old First Presbyterian church, to which the popular pulpit orator, the Rev. Charles E. Herring, has been ordained pastor, has accredited to itself a re-animation of life. Although a stormy morning preceded the first communion service of the year, a large congregation witnessed the welcome of twenty new communicants who were called to the altar and for the first time to fellowship with the old congregation.

The pastor preached an animated discourse from Revelations iv, illustrating the attributes of Christ by the rainbow covenant and its significant colors of spiritual and mortal life. Mr. Herring has an original faculty of solemnizing this ancient feast of the church, and emphasizing the importance of realizing its practical significance. Under his administration this church cannot help being an important religious factor in the community.

HOPE CHAPEL'S ANNIVERSARY.

Wet Weather Does Not Dampen the Ardor of These Earnest Workers.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance at Hope chapel Sunday afternoon was not as large as was expected. Nevertheless, the programme which was published in these columns Friday was executed to the best advantage. The historical address which was read by the superintendent was very impressive, as it brought back tender recollections of five years ago, when the chapel was first opened. Next came the calling of the roll of 1888, and a good many answered to their names as they did of yore. Then followed the reading of the lesson for January, 1888, and a few remarks by F. H. Andrews, who took for his subject "God With Us", and stated that he hoped God would be with them in the future as He did with the few that gathered in the chapel five years before. "Looking Backward" was the subject taken by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards. He related the scenes of the chapel's organization. It so happened that Jan. 1, 1888, was a very wet day, like that of this years. Dr. Richards had to plough through the rain and mud, always thinking that afternoon if he would have to give up walking and take to the art of swimming, but luckily he had reached the chapel on foot.

The closing part of the programme was an address by the genial pastor, the Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, who is ever ready to say a few words when called on. After all had finished speaking, the teachers, who had contributed for an elegant Bible, presented the volume to the superintendent, H. C. Squires. The presentation speech was made by F. H. Andrews, to which Mr. Squires responded thanking the teachers very highly for what they had done for him.

The attendance in the evening was very good, and there was an enjoyable meeting. H. R. Munger made a few remarks. He asked, Does Hope chapel do any good? Of course it does, he answered. He stated that looking over his books he found that in his class of men numbering 74 thirty had confessed themselves to be followers of the Saviour, and many had done the same in the rest of the classes in the chapel. "Oh, I tell you, brothers and sister," he continued —"that Hope chapel is doing a great work in the western part of the city."

"What has God done for me in Hope chapel?" This was a two-minute speech from members of the congregation, to which a goodly number responded, telling what God had done for them.

Corydon E. Tyler next spoke, taking for his text John III: 16, which he dwelt on for a long time, relating a good many ways how a person can become a Christian, after which the meeting closed with an exhortation to those who had been attending the chapel five years to continue and bring souls to the Master who is always ready to welcome them to His fold.

Glowing Tribute to a Departing Townsman.

The removal of B. Luersseu to Reading, Pa., whence he goes to fill an important position with the Reading Hardware company, will deprive the Democrats of North Plainfield of one of their most faithful and effective party associates. As a private in the ranks and as a member of the township and of the county executive committees, his wise counsels and his earnest devotion to party success will be greatly missed by the many who have learned to value his services.

To the people of Washingtonville Mr. Luersseu's deeds as school trustee have been especially valuable in the uplifting of the school to a standard as high as that of the best district schools in the State, and to his persistent efforts are due many of the superior advantages which that school now enjoys.

The many friends of Mr. Luersseu, both in this vicinity and in New York city, where he is well-known both in society and in business circles, will sincerely regret the loss of his congenial fellowship and the influence of his sterling, upright qualities. And while his removal to a new field of usefulness will leave a vacancy not easy to be filled, the qualities which have made him invaluable as a business associate and which have endeared him to his many friends, will command from those among whom he will cast his lot the recognition to which those qualities entitle him.

Testimonial from His Co-Workers.

Superintendent E. W. Pepper of the Prudential Insurance company of this city returned from his New Year's vacation, yesterday, and on entering his office found occupying the corner of the apartment a new and handsome solid roll-top oak desk, presented to him by the assistant superintendents and agents, with best wishes for a happy new year. The surprise was complete and gratifying.

Kept up the Frolic Till Almost Daybreak.

A party numbering sixty surprised Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, last Friday evening, at their new home, 254 West Fourth street. D. McInnes on behalf of the men presented to Mr. and Mrs. Jackson a beautiful hanging lamp. The women provided refreshments in abundance, and all took part in carrying out an extensive and varied programme, consisting of songs, recitations, dancing and games. The intervals were well filled with the comic antics of six of the men, who were dressed in fantastic costumes, representing Indians, brigands, dry-land sailors, etc. So heartily did the people enjoy the event that it was with great reluctance that at 3:30 a. m. they brought the proceedings to a close, by singing "Auld Lang Syne".

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-18-y

HE CAN'T BE TRIED FOR BIGAMY.

Bullock's Wife Waited Too Long Before Bringing Action Against Him.

Thomas O. Bullock, a wholesale rice dealer at 125 Water street, New York, has escaped arrest for bigamy simply through the operation of the statute of limitations.

He had married Blanche Douglas who was tried and acquitted for complicity in the murder of Jennie Cramer.

He was married in 1879 to Mrs. Lydia E. Ridgeway, of this city. Previous to that he had another wife, whose attorney, Charles E. Hobbs, is now suing for a mortgage to secure the payment of alimony. As five years have elapsed since the alleged bigamy was committed, Bullock cannot be prosecuted, but civil actions will be brought.

Mr. Tidden's First Morning Recital.

The first of Paul Tidden's piano recitals was given in the Casino of the Union County Country club, yesterday morning. Mr. Tidden's programme was excellent, containing selections from Chopin, Schumann, Liszt and Wagner, and his execution of it was remarkably fine.

His playing is marked by an extreme delicacy of touch and conception, and a keen appreciation of the works which he interprets. A Toccata of Schumann's, the Fire Music, from the Walkurie, and Liszt's Hungarian rhapsody, op. 12, were given with peculiar fire and feeling, while a Berceuse of Chopin's, and a series of four Minuets, by Schubert, Raff, Mozart and Bizet, were played with a refinement of taste and sympathy as delightful as it is rare.

The second recital will be given on Tuesday, the 10th, when Mr. Tidden will play Beethoven's Sonata in F sharp major, and a series by Greig, as well as selections from Mendelssohn, Chopin and others.

A Dark Horse to Succeed Warden Dodd.

The Democratic majority of the Union county board of freeholders held an exciting caucus last evening to oust the Republican warden of the county jail, Charles W. Dodd. The caucus lasted four hours, there being half a score of candidates for the place. John C. Blore of Rahway, a dark horse, finally captured it. The appointment is for five years. The compensation is $1,500 a year, with board and house rent for the warden and family. His wife gets $300 as matron of the jail. Mr. Blore will be elected at the board meeting to-morrow.

Out of the Forest Giant Came Forth Honey.

Walter Manning and George and Charles Blackford made a rich find in the woods near Samptown, a day or two ago. Their discovery was a bee tree. They dislodged the honey-makers from their winter quarters, without getting stung, and removed 50 pounds of the luscious sweetness from the hollow, humanly leaving enough in store to keep the bees in provender till spring. A bee tree is a rarity in this part of the country nowadays.

MRS. RICKERT'S STORY

In Revenge She Tells a Tale of the Tallyrands.

THEIR FAMILY SKELETON REVEALED.

Mrs. Rickert Was Employed as Nurse in the Family of Prince Ruspoli, of the Italian Legation at Washington—She Stole $2,000 Worth of Jewels and Was Arrested in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The mystery which surrounds the handsome young woman brought to the Tombs Police Court three times during the past week by Detectives Wade and Hanley has been thoroughly cleared up. Her name proves to be Kate Sheridan Rickert. She was born in Ireland 22 years ago. Soon after her arrival in this country she married a man named Rickert.

He does not appear in the story, as related in the police court, but the incidents brought out by the investigation prove the little woman to be a remarkable personage.

Her story involves the name of the present Marquis de Talleyrand and his son-in-law, Prince Ruspoli, who is attached to the Italian Legation at Washington. Mrs. Rickert has been employed in the family of Prince Ruspoli as a nurse in this city, in Washinton and at Lenox, Mass., during the past summer and Fall.

She is an extremely pretty and engaging young woman, and can speak four languages and play a Chopin nocturne with the skill of a Paderewski. Consequently when she disappeared from Washington two months ago consternation was caused in the Ruspoli household. By a curious coincidence $2,000 worth of jewels and fine clothing were missing when Mrs. Rickert so abruptly disappeared.

The case was reported to the Washington police and to Supt. Byrnes. Detectives Wade and Hanlep were placed upon the case.

They located her at New Rochelle. She was caught on Saturday last at Fifth avenue and 42d street, just after she left the depot, where she had given orders regarding the disposition of her trunks.

Upon her person were found pawn tickets for articles belonging to the Marchese Ruspoli, and even the clothing she wore at the time of the arrest was the property of her former employer.

She was escorted to Police headquarters, where she broke down and admitted her guilt.

As a measure of retaliation, she told of an alleged scandal in the family of the Marquis de Tallyrand. Her statements ran to the effect that a Mrs. Frederick Stevens, an American, became infatuated with the gallant Marquis of the historical name. Her affection for the nobleman was displeasing to his wife.

The Marchese, according to Mrs. Rickert, objected so strongly to Mrs. Stevens that she finally agreed to pay the Marchese an annuity if she would agree not to interfere.

According to Mrs. Rickert's story, the Marquis has plenty of titles, but no money, and so the annuity was heartily welcomed, even at the expense of French honor.

The Marquis De Tallyrand, and his son-in-law, Prince Ruspoli, are said to be interested in New Jersey real estate in the vicinity of Lakewood.

The young Irish girl was given certain liberties in the Ruspoli household not usually granted to nurses. Evidences of this familiarity can be seen at Police Headquarters, where pictures are in the possession of Inspector McLaughlin showing Mrs. Rickert in various attitudes dressed in the gowns of the Princess Ruspoli, with the jewels of the Princess gleaming upon her neck and bosom.

In court yesterday the young woman either acted a most consumate part, or else she was genuinely affected by her embarrassing position. When brought before Justice Grady she was on the point of breaking down.

The history of the young woman has not yet been fully investigated. Nothing is known about her husband. It is known, however, that she has been a professional nurse for some years and that she has been employed by the wealthiest families. She holds recommendations from some of the best physicians of the city. She speaks French, German and English fluently. She was for several months a professional nurse at the Insane Pavilion on Blackwell's Island.

Justice Grady, having no jurisdiction in the case, Mrs. Rickert was placed in the custody of J. W. Mattingly of the Washington police. He took her before United States Commissioner Shields in the Post-office building. The Commissioner asked her if she wished to return to Washington, and she replied that she did not know what to do. She finally consented to go with Detective Mattingly.

Two Women Misers Frozen to Death.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Intense cold prevails throughout France. The Seine is ice-bound. Two old women were found frozen to death in an attic in the Latin quarter. They were clothed in rags, had no fire, and apparently had eaten nothing for 24 hours. In their bureau drawer were found 30,000 francs in bank-notes.

FATHER AND FRIEND.

Beautiful Story of the Rise of Hubert Herkomer.

Together They Trudged to Munich Where the Older Man Cooked and Served as Model—Success After a Fierce Struggle.

That is a beautiful story of the relations between Hubert Herkomer, and his father recently given to the public in a German periodical. When the father held the infant in his arms he said: "This boy shall one day be my best friend, and he shall be an artist." Never was wish or prophecy more completely fulfilled. When the boy had attained his second year the father, dissatisfied with the state of things in his own country after the great shipwreck of the revolution, decided to go to America. Here he worked at his trade, while his wife contributed to the maintenance of the little family by giving music lessons. After six years they went to Southampton, England, where they had most terrible trials and struggles with the most adverse circumstances. Meanwhile the boy's musical gifts were developing, and he took part in the singing and music lessons and played duets with the pupils. His attendance at a day school was soon cut short by illness. After his recovery he was sent to a drawing school, and to this day he thinks, with scorn and bitter contempt, of the method of instruction there. Meanwhile his father received an order from America, and he decided to go to Munich to execute the work. The son was to accompany him, in order to pursue his studies at the famous academy. Full of hope, the father and son set out on their journey and at Munich their domestic arrangements corresponded with their scanty means; the workshop had also to serve as kitchen, living-room and bed. The boy made good progress at the academy, but he had a passionate desire to draw from the living model, and to help him out the father, in the early morning, in the pauses between cooking and other household duties, would stand as a model. A visit to the opera also reawakened in the boy the pressing desire to play the piano and compose.

At that time the passes of naturalized English subjects were only available for six months, unless personally renewed. It was, therefore, necessary that they must return to Southampton in order to preserve their British citizenship. During the winter the young artist worked away, painting in water colors and oils the portraits of every one who would sit to him. The following year, 1866, he entered the South Kensington school, and the two friends here parted for the first time. After working hard during the summer months he returned to Southampton to open a school for drawing from life, and the seven or eight students opened an exhibition at a picture framer's. There Herkomer had the good fortune to sell his first picture, a landscape in water colors. A picture by Walker at the Royal academy may be said to have made the most lasting impression on young Herkomer, but it was some time before he was able to sell any more of his work. At last a comic paper offered him $10 for a weekly woodcut, but in six weeks that was at an end. After another long time the brothers Dalziel bought some of his work, but other publishers would have none of it. By this time the youth was in such sore distress that he applied to the Christy minstrels for an engagement as zither player, but in vain. Then he executed carpet designs, but the work seemed so unworthy that he soon gave it up. This miserable existence lasted till 1869, when the London Graphic was founded and he resolved to do something for it. It was with a beating heart that he entered the office with his "Gypsies in Wimbledon," and with no little joy and surprise that he learned it was accepted, with the promise of further work. He received $40 for this picture. His next work was hung in the Dudley gallery and sold at $200. The hard times may now be said to have come to an end and the genius of Hubert Herkomer was everywhere recognized.

The World's Railroads.

Ernst Kohl, one of the leading civil engineers and railroad managers of Germany, has made a careful compilation of the railroad mileage of the world, and finds that the total is 595,000 miles, and that between the year 1887 and 1889 the increase was 5.5 per cent. In Europe he finds one mile of railroad for every twenty-seven square miles of territory. And 2,500 for every 10,000 inhabitants. In the United States the figures show one mile of railroad for every 19.3 square miles of territory and 25 miles for every 1,000 inhabitants. The value of all the railroads in the world is placed at $85,000,000. Herr Kohl has devoted a great deal of time to the work of collecting the statistics, of which these are only a small part, and his high standing as a statician and practical railroad man has caused his work to be at once accepted on both sides of the ocean as accurate, and therefore of standard value.

Gone in Fruits.

Improving.

One of the homeliest men in Detroit has a beautiful little girl about five years old. The other day she was sitting on his lap with a hand glass before her. She looked at her father a moment, then looked at herself and turned to her mother.

"Mamma," she inquired, "did God make me?"

"Yes, daughter."

"Did he make papa, too?"

"Yes."

Then she took another look in the glass at herself.

"Well," she said, thoughtfully, "He's doing a good deal better work lately, isn't He?"—Detroit Free Press.

AN INGENIOUS TRIFLE.

A Penwiper That Is Easily Made at Small Expense.

Children are often at a loss what to give their parents when birthday or Christmas time comes around. If they only knew how to use their ten little fingers to advantage they could very often solve the difficulty. Then, instead of presenting a gift which has no value save the kind thought which prompted it, they could offer a little souvenir which would give double pleasure from the fact that it is their own work.

Among such articles as can be made by the children themselves, I would suggest a little penwiper, which can easily be made at small expense. The materials required are a wishbone, red sealing wax, some coarse black thread, black ink, an old pair of kid gloves, and a little sewing silk which will harmonize with the color of the gloves.

When these materials are collected the first thing to be done is to cut about twenty-five pieces of black thread, one inch long, and tie them firmly together in the middle. (Fig. 2.) This will constitute the wig of our little subject. Then go to work on the wishbone itself. Heat the sealing wax over the gas or a candle until soft, apply several times to the head of the wishbone, until it is sufficiently covered, then shape with the fingers, making the general form of a face, with a somewhat prominent nose. (Fig. 1.) While the wax is still soft, press the black thread into it, spreading out the threads on each side. Another dab of wax on the very top of the head will give the appearance of a bald pate with just a rim of hair around it. Cut off the ends of the hair evenly; with a pin prick two small holes for the eyes, make a slight indentation for the mouth, and fill these with ink. The head will then be completed, and, when dry, we can go on with the work. Form the feet by applying wax to both extremities of the bone, and shaping it to resemble feet. (Fig. 1.) Now for the dress. Cut two oblong pieces of kid from the gloves, one the length of the bone, the other a little shorter. Nick both pieces at the bottom; feather-stitch the ends of the longer piece together so as to form a pair of wide trousers (Fig. 4); slip on the wishbone, gather at the neck, and sew firmly. The other piece may be prettily stitched round the bottom (Fig. 3), and shirred at the neck. This will give the effect of a wide cape.

HOW IT IS PUT TOGETHER.

An addition to the little figure can be made by cutting off half the small finger of a glove, ornamenting it with the silk, and fitting it to the head, to appear like some oriental head-dress. (Fig. 5.)

This trifling and inexpensive little gift is most amusing, and certainly cannot fail to win the appreciation of the person who receives it, by its oddity and its novelty.—St. Nicholas.

The Prince and the Butcher Boy.

William IV., a much better man than his brother, was also a much cleverer man, for all his "pineapple-shaped head," than was generally believed. He had, too, a sense of humor and could tell an amusing story now and then in a way which showed how fully he relished a joke. One day at a dinner given by George IV. at The Cottage, Windsor Park, in 1827, he related with much drollery the following personal anecdote: "I had been riding one day," said his royal highness, "unattended by a groom, between Teddington and Hampton Wick, when I was overtaken by a butcher's boy on horseback, with a tray of meat under his arm. 'Nice pony that of your'n, old gen'l'man,' said he. 'Pretty fair,' I answered. 'Mine's a good 'un, too,' was his rejoinder; and he added: 'I'll wager you a pot of beer, old man, your don't trot to Hampton Wick quicker nor me.' I declined the match," continued the duke, "and the butcher's boy, as he struck his single spur into his nag's side, turned back and called out with a contemptuous sneer: 'I knowed you was only a muff.'"

TOMMY THE SEAL.

He Would Shake Hands and Smoke His Master's Briar Pipe.

One day when Mr. Wise was out in his long Indian canoe fishing he saw a baby seal on a rock not far away.

He pushed his canoe over to the rock and picked up the seal. It was fast asleep and did not know there was a man near until he lifted it into the boat.

The poor little thing was very unhappy and tried to get back into the water. Mr. Wise wished to keep it, so he took it home to his wife and they fed and petted it until it became quite tame and would go about the house like a dog.

After it had been with them a few weeks it became so fond of them that it would not leave the house for more than an hour at a time. Mrs. Wise would open the door and send it out.

Tommy—that is what they call it—would slide down the rocks into the sea and dive about for awhile catching fish. In about an hour he would climb up to the porch again and lie there drying like a child until Mrs. Wise opened the door. Then he would wag his tail and rub himself against her feet to show his joy. He liked nothing better than to have Mrs. Wise take him up in her arms or hold him on her lap.

One day Mrs. Wise put Tommy out of doors while she went to visit a neighbor. When he grew tired of playing, he went up to the door as usual, and called to get in. When no one came he cried just like a baby. When Mrs. Wise came home she found that he had cried himself sick, and he was sad all the evening.

Tommy learned a great many tricks. He was almost as quick at learning as a dog. He would shake hands, lie down and pretend to sleep, smoke a pipe, and cry when told to sing.

One day he went out to get his dinner in the sea, and that was the last Mrs. Wise ever saw of him. She thinks that he followed the tide far out into the ocean, and there met some of his old playmates, who persuaded him to stay with them.

At any rate he never came back, and Mrs. Wise says she loved him so well and was so sorry to lose him that she often dreams that she hears him crying on the doorstep.

She says that Tommy the seal was the nicest baby she ever had; but then she never had any other babies, except cat and dog babies. She never had a sweet baby brother or sister, such as you and I have.—Kathie Moore, in Our Little Ones.

GOOD HUMMING TOP.

It Costs Absolutely Nothing But the Trouble of Making.

If you want a good humming top that will cost nothing but the trouble of making, get an empty baking powder box, or any box suitable, and cut a slit in the side of it, either round or square, about half an inch long and half an inch wide. Next make a hole in the lid and bottom of the box for the spindle which you whittle out of a piece of pine to the shape shown in the sketch. The hole at bottom is square, and that at the top round, and care should be taken to make the spindle fit. Glue the lid and spindle in place. Now for a handle with which to spin it. A plain bit of wood with a hole at the end will do. When the glue is quite hard, wind the string around the spindle, passing it through the hole in the handle, and spin.—Harper's Young People.

THE HUMMING TOP.

Hard to Answer.

A question may look simple and yet present grave difficulties. "Am I on the road to Scrantown?" asked a lady who was making a tour of discovery from her summer home in a small New England town.

She addressed a man who was weeding a patch of ground near the road.

"You be, ma'am," he replied, surveying her with mild curiosity.

"Well, am I half-way there?" she asked.

"Why, as to that, ma'am, it would seem as ef 'twould make a diff'rence where you started from."

Lucy's Discovery.

FROM STATE CAPITALS

Governor Morris Inaugurated at Hartford.

ALBANY LEGISLATORS GO HOME.

The New Constitutional Convention Bill Now in Gov. Flower's Hands—Massachusetts' Legislature Organized—Henry Cabot Lodge Will Succeed Senator Dawes—Proceedings in Other States.

HARTFORD, Jan. 5.—The new House of Representatives was called together by ex-Speaker Paige, who administered the oath of office to the members. The ballot for speaker resulted as follows: Isaac W. Brooks of Torrington, 133; George M. Dunn, 105.

Speaker Brooks was sworn in by the retiring Speaker and briefly addressed the House.

A partisan debate occurred in the Senate on a resolution notifying the retiring Governor, Mr. Bulkeley, that the Senate was ready to receive any communication that he had to make. Senator Pierce, a member of the previous Senate, objected to recognizing Gov. Bulkeley by the passage of the resolution, but it passed—13 to 11.

Gov. Bulkeley notified the Senate that he had lent $800,000 to the various departments during the past two years, and submitted vouchers for the amount. Both matters were accepted and transmitted to the House. The Senate took a recess to 2:30 o'clock, when Gov. Morris was inaugurated.

Gov. Morris, in his address, urged a constitutional convention to revise the State's organic laws in accordance with the demands of the times.

The Legislature, he said, was not representative of the people, and the constitution was obscured by too many amendments. He continued: "If we are to retain popular government in Connecticut, the Constitution should be so changed that the votes of the people as cast on Election day should have their full effect. It is seldom that the executive officers of this State are those who have received a plurality of the people's votes.

"In forty of the forty-four states of the Union, a plurality vote elects the State officers. In every State admitted into the Union during the present century a plurality vote elects. In this State a plurality vote elects the Presidential electors, members of Congress, State Senators and representatives, sheriffs and Judges of Probate. No good reason can be shown why the executive officers of the State should not be elected by a plurality vote."

LODGE THE WINNER.

Nominated by the Massachusetts Republicans to Succeed Senator Dawes.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—The Senate organized by the re-election of President Pinkerton of Worcester, and Henry D. Coolidge as Clerk.

In the House the Speaker and Clerk of 1892, Messrs. William F. Barrett and Edward A. McLaughlin, were re-elected, and Capt. J. C. B. Adams was again chosen Sergeant-at-Arms by the two Houses in concurrence.

Both President Pinkerton and Speaker Barrett made addresses, in which the earnest and united efforts of all for careful legislation and prompt attention to duty were asked.

The contest for Speaker in the House had a most harmonious ending. Mr. Barrett receiving 230 of the 231 votes cast. Mr. Charles, of Boston, who received the odd vote, moved that it be made unanimous.

The Republicans of the Legislature met in caucus in the afternoon to nominate a United States Senator to succeed Senator Dawes. President Pinkerton of the Senate presided. Senator Butler, leader of the Crapo forces, asked why the members were in such haste to hold this caucus.

The vote for senator could not be taken until January 17 and he asked that an adjournment be taken to January 12. Several other speakers discussed the question, but a motion to adjourn was finally lost 124 to 40, and by a vote of 143 to 31 the caucus proceeded to ballot. The result was as follows:

Whole number of votes 186; necessary for a choice, 94; Henry Cabot Lodge had 147; William W. Crapo, 39; Frederick T. Greenhalge, 2; William Coggswell, 2; John D. Long, 5.

Mr. Lodge was declared the caucus' nominee.

PROCEEDINGS AT ALBANY.

Both Branches Adjourn Over Until Monday Next.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—The Senate met shortly after 10 o'clock and began the consideration of the bill amending the Constitution—Convention law, postponing the election until next November. After several amendments had been voted down the bill was passed.

The Assembly resolution to take a recess until Monday night at 8 o'clock was concurred in.

When the Assembly convened Mr. Quigley moved that when the Assembly adjourn it be until 8 o'clock next Monday evening. Agreed to.

Mr. Ainsworth introduced a resolution, which was referred, calling on the Congressmen from New York to enact at the present session some measure looking to the restriction of immigration, in view of the danger of cholera.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

SAVED FROM THE SEA.

A Crew Rescued After Fifty-Three Hours of Extreme Peril.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The American bark Herbert Fuller, Capt. Nash, has arrived from Brunswick, Ga., Dec. 24.

She brought twelve persons, consisting of Capt. Bunker, master of the schooner Levanter, abandoned off Cape Hatteras last Friday; his wife and young son, and nine sailors.

The Levanter hailed from Thomaston, Me. She sailed from Brunswick a few days previous to the bark Herbert Fuller.

When she arrived off Cape Hatteras, the day after Christmas, the wind was terrific from the north and east, and the sea rose to such an unusual height that the Levanter finally sprung a leak.

At daylight on the 27th she was fifty miles east of the cape, with six or seven feet of water in her hold.

At noon the vessel became waterlogged, and the steering gear gave out, and the vessel became unmanageable. At 8 o'clock the vessel had sunk to the upper deck, and the rigging was one mass of ice, freezing thicker and thicker as the sea dashed against it.

At 10 p. m. the captain ordered all hands to lash themselves to the housetop, and even then the sea constantly broke over them.

This condition of things continued until noon of the 30th, when the bark Herbert Fuller sighted the distressed vessel, then 170 miles north of Cape Hatteras, bore down to her and rescued all on board. All hands were on the housetop for fifty-three hours, the vessel drifting completely at the mercy of the sea.

Captain Nash says the rescue was affected after great difficulty. It took three hours to complete the work and the high sea came near swamping the boats several times.

A majority of the men were badly frostbitten.

A Paradise for Thirsty Ones.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—Brewers here are engaged in a bitter war. A year or so ago all the large breweries formed a syndicate. Since then scores of small breweries have sprung up. The syndicate is trying to wipe out the small fry, who have been stealing their customers. The syndicate has cut the price of beer to $4 a barrel, which is nearly the cost price to the producers.

Buried in a Mine for Ten Days.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 5.—Ten days ago a mine on the Lonets railway was flooded by a premature explosion and all but eight of the miners escaped. Pumps were worked night and day, and to-day a search was begun for the bodies of the eight victims. To the surprise of all, the men were found in an abandoned work. They were alive, but unconscious from hunger.

Egyptian Quarantine Raised.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—A quarantine has existed for a number of months in Egypt on passengers from Europe. BATTLED WITH THE MOB

Desperate Fight at a North Carolina Lynching Bee.

TWENTY-TWO KILLED OUTRIGHT.

Many Others Shot, Several Fatally—A Mob, Having Lynched a Confessed Murderer, Is Met by the Sheriff and Deputies—A Sanguinary Encounter Ensues.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Jan. 5.—The facts which led up to the terrible lynching affray in Bakersville, N. C., were as follows:

Aaron Wiseman and Calvin Snipes were partners in an illicit distillery in Mitchell county, N. C., and had told Wm. Osborne and Isaac Osborne, two brothers, where the distillery was situated. Wm. Osborne reported the distillery to the officials at Bakersville, N. C. and helped them to destroy it.

Wiseman and Snipes suspected Isaac Osborne as the reporter. On the night of August 27, 1892, Snipes and Wiseman armed with Winchester rifles, went to the home of Isaac Osborne and called him up. Mr. Osborne came to the door and the culprits opened fire almost riddling him with bullets.

Wiseman and Snipes were arrested but sufficient evidence could not be obtained against Wiseman and he was released. Snipes was bound by the Superior Court on purely circumstantial evidence. He was placed in jail and after being confined about two weeks, confessed to the killing in the manner above related.

A mob of 400 gathered at Bakersville yesterday afternoon and at once surrounded the jail. The sheriff barricaded the doors but the mob battered the main doors down with a log for a ram.

The mob swarmed into the jail and overpowered the guards. The Sheriff refused to tell where he had secreted the keys of Snipes' cell.

The door was burst in and Snipes was dragged out and in the care of the mob marched through the town and into a mountain forest about half a mile distant.

The Sheriff swore in half a hundred deputies, and at once started in pursuit. He hoped to recover the prisoner, but before he reached the timber the mob had strung Snipes to the limb of a tree and were pouring volleys of bullets into his body when the Sheriff and his men came up.

The brave Sheriff ordered his men to arrest the ringleaders of the mob. The mob at once opened fire on the Sheriff and his men, who as quickly replied with guns and revolvers.

The combatants scattered among the trees, and a regular guerrilla war began. The battle lasted an hour or so before both sides paused to care for the wounded.

The names of those of the sheriff's posse killed are as follows:

J. N. Williams, D. F. Richie, R. R. Jones, P. B. Sams, R. E. Johnson, Wm. Reed, T. N. Beckner, J. W. Laws, N. R. Pannell, G. N. Hallifield and Thomas Hall.

The names of those of the mob killed are:

John Work, William Osborne, T. G. Bailiffe, Will Perry, John Osborne, Phil Crowder, Jim Nance, Will Butler, Hagey Byrd, Owen Thomas, Jack Phillips and several others whose names are not known at present.

AMNESTY FOR MORMONS.

Proclaimed by President Harrison—Future Violations to be Prosecuted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Harrison has issued a proclamation granting full amnesty and pardon under the act of March 22, 1882, defining the crimes of bigamy, polygamy and unlawful cohabitation in the Territories of the United States, known as the Anti-Mormon act, to all persons who have since Nov. 1, 1890, abstained from such unlawful cohabitation, but upon the express condition that they shall in the future faithfully obey the laws of the United States, and not otherwise. Those who shall fail to avail themselves of the clemency offered will be vigorously prosecuted.

The proclamation is based upon the action of the Mormon Church of October, 1890, in proclaiming that it would no longer sanction polygamous marriages; representation that they have been abandoned, and the report of the Utah commission recommending the proclamation of amnesty.

THE GOULDS ARE NOT ALARMED.

Not Afraid of Attempts to Steal the Late Financier's Body.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The story published to the effect that plots were on foot to steal the remains of the late Jay Gould from the mausoleum at Woodlawn has caused no uneasiness in the Gould family.

Edwin Gould did not deny that letters hinting at such a scheme on the part of ghouls had been sent to himself and his brother George, but they showed evidence of having been written by cranks.

The Gould tomb is so massively built and protected and the guards of the cemetery are so vigilant that there is hardly the possibility of a successful attempt being made to secure the body.

George J. Gould, just before leaving for Boston, declared there was no foundation for stories of such plots.

WON'T ACCEPT A MILLION.

Mrs. Kosterlitz Will Hold Out for Her Full Share of the Crouse Estate.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Lawyer Steele, counsel for Mrs. Kosterlitz, admits that a proposition had been received from the heirs of D. Edgar Crouse that his client accept $1,000,000 in settlement of her claim against the estate.

He says, however, that as the claim of his client to be the widow of Mr. Crouse will be easily proven, and that as the legal heiress her proportion of the estate will amount to about $3,000,000, she is not likely to accept $1,000,000.

The California Senatorship.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. Jan. 5.—Jeremiah Lynch has withdrawn from the Senatorial contest, thus leaving the field clear for Stephen M. White. Two Democratic Senators and two Democratic members of the lower house have since refused to support White. Counting the three Populists for White, he still needs three votes to elect. It is rumored that four Republicans will be absent during the balloting which will give White a majority, but a deadlock is more probable, and this would mean the appointment of a Republican.

MANY FIREMEN INJURED

Terrific Explosions of Natural Gas in Chicago.

SEVERAL OF THE WOUNDED DYING.

A Number of Employes of the Printing House in Which the Accident Happened Also Seriously Hurt—Brave Rescue of Imprisoned Firemen by Their Companions.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The explosions of natural gas which wrecked the lower part of the great printing establishment of Donohue & Hennesberry last evening were terrific, and it seems almost a miracle that no one was killed outright. As it is, over a score of firemen, including the Chief of the Fire Department and several laborers, are seriously injured. Two men are dying and several others are so seriously burned that they cannot recover.

Those fatally injured are:

James Russell, fireman, burned about the head and internal injuries.

Thomas Gallagher, fireman, internal injuries and face almost burned off.

The explosion was in the plate vault which is located immediately beneath the sidewalk which is formed of heavy iron frames covered with glass and iron. During the early part of the afternoon three employes of the Natural Gas company had been at work in this vault, making connections that were to be used in supplying the boiler plant with fuel.

As a precaution the doors of the vault were closed. Shortly befor 8 o'clock Foreman Robert Granger of the press room, noticed flames in the vicinity of the brick wall, which extended between the press room and the vault. Without waiting to open the vault doors the foreman gave an alarm of fire. He then retuned to the basement when some one threw open the vault door.

Instantly there was an explosion and nearly of the employes who were in the vicinity, about ten in number, were thrown to the floor, all sustaining more or less serious injuries.

Within a few moments members of the fire insurance patrol and hose engine companies were on the spot headed by Chief Swenie. The squad of firemen rushed to the basement and had no sooner reached the vault door than a second and stronger explosion followed, and all the men were hurled to the floor or across the room against the wall on the opposite side which they struck with terrific force.

Several of the men were rendered senseless, and the flames which had ignited their clothing roasted their hands and faces in the most horrible manner.

Other firemen were close behind them, however, and for a few minutes the fire was left to take care of itself while the injured men were being rescued.

Before one half of them had been taken out, and while the basement was full of men working with desperation to save their helpless comrades, came a third explosion more terrific than either of its predecessors, and the would-be rescuers were laid beside the men they had come to assist.

A score of gallant firemen sprang into the vault to rescue the men who had been injured, undeterred by the danger of another explosion, and cheered on by Swenie the firemen worked as men can work when their own lives and the lives of others are trembling in the balance.

One by one the burned and battered men were dragged from the basement and as the last one was taken out Swenie called out "Now, out for your lives, men," and there was a rush for the upper floor, which was made just in the nick of time, for a fourth explosion came, which made bricks, mortar and ironwork fly like feathers and gave the chief a scorching as he beat a retreat, that he will remember for many a long day.

To Come Again.

A well-filled house that included many of the best people of both sexes in Plainfield, enjoyed that strongest of strong plays, "The Clemenceau Case", interpreted by a remarkably talented company, at Music Hall, last evening. Emma Bell as Ina left nothing to be desired as an improvement, and Albert Bruning as Pierre and Max Rosenburg as Serj were beyond criticism. In fact the entire company was without a weak spot. At the request of a large number of those present —members of the Union County Country club and other representative citizens, who find nothing vulgar in pure art and thoroughly appreciated the strength of the play and its players—the company was booked for a return date early in the coming spring.

Among those present, in one of the boxes, was William Fleron the author of the play with Pearl Eytinge, daughter of the celebrated artist.

Only Ten Minutes From Perfect Satisfaction.

The pupils of the High School are pleased with the one session plan which went into effect last Tuesday, though they would be better pleased if they were not compelled to be in their seats until 8:30 instead of ten minutes earlier. Those ten minutes count for a good deal in the morning plans of many homes in the winter season. The pupils feel very much indebted to THE PRESS and others who publicly advocated the measure.

New so-called remedies spring up every day like mushrooms; but the people still cling to Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yield to it. Price 50c.

ATTRACTION EXTRAORDINARY.

Carmencita, the Famous Beauty and Dancer, to Appear in Plainfield.

After much correspondence and telegraphing, manager Demarest has finally arranged for the appearance in Plainfield at Music Hall on Wednesday evening, the 11th inst., of the new comedy, "The Prodigal Father" and the famous Spanish beauty and dancer, Carmencita. This dual attraction, which is just now packing the Broadway theater is booked for a very limited season only, and the theatergoers of Plainfield are to be congratulated and manager Demarest commended that Plainfield is to get one of the few nights of the tour. Of Carmencita and her sensuous and voluptuous grace little can now be said at this late day.

"The Prodigal Father" has been accepted in the metropolis as elsewhere as one of the genuine comedy successes of the year, and is pronounced clean, bright and unusually entertaining. The seat sale for this attraction will begin Saturday morning at the Central pharmacy.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb returned last evening from their wedding trip.

Henry G. Shirley is dead at his late residence, 37 Liberty street. He was 57 years of age.

The Westfield Leader says: "Walter Irving Clarke of Plainfield has a fine story in the Christmas Journalist".

F. M. Hulett the piano man has gone to Gloversville, N. Y., to attend the funeral of his brother, D. W. Hulett, who died very suddenly. The bereavement brings to Mr. Hulett the sympathy of the community.

Its Hard to Beat the Dutch.

Yesterday the long talked of pigeon shooting match between Charley Smith, (Dutch) and the "Unknown", came off on the grounds of the Independent Gun club in the presence of a large number of spectators. The match was for $50 a side, 50 live birds each, modified Hurlingham rules to govern. The birds were a fine lot, flying swift and strong the moment they were liberated from the traps, which were five in number. Each contestant stood at 30 yards rise and the boundary was 80 yards. Ed. Campbell pulled the traps and Jacob Pentz and Tee Kay were referrees.

The result of the contest was 36 kills for Smithy and 33 for the "Unknown". The former had the hardest birds to kill. Among the many present were Milt Lindsley, of American Wood Powder fame, Hobart, of the American Field, Jacob Pentz, of Fishing and Shooting, William Laire of Brooklyn and Tee Kay.

Lectures Postponed.

The committee in charge of the course of lectures now being given at All Souls' church regret to announce that the two remaining lectures of the course are unavoidably postponed owing to the serious illness of one of the lecturers, Mr. Chadwick, and the unexpected absence of Robert Collyer, the other, who is obliged to be in Chicago. It is hoped that Mr. Chadwick may be able to give his lecture on "Thoreau"—announced for to-morrow evening—at an early day, of which due notice will be given; if not, the committee will fill his place as well as they can.

The lecture of Robert Collyer announced for Jan. 20 will be given the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 1, his subject being "Clear Grit".

Believes the Bad News Killed Her.

James E. Totten, of whom it was exclusively announced in these columns Saturday that he had retained Jackson & Codington to bring suit for $7,000 damages against his late employers Fuller & Bingham for defamation of character, claims that the evil stories spread concerning him were instrumental in causing his mother's death. It will be remembered that Mrs. Totten died suddenly in an apoplectic fit. This attack, the son believes, was hastened if not caused by her constant grieving and sobbing over the bad tales about her son, which tales he alleges to be an invention of his former employers.

More Praise for the Retiring Warden.

(Elizabeth Herald.)

The office of jail warden is one well worth having as the salary derived from it is $1,500 a year with a house for the warden and family besides food and fuel. The board of freeholders at its regular session to be held to-morrow afternoon will elect Mr. Blore as warden.

The present incumbent, Charles W. Dodd, of Plainfield, has been a most faithful officer and much regret is expressed by both Republicans and Democrats alike that he must take up his bed and walk. There have been many petitions presented to the board asking for his re-appointment.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

AN "ESTOPPEL IN PAIS."

That's What a Plainfield Lawyer Said It Was, and Won a Hopeless Case.

Editor Cash, shake hands! Your verdict for $1,050 and costs of suit which you yesterday won at Elizabeth, you richly deserved. You not only deserved it, but you showed your good sense in coming to Plainfield for your lawyer. That is getting the fashionable thing to do, and THE PRESS claims to have set this particular fashion when it went to law against an oppressor of newspaper men.

Everybody hereabouts knows about the big fire that burnt out a large part of Westfield a year ago. Mr. Cash was burnt out. He had a policy of insurance in the American Fire Insurance company of Philadelphia for $1,000 on his printing presses. The policy had a proviso that it should be void if the property should be or become mortgaged unless consent to the mortgage should be indorsed on the policy. Mr. Cash had to admit that the property was mortgaged and that the company's consent was not indorsed.

The company's lawyers, Wallis, Edwards & Bumstead of Jersey City, claimed that it was as clear as A. B. C. that Mr. Cash was not entitled to one cent insurance. It certainly did look that way to many people, but Craig A. Marsh, who is Mr. Cash's lawyer, got around that little difficulty, as usual, as easy as rolling off a log. He simply made the point that after the policy was delivered to Mr. Cash, the latter returned it to the agent of the company talked about the mortgages and requested that $500 additional insurance be put on the property and the policy fixed all right, and that the agent afterwards said that he had fixed it all right. Mr. Marsh said this operated as an estoppel in pais, whatever that may be, and the court (Judge VanSyckel) agreed with him. The jury agreed with him too, and it did n't take them more than five minutes to render a verdict for the full amount with costs.

EVIDENCE FOR THE RECTOR'S CASE.

The Rev. Jennings's Parishioners Consult Members of His Old Church.

A representative of Judge J. B. Green, counsel for the Westfield Episcopal church members in the trial of their rector, the Rev. Joseph B. Jennings, it is reported, has visited Sag Harbor, L. I., the past week for the purpose of hunting up that clergyman's record while in charge of Christ Episcopal church of that village.

It is asserted that the man saw several members of the parish and when he left had in his possession a copy of a letter signed by Bishop Littlejohn of the Long Island diocese, and addressed to one of the former officials of the church, stating that at the time he was assigned to the Sag Harbor parish the Rev. Mr. Jennings "needed watching". The letter was in the possession of Dr. George Sterling, who was warden when Mr. Jennings began the rector, but afterwards resigned at joined the Catholic church.

Judge Thomas F. Bisgood and William Sherwood, officers of the Episcopal church, are also named as having been seen, but declined to discuss their former rector on the ground that he had had enough trouble, and they would not add to it.

The complaints of the Westfield church members are synonymous with those that were made at Sag Harbor. Whiskey flasks, it was claimed, figured prominently in the study. The study, it was alleged, was the favorite place for sleeping off the effects of indulgence. The Rev. Mr. Jennings at last left the village and the people next heard of him as rector of the Westfield church.

BONDS NO LONGER A BUG-A-BOO, BUT BUSINESS.

Plainfield Must Have Sewers or Give up All Claims to Respectability.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I was delighted to find in the mayor's message such sensible and fearless words as he writes in relation to our sewerage problem.

The name of "bonds" has been made such a bug-a-boo in this place that it is very refreshing to hear the matter treated simply as a matter of BUSINESS.

Any man who had a chance to make an immensely profitable investment, and who refused because he did not have the entire amount required in his pocket, at the time, though friends were ready and anxious to lend him the funds at a low rate of interest, would be considered a fool.

Plainfield must have sewers or give up all claim to respectability, and no better investment could possibly be made.

We can borrow the money cheaply and pay it back soon.

That is all there is to the scarecrow of bonds. HOME.

—A. M. Vanderbeek is closing out his goods at cost. He will leave Plainfield about March 1.

DID MRS. SCHELL CAST A SPELL?

Richard J. Clarke Left Her Nearly Everything in His Will and the Relatives Contest on the Grounds of Alleged Hypnotic Influence.

Did Mrs. Alice A. Schell hypnotize old Richard J. Clarke, while they were living at the Hotel Albion, last summer, and cause him to make a codicil to his will leaving nearly all his property to her?

That is the question Surrogate Ransom is called upon to decide in the contest of Clarke's will, which began yesterday in New York. Richard J. Clarke made a fortune in the Franklin Coffee House, in Malden Lane, New York, before the war. He died in this city on June 10, 1892, at the age of eighty-two. None of his relatives were notified of his death. Now they are contesting his will.

Clarke was brought by his parents from his birthplace, in England, while still a child. His father left a snug little fortune, which Clarke increased to about $147,000. He never married.

Mrs. Anson House, a widow, lived on the same floor of the hotel where Clarke did and he and she became warm friends. She had a son called Anson Clarke House. Clarke provided for him handsomely in his will. Mrs. House introduced Mrs. Alice A. Schell, a relative, to Mr. Clarke, who became quite fond of her, visiting frequently at her house, No. 365 West Twenty-third street, New York.

Mr. Clarke fell sick in May, 1892, and Mrs. Schell took him to stay at the Hotel Albion in this city. She and her son and daughter, it is said, nursed him and allowed no one else to see him. Then he died. The will was opened and was found to contain a codicil, dated September 3, 1891, which revoked the bequest to Anson Clarke House and made Mrs. Schell almost sole beneficiary. Mrs. House and her son had both died in the meantime.

William J. Clarke and George B. Clarke, cousins of Richard Clarke, were entirely omitted from the will, while several relatives of Mrs. Schell were left $1,000 each. Mrs. Schell was left $25,000 and $50 a week for life. Clarke's whole estate consisted of personal property worth $110,000 and real estate worth $37,000. Mrs. Schell presented the will for probate, but the cousins contested it.

The contest began yesterday. During the progress of the case Mr. McClure, counsel for the contestants, handed the codicil which made Mrs. Schell almost the sole heir, to her, and asked:

"Whose hand-writing is that?"

"It is mine," she replied.

"I thought so," murmured Mr. McClure with a smile of triumph.

Then the Surrogate adjourned court until to-day.

It is understood that Mr. McClure will try to prove that Mrs. Schell exercised an influence of a hypnotic or mesmeric nature over Mr. Clarke.

FLOODS IN SOMERSET.

A Railroad Bridge Swept Away, Roads Blockaded, and a Stock Farm Inundated.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad bridge at Landsdown has been washed out, and the Valley trains in consequence have been running a portion of the way on the Central's tracks. The washout was caused by the heavy rains all through the northern part of New Jersey, which undermined the abutments of the bridge. The recent rainfall was exceedingly heavy throughout Somerset county, and combined with the melting snow filled the streams on a level with their banks. The Raritan river at Somerville overflowed, completely submerging the lowlands south of the railroad. During the height of the freshet, cattle were struggling around in water up to their necks, trying to escape. They belonged to a stock farmer living near Somerville. The wagon road between Finderne and Weston was impassible owing to the high water. It was said to be sixteen feet deep in places.

The Hosts Defeated.

A ten-men team from Pondville, called the "West Siders", paid a visit to the C. Y. M. L.'s alleys, last evening, and played a friendly game but defeated the latter by 63 pins. The Y. M.'s started the game with strikes and spares a plenty, but their opponents could get nothing until about the middle of the game when they found the spot where the king pin stood and then kept a knocking with a strike here and a spare there until the end of the game when it was found they were victorious! The Y. M.'s deserve credit for the courtesy they show to any bowling team that pays a visit to their alleys. The score:

Incendiaries at Bound Brook.

At an early hour last Thursday morning discordant whistles and bells aroused the residents of Bound Brook from their sleep, and it was found that the barn of the Alfred Camman estate was in flames. Before the fire department could reach the scene, the barn had burned to the ground. The building, a frame structure, was situated on Second street, directly in the heart of the most densely populated portion of the town, and but for the fact that no wind was blowing at the time the fire would have spread rapidly in all directions. The fire is reported to be of incendiary origin, as have been several others which have occured in Bound Brook within the last three months. The town has a fine fire department, and the toughs in the vicinity like to see the brave fire laddies struggle with the flames.

ESCAPE WINTER'S RIGORS.

Take a Clyde Steamship Tour and Revel in Florida's Tropical Blisses.

This sharp, freezing, stormy weather makes the Jerseyman long for the southern warmth and loveliness. Plainfield has many people whose ideal winter enjoyment is a visit to Florida. That is a wonderful State, and its many objects of beauty and delight are a host of attractiveness for the health and pleasure seekers. Florida is the Riviera of America, and the one superb way to go is by one of the sumptuous steamers of the Clyde Steamship company. This is the established popular route, and is a most enjoyable and invigorating link between Jersey and the South.

The Clyde steamers leave Pier 29, East River, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 3 p. m., direct for Jacksonville, Fla., giving a fine opportunity of viewing New York Harbor by daylight, passing Governor's Island, the Statue of Liberty, Staten Island, Bay Ridge, Fort Hamilton, through the Narrows, and after leaving Sandy Hook a course is taken for the old historic city of Charleston, S. C., which is reached in about 50 hours. The opportunity then presents itself to spend from six to eight hours in this interesting quaint old city. Here are Forts Sumter and Moultrie, Magnolia gardens with liveoaks two-hundred years old and so large that seven persons cannot encircle them with outstretched arms; japonicas 18 or 20 feet, a sylphide rose tree seventeen feet high and twenty feet wide; many other rare plants and flowering shrubs; and the crowning glory, gorgeous azaleas, bushes twenty feet through and fifteen high, solid masses of blossoms of all shades of red, from palest pink to deepest crimson, with occasionally pure white. There are romantic walks arched by moss-draped oaks, a fairy lake, and countless other attractions.

From Charleston one parts with regret, but the future has even richer delights in store, and when one has concluded his journey by magnificent Clyde Steamship he finds himself in an earthly paradise. Jacksonville is the metropolis of the flowery State, the gateway to scenes and surroundings of terrestrial bliss. And the one key to that gateway is the Clyde Steamship line.

It is not within the space of this or many articles to tell the countless glories that there await the tourist. At the end of the charming ocean voyage there are limitless attractions for those hale and hearty, or for the invalid. The Clyde people, experienced in such matters, have mapped out a number of beautiful tours, and have graded the prices down to moderate figures so that every purse can be suited. Not the least attractive is their special tour for sportsmen, who will find Florida just the place for their skill.

St. Augustine, the great lake region of Florida and the Gulf coast, St. John's river, which affords the most glorious sail in the universe, these and hundreds of Nature's rarest bowers, await one at the service of the Clyde Steamship company. A bookful of descriptions and illustrations is provided free of cost by A. J. Cole, passenger agent, at 5 Bowling Green, New York.

GOOD FOR PETER.

A Former Plainfielder Scores a Political Victory in Brooklyn.

Peter J. Collins, who is a brother-in-law to the grocers S. H. Sharkey and J. H. Blimm, and who is well-known in this city where he formerly lived, is secretary of the Twenty-sixth Ward Democratic league in Brooklyn. About two weeks ago he was accused by Francis Brennan and Adrain V. Hatfield of offering to sell the roll book to John Harrington, the secretary of the regular association of the ward, for $200. A committee was appointed to investigate the charge, but on the night appointed for the hearing Brennan and Hatfield did not appear to uphold their complaint. The result was that at the next regular meeting of the league Brenan and Hatfield were expelled. But Brennan was not satisfied. This week the primary for the election of officers of the league took place and Brennan had a ticket in the field. The straight ticket had on it Mr. Collins for secretary.

The only objection that Mr. Brennan had was against Collins and in his place he nominated Peter Meade. The voting began at 2 in the afternoon and lasted until 9. Two hundred and thirty-four votes were cast, of which Mr. Collins received 224. Meade's vote was 10.

Screw Ferryboats for the New Jersey Central.

The New Jersey Central Railroad company is building two fore-and-aft screw ferryboats at Wilmington, which are to begin running on Feb. 15 on the new route from the New Jersey Central station to the foot of Whitehall street. The new boats are to be faster than any now in use by the company, and it is expected to make the trip to the Whitehall street slip in the same time that is taken for the trip to Liberty street. The new boats will be run chiefly in connection with the Royal Blue trains, in order to land passengers at a point in New York where all the raised roads may be reached at the South Ferry station. The new boats, which will be named the Easton and Mauch Chunk, will each be 158 feet long, 32 feet beam, 54 feet over guards, and 14.4 feet hold.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from the nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Reinert Alone Was Responsible.

The investigation by the New Jersey Central railroad officials of the collision which occurred a week ago yesterday at White House, as first told of in THE PRESS, proves that the responsibility rests solely upon engineer Reinert, who was asleep. His slumber was so profound that even when the brakeman hurled his lighted lantern through the cab window, the crash did not disturb him. The collision woke him up, and gave him such a shock that he has not recovered from it yet. Reinert is reported to have said that he was unable to keep awake, as he had been on duty for thirty consecutive hours. The evidence is conclusive that this is not true. Reinert reached Mauch Chunk on Dec. 25, and, after lying idle for sixty-two hours, started out again at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The collision occurred at 4:05 the following morning, so that Reinert could not have been on continuous duty more than twelve hours. Supt. Olhausen has not received the official report of the investigation.

Governor Werts's Staff.

While as yet no official announcement has been made as to the staff of Governor George T. Werts, it is stated on good authority that the following named gentlemen have received notices of their appointment on the staff: Leon Abbett, jr., of Hoboken; Senator Michael T. Barrett, of Newark; Asa Dickinson, of Jersey City; Joseph D. Bedle, of Jersey City; Anthony B. Kuser, of Trenton; E. P. Meaney, of Morristown, and Senator Robert Adrain, of New Brunswick.

The Governor is entitled to a personal staff of ten aides, and he may appoint two others. Colonel Harvey is mentioned as a possible addition. Each of the gentlemen named above have received notices to meet at the St. James Hotel next Saturday to complete arrangements for the inauguration of Governor Werts.—True American.

This Will End These Grade Crossings.

The Central and Pennsylvania Railroad companies have signed the contracts with the city of Elizabeth for the depression of the streets and the abolition of the dangerous grade crossings at North Broad street and Morris avenue, Elizabeth.

Fashion Tells What Color to Wear.

"Brilliant red, with black trimming, is popular," is the latest decree from Paris.

All light colors, as yellow, orange or pink can be easily colored a brilliant red with diamond dye fast scarlet. A package of this beautiful dye, sufficient to color two pounds of goods, can be bought for ten cents at any drug store. It will not fade or crock, and soapsuds simply brightens it.

That County Electric Railway.

The Westfield town committee met Tuesday evening, a full board being present. After considering some minor business the board gave attention to Foster M. Voorhees, representing the electric railroad company, who requested the privilege of laying tracks in the town. Mr. Voorhees did not ask to run the tracks past the depot, as the company propose to make some point near the depot the terminus of their road. The matter was discussed at considerable length, but no definite agreement was reached. Mr. Voorhees apparently preferred to have the route along South avenue to Elmer street and from Elmer street to Ross place, thence along South avenue to the depot. The committee preferred to have it from South avenue along Elmer street to North avenue and along North avenue to the depot. The question was also raised as to whether it was best to have the tracks placed at the side of the road or in the center. The committee adjourned to meet Mr. Voorhees again January 17.

A Plucky Young Horsewoman.

At 3:10 this afternoon a pony driven to a phaeton by young Miss Helen Talmadge took fright and ran at breakneck speed down Front street, throwing out the young lady, who pluckily ran after the pony, though she was limping from the fall and her arm also was hurt. The pony was checked by a man near Somerset street.

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of fifty years among a discriminating people like Americans, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. The value of a medicine is best proved by its continued use from year to year by the same persons and families, as well as by a steady increasing sale. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the introduction and progress of BRANDETH'S PILLS, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conceded to be the safest and most effective purgative and blood purifier introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit, and that BRANDETH'S PILLS actually perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

BRANDETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

Vassar, 56 Warren st., New York.

Ely's Cream Balm is worth its weight in gold as a cure for catarrh. One bottle cured me. S. A. Lovell, Franklin, Pa.

POISONING SUSPECTED.

Two More Supposed Victims of the Plot at the Homestead Mills.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 5.—Two sons of James M. Williams, a farmer residing near Monongahela City, are suffering from what is believed to be poison administered at the Homestead mills. One of them is dying.

The boys, aged 18 and 20 respectively, were the first to enter the Carnegie mill when it was opened to non-union men. They worked until they became sick. They then returned home where the family physician pronounced their ailment typhoid fever.

The physicians' treatment, however, had no effect. After a second examination the doctor stated that the stomachs and intestines of both were terribly ulcerated. He would not say positively that the young men were poisoned.

Trouble in South Dakota's Legislature.

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 5.—The Populists and Republicans have been engaged in a row ever since the opening of the Legislature. The Populist State officers assembled at the house of Governor Shortridge yesterday and were privately sworn in by Chief Justice Bartholomay, instead of waiting for the public ceremony. The Republicans are very angry and to-day will introduce bills in both houses cutting off the appropriations of all State officers for clerk hire.

A RETROSPECTIVE WIDOW.

After six months of widowhood Bridget consented to again enter the married state. A few weeks after she was led to the altar her former mistress met her on the street, dressed in deepest mourning.

"Why, Bridget," she exclaimed, "for whom are you in black?"

"For poor Tim, me furrst husband, mum. When he died I was that poor I couldn't, but I said if iver I could I would, and me new man, Mike, is as ginerous as a lord."—Life.

BABES AND CHILDREN.

All Parents Will Read This With Greatest Interest.

Strong, vigorous and healthy children are what we all want, and how to keep our little ones in good health is a question of the greatest interest to us all. Children are peculiarly liable to nervous disorders; they become nervous, restless, fretful, cross and irritable; their night's sleep is not calm and restful, but they toss restlessly from side to side, murmur or talk in their sleep, and wake tired and unrefreshed in the morning. They have an irregular appetite, grow thin and pale, look slight and puny, and their growth and development become stunted.

If your children are sick, give that greatest of all children's remedies, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This wonderful remedy is, above all, a family medicine, and its name is a household word in thousands of homes all over the land. It is made from pure and harmless vegetable remedies, is calming, soothing, and healing to the nerves, and at the same time strengthens and invigorates the entire system, restoring a healthful color to the cheek, refreshing sleep, strong nerves, stout limbs and that bounding health and vitality which all children should have. It is perfectly safe to give to children of any age, and its curative and restorative effects are wonderful. Druggists, $1.00.

"My little girl had been taking medicines for a severe nervous trouble nearly two years, receiving no benefit. I then bought a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and her recovery by its use has been remarkable. Others of the family have received benefit from its use." C. H. Bemis, Granby, Mass."

Dr. Greene, the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th st., New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

Some Pertinent Reflections for Christmas Day.

Pretty Bodices to Engage Our Attention —Fur in Its New Shapes and Forms— Seal Still the Favorite—Evening Gowns Again.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Surely we wouldn't think of fashions on such a day as this. Why, it's Christmas, the day we forget ourselves and think of others! We haven't any time to bother with styles and petty differences of fashion and trifling advance on the modes of a month ago.

No? Well, then, let me tell you of what a thoughtful parent has purchased for his pretty daughter. That will interest you, I know. It is one of the prettiest bodices you ever saw, and she is going to wear it to-night at the family gathering—just to please him, you know. It is a Josephine bodice, made of peau de soie, in a deep rich red draped softly across the front with rose-colored mousseline de soie, caught up by a big cameo. Then there is a very high belt of the same cameos, and one catching up each short sleeve puff of the mousseline. Her hair is so very dark and her skin so purely olive that she is delighted with the thought of the result.

Now, have I succeeded in getting you interested, and cannot I persuade you to listen for a little space while I discourse upon several more bodices almost as pretty as the one this favorite daughter will wear?

Hearken, then, to this description of one in mauve velvet, close-fitting and with a Bolero formed above by gold and mauve embroidery, from which falls a deep flounce of lace, long in the front, gradually shortening over the hips and at the back until it is caught up with a clou of ribbon and long streamers. In the front, also, there are clous where the lace and embroidery join. The short sleeves are full lace flounces falling beneath embroidered épaulets.

Another one with loosely ramming sash effect is of serpent-green silk, shot with rose. The low cut corsage is bordered with pink feather trimming shading off into green, and from this the lace flouncing falls. This time it is at the back that the lace hangs long into a deep slender point. Butterflies of lace are poised on the shoulders.

Two more are there—one of pink bengaline, the other of yellow brocade. The bengaline has a dull pink feather trimming and steel passementerie bands for adornment; the yellow brocade has flouncing of white chiffon across the pointed bodice, and a high crush belt of the brocade.

But there's another subject we may discuss even on Christmas day, and that is fur. It's a warm, comfortable subject, and seems to suit the glowing fire and family gathering, particularly that most comfortable and popular form of it—seal. Seal still reigns queen of all furs; no other has conquered it, although its overthrow has often been prophesied and threatened.

But though it is still supreme it has assumed a new guise. We see it no longer in severity of form, in straight, plain garment almost devoid of shape. It has dropped the old conservatism and taken unto itself many new notions. We see it now plaited and gathered in many fanciful ways, in long Watteau folds, in gathered capes, in short plaited collars, and the effect is not so ungraceful as one might suppose, for the fur easily adapts itself to the change and appears none the worse for it, either.

It looks prettiest, perhaps, in the long military cape, falling free from the collar, edged with other furs (generally Russian sable; or, perhaps, with a close row of Russian sable tails laid around on the seal, not hanging below it.

In the short fur garments—the little capes and the Eton and Bolero jackets—however, other fur is just as popular. One always finds the mink, and there are also the gray krimmer, the Persian lamb or the moire Persian. Of course, the military cape is the latest, and often forms the only outer garment, even on cold days. But it is very deceptive, and while it looks warm and protecting, hanging far below the hips, the wind has a quiet way of worming up under it and sending little chills through the person who was rash enough to come out so clad.

Much more sensible are the small sleeveless fur jackets over the cloth coats. These are Eton, generally, of round cut, Bolero, reaching to the waist line, or still shorter.

But possibly we're disposed to be more economical and deny ourselves one of the beautiful fur garments which cost anywhere from $100 to $1,000, or even more, for one can easily pay $1,500 for a coat in that most expensive fur, Russian sable. But if we are disposed to practice economy we shall content ourselves with fur in trimming only, either on dress, cloak or hat. For dresses the narrower it is the better, when it appears in bands. For girdles it may be broader, and for sleeves it is allowed still more freedom. A cloth dress looks very handsome with such an addition of fur, and possibly a sleeveless jacket as well.

Then there are the fur collars, running down into a long point in front, even as far as the belt; or the high rolling collars, with short plaited flounces added; or the head and tail boss. These last appear very modest and yet I saw one the other day of Russian sable marked twenty-five hundred dollars.

Muffs are a little bigger this year, and the round ones are still popular. One sees plenty of the flat, fancy ones in velvet and fur, but there is no present danger of their taking the round muff's place. The most convenient muff is one that has a tiny spring concealed at the top, which flies open when pressed and reveals a deep, satin-lined pocket, so convenient to hold handkerchief, purse, card case, and a dozen other things women carry with them, pocket or no pocket.

But the fur has another vocation. It is sometimes content to hide itself beneath beautiful brocade, or pale colored cloth evening cloaks. The white Mongolian is often found here, and only peeps out a little way at the edge.

That's the way I saw it in a beautiful military cape, worn by a most magnificent woman, tall and queenly, with wonderful black hair. The cape was of black velvet, full three-quarter length, and lined and bordered down the front with pure white ermine. The lower edge was bordered with wide white passementerie. It looked more startling, possibly, because it fell over a white satin gown that had a black velvet bodice. The bodice was close fitting and low cut, and narrowed off at the sides into straight bands that fell over the skirt almost to the feet. The white fringe that edged them brought the trimming down to the bottom of the dress, the fringe falling over white chiffon cascades that were looped on the skirt beneath.

The regal woman talked to another, but the second was more simply gowned. Her toilet cost no less, I feel sure; it only appeared simpler, less ostentatious, because it was pure Empire, in pale gold, with gold embroideries, and over, a lovely lace drapery in white, embroidered in innumerable pale colors, hung loosely, back and front, draped just enough to make it fall softly. The girl looked beautiful; she, too, was dark and the veil floated away from the gold beneath whenever a tiny breeze came in from the open window where the two stood.

As I walked the other day through a most fashionable establishment, I wondered what the crowd of women at the end were doing. There seemed to be more excitement than was usual in that great place. So I pushed my way through and discovered that they were buying, as fast as they could, dress lengths of the loveliest fine French cambric, in dainty colors. It didn't matter that the day was a bitterly cold one; all that the women knew then was that those goods were to be had at a wonderful bargain, and that this was the time to get them.

And after watching them for some time, and listening while they discussed the designs that would probably be fashionable next summer, I felt so interested and so sympathetic that I bought one myself.

RUSSELL INAUGURATED

Massachusetts' Governor Takes the Oath of Office.

HIS ADDRESS TO THE LEGISLATORS.

Urges Them to Amend the Ballot Law—Administration of the State Prison System Declared Weak and Inefficient—The Matter of Trade Relations With Canada.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—The Representatives Chamber was packed at the exercises attending the inauguration of Gov. Russell, and the galleries were crowded.

The Governor's wife sat in the center of the chamber with Eustis, her little son, by her side.

The Governor-elect and Lieut.-Governor-elect Roger Wolcott entered the chamber at noon, preceded by the Justices of the Supreme and Superior Courts of the Commonwealth.

Then followed the Governor's military staff, the retiring and incoming Executive Councillors, heads of departments and ex-members of the Senate and House.

The oath was administered to the Governor-elect and then to the Lieutenant-Governor-elect. Gov. Russell then read his inaugural address.

He urged upon the Legislature to amend the Ballot law, in order to give recognition to minority parties and to forbid a recount of ballots, and asked for the abolition of an elected Council and the concentration of more power in the Governor and less among the State commissions.

The administration of the State prison system, he said, is weak, irresponsible, and ineffective.

On the Legislature's assumption of Boston's municipal function, by placing the police force of Boston in the hands of State commissioners, he said:

"The principal of home rule, which asserts that the highest efficiency, great social happiness, and political contentment are obtained by local control of home affairs, need not and does not conflict with the establishment by the State of a general policy in any field of public work, nor with the creation of such machinery of local government as she deems expedient.

"It does require that the working of that machinery shall be the local authority and be under the check and control of the local constituency."

Regarding rapid transit in Boston, he said, after speaking in favor of it: "Concert of action, under existing conditions, can spring only from the State, but it should be sustained and enforced by the willing co-operation of all the community interested."

He favored the mobilization of the National Guard of the country at the Columbian Exhibition, and suggested the abolition of the State Fast Day owing to its lack of reverent observance.

On trade relations with Canada, he said:

"A broad measure of reciprocity with Canada would make Massachusetts, and especially Boston, the industrial and commercial center of a greatly enlarged territory, add to our prosperity and wealth and to the welfare of our people. I believe it would be both proper and wise to express to Congress by resolution this opinion of Massachusetts upon it."

After the reading, both houses, however, adjourned, to meet next Monday.

CROSS' SENTENCE COMMUTED.

President Harrison Interferes in the Case of the Condemned Murderer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—In the case of William Douglass Cross, the colored wife murderer, who has been twice convicted of murder, and five or six times sentenced to be hanged at different periods, the execution of the sentence in each case being postponed because of pending appeals, the President has finally ordered a commutation of the sentence to imprisonment for life.

Cross was to have been hanged to-day in the jail between the hours of 8 and 12. The warden's invitation to the execution had been sent out, and everything was in readiness at the jail except adjusting the rope upon the gallows.

BRAVE LIFE SAVERS.

The Heroic Rescue of the Crew of the Schooner Berwind.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6.—Capt. Robert M. McBride and his crew of eight men, of the schooner Edith Berwind, for Baltimore, which was wrecked on Smith's Island shoals on Sunday last, has arrived here.

Chief Mate Johnson, in describing the horrors on the Berwind, says:

"We struck the shoals during a gale of wind, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The schooner began to fill immediately and worked herself into five fathoms of water, where she sank in two hours.

"We launched the lifeboat, but the sea was running high and it was soon capsized. Two men were rescued with great difficulty.

"When the schooner sank we were all compelled to take to the forerigging. She settled until there was six feet of water on her decks.

"The weather was extremely cold and dreary, and we remained in our positions in the rigging from 6 o'clock Sunday evening until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

"The sea would have washed us all away had we not been strongly lashed.

"The engineer, Charles Hines, during the night became insane from his sufferings and released himself from his lashings and walked down the shrouds. He had not gone down more than two feet when the sea washed him away.

"Capt. McBride was gradually succumbing to his sufferings, while most of the seamen were becoming senseless from the cold.

"Early on Monday night a steamer came in sight and as I had my revolver with me I attracted her attention with it but she only responded with flags and kept on towards the Capes.

"Shortly afterward a tug came near us, but passing a schooner making for the capes she left us to our fate and took the schooner in tow.

"The people at the Life Saving Station at Smith's Island all the time were watching us, but the sea was so rough they could not reach us. Finally after a desperate effort and a hard pull of nine miles in the surging sea, the life boat in command of Captain George Hitchens reached us.

"The work of Capt. Hitchens and his crew cannot be spoken of too strongly. To save us these men walked right into the jaws of death.

"The most of us were in pretty bad shape when we landed. Our clothes were stiff with ice and lack of food, together with the strain we were put through, left us in a half dying condition."

DIED AT A BANQUET.

Dr. F. J. Young, a Prominent Bridgeport Man, Expires Suddenly.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 6.—Dr. F. J. Young, President of the Bridgeport Board of Health, died while attending a banquet of the Danbury Medical Society at the Turner House, about 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

He left the banquet table for a few minutes and was found on the steps leading from the room. He died in about five minutes.

Dr. Young was about 53 years of age, had been a practicing physician here for over twenty years, was President of the Fairfield County Medical Society and Bridgeport Medical Society.

He leaves a widow and son. His wife Mary B. Young is also a practicing physician here.

Dr. Young was graduated from the Yale Medical School in 1866 and his son Russell is now a student there.

Many of the horses belonged to outside parties.

Amalgamated Men Know Nothing of It.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—Officials of the Amalgamated Association and prominent Homestead strikers deny all knowledge of the Homestead worker referred to in Cincinnati and Chicago despatches as being in those cities for the purpose of raising a fund of $50,000 to prosecute Messrs. "The Knickerbockers" a Success.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—De Koven and Smith's comic opera, "The Knickerbockers," was given its initial performance by the Bostonians at the Tremont theatre last night. The music is pronounced very pretty and equal to that in "Robin Hood," also composed by De Koven.

MRS. WOOD MAKES ANSWER.

Says Every Doctor Who Ever Saw Her Husband Pronounced Him Insane.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Mrs. Wood, the wife of Hamilton Wood, who recently escaped from the Worcester Insane Asylum, says of her husband's published charges:

"It is simply the same old story which he has reported so many times. Since he has been in the various asylums he has written very much, interesting in his behalf many prominent men, but it was only three weeks ago that I was told by Dr. Quimby of the Worcester Asylum that my husband was in no fit condition to be discharged.

"Every doctor who has ever seen my husband has pronounced him insane; and this is the strangest part of it, why prominent persons will try and get him out of the asylum when all the doctors pronounce him as unfit to come out.

"I think he was aided in his escape from Worcester.

"My son and I have denied ourselves many things to pay his board. We have sent him presents and bought him clothes. When his business was settled there was about $300 left, and this was in small amounts and some of it hard to get.

"Of course, people will read these stories and think I am uncharitable and am having him falsely confined.

"I have done all that I could for him and am willing to do more.

"I certainly have no motive for having him confined other than I do not consider him a proper person of sound mind.

"I know nothing about his escape and presume the friends whom he is with are Masons."

SOMERBY AND OTHERS ARRAIGNED.

The Attempt to Take Them to Indiana Will be Resisted.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—Freeman D. Somerby, late Supreme President of the Order of the Iron Hall; Dr. Charles H. Baker, late Supreme Medical Examiner; Joseph Gladding, late Supreme Organizer, and James H. McKearsley, late Chairman of the Supreme Finance Committee, were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Pole on the charge of using $200,000 of the Order's funds to sustain the Mutual Banking and Trust company of this city.

District-Attorney Graham, who is the receiver of the local branch of the Order, stated that he would offer no objection to the accused officials waiving a hearing if they desired to do so.

Counsel for the defendants then made a motion to waive a hearing and the magistrate bound them over in $5,000 bail for court.

After the hearing District Attorney Graham said he would resist the attempt of the Indianapolis authorities to take the defendants there for trial, as they are now bound over for court here on the same charges on which they were indicted in Indiana.

Mr. Graham said that he would present the facts to Gov. Pattison and he believed the Governor would refuse the requisition from the Indiana courts.

IT'S ALL IDLE NONSENSE.

Mr. Lodge Denies that He Ever Had a "Corner in Manuscripts."

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—"Idle 'nonsense,'" said Henry Cabot Lodge, when asked what he had to say about the impending investigation at Washington of his alleged "corner in manuscripts."

"Six years ago I consulted the documents in question for a work of mine then under way.

"I consulted the documents at the State Library, as any other student might have done. They were never in my possession, and I had not the exclusive use of them in any way.

"I shall be delighted to make the facts in the case public if there be anything to investigate."

OLD WORLD MATTERS

Duke of Orleans Ready to Move Upon France.

THE PANAMA CANAL SCANDAL.

M. Blondin's Arrest on the Charge of Distributing Funds to Newspapers—The Bohemia Did Not Cut Loose from the Umbria—Monsignor Satolli's Reported Recall.

MADRID, Jan. 6.—The Duc d'Orleans has arrived here with Count Haussonville, the leader of the Monarchist party in France. The Duc was summoned back from India, where he had started on a trip around the world, by his father, Comte de Paris. It is the evident intention of the Royalists to have the Duc within reach should affairs in France, in their opinion, warrant an Orleans coup d'etat.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—The arrest of M. Blondin, employe of the Credit Lyonnais, was decided upon in order to ascertain the nature of his relations with the former Minister, who acted such a conspicuous part in Paris in the time when Tousseau's report upon the possibility of completing the Panama Canal was being prepared.

The original report was unfavorable, but upon being laid before the Chamber in connection with a bill sanctioning the issue of a lottery loan, it appeared in terms highly favorable. This change is accounted for by the fact that in the interval a sum of 500,000 francs in gold was placed upon the Minister's dining table by Blondin.

These circumstances being brought to the knowledge of the examining judge, he summoned Blondin before him, and on the latter refusing to reveal the person for whom the money was intended he arrested him.

The mysterious personage frequently alluded to by M. Andrieux seems to be no other than the ex-Minister in question who received the 500,000 francs.

The Credit Lyonnais has sent the following statement:

"The management of the Credit Lyonnais is in no way concerned or affected by the occurrences which have caused the authorities to institute proceedings against Blondin, as such occurrences have no connection with his position of a head of an office in this bank."

The direct charge on which M. Blondin was ordered to be placed under arrest was that he had distributed the funds of the canal company in a corrupt manner among the newspapers, in consideration of their puffing the last issue of bonds.

DIDN'T CUT THE UMBRIA LOOSE.

The Bohemia Lost the Disabled Cunarder in a Storm.

HAMBURG, Jan. 6.—Upon the arrival here of the Hamburg-American line steamer Bohemia, interviews were had with several persons aboard of her in regard to her attempt to tow the disabled Cunard liner Umbria, and to the report that the towing hawser had been cut on board the Bohemia.

Everybody on board the steamer emphatically denied that the hawser had been cut.

They say that the weather was fairly calm when the steel hawser and several other lines from the Bohemia were made fast on board the Umbria.

The Bohemia then forged ahead with the Cunard liner in tow, but in the evening a violent storm set in. Both the vessels pitched heavily, and the strain upon the lines was tremendous.

At 10 o'clock at night it was snowing heavily, and at that hour the starboard line and port hawser parted.

The breaks were not close inboard, but at a considerable distance from the Bohemia.

When the lines parted the Bohemia stopped and signaled repeatedly to the disabled Cunard steamer, but no answer was received.

When daylight broke the sea was closely scanned for the Umbria, but no sign of her could be seen.

THE BARONESS' DENIAL.

Mrs. Maybrick's Mother Indignant at the Stories from Woking Prison.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Baroness de Roques writes from Paris to the Central News:

"I am horrified to find a gross libel in the St. James's Gazette on Mrs. Maybrick. I ask you to contradict entirely, on my authority, this infamous charge against a defenceless woman, who is powerless to speak, or even to know what is said against her.

"It is unworthy of the English.

"Every word is false. The libel in the St. James's Gazette attacks also my integrity. Our honor is concerned, and I trust that everyone will sustain me.

"I make a public appeal that an independent and first-class physician be instructed by the Home Office to visit Mrs. Maybrick and report upon her case."

SATOLLI'S RUMORED RECALL

Rather Than Cause Friction the Vatican May End His American Mission.

ROME, Jan. 6.—The Corriere del Mattino," a newspaper published at Naples, says that a leading topic at Rome is the failure of Mgr. Satolli's mission from the Vatican to the United States.

The article says that Mgr. Satolli's brusque manner has excited the discontent of the American bishops, who have caused the curia to understand that they will not tolerate the arrogance of its envoy.

The Vatican, therefore, for fear of causing greater friction, has been obliged to recall Mgr. Satolli.

Eight Days Without Food.

VIENNA, Jan. 6.—During the recent severe snowstorm a cottage at Herzogenburg, a town of Austria, on the Traisen, about thirty-five miles west of Vienna, was buried under a mass of snow. The cottage was inhabited by a laborer named Michalek and his family, numbering in all eight persons. For three days they were without fire or food, and when a rescuing party at length reached the cottage, two of the family were already dead, and others so prostrated that it is feared more may die.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

Vilas' Speech Against Washburn's Anti-Option Measure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The feature of the session of the Senate was the speech delivered by Mr. Vilas (Dem., Wis.) against the Anti-Option bill. For nearly three hours he held the undivided attention of the supporters and opponents of the measure while he stated the constitutional objections, which, in his opinion, precluded the possibility of its passage by the Senate.

The bill has gone over till Monday next, to-day and to-morrow having been set apart for the consideration of the two bills in relation to quarantine and immigration.

The second general appropriation bill to pass the House this session was the Fortification Appropriation bill, and it went through without amendment or the slightest debate.

Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, had it in charge, and he steered the craft into port without meeting with any adverse wind.

A few private pension bills were passed, and the House adjourned without a quorum.

BIG FIRE IN PITTSBURG.

Five Buildings Burned—Loss Over a Quarter of a Million.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—Fire broke out at 10:30 o'clock last night in a large brick building on Fayette street between 9th and 10th street occupied by the Collins Cigar company, and before the flames could be subdued the structure was entirely destroyed, together with three five-story buildings and a residence on Penn avenue.

The buildings destroyed were occupied by P. Duff & Sons, commission merchants; Davitt & Pollock, lamps and fancy imported goods, Booth & Flynn, contractors, and numerous offices.

The loss can not be definitely stated, but it is estimated anywhere from a quarter to a half million dollars.

The New Brunswick Home News says: "William F. Ford of Plainfield is no longer connected with the Times of this city. He will go on the Metuchen Inquirer and Perth Amboy Herald."

E. P. Sanger, a former resident of this city, and now residing at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was in our city last night on business for the first time in fifteen years. Mr. Sanger married a niece of the late John W. Laing, Miss Susie Mundy.

Carmencita, the great Spanish dancer, will by special arrangement with C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger, appear in their Broadway theater success, "The Prodigal Father", at Music Hall next Wednesday night. The announcement has already created a perfect sensation, and the opportunity to see the beautiful danseuse will be hailed, generally, with delight.

Hon. John T. Dunn, Congressman-elect from the Eighth N. J. district, returned to his home in Elizabeth, yesterday, from his visit to Clifton Springs. No Salt on the Tracks.

The charge that the street railway snow plough drops salt all along the tracks is absurd. Supt. Passmore says that absolutely no salt is used except where essential at the switches. The objection to salt is that it injures horses' feet and pedestrians' shoes.

BURIED TALENTS.

WHY IS THERE NO ACCOUNT OF THIS PUBLIC STEWARDSHIP?

Though the City Has Tried to Group the People's School Finances with Its Excellent Municipal Showing, the Board of Education Deigns Not to Render Any Report, Nor Is Any Data Accessible as to the Use of the School's Moneys.

The lately published statement of the assets and liabilities of the city is complete and most satisfactory as far as it goes. But—

It does not include the public library.

It does not include the board of education.

Concerning these institutions, no report is made, nor is any data accessible.

Here is a strange anomaly of corporations within the corporation of the city of Plainfield, working so independently that they claim to be superior to the city and not requirable to supply information of their doings and disbursements.

The members of these bodies are trustees appointed through election by the citizens.

Taxes are levied at the demand of these boards, by the city's council, and such taxes are collected by the paid agents of the city.

These monies are disbursed on the sole authority of said boards.

While the library draws its warrants on the city treasurer and in that way informs the tax-payers as to its expenditures, the board of education makes its own disbursements and furnishes no report to the tax-payers concerning them or as to the financial condition of the board.

Where there is a trust, there is a responsibility; but the board of education seems not to admit its responsibility to the people.

Existing laws appear to hedge about the board of education in its assumption of irresponsibility to the public, though that public is its Creator and supporter, and in all equity its Master.

If laws are based on wrong principles of right and equity, they are in essence invalid, and the courts of the State should be called to pass on the question.

No reflection is intended on the present board of education, but this anomalous condition of things is dangerous in principle, and there is cause for genuine alarm in the possibility of the misuse of this autocratic power.

The alleged legal barrier behind which the board of education takes refuge should be removed, if necessary by the application of the city or public-spirited tax-payers to the courts.

The public has the right to know, and it is the board of education's duty to impart, fully and freely, everything concerning the management of the schools which the people's purses have reared and maintain.

Some time ago THE PRESS, much to the surprise and discomfiture of some of those then in authority over the schools, obtained and published facts concerning the cost of the schools, their mortgages, and the bonded debt which the mortgages really were to the city. These figures gave the people an insight into the schools' affairs, and taught them things they had not known before; but they were necessarily incomplete, and there is much still hidden away in the bosoms of the school stewards.

Let them unfold the records, for the public eye, if they want to make themselves popular among the tax-payers.

It is the people's right.

More Plain Talk from Mr. Harte.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The editor of the Courier in Wednesday's issue of that paper says that I am "an ex-reporter of nearly every paper in New York city". In giving utterance to this statement the editor of the Courier, it will be easy to perceive, is guilty of cowardly and malicious falsehood.

The fact that last summer I sold THE PRESS several articles of news matter which the Courier staff was unable to procure and was thus sadly beaten in its own and supposed exclusive bailiwick, does not in the least indicate that I was employed by THE PRESS to obtain such, or any other matter. No sane person would assume anything of the kind for a single instant.

The foul assertion of the editor of the Courier that I am in bad company when with my clean-minded, clean-handed and manly friends of THE PRESS defeats its indecent purpose. It is simply a gratuitous, outrageous and vulgar insult to the intelligence of the Courier's unfortunate readers.

GRISWOLD HARTE.

Beware of imitations. Take no "just as good." See that you get the genuine Dr Bull's Cough Syrup, the peerless specific.

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yield to it. Price 50c.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

THE STORM.

The New Year Favors Plainfield with a Touch of the Blizzard.

The snowfall of yesterday and last night amounted to about a foot in depth on the level, and the strong wind made deep drifts in many places.

The snow did not cease falling till after 8 this morning; and many commuters, daunted by the possibility of another blizzard experience, were not particular about venturing out. Jersey Central trains, however, were running with but little delay, and even B. and O. and P. and R. trains were but a trifle late. Telegraph and telephone lines were in good working order.

About the only electric or other surface road in the heavy snowstorm belt running its cars this morning was Plainfield's trolley system. Superintendent Passmore was supremely vigilant, and fearing a blockade kept cars running all night so as to keep the track open. This morning, after the snowfall ceased, the giant snow plough was set to work, and cleared the tracks and roadbed clean almost to bareness. In Elizabeth, Newark, New York and elsewhere, surface roads were still tied up. Mr. Passmore and his men deserve great credit for their activity.

Except to belate milkmen and other ruralites, the only notable effect of the storm was to give the people some good old-fashioned sleighing. The bottom to the snow is fine, and by to-morrow the exhilarating sport will be in glorious operation.

The promise is of cold bracing weather, which will keep sleighing good for some time.

While other people wallowed through drifts this morning, Frank L. C. Martin, captain of the bicycle club, rode his wheel merrily down Park avenue, in the middle of the road, to his wheelmen's headquarters. There's a dauntless cyclist for you.

The gray-coated mail carriers all turned out merrily at 8 a. m., and cleared away the snow from Uncle Sam's door. They were a jolly crew, and had lots of fun.

The street railway snow plough attracted much curious attention.

THE CRESCENT LEAGUE'S COLLAPSE.

Its Bowling Alleys, Billiard Tables and Other Possessions to be Sold by Its Creditors.

There was a meeting of the creditors of the Crescent League, Wednesday evening. Among those present and their claims were C. A. Marsh for A. D. Cook & Bro., $200; estate of D. J. Bolce, $75; Pearson & Gayle, $75; G. Q. Packer, $150; S. H. Whitney, $100; Davis & Stevens, $100; C. A. Reed, $300; John Beerbower, $80; and a number of small amounts.

President Leggett, J. T. Fritts, C. H. Lyman and others spoke for the club. They said that an extension of time would be of no assistance, as the members who could support the club had found more congenial club interests elsewhere and were tired of keeping the League and its rooms going for the occupancy and use of a lot of delinquents.

The creditors then agreed to accept a club note for each claim, to indorse them over to some one of their number and that he should get a judgment for the whole amount, sell the club's property and divide the proceeds among the creditors in proportion to their claims.

The whole indebtedness is about $2,500. Of this there is a note for $1,000 indorsed by ten members of the club and secured by a chattel mortgage on all the club's possessions. This will be paid first in full. The assets of the club are four billiard tables that cost 900; bowling alleys and fixtures that cost $1,100; carpets, furniture, hangings, furnace, portable heaters, etc., that cost about $4,000 more.

"BOOTS" MAKES TROUBLE.

The Wily Hebrew Gets a Darkey where the Snow Is Deep, and Tries to Collect a Debt.

Loud cries of a woman could be heard this morning as she rushed out of the little shoe store kept by the Hebrew known as "Boots", on Somerset street, near Chatham. A gentleman of color had purchased a pair of boots of the Hebrew, and was short ninety cents of the purchase money. The Hebrew agreed to trust the gentleman. A short time afterwards the boots pressed so heavily on his corns that the gentleman decided to take the footgear back and have them stretched. When the Hebrew got possession of them he refused to allow the gentleman to have them without the balance due. It was a clear case, either for the gentleman of color to pay the ninety cents, which perhaps he did not have, or wade through the deep snow in his stocking feet. Then the fun began. The woman of the shop got scared, and ran for an officer. The Hebrew tried to hold the gentleman of color; glass was smashing; shoes, boots, shoe-strings, etc., were flying through the air, and the gentleman of color, remembering the old maxim, possession am nine points of de law, mounted a convenient ash wagon and drove away.

A new man can be made out of one that's run down, tired out, tainted and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It starts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it acts at once and builds up flesh and strength. It's the only Blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promise—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

You only pay for the good you get. "Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery."

JERSEYMEN IN TENNESSEE.

Plainfield Sportsmen Enjoy Good Shooting and Kind Treatment.

To THE PRESS:—It is pleasant to remember after a long journey in distant parts of our glorious Union, that the inhabitants received one in a right cordial manner. Such are the thoughts of the writer regarding his reception by the people of a distant State, eastern Tennessee. Some weeks ago, two intimate friends desirous of seeing the country and for the purpose of pleasure, that of gunning, journeyed from this city and Bound Brook to Morristown, Tennessee, starting from New York city on the 16th of December, via. the Pennsylvania railroad, over the Norfolk and Western railroad division, which carries the passenger over that delightful Shenandosh Valley and Cumberland Gap route. No better facilities or accommodations are offered the traveler than by the Pennsylvania and N. & W. management. Elegant and commodious vestibule cars, attentive waiters, courteous conductors and trainsmen, are some of the pleasures one meets with on those admirably equipped roads. We, the travelers, left New York at 5 Friday evening, Dec. 16, and, taking berths in the sleeper Juno, were were soon whirling along to our objective point at a rate of speed which made the telegraph poles look but a few feet apart, at the same time with the pleasurable feeling that we were riding safe and easy. At 2:22 p.m. the next day, (central time, which is one hour slower than ours), we alighted safe and in good spirits at Morristown, Tennessee. We had only to step across the railroad tracks into the Cain House, and register, when we were soon made acquainted with prominent citizens by the genial landlord, W. C. Thurman, and by Col. Tom Cain, the owner of the hotel, and an influential resident of the borough, which boasts of about 4,000 inhabitants. That day the people were having an election for city officials. Although the borough is Democratic, circumstances made it necessary for the nomination of a "Citizens' ticket", which, by the way has so many times signally failed of success in the city of Plainfield. In this instance, however, through the guidance principally of Col. Tom Cain, a Democrat himself, the "Citizens' ticket" was elected, with a good portion of it Democratic. It was amusing to watch the colored voters. That class are not like our Northern colored people. I think they have more sense, and vote more for their own interests. It will be a good thing for the Northern darkey when he gets that same idea in his head and votes the Democratic ticket. But enough of politics. When it was discovered that we were from that good and loyal Democratic State of New Jersey nothing was too good for us. The freedom of the town was offered us from the mayor and all his officials. Invitations came pouring in to go and try the best shooting grounds, and letters of introduction were given us to residents miles away. Some of these invitations and introductions were accepted, and we can truthfully say that we were right royally received and entertained. One of these excursions we remember with especial feelings of pleasure. It was an introduction by Uncle Jim Cain, (brother to the Col.), to Shadrich Talley, whose farm lies along the grand French River situated about 14 miles from Morristown. Here we were received in a true hospitable manner; our horses taken care of and ourselves and companions housed and fed in fine style. After the day's hunt, as we sat about the cheerful open fire-place, we were entertained with song and music by the charming daughters of the host, one of whom played the guitar and sang with a sweet voice, while the other accompanied her in singing old Southern melodies. The quail were found to be abundant, and the result of the two weeks' visit at Morristown, (with some six days' shooting), was over 560 birds. The soil about Morristown is of a limestone nature, which makes it extremely disagreeable walking when the weather is rainy. We had the fortune or misfortune to have colder weather than the natives had experienced in over eight years, the thermometer registering at zero. Rabbits and doves were without number, but our party did not think it worth while to shoot them. Another farm where we were hospitably entertained was that of Oscar Talbot, near Mossy Creek, and again at C. S. Anderson's, on Holstein River. In fact, we found the people in general, kind and hospitable wherever we went. The name of New Jersey was an open sesame to us. But of all the sportsmen and companions we met, Bob Taylor excelled. He it was who took us to the best hunting grounds and gave us the best shooting. A Virginian by birth, he has all those noble and chivalric ideas and actions that are handed down from the residents and ancestors of that State. Bob Taylor will long be remembered by the Jerseymen whom he so kindly showed favors to in his endeavors to give them the pleasures of shooting they came so far away from home to anticipate. Among other friends met and appreciated, not already mentioned, we must not forget Col. Henry A. Richardson, ex-collector of the Port of Customs at Beaufort, N. C., and whom we trust will be again rewarded for his services to the party with a re-appointment; Col. Adams and wife; Col. Thurman, wife and daughter Lena; W. H. Hodges, agent of the Southern Express company; W. T. Newman, freight clerk; Ernest Johnson and John Michaels, night and day clerks of the Cain House; Will Baker, Prof. J. S. Hill, Billy "Killdee", the editor of the Gazette, and the staff under him; Joe Hill, the most efficient officer outside of his chief, and one always ready to do you a favor; Mark DePrade, whose heart is as large as his body.

MILLIONAIRE SCHAUS'S WILL.

The Daughter Who Eloped with Dr. Stillman not Disinherited, but Gets as Much as Her Brother.

The will of William Schaus, the picture dealer who was said to be a millionaire, was filed for probate yesterday. The will was executed on Nov. 19, 1892, and names as executors his daughter Wilhelmina Kennard and Luther L. Kellogg.

One of the first provisions of the will is the creation of a trust fund of $50,000, the income to be given for life to his daughter Mabel. It was thought she might be disinherited, but her father makes no mention of her elopement with Dr Charles F. Stillman of this city in 1889. The principal on her death is to go to her issue. If she has none then to the three other daughters, Annie Walton Brinkmann, Margaret Conover Koehler, and Wilhelmina Kennard, or their issue. The will creates a similar life trust fund of $50,000 for Mr. Schaus's son, Wilhelm George Schaus, with remainder to his issue. If he does not have issue the principal is to go to the same three daughters or their issue. The residue of the estate is to be held in trust, the income for life to be applied in equal shares to the use of these three daughters, the principal to go to their issue.

It is provided that if any of the children contest the will the contestant shall forfeit all claim to the provision made for him or her by the will. The executors have full power to dispose of any of the real or personal estate, if they deem it best, including Mr. Schaus's paintings. He desires, however, that investments made by him shall be preserved as far as possible during the pendency of the trusts.

KISSED HIM "HOW D'YE DO".

Mrs. Schell Considered Mr. Clarke as One of the Family.

The contest over the will of Richard J. Clarke, who died in this city last June, was continued yesterday before Surrogate Ransom in New York. Mr. Clarke, who died at the age of 82, was a retired restaurant keeper. He left an estate of about $250,000, and the principal beneficiary was a Mrs. Schell, a widow of middle age, who is said by the contestants, two cousins of the dead man, to have exercised undue influence over him.

Mrs. Schell's examination was resumed yesterday. She said that at one time there were uncomplimentary rumors in connection with her relations to the dead man.

Mr. Clarke and I," she added, "went down to Mr. Mitchell's office to consult him with regard to a reproach which had been cast upon my character that I was married to Mr. Clarke."

"I don't see how you could consider as a reproach to your moral character that you were married," suggested lawyer McClure.

Mrs. Schell could not explain, and the subject was dropped.

Q. You say you had an independent income of your own during Mr. Clarke's lifetime? A. I had.

Q. He did not pay you any stated amount per week while he was alive? A. Certainly not.

Q. Can you give any reason then why he should provide so carefully that at his death you should receive $50 a week until his estate was settled? A. No, I cannot.

Mrs. Schell went on to tell of her life with Clarke at the Hotel Albion in Plainfield. She said she went there at his request to keep him company, and used to read and drive with him. She left New York reluctantly, and it was unfair to say she had urged Clarke to go to Plainfield that she might get him away from his friends in town.

"If you went so reluctantly," queried Mr. McClure, "what inducement was offered you?"

"None!" snapped the witness.

"Why," asked Col. McClure, "did you pay so much attention to him?"

"Because I considered him one of the family. I called him uncle."

"Did he ever show any affection for you?"

"He kissed me the same as other relatives. We kissed him how d'ye do. Mr. Clarke was a very cold man," she added, and the Surrogate had to rap for order.

Mrs. Schell's lawyer asked for an adjournment of one week, but the Surrogate denied the request and ordered the case on at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Union County's New Jail Warden.

The principal business done yesterday by the Union County Board of Freeholders at their meeting in Elizabeth was to elect a jail warden to succeed Charles W. Dodd, Republican, whose term has nearly expired. The Democrats nominated John C. Blore, of Rahway, and the Republicans nominated warden Charles W. Dodd. Mr. Blore was elected on the first ballot, the vote resulting Blore 9; Dodd 6, blank 1. One Republican Freeholder, Winans, of Linden, was absent. Director Halliday declared Mr. Blore elected jail warden for five years. His compensation was then fixed at $1,350 a year. His wife was elected jail matron; compensation $300.

Warden Blore will take charge of the county jail Feb. 1.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

MR. JORDAN INTERVIEWED.

The Dramatic Author Chats of the Play and Dancer that Plainfield Is to Be Favored with.

Leopold Jordan, the dramatic author, is in town representing Messrs. C. B. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger, the well-known managers of Carmencita, the great Spanish dancer, the comedy "The Prodigal Father", "The Country Circus", "The Soudan", and many other big attractions.

Mr. Jordan, who is the author of Rose Coghlan's play, "Dorothy's Dilemma", was seen by a reporter yesterday; and the remarkable success which is attending the appearance of Carmencita at the Broadway theater, New York, was discussed.

In reply to a question, as to the line of amusement demanded by theater-goers this season and how the business had compared with other years, Mr. Jordan gave it as his opinion that never before had there been such a demand for absolutely good and worthy productions. As an instance of the successful season, Mr. Jordan cited the many attractions controlled and managed by Messrs. Jefferson, Klaw & Erlanger.

"The success"—he said—"which is attending every one of their vast organizations is simply phenomenal. Now as a rule the week previous to Christmas is considered one of the dullest of the season, yet their attractions, Carmencita and 'The Prodigal Father', packed the Broadway theater every night. There is a marked change of late, and I must say for the better, in this; the demand is growing for a class of comedy which represents the higher grade of dramatic art. The comedy of to-day must be amusing, intensely amusing if you will, but there must be a reason for whatever fun there is; the dialogue must be bright and crisp; the situations, while they may be extremely eccentric, must be consistent. The so-called farce-comedy that required a character to trip up another character to cause a laugh is done for; its funeral knell has been sounded, and it will soon be buried with due solemnity in the depths of the managerial waste-paper basket. I attribute the marvelous success which has attended all of the productions under the managerial direction of men who handle high-class productions to the fact that they set out to give the patrons of the theatre complete and masterful performances. Whether it was for comedy, drama or spectacular representations, such companies have all been chosen from the first ranks of the profession. Take for instance the company now appearing in "The Prodigal Father". In it we find such names as George Denham, who was for so many years with Joseph Jefferson. Then there is that bright young actor George C. Boniface, jr., and George Gaston; and leading the women in the play is the clever Miss Blanche Chapman-Ford.

"The engagement by our firm of Carmencita, at a really enormous salary, is another proof of a demand for the highest class of attractions. Such enterprise, I contend, is a splendid example. It infuses enthusiasm into managerial hearts, it creates a wholesome competition, and, further, it assures the public that the best can only survive in theatrical as well as commercial calling."

Mr. Jordan also spoke with the greatest enthusiasm about Carmencita's forthcoming appearance at Music Hall next Wednesday evening, Jan. 11.

THE MONDAY CLUB TAKES PART.

Prominent Plainfield Women Join in World's Fair Work.

The women of the National Committee of the Lady Board of Commissioners of the World's Fair and the members of the New Jersey Board met with interested women from Plainfield and elsewhere, in the home of Miss Kean, sister of ex-Congressman John Kean, Elizabeth, Wednesday night. Much enthusiasm was manifested. The women were assigned their various positions and duties. Miss Kean has been appointed chairman of the New Jersey State board, and will appoint the various committees in the women's exchanges throughout the State. The work of gathering material for exhibits has been divided into several parts. Plainfield was represented by Mrs. E. E. Kenyon, president of the Monday Afternoon club; Mrs. S. A. Ginna, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. David Pond, Mrs. Charles Sykes, Mrs. Charles Scribner, Mrs. Florence Howe-Hall, Mrs. Kate Erskine and Mrs. Krom, all members of the Monday Afternoon club.

She Used to Wear It to School.

A New York lady who is visiting friends in this city, when highly complimented on her stylish jacket, said:

"I'm really proud of that coat. It was an old gray sack I used to wear to school years ago, but a dip into some fast seal brown diamond dyes transformed it into this handsome jacket. New Yorkers use *lots of diamond dyes, for a ten cent pack*age will make an old dress as good as new."

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—John H. Stevens, who for many years had charge of a department in the Phœnix Insurance company of this city, dropped dead on the platform of the railroad station at Summit, N. J., at eight o'clock this morning. Mr. Stevens had for many years been a sufferer from heart disease, but the trouble never threatened to result seriously. The unusually severe snowstorm of last night rendered walking in any section of Summit extremely difficult this morning. When he arrived at the station he was exhausted and had just turned from the news stand after purchasing a newspaper when he fell dead.

AN IMAGINARY BATTLE

The Gruesome Tale from Bakersville Denied.

PRONOUNCED A GROSS CANARD.

There is No Direct Communication With the Place, but It is Now Generally Believed that the Report Was the Work of a Romancing Correspondent.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 6.—Mail runners have been sent out and every method has been taken to obtain particulars to verify the blood curdling reports of riots and murders near Bakersville, N. C.

From the sources from which the reports were originally transmitted, all efforts at verification have been met by statements that the roads were snowed up and impassable.

It is now learned that a mail carrier has just arrived at Cranberry, N. C., from Bakersville, who says he knows nothing of any fight there. It would appear from his statements that the story of yesterday was not true.

Bakersville is several miles in the mountains away from telegraphic communication. A heavy snow has fallen recently, and the town was accordingly so thoroughly isolated that it was impossible to secure a confirmation or denial of the story until now.

All the names of the alleged victims printed are names unknown in the neighboring towns.

Pronounces It a Gross Canard.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 6.—A special despatch from a prominent citizen living in Mitchell county pronounces the report of riot and lynching at Bakersville, a gross canard. If lynching occurred the report has been greatly exaggerated. Many of the names reported among the killed are unknown in that section. The despatch has been read in the House of Representatives by the Speaker.

Said to be a Hoax.

MARION, N. C., Jan. 6.—Parties from Bakersville who arrived here last evening report the alleged lynching and battle there a hoax, started from a threat to lynch Calvin Snipes.

A mail carrier visited the scene of the reported battle yesterday, and sends word that the story is a fake of the first water.

ALL THE WORLD OVER.

Christmas Day Is Celebrated Everywhere Nowadays.

How the Nations Keep It—English, German, French, Italian, Russian and Bulgarian—In Partibus Infidelium—Paris Dolls in the Far East.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Never did I feel so like a messenger of mercy and a herald of happy thoughts.

Wherever I went it was the same. Men with preoccupied faces turned from their business to hear but a sentence before they broke into a broad grin and called to each other across the desks, and others came up to see what it was all about.

At the British consulate, for instance, a sick seaman, an irate doctor and a disgusted clerk were having a triangular duel of words when I entered, but when I spoke the clerk looked relieved, the doctor and the seaman ambled off together, while I was shown into an inner room where sat Consul Gilbert Fraser, and his blonde-bearded face lighted up with a smile, too.

For it was of Christmas I spoke, and its observance in many lands varied, but always with a core of kindliness and home-feeling running through it.

IN GREAT BRITAIN.

"Christmas in England has not changed of late or grown in its observance," said Mr. Fraser. "It couldn't very well, for the British have always been famous at yule-tide merry making. Of course the lord of misrule and his twelve-day court have gone, for Englishmen are now too busy, though not so busy as you Americans, to give up so much time."

"Then you think we do work harder?"

"Oh, dear me! yes; twice as hard. One of the greatest things about the English Christmas is the way in which it has been carried 'round the world—yew and holly, mistletoe and bay, snapdragon, plum pudding and all—by English people. In Australia, New Zealand, or Madras, in spite of the burning heat, you will find the English Christmas. Shiploads of holly and mistletoe go out to the far colonies. Between America and Great Britain flow two unending streams of holiday gifts at this season of the year. With this we have, of course, no official connection, but the numberless queries we get about rates of duty and money orders tell the story."

CHRISTMAS IN THE FATHERLAND.

Herr Ferdinand Ritschl, vice consul of Germany at New York, has a broad and good-humored face, which grew an inch broader when I explained my errand. "As you see the German Christmas in America," he said, "so it is at home. On Christmas eve the tree is decked and lighted and everybody is at home. There is the first holiday and the second, for December 26 is a holiday, too, and the tree is kept decked until New Year's day. Your Santa Claus is our Kriss Kringle, you know. Oh, the German Christmas has gone round the world and is fast conquering this country. America is learning Christmas from its German citizens."

"The tree is universal, then, in Germany?"

"Yes, the spruce and the cedar."

"Und tannenbaum auch?"

"Yes, the tannenbaum (hemlock), too; that sounds good. Hundreds of thousands of young evergreens from the schwarzwald and from local forests are used every year."

CHRISTMAS IN FRANCE.

M. Maxime Durand, at the French consulate, assured me that France has a Christmas, too, of a somewhat different pattern—rather a church than a home festival, and without so much evergreen mixed up in it.

"And do the children hang up their stockings for Santa to fill?"

"No, not their stockings, but their boots or shoes. And not at Christmas, but at New Year's, which is the day sacred to gift giving, and not for Santa Claus, for we have nothing akin to him unless it be our Pere Noel. French children are rather too rational to care for such mystifications. But they appreciate the gifts and the home visits just as well without."

IN SCANDINAVIA.

Mr. Christopher Raun sat in his office at the consulate of Sweden and Norway puzzling over I don't know what astute problem when the mental conception of a Scandinavian yule-tide was substituted, and he straightway became eloquent and drew me an entrancing picture of a festival around the boughs of the big evergreen and of pretty girls from the saeters hard by, with long flaxen braids hanging down their backs, who dance all night with Axel, of Christiana, or Asmund, just back from Minnesota, with a pocket full of dollars. There is plenty of snow on roof and field, and the birds have scant provender. So, if it be a farm or hamlet—not in the city of course—up goes plump Johann and fixes a sheaf of wheat upon the ridge of the roof for all the wandering ones of the air to feast at and make merry, too, while the rafters ring with the dance and the laughter below.

CHRISTMAS IN EASTERN EUROPE.

At Anabatkeni, at the narrow entrance to the Black sea, every year the water is blessed by a priest in presence of as many Greeks, Bulgarians and Russians as can be present. After the blessing the priest flings his large, three crucifix into the river. Strong swimmers plunge into the current amid the ice and snow, and the one who secures the crucifix is held fortunate above all his fellows.

CHRISTMAS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Consul Gustave H. Gossler, of Brazil, told me, when I plumped the question squarely at him, that in all the Latin-American countries Christmas is mainly observed as a religious or saints' day merely. "There is, however," he said, "a large and growing number of people who have traveled and seen Christmas days in America or northern Europe, or who have read of them in books, who reproduce the festival faithfully, usually after the German plan, with loaded, lighted tree and the hanging of stockings. But they are the minority; the wealthy people must have something different from the rest."

CHRISTMAS IN ITALY.

Sig. Cesare Poma, vice-consul of Italy, is an extremely handsome gentleman, courteous and kindly, who has some difficulty in managing our harsh Saxon consonants. The Italians, he assured me, have scarcely anything corresponding to our Christmas celebrations, with gifts and the like. "Of course," said he, "there is more or less giving of gifts, but not especially at Christmas. The child leaves his shoe on la chemine—the mantel, you call it, and it is the good child, the Cambino Jesu, who fills it, not St. Nicholas."

IN PARTIBUS INFIDELIUM.

Rev. C. H. Daniels, district secretary of the American board of commissioners of foreign missions, said: "Christmas is universally celebrated at the missions in China, Japan, India and elsewhere, taking precisely the shape that it has with us, a mingled tone of religion and home cheer. It is even introduced into family life, though, of course, to a very slight extent as yet. A great many presents of toys, dolls, books and the like are sent from this country, so that at the same time that French children are playing with Japanese dolls, Japanese children may be gazing in speechless wonder at the kind that grows in Paris."

IN THE FIJI ISLANDS.

"Do they have any Christmas in the Fiji islands?" I asked Mr. William Churchill, the author of "A Princess of Fiji," one of the books of the season.

"Yes, indeed," replied Mr. Churchill, "and very much of a Christmas. You know the islands are Methodist now, dismally Methodist. Well, when midnight comes in a Fijian village—and it isn't a matter of guesswork, either, when it comes, for then the great Southern Cross constellation stands poised upright in the heavens; earlier or later it leans to right or left—when midnight comes, on Christmas eve, the girls gathered at one side of the long village green raise a song of joy. Perhaps it is this, which was written by a native and set to a native melody:

"Kyteya to magu
Koi au Sa luvena
Sa leve oti nona dra
Ko Jisu no Crisaito."

"Which means, literally: 'He is my Father, I believe, this above was spirit all out—Jesus the Christ.'

"Then from the other side of the green the boys take the antistrophe, and last of all the old men in the middle of the green roll in a thundering bass. The chief's house stands at one end of the sylvan theater, the church, or missionary house, at the other.

"There is universal gift giving. If the law didn't forbid it, they would give away everything they possess. So they are legally limited to trifles, and of these everybody gets one from everybody else, if it is no more than a cocoa nut with the husk cut in fanciful patterns."

"And in Samoa?"

"I don't know much about Samoa," said Mr. Churchill; "Robert Louis Stevenson and I divided the South Pacific for literary purposes and Samoa came in his half."

And thus it is seen how Christmas encircles quite the whole world this day, and hundreds of millions join in its simple observance. Is any other holiday so universal.

OWEN LANGDON.

DO NOT CONFLICT.

Baseball and Football Will Never Crowd Each Other.

The armored knights of the gridiron field have had their day. The reign of the baseball stretches over half the year, but one-sixth is all that the football kickers ask. With Thanksgiving the last of the great college battles ended, but there are enthusiasts who keep up the sport all winter long, despite the fact that the mercury hurls the bulb in vain efforts to get down out of the cold. There have been some screeds written in which the assertion has been thoughtlessly made that football was supplanting baseball and was likely to become the national game. The truth is the sports do not conflict. One is essentially a sport that thrives in sunshine and warm weather, while the other is the chief of autumn and winter pastimes. It would be misery to play football with the temperature at summer heat. The exertion might, indeed, prove dangerous to the players. If a kind Providence bars out the scourge next year the pessimists who have been shedding crocodile tears over the decay of the diamond—blind to the truth and refusing to see the natural causes for the trouble—will be permitted to hang their harps on the willow trees and cease their mournful dirges, which cause only the ignorant to wonder at the whyfore of their sad sad lay.—Sporting Life.

Fortunes of Stage Celebrities.

Jerome H. Eddy attempts to prove that there may be something besides fame in store for successful actors and actresses by the following statistics: Among the richest of American actors and actresses are Edwin Booth, worth $750,000; Joseph Jefferson, $1,000,000; Stuart Robson, $400,000; W. H. Crane, $400,000; Denman Thompson, $250,000; Joseph Murphy, $300,000; Roland Reed, $250,000; Oliver Byron, $150,000; Edwin Harrigan, $100,000; Clara Morris, $350,000; Fanny Davenport, $200,000; Lotta $500,000; Maggie Mitchell, $250,000, and Sol Smith Russell, $600,000.

THREE CHRISTMAS STORIES.

George H. McClellan Presents Some Brief Reminiscences of Christmas in His Father's House.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Christmas! What a flood of memories the word revives. To tell of the happiest Christmas I ever experienced is almost an impossibility—there were so many happy ones when my father was alive to teach me how to enjoy them. The first Christmas that I remember seems now like a scene from a long forgotten comedy. I was a very little boy then, but the day is impressed upon my memory by a mishap never to be forgotten. Who has not some time been given a drum by his dearest friend and closest confidant—his father? The drum that I received then was almost as large as I, and the very first use to which I put it was that of a stepladder. My ambition at that moment was to reach the lofty altitude of an arm-chair. The drumhead, however, refused to sustain me and I fell through with a bang. How long I might have remained there it is impossible to say, for I never could have extricated myself alone. The hearty laugh in which my father indulged when he rescued me from my predicament is still a bright spot in my recollection.

I remember very distinctly a story that my father once told me about an incident of his own boyhood. I had climbed upon his knee one Christmas Eve and asked for it. "What is the first Christmas that you remember?" was my question.

"Oh, it is a very long time ago," answered my father. "Your grandfather gave a dinner to his old friend, Daniel Webster. Although I was scarcely out of dresses, I had been intrusted by the butler with the very responsible function of decanting the Madeira. The manner in which I performed that task was revealed later on, when the great statesman, after sipping his wine in evident dismay, suddenly said: 'McClellan, you were always noted for the excellence of your Madeira, but this is the most extraordinary wine I ever tasted. I hope the spirit of Dan Webster has forgiven me. In my zeal I had mixed the sherry with his best Madeira."

Another incident which I have to recall, for it made a great impression upon me, occurred some years later. I had grown almost to manhood. My father, older in years, of course, was still the same bright, happy influence, filling the hours always with the consciousness of his presence and love. The chimes of a neighboring church were rung at midnight to welcome the anniversary of Christ's birth. I had been up very late enjoying the happiness of Christmas eve, and hearing the bells I opened the window to listen to them. Directly beneath me I espied my father, who was looking out of his window, too.

"Hello!" I cried. "What are you doing; trying to catch cold?" "Hello, boy!" he answered. "I always like to hear the Christmas bells, for I feel so grateful to our God that He made the day a possibility."

I have never forgotten that remark, and the reverent manner in which it was uttered. The crisp night air and the ringing chimes impressed it vividly upon my memory. That dear, good friend, my father, speaks to me yet in those words, even though he has gone to be with Him who made Christmas a possibility.

GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN.

Henry Clews' Christmas Story.

Christmas should be observed in this country with the same enthusiastic spirit as it always has been and now is in England with the young folks. As soon as one Christmas season is over in England children at once begin to look forward to the next one, and so it goes on through their entire lives, and when they reach man's and woman's estate they teach with their own little ones start life over again in their merry making whenever Christmas comes round. So it goes from generation to generation, all kinds of children's games are introduced in the evenings of Christmas week, neighbors drop in to participate and the servants are also expected to take part. It is a period of equality. All join in to do their share for the general amusement of the annual gathering. Some sing and all dance and romp with all the vim and hilarity they can muster. The mistletoe bough hangs over the door and makes lots of kissing for the little ones, and they not unfrequently draw the old people in besides to the merriment of all the rest. No family ever thinks of sitting down to the dinner table on Christmas day without having roast beef and plum pudding, and plenty of both to go around twice at least. The plum pudding is burning hot, in that way only does it differ from the ordinary wedding cake such as we have in this country on bridal occasions, it then being cold and encased in small boxes instead of one huge dish. Otherwise both are made alike, having the same ingredients. I have tried both to my heart's content, and have become satisfied that none but a sturdy John Bull can eat extravagantly of either the hot or cold without being sure to get the nightmare and dream of his great-grandmother or some other antique individual not particularly cheerful to dwell on in one's slumbers as compared to sweet repose. As I was born in England and spent my childhood there I speak from the book, so I cannot help noticing the great difference between the observance of Christmas in the old country as compared with the new. I wish the English Christmas merrymaking could be adopted here. Certainly families should at this festive season always come together under the parental roof. It is a season to revive youthful recollections and drive cares away. It prepares and guides the mind of both young and old to start the new year happily. There is nothing like making a cheerful start on the 1st of each January. If at that time one's life is made joyful it almost invariably insures a happy New Year, and this, repeated year after year, finally gladdens old age, as then all the occurrences of youth and middle age crowd the thoughts, and the older one gets the more vivid become the recollections of the incidents of early life.

HENRY CLEWS.

He Looked Funny.

Her Papa (who had taken his daughter's fiance out to lunch)—And you never drink, you say?

Her Fiance—No, sir; not even beer.

Her Papa (suspiciously)—Then may I ask you why you blew the whipped cream off the top of your coffee before drinking it?—Boston News.

Drowning Him Out.

Strawber—Well, I have made up my mind to propose to her.

Singerly—You are not going to do it in those trousers, are you?

Strawber—Why not?

Singerly—She won't be able to hear a word you say.—Truth.

Bridget, Probably.

Husband—Did you drive all these nails yourself?

Wife—Yes, I did.

"Let me see your hands."

"Here they are—not hurt a bit."

"Hum! Who held the nails?"—N. Y. Weekly.

No Harm Could Be Done.

Mrs. Parvaynuh—I'm most afraid to wear more than four diamond necklaces to-onet, for fear it will make me appear vulgar.

Mrs. Highlife—Oh, you needn't be afraid on that score.—Chicago News Record.

Why He Cackled So Much.

"What's the matter with the baby?" asked a lady of a little girl, whose baby brother she had understood to be ailing.

"Oh, nothin' much," was the answer. "He's only hatchin' teeth."—Texas Siftings.

He Reasoned It Out.

"Are you fellers going to play baseball again next season?" asked one small boy.

"Yes," replied the other.

"I've got a name for yer club."

"What?"

"Anarchists."

"What for?"

"Cos yer such bum throwers."—Washington Star.

UNEASINESS IN PARIS

Precautions Taken to Prevent an Uprising.

DESPERATE FIGHT AT A MEETING.

Marquis de Mores Attacks the Jews in a Speech and a Pitched Battle Results. In Which Many Are Hurt—Anarchists Call Upon the People to Destroy Their Corrupt Oppressors.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The great anti-Semitic meeting was held at the Tivoli Vauxhall last night under the supervision of the Libre Parole group. The hall was packed, and the first two speakers were received apparently with enthusiastic approval.

The principal speaker of the evening was the Marquis de Mores. He began his address with a general onslaught on the Jews as the corrupters of French honesty and the haters of French honor.

A tremendous uproar granted these assertions and about 50 men started forward to dispute with the Marquis his place on the platform. At the steps to the platform they met some 30 partisans of the Libre Parole group, who showed fight.

Iron chairs and tables were thrown about. The Marquis de Mores and his little band of adherents were obliged to stand their ground, as there was no rear exit, and there was a terrible struggle.

Many nasty wounds were inflicted. De Mores and his party fought their way to the floor where a pitched battle was fought by police and the factions of the audience.

Many were removed unconscious from the hall and numerous arrests were made. Serious developments were averted only by the moderation of the police.

A lighted cigar was thrown from the gallery while the Marquis de Mores was speaking. It was mistaken for a bomb and produced a partial panic.

Several newspapers predict the arrests of more Deputies and Senators on next Monday. The police were busy between one and three o'clock this morning destroying incendiary placards posted by anarchists.

These placards called upon the people to rise at once, seize arms, destroy their corrupt oppressors, and seize the reins of government. A feeling of alarm was apparent throughout the city last evening and is likely to increase to-day in consequence of the prophecies of the press that the worst developments are to come.

Gen. Saussier, Military Governor of the city, has taken every possible precaution. The city would be safe were it not for the general conviction that the government is playing fast and loose in the Panama matter.

Threw a Cartridge Into the Audience.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Paris correspondent of the "Standard" says that a cartridge five inches long and two inches in diameter, with a lighted fuse attached to it, was thrown into the audience at the anti-Semitic meeting last night. The cartridge was carried out by a policeman, and the police are now trying to give the impression that the cartridge was only a cigar.

ARE AMERICANS IMPLICATED?

De Lesseps' Reported Confession Creates a Stir in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The report that M. Charles de Lesseps, who is in prison in connection with the big Panama scandal, had made startling disclosures affecting American as well as European houses and would turn State's evidence created a considerable stir in banking circles.

It was the one topic of conversation around Broad and Wall streets and the tickers were eagerly scanned for further particulars. A prominent financier said:

"The feeling is pretty general that if the whole truth is ever told it will put some American firms in a pretty serious light. Probably no one is better able to do this than young De Lesseps; and if the report is true that he has turned State's evidence we may look for some startling disclosures.

"Of course, while this will cause a great amount of anxiety until full particulars as to his alleged statements are received, nobody is willing to talk. When it is known who are implicated the public will indeed be surprised."

Boycotting Lane Seminary.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—Since the Smith trial there has been much talk about Lane Seminary. The general public has long supposed that the school is prosperous and money making. It is found that all the Presbyterian schools in the West are boycotting Lane and that at present there are only thirteen pupils there.

DAMAGE BY THE STORM.

Iron Pier Wrecked at Long Branch—Havoc at Other Places.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 7.—The fierce snow and wind storm which prevailed along the entire New Jersey coast, wrought terrible damage to property and the bluff. A heavy sea is raging and the Shrewsbury Hotel at Sea Bright is being undermined.

At this place the famous iron pier, the landing place of the iron steamboat company, is a total wreck.

The high sea carried off the greater portion of the structure. The entire bluff on Chelsea avenue is gone. Not a single foot of bluff at that point remains to tell the story.

The bulk heads and other portions of the bluff are greatly damaged.

At Asbury Park no damage to any extent has occurred.

DAMAGE AT ROCKAWAY.

The High Tides Carry Away Bathing Houses and Other Structures.

FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I., Jan. 7.—The high tides which have accompanied the storm during the past 36 hours almost overwhelmed Hog Island, as the outer beach of this place is known.

Frank's pavilion, a large frame structure, and Gipson's bathing houses were washed out to sea. Caffrey's pavilion and other buildings were damaged.

It is feared, if the storm continues, that more of the beach will be washed away.

The Snow Storm on Long Island.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 7.—The storm on Long Island was very severe, the snow fall being very heavy and in some places the snow drifts were several feet high. The Long Island railroad brought out all their snow ploughs and consequently all trains on that road were on time.

Mary France is Dying and Her Jealous Lover is Missing.

FORT HUNTER, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Mary France, the daughter of a lumberman of Beecher Hollow, at the foot of the Adirondacks, in Saratoga county, was found yesterday lying in the roadway near her home, her skull broken in two places. She will die.

She went to a party at a neighbor's house the night before with her lover, John Hawkins, the son of a well-to-do lumber jobber.

John became very angry during the evening because Mary showed some attention to other young men in the company.

At midnight John and Mary started for the latter's home. After Mary was found dying in the road officers went to arrest young Hawkins at his home, but he had fled.

Feeling against him runs high, and there is talk of lynching if he is caught.

SATOLLI'S MISSION.

New Duties Imposed Upon Him Instead of His Being Recalled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The general interest manifested in Mgr. Satolli's mission to the United States was shown by the receipt of telegrams from almost every part of the country in regard to the statement that the powers of the Legate had recently been extended.

It is stated authoritatively to-day that this assumption was to some extent erroneous. The ablegate's powers remain as heretofore—unabridged in the slightest particular—but his recent advices from Rome impose upon him some new duties which absolutely preclude the idea of his recall as predicted in cable messages from Italy.

THIRTY STEAMERS WRECKED.

Storms on the Black Sea Cause Great Loss to Shipping.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 7. — Terrible storms are raging in the Black Sea. Thirty steamers have been wrecked, including the English steamer City of Manchester, whose entire crew was drowned.

War Not Imminent in Central America.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Ministers to the United States from Nicaragua and Costa Rica yesterday cabled their respective governments asking an official statement as to alleged imminent war between the two Republics as asserted in a Panama despatch. The Charge d'Affaires of Costa Rica, Signor Calvo, has received a cable reply saying that the report is without foundation.

Preferred Death to Arrest.

WINDSOR, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Fred Master committed suicide by shooting to avoid arrest for larceny.

SANDMASTER CAPPA.

His Demise Follows Close to That of Gilmore.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Sandmaster Cappa of the 7th Regiment, National Guards of the State of New York, is dead at his home in this city.

Mr. Cappa's death was very sudden and was the result, his friends and relatives believe, of a cold contracted when he led his band in the big Columbus celebration parade.

Heart failure is said to be the direct cause of death.

Charles Cappa was born in Alexandria, Kingdom of Sardinia, Italy, in 1834, and came to the United States in 1858. He was then a young but promising musician, quite noted even at that time for his trombone playing.

He had made a reputation for himself on the way over as a master of that instrument. The trip was made on the steamship Constitution, and several concerts were given during the days occupied in crossing the ocean.

Upon arriving here, young Cappa entered Ned Kendall's Boston Brass Band, and played his instrument in that organization for two years, after which he became a member of the 7th Regiment Band then led by Grauffulla.

When the civil war broke out Mr. Cappa entered the ranks with the 7th Regiment and served during the entire period.

He afterward became first trombone in Theodore Thomas' orchestra, which position he occupied for seven years.

It was Mr. Thomas who recommended him for leader of the 7th Regiment Band.

The appointment was made by Col. Emmons Clark, and Cappa satisfactorily filled the office for eleven years.

Before he entered the 7th Regiment Band he was a member of P. S. Gilmore's band. He succeeded Charles Wernig as leader of the 7th.

A RAILROAD NEEDED.

Until One Is Built Along the Mexican Border Order Cannot be Maintained.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The War Department has adopted no new policy concerning the better preservation of order on the Mexican border and, to quote a prominent official of the Department "order cannot be entirely maintained until a railroad is built along the dividing line, thus insuring the quick transfer of troops."

An order has been issued for a new flying telegraph line from Fort McIntosh, Texas, to insure quick transmission of messages from the seats of trouble and Lieut. J. E. Maxfield of the Signal Corps has been directed to proceed with its construction.

Beyond this and the employment of extra vigilance there will be no change from the present policy of the Department.

Freight Trains Collide Head On.

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 7.—Two freight trains collided head on on the New York & New England Railroad at Osbortown at 7 a. m. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped in time to save their lives. The two engines and eight cars were wrecked. The accident was due to the neglect of the engineer and conductor of the east-bound freight in forgetting orders.

Dropped Dead at a Railway Station.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—John H. Stevens, who for many years had charge of a department of the Phœnix Insurance Company here, dropped dead on the platform of the railroad station at Summit, N. J., at 8 a. m. Mr. Stevens had for many years been a sufferer from heart disease. He was sixty-four years of age and had lived in Summit about ten years.

Experiments With Electricity.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 7.—In an address before the Thompson Scientific Club of Lynn, Prof. Thompson stated that he has succeeded in experiments in which electric currents of high voltage were discharged through five feet of air and expressed confidence in his ability to construct a machine that shall cause veritable thunderbolts to leap as far as fifty feet in air.

Don't Anticipate Immigration Restriction.

COLOGNE, Jan. 7.—On account of advices from Washington to effect that opposition to the proposed immigration restriction bill is becoming so strong as to assure defeat of any measure looking to this end, the North Atlantic Steamship Company has decided not to reduce the number of trips to America by their steamships as contemplated.

Labor Leaders Arrested.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Jan. 7.—The Grand Jury has returned indictments for conspiracy against President Arrington and Vice-President Trotter of the National Glass Blowers' Union. Both were arrested and required to give bail. The indictments grew out of the strike of the glass blowers at the Cumberland Glass Manufacturing Company.

Green Goods Men Adopt a New Scheme.

OTTAWA, Jan. 7.—It has just come to light that the "green goods" men have adopted a new scheme. They no longer send their victims boxes of sawdust or old paper, but deliver counterfeit bills of the denomination of fives, tens and twenties of the "Confederate States of America."

An Heiress to $4,000,000.

CANTON, O., Jan. 7.—An old lady of this city, and for the last few months an inmate of the poorhouse, who for the present does not wish her name made public, has just received word from New York that she is heiress to property in that city valued at $4,000,000.

Death of Millionaire Burget.

CORNING, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Harvey Burget, a prominent citizen of Rathboneville and a millionaire, is dead. He was well known throughout Western New York and Northern Pennsylvania.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Compromise Silver Bill Apparently Not Acceptable.

THE SUSPENSION OF IMMIGRATION.

Senator Chandler Pleads in the Senate for More Stringent Measures Against Cholera—Coal Combine Investigators Will Soon Report—Latest Cabinet Slate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Silver bill presented by Congressman Culberson as a compromise measure, aimed to reconcile those in the House demanding the absolute repeal of the Sherman law and the Bland men who insist upon free coinage, is not apparently acceptable to either. Mr. Bland declares that the operation of the Sherman act has produced a condition the remedy for which is found only in free coinage, while the anti-free coinage leaders maintain doggedly that the purchase principle of the Sherman act would be perpetuated in a restoration of the old Bland act, and that the Sherman act should be repealed absolutely.

Mr. Culberson's action in attempting to avert a protracted fight over silver is significant in that he has been from the first one of the sturdiest and most active advocates of free coinage. Mr. Culberson exerts a strong influence with the Democrats from the South, who have the highest respect for his judgment.

As his bill has been referred to Mr. Bland's committee, it is not expected that it will find its way back to the House.

If it does not, no matter in what form the matter comes up for consideration, Mr. Culberson will probably offer his bill as a substitute, and in that event the fight is certain to develop some curious complications.

Mr. Culberson will oppose the absolute repeal of the Sherman act, as will his Southern colleagues, but his substitute will command a number of supporters. Among them the Bland men will oppose Mr. Culberson's compromise, as well as the original proposition.

If, as has been reported, Mr. Cleveland has advised the revival of the Bland act as a compromise, the anti-free coinage men may be induced to accept Mr. Culberson's bill. If that should be done the Bland men will filibuster, with a good chance of preventing its passage.

Mr. Pierce, Mr. Bland's first lieutenant, is confident that at least one-fifth of the Democrats will oppose unalterably any measure but one providing for free coinage. Mr. Pierce does not believe that a majority of the Democrats in any event will petition for a closure rule, and so he thinks there will be no silver legislation at this session. No matter what combination may be made, without a closure, no silver bill will be passed.

The anti-free silver men are equally confident that the Sherman act will be repealed, if not outright, with some compromise amendment.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

Discussion of the Quarantine and Immigration Suspension Bills.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The session of the House was an uneventful one. The attendance was small, and nothing but private business was considered. About 25 private pension bills were passed, and the House adjourned.

The session of the Senate was given up exclusively to the consideration of the bill on the subject of quarantine regulations and its correlative measure, the bill to entirely suspend immigration for one year.

Mr. Chandler (Rep. N. H.) spoke for about three hours, devoting most of his argument to the last mentioned bill, although the other was really the one that was up for discussion. To this latter, however, an amendment was pending to authorize the President to issue a proclamation suspending immigration from countries where cholera may be prevailing.

Mr. Chandler treated this proposition as an act of cowardice on the part of Congress in imposing responsibility upon the President instead of taking that responsibility itself.

THE READING COAL COMBINE.

Congressional Committee Concludes Its Investigation and Will Soon Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Special Reading Investigating Committee of the House has concluded its investigation, and the chairman, Mr. Coombs, expects to make a report to the House within a few weeks.

A part of them believe that it is possible for Congress, within its constitutional provinces, to enact legislation that will be effectual in restraining the coal combination.

Chairman Coombs says that, in his opinion, the last testimony taken by the committee during the recess shows more clearly than any of the other testimony the existence of an anthracite combination and the methods of its operation, and also what should be done by Congress to restrain the combination.

THE LATEST CABINET SLATE.

Ex-Gov. Campbell for Secretary of War—Blount to Succeed Wanamaker.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—It appears that one important appointment under Mr. Cleveland, of less rank than that of Cabinet officer, has already been decided upon. It is stated on good authority that Representative Bacon of New York is to be made Comptroller of the Currency. Mr. Bacon is now chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House.

As to the Cabinet, it is entirely probable that Gray of Indiana will be made Secretary of Agriculture instead of Postmaster General; that Blount of Georgia, who is now Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, was Chairman of the Postoffice Committee, and has served on both Ways and Means and Appropriations committees, will be Postmaster General, and ex-Gov. Campbell of Ohio will be Secretary of War.

Germany to Have the Right of Line.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Chairman of the Committee on Civil Organizations of the Inaugural Executive Committee, has announced in a letter to James Martin, of Tammany Society, New York, that the Tammany organization will be accorded the right of line of the civic portion of the inaugural parade.

BURGE STICKS TO M'AULIFFE.

Won't Hear of Fighting Anybody Else Till Jack is Out of It.

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—Dick Burge, the English lightweight champion pugilist, has just received an offer from a prominent New York sporting man, as representative of the new sporting club which is about to be organized.

The offer is of a purse of $10,000 to fight Austin Gibbons or $12,500 to fight Billy Myer.

Burge, who has just returned from Montreal, has sent answer that he will entertain no proposition to meet any other man but McAuliffe until the American champion positively refuses to make a match.

In that event Burge will give the Crescent City club the first opportunity, having given Capt. A. W. Cook, the club's Boston representative, a promise to that effect.

MUST BE A FIEND.

Any Creature Capable of Inflicting Such Torture Doesn't Belong to Humanity.

A shocking case of cruelty is reported from New Market. It is reported that Patrick Cahill, said to be a workman in one of the big Plainfield machine shops, shamefully tortured his horse in a fit of anger for its having outlived its usefulness. The charge is that he tore the poor creature's frogs out by the roots from its feet, gouged out an eye, and left the mangled, quivering, bleeding sufferer in the bushes by the roadside to die in agony. The Rev. L. E. Livermore learned of the case, and had the maimed quadruped humanely killed. Cahill was permitted to escape punishment with a warning that a repetition of such an offense would cost him a $200 fine. If the charges against him are true, he should be made to suffer severely for his terrible brutality.

Escaped Indictment, But Recaptured as a Witness.

Peter Ritter, the borough poultry thief, has been indicted by the grand jury, and will be tried next Friday at Somerville. The jury had compassion on his accomplice, Lewis Krause, who is suffering from illness, and, considering his imprisonment already sufficient punishment, failed to indict. Krause was therefore released, and he disappeared. He was wanted as a witness against Ritter, and marshal Pangborn recaptured him and held him as such. By clever detective work he located him at Irvington.

TOTTEN DISCHARGED.

Justice Nash Decides that He Did Not Intend Any Wrong—Appeal to the Grand Jury.

The court room of justice Nash was crowded last night from 8 to 11, during the hearing of James E. Totten on the charge of misappropriating a clock from the store of his former employers, Fulper & Bingham.

After hearing all the evidence, the justice decided that there had been no intent to steal the clock, and dismissed the case.

Totten's friends claim in this decision a complete vindication of the young man.

Messrs. Fulper & Bingham of course are dissatisfied with the decision rendered by justice Nash, and the case will be taken to the grand jury at Elizabeth, now in session, and an indictment found against Totten, if possible.

A MANLY MESSAGE.

MAYOR SAUNDERS SPEAKS OUT CLEARLY TO HIS COUNCIL.

Urgent Need of Sewage Reform—Green Brook Pollution Must Be Stopped—City and Borough Should Work in Harmony to Secure Abolishment of the Great and Growing Evil—Fire Department Needs—Starting the New Year Out of Debt—Book-keeping Reform.

Mayor W. L. Saunders last night submitted to the borough council the following interesting, sensible and important message:

Gentlemen of the Council:—

We have reason to congratulate ourselves that we begin the new year with the borough entirely free from debt. The last of the bonds which had been issued for the equipment of the fire department were paid off about the first of the year, and there does not now remain one dollar of indebtedness of any kind.

It has been said that cities like individuals sometimes die poor trying to keep out of debt. Freedom from debt is very much to be desired, but while we rejoice at the present condition of things let us not neglect to make proper provision for public health and safety. To be out of debt is pleasant, but it is more pleasant to be out of danger though in debt. Since our fire department was organized and equipped with apparatus, street hydrants have been put in, and a modification of fire apparatus becomes advisable. I briefly called your attention to this subject at the last meeting of the council, since which time we have met in committee with representatives of the fire department and have gone carefully over the whole situation. The committee on fire, water and lamps will report on this subject this evening, and I urge you to act without delay on the recommendations which they will make. A reliable and efficient fire department is one of the most important requirements of any municipality, and it is one of the first duties of public officers to provide and care for such a service.

I would also recommend for your consideration the question of public health. The spectre of a cholera epidemic during the coming summer urges us with uncommon force to look carefully into sanitary conditions.

Our beautiful borough is traversed by two brooks which have all the natural advantages of clear, pure water and picturesque surroundings. These brooks should increase the value of property through which they pass, and might be made sources of water-supply for cattle, or pleasure grounds for children. Instead of this they have become polluted streams, which in the case of Green brook is little better than an open sewer. Were the volume of water large enough and the channel of the brook a deep and permanent one there might be some doubt as to the danger apprehended from the pollution of the water, but at some seasons of the year the flow of water runs down until the brook is nearly dry, and it is a common thing for a flood to change the course of the stream. The bed in many places is rocky and grass-grown, so that at low water disagreeable odors come from the rocks and vegetation on which noxious matter has been deposited at high water.

Now there can be no doubt about the fact that the pollution of these streams depreciates property in the vicinity. Another point equally certain is that this pollution is something which grows year by year and threatens to become a serious menace to public health. Our board of health with creditable zeal has succeeded in stamping out sewage discharge from the borough into Green brook. But it is shown by recent investigation that the city of Plainfield openly maintains a sewer which discharges into Green brook. A communication recently published in a Plainfield paper contains the following:

"Mr. Griffin took Mr. Peck and a gentleman with him to Stiger's lane and showed him where a sewer emptied into the brook, and Mr. Griffin assured Mr. Peck that within a short distance over twenty sewers pour into the brook from Plainfield. Furthermore, he took him to a lot in the rear of the property on Grove street and pointed to an open sewer which emptied into the brook from Plainfield.

"Mr. Peck consulted a prominent lawyer of Plainfield in regard to the matter. The reply given was 'Mr. Peck, you cannot fight a corporation, nor can you fight the city of Plainfield. To my certain knowledge the city of Plainfield receives money for permission to connect with the sewer which empties into the brook through Stiger's lane.'"

The most striking part of the foregoing statement is that it is true.

Mayor Gilbert very wisely and frankly refers to this subject in a recent message to the Plainfield common council as follows:

"The North avenue sewer should be closely watched, especially at its outlet to prevent the accumulation of any unhealthful deposit. The condition and influence of this sewer should be made a special study. Another question of importance is whether permission should be granted houses east of the receiving basin to make connection. A number of houses have already connected and the sewage from these flows directly into the brook, which in my judgment is all wrong. Originally a receiving basin existed on Peace street to receive the sewage from houses east of the North avenue basin, but this having been filled up by order of the board of health, should not all the connections east of the North avenue receiving basin be discontinued?"

We are here brought face to face with the admitted fact that the people of Plainfield, along a populous district, are discharging sewage into Green brook, and that the city of Plainfield receives money for granting permission to do this. We rather like our brethren across the brook; we are glad to have them refresh themselves in our cool atmosphere during the summer, and we invite them to enjoy our picturesque mountain scenery, but we distinctly draw the line on their sewage.

I am satisfied that the authorities in Plainfield are ready to treat this subject fairly, and I would suggest that the society of physicians take it up at their next meeting and discuss it, letting us know what they thing about it. I would furthermore suggest to you the appointment of a committee of two to confer with our board of health and the Plainfield authorities with the view of stopping sewage discharge into Green brook, and with the further aim that the whole question of a sewerage system be taken up and a report submitted to the council on the subject.

Another question of importance for early consideration is that of the borough accounts. We seem to have a system of accounts here which has been inherited from our ancestors, and which has many shortcomings. It is difficult to attach the true name to the system of book-keeping which we follow, but it is certainly deficient and unlike anything now in force in any well organized business institution. In the words of the clerk, "the debits are on the credit side, and the credits are on the debit side". It seems to take as long to balance up one account as it should to balance the entire books. This condition of things is not only unbusinesslike, but it is unfair to those who have charge of the accounts. Errors creep in from year to year and are multiplied by this system in spite of the most zealous care on the part of the accountant. The lines should be drawn somewhere, and the sooner the better so that we may begin anew with a system of book-keeping which will be clear, accurate and reliable. It seems to me best to handle this question by employing an expert accountant to go over the books with the clerk and adjust them in a businesslike way. I would therefore suggest that you direct the auditing committee to do this and report at the next meeting of the council.

WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS,
Mayor.

The message was listened to with all due seriousness, and during the session of council action was taken in line with the Mayor's suggestions, as reported under other headings.

FIRE DEPARTMENT REFORM.

Various Improvements Ordered and Contemplated—Foreman Fairchild Promoted to Chief.

In accordance with recommendations made by the committee on fire, water and lamps, endorsed by Mayor Saunders's comments, the borough last night ordered the fire committee to secure the immediate construction of that greatly needed improvement, a hose tower, procure a proper coupling for attachment of hose to the street hydrants, and purchase for the borough from Warren Engine company the fire-alarm gong and signal apparatus.

Councilmen Hegeman and Connolly were appointed a committee to formulate a plan for obtaining funds for further improvements, such as erecting a frame building at Harrison avenue and Greenbrook road and stocking it with the old hose reel and hose, and putting in a Gamewell electric fire-alarm system such as Plainfield's, with six signal boxes.

The councilmen in discussing the payment for these and other improvements, possibly including a hook and ladder truck, favored the issuing of bonds payable $500 a year, rather than a direct tax. The bonds would be no extra burden on the people, who have been paying just such bonds for the past six years without complaint. All of the old bonds have been paid, and a new issue would give the public a model fire department, with greatly better service, at no increase in the tax rate.

Horace J. Martin, the only chief engineer the borough ever had, resigned long, long ago because his salary was insufficient. The office has up to date been vacant, but last night George H. Fairchild was elected chief in recognition of his services as foreman of Warren No. 1. As an expression of appreciation to a most worthy officer, it was a compliment gracefully expressed. The question of salary is yet to be settled.

The salary of Warren's hard-working and zealous janitor-fireman, Patrick Kellegher, was deservedly increased from $6.50 to $10, a month.

OH FOR A SEWER SYSTEM!

The Borough Will Try to Expedite Its Coming.

As proposed in the message of Mayor Saunders, the borough council last night took steps to secure reform of Green brook sewage abuses.

Councilmen Neal and Hegeman were appointed a committee to act with the Mayor and board of health in conferring with the Plainfield city authorities concerning the abolition of emptying sewage into Green brook, and the project of establishing a general sewerage system. The commission is to investigate fully all sanitary matters affecting the public health. A report is demanded at the next borough council meeting. By prompt and decisive action the Mayor and council hope to expedite the proposed amelioration of the sanitary condition of the municipality.

GETTING READY FOR ELECTION.

Registry Board Announced—New District Division, with Somerset Street the Dividing Line.

The North Plainfield borough council last night fixed the date for borough election at March 14. The board of registry is to begin canvassing Feb. 21. Registration days are Feb. 28 and March 7. The board of registry as announced by the council is as follows:

First district—Benjamin Gavin, John L. Blackford, Dem.; Lewis A. Kline, Charles W. Tallman, Rep.

Second district—John Bodine, Abraham King, Dem.; James Anderson, John A. Goodwin, Rep.

An ordinance was adopted on first reading making Somerset street the dividing line of the election districts, the same as in township elections—the first district on the southwest of the centre line of the street, and the second on the northeast of the centre line. The ordinance will be finally adopted next meeting.

The Borough Council to Move.

The members of Warren Engine company have long been clamoring for a parlor. They naturally tire of having their headquarters in the stable, and deserve a better place for meetings and social gatherings, which they are going to get.

Last night the borough council decided to give up their chamber in the engine house to the sole use of Warren company, whose members will furnish it to their own satisfaction.

Councilmen Neal and Needham were appointed to secure another council chamber. They will probably select Spencer's hall at $75 yearly rental, including heat and light. The councilmanic desks and chairs will be transferred to the new headquarters when decided on. Spencer's hall is where the township committee holds its meetings.

No More Snow on Borough Sidewalks.

Chairman Neal of the borough streets committee last night gave public warning, in response to the sidewalk criticisms in THE PRESS, that all property-owners would be compelled to keep all their sidewalks clear of snow and ice. He announced that wherever necessary the streets committee would do the work of clearing and charge it in the tax-bill against the recalcitrant property-holder. This applied especially, he said, to vacant lots where the owners have been particularly neglectful.

The ordinance under which the committee will operate was ordered advertised in THE PRESS, News and Courier twice a week for four weeks, to keep the public fully informed.

Board of Health Appointments.

Mayor Saunders last night re-appointed to membership on the borough health board the Rev. William E. Honeyman, whose term expires Jan. 15, for the succeeding term of four years. He also appointed Robert T. Currie to fill the unexpired term of Benjamin F. Braeder, resigned; his term expires Jan. 15, 1894.

The appointments were confirmed by the council.

No one was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, resigned, whose term would expire Jan. 15, 1894. The vacancy will be filled later. Samuel St. J. McCutchen was recommended, but has not consented to serve.

An Expert Accountant to Put Things in Shape.

In compliance with Mayor Saunders's expressed advice, the borough council last night authorized the employment of an expert accountant to go over the borough books, put them in shape, balance accounts to date, and establish a clear and businesslike system of book-keeping.

Can't Make Fire Limits.

The plan to set a limit in the borough within which no frame buildings should be erected, has fallen through. Corporation counsel Reed says he can find no law under which a borough may draft such an ordinance as proposed. That's one disadvantage of not being a city. Mayor Saunders suggested that Mr. Reed draw up a bill for a new law giving boroughs the right to fix fire limits.

Plans for a Better Street Lighting System.

The borough committee on fire, water and lamps having gone carefully over the street lighting matter, the council last night listened to their various recommendations of proposed improvements, and authorized the rearrangement of lamps where advantageous. New lamps will be placed where possible, in response to various petitions, just so far as the appropriation holds out.

The Unmuzzled Dog Must Go.

William Barlow complained by letter to Mayor Saunders that the large number of dogs at large were a source of annoyance and fright so women and children. He asked that unmuzzled dogs be stopped from running loose in the streets. The matter was last night referred to the councilmanic committee on laws and ordinances.

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of fifty years among a discriminating people like Americans, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. The value of a medicine is best proved by its continued use from year to year by the same persons and families, as well as by a steady increasing sale. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the introduction and progress of BRANDRETH'S PILLS, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conceded to be the safest and most effective purgative and blood purifier introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit, and that BRANDRETH'S PILLS actually perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. JOINS THE CRUSADE.

Here's Another Believes the Public School Records Have Been Kept in the Dark Long Enough.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I am only one of many citizens to commend heartily your manly stand against the secret methods of the local board of education. In no way can THE PRESS do more genuine good to the public interests than in securing an overthrow of autocracy in the management of the public schools. The people demand to know how their finances are handled, what the debt on the school property is, where the money goes. The just steward should not withhold an accounting to his master. Turn on more light, and let the public schools' record be made an open book instead of a sealed cipher.

REFORMER.

—A. M. Vanderbeek is retailing his stock off at wholesale prices. He will close his business here about March 1.

Good Showing of Leal's Cadets.

A representative of THE PRESS witnessed with much pleasure the full-dress drill of the Leal cadets at the Crescent rink yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Edwards should be congratulated on his success at making soldiers out of boys, many of whom previous to this year did not know the difference between "parade rest" and "charge bayonets". Taking into consideration the fact that the boys only meet twice a week and then only for a short time, they drill wonderfully well.

If captain Edwards could spare a couple of his men from the regular drill so that they could learn to drum, THE PRESS thinks that it would not only be an attraction to those who like to watch the cadets but would help the boys themselves, as a good drummer can put life into the heels of the dullest soldier.

After the drill yesterday afternoon a ballot was taken, and cadets were elected to fill a few positions that were left vacant among the non-commissioned officers.

GODDARD AFTER CORBETT.

Says the Champion is Not the Man He is Cracked Up to Be.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 7.—Joe Goddard, the Australian pugilist who has been trying to arrange a match with Champion Jim Corbett is in this city. In reply to a question Goddard says he is ready to fight Corbett at any place, in or out of this country, at any time, and for any amount from $5,000 to $25,000. He deposited a forfeit of $1,000 some time ago in New York and only recently placed $2,500 in good hands at Chicago.

"Corbett ain't the man he's cracked up to be," insisted the Australian. "He knows it, too, and is afraid to fight me. Anybody who is any good at all could have whipped Sullivan as easily as Corbett did. Sullivan is nothing but a chump, and nothing more than a second rate pugilist."

The damage is estimated at $100,000. The firemen had hard work saving the West End pavilion, where the Coney Island Athletic club fights are held.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 7.—The result of the bacterial test made in the cases of death occurring in the Helena camp and the Arkansas penitentiary proves that the fatal disease was not Asiatic cholera. TIRED MEN AND WOMEN

The Best Way of Reviving Their Spirits.

And Securing Fullest Benefits of Nature's Sweet Restorer.

The Physical Ills That Afflict Many Young and Old People.

In explaining the great demand for Paine's celery compound that was told in yesterday's papers, a member of the health board in an adjoining city said:

"The nervous systems of thousands of people in this city are sorely taxed.

"And the danger of overwork exists as much among women as among men, as the numerous cases of insomnia and kindred nervous diseases in every physician's practice shows.

"Even in youth the symptoms of a disordered nervous system often show themselves. But it is not so much overwork as overworry that affects the health of the child and results in disease. A class of 49 girls in a Boston school was questioned not long ago, and more than half the number were conscious of loss of sleep and nervous apprehension on account of their school work."

The physician gave a perfect indorsement of the practice among physicians in highest standing of prescribing Paine's celery compound in all cases of nervous prostration, and he continued:

"Take our working women. They stand in the retail store day in, day out, year in, year out, their spines are weakened, hence their spinal cord suffers and their brain becomes affected in consequence. Other women live a sedentary life, do not exercise sufficiently, wear tight corsets, etc., and shatter their nervous system. Of course you must remove the outward cause, but at the same time it is most important to aim, in your treatment, at the nervous system, and to apply known nerve foods."

And the safest and surest nerve food, the one that is prescribed for "that tired feeling," is this Paine's celery compound.

For all nervous diseases, neuralgia, rheumatism and dyspepsia, this famous compound is the true remedy.

For the headaches and sleeplessness that come to "the tired," Paine's celery compound is a never-failing relief. Take the case of Mrs. C. E. Prescott, who resides at 8 Worcester st., Cambridgeport, Mass. Mrs. Prescott says that she had had nervous headaches of the worst sort ever since she could remember. And she would have continued to have them but for the discovery of Prof. Phelps of Dartmouth college.

Says Mrs. Prescott, speaking of the remarkable benefits she has received: "There is nothing like Paine's celery compound. It has helped me wonderfully. For more than five years I have been troubled. My heart was so weak that I could not do any kind of work without a terrible throbbing. Ever since I can remember I have had nervous headaches of the worst sort. I have taken several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and find it the only thing that helped me. I heartily recommend it to all suffering with the complaint with which I was afflicted, for this compound has done me such a marvelous amount of good that I want others to know its value."

And this is from a Detroit paper: Miss Marie Ponpard of Grosse Point suffered with that most distressing disease, dyspepsia, for four years. But Paine's celery compound gave her instant relief. She writes:

"I have suffered terribly with dyspepsia for four years. Headache and dizziness were my most annoying symptoms, but I was troubled with variable appetite, nausea, 'gnawing at the pit of the stomach,' loss of flesh, sallow skin, sleeplessness. Paine's celery compound gave me relief at once, and the use of it for a year has done me an immense amount of good."

MARIE PONPARD.

Do not be hoodwinked. Use no "just as good." Salvation Oil is what you want when in need of a good liniment.

THE LATE JAY GOULD.

A Temperate Estimate of the Wizard's Character.

His Absence Will Not Be Lamented by Business Men and Farmers—The Greatest Accumulator of Wealth Ever Known.

Jay Gould is dead. The great multimillionaire is no more. The richest man probably on the face of the earth at the close of last month, and but recently one of the most powerful for good or evil, is now only a commonplace piece of "clay," such as the remains of ordinary mortals are made of.

The "Wizard" of Wall street may be missed, but, says the Chicago Tribune, his absence will not be lamented, in the business world at least. He could not have had many real friends outside of his own family circle, to which he was devotedly attached, for his grasping desire for wealth made him utterly regardless of the welfare of those with whom he associated in business. He exercised no discrimination in that particular. All was fish that came to his net. He looked upon humanity as if it were an aggregation of sponges, and whenever he found one or a company that he thought contained enough moisture to make it worth his while to squeeze, thenceforth the squeezing process began. It was as merciless as the grip of the grim monster, death, and almost as sure.

Jay Gould did little good in the world. His immense wealth was accumulated by a smarter intelligence than that of other operators and by a leech-like fastening upon anything and everything that came within his reach. If he originated anything for the benefit of his fellow men it is not yet apparent. He built up no railroad systems, except on paper. His mission was to wreck them by the process of inflation to the bursting point. His connection with Erie, Wabash and the Pacifics was one of disaster to others and profit to himself. The same inflation tactics followed close upon his getting hold of the Western Union Telegraph Company. He was a systematic corner'er at every opportunity, from the tannery to the stock exchange, both inclusive, with a long list of intermediate stations. And when he could not corner a profit by making securities for a property artificially scarce he worked in the opposite direction by emitting them in such profusion as to break down values in the hands of original holders. He never created anything except shares and bonds, and those so plentifully as at times to amount to an inundation. He aimed not to increase the real value of any single thing he took hold of. He was simply a gigantic financial octopus, and woe to everything on which his tentacles fastened was the rule during the whole of his "business" career. He never let go till nothing was to be gained by longer adhesion. Unlike many other great absorbers, he retained to the last every dollar. One may look in vain for his name on the list of donors to funds for the building of universities, hospitals or monuments.

In one particular Jay Gould's memory is entitled to respect. He was the reverse of an immoral man, in the ordinary sense of the term. So far as known he was continent, and a model of abstemiousness both in food and drink, and he was deeply attached to his family. It is eminently proper that as far as possible one should "say nothing but good of the dead." Yet there are exceptions, and the demise of Jay Gould is one of them. He did little to commend himself to the love of his fellowmortals, and is all the more culpable as he had opportunities therefor which have been enjoyed by few if any. He might have built up for himself a name that would live through the ages as a great public benefactor. Instead of that his record, so long as it survives, will be that of a wrecker who built up a colossal fortune out of the wrecking of thousands. It is to be regretted that his methods could not perish with him. It would be better for the business of the country. From the mere point of view of financial ability he towered above all those who came in contact with him, and to this extent he was the most conspicuous figure in the world of American business. As an accumulator of great wealth, starting with nothing and inheriting nothing, he was well-nigh exceptional, and to that extent he was a great man, but the methods by which he accumulated that wealth are not to be commended, nor is that kind of greatness the highest aim that can actuate a young man setting out for himself in life.

Tiger Skins.

The length of the longest tiger skin after drying is said to be 11 feet 6 inches; but it must be noted that skins expand considerably in the curing. The greatest length of a skin undressed is given as 10 feet 2½ inches. That goes far toward confirming what we have said as to the finest of these latter-day tigers falling far short of their predecessors. Mr. Inglis ("Maori,") whom we consider a most trustworthy authority, discusses the matter at length in his books on Indian wild sports. And he quotes examples, within the experiences of a hunting companion of dozens of various animals killed in upper Bengal, which measured from 12 feet 2 inches to 14 feet 7 inches.

MISS HELEN GOULD.

The Favorite Daughter of the Late Wall Street Wizard.

She Is Now One of the Wealthiest Young Women in the United States—More Serious-Minded Than the Average Young Lady.

Miss Helen Gould, who only a little while ago made her social debut in long frocks, is to-day a social magnate, an envied American lady only 19 years old, with an income of $100,000 a year and one of the most magnificent homes in the country, says Nym Krinkle in the Sunday World. By the terms of her father's will she is, or will be, one of the wealthiest young women in the country. It is safe to say that 100,000 delicate fingers have been figuring out with tiny pencils just what Miss Gould's fortune will amount to in the next twenty years, and all kinds of hypothetical theories have been made of what could be, done with $8,000 a month.

Of this family Miss Helen Gould is in many respects the most interesting member. Her youth, her intelligence, her unassuming grace and her attractive appearance, entirely aside from her wealth, make her, in spite of her modesty, conspicuous at this moment. Nature has her recompense and her revenge as a rule, in spite of men's selfishness. It has been thought and said recently that Jay Gould entirely evaded the law of equilibrium and gave nothing back to the world from which he had taken so much. The philosophe who came to this conclusion overlooked Miss Helen Gould.

Jay Gould has given her to the world, whether he would or not. It is just a year ago that this young woman stepped, one might say, out of the schoolroom into the parlor. Those who remember the petit figure in blue and brocade that received the compliments of a host of notables with a simple, unpretentious girlish winsomeness in which there was just a hint of reserve power, can hardly realize that now she is one of the wealthiest and may be one of the most influential women in America. There were many observant women at that debut who formed an instinctive judgment of the little miss. They may have been influenced in their conclusions by what they know of her life and habits, but the opinion arrived at took her out of the atmosphere of her father's life entirely. That is to say—out of that part of his life with which the public is acquainted.

This is not, in a strict sense, a society girl. She does not live on parade. Obviously she is too serious-minded. Otherwise, why does she go to the asylum on Lexington avenue quietly and regularly and read to the poor people who are bedridden? Perhaps all girls have a weakness that way. But all girls don't think of it, and might want a brass band if they did. Just how far the father's character was operative in developing that girl's character it would be hard to say. To the mere onlooker it would appear that he was chiefly efficacious in not bringing his character to bear at all. Perhaps nature, if she said anything, merely remarked to him: "You keep your hands off and watch me."

And then we can imagine the father regarding this growth with reticent wonder and admiration. Nobody has said a word about the mother. And yet it is quite possible that the silent influence of the almost unknown factor has found a tongue in this girl's character. Those of us who remember her at Saratoga will recall a rather demure maiden with pretty brown hair and pretty teeth, who showed two dimples when she laughed, but who laughed not half enough for the dimples; a girl who would be called pretty anywhere, but who was singularly reserved and appeared to think more of her younger sister's company than of any other person's.

The Potomato.

"Potomato" is the name given a curious manufactured vegetable which owes its origin to Dr. B. C. Culner, of Atchison, Kan. For more than twenty years the doctor has been experimenting with a view of crossing the potato and tomato vines. It is claimed that this has at last been accomplished and that a species of vine has been thus literally manufactured, and that it will produce both potatoes and tomatoes, both of which grow in their natural elements.

They Live High.

The most lofty place in the world regularly inhabited by human beings is the Buddhist monastery of Hanle in Thibet, which is about 17,000 feet above the sea level. The highest inhabited spot on the western hemisphere is Galera, a railway station in Peru, which is 15,645 feet above the Pacific's lowest low tide.

The Longest Tunnel.

The longest tunnel in Massachusetts, which is said to be the longest in this country, is four and three-quarter miles in length.

Nonalcoholic Beverage.

The natives of Liberia prepare a singularly intoxicating beverage from a common mushroom.

Taught to Know.

"The Daily Bread is a good paper to work on, isn't it?" said the reporter with the checkered trousers.

"Yes," replied the reporter with the loud watch chain, "but it's peculiar. Just as sure as a man gets to doing good work and becomes worth something it fires him. I've been on that paper mighty near ten years," he added, retrospectively, "and I never knew it to keep a fellow that was worth a continental longer than about six months. That is, I—er—."—Chicago Tribune.

BLAINE VERY NEAR TO DISSOLUTION

The Ex-Secretary Likely Now to Pass Away at Any Moment.

THREE SINKING SPELLS WITHIN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

At Each Attack the Patient Was Thought to be Dying—The Physicians in Constant Attendance—The Most Powerful Stimulants Necessary to Restore the Action of the Heart—Many Anxious Callers—Rev. Dr. Hamlin Sent For.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—James G. Blaine is nearer the gates of death than he has been since his alarming relapse three weeks ago. His condition then was so critical that a local newspaper startled the city with an extra edition, which newsboys shrieked beneath the very windows of the sick statesman's home, and which called forth an indignant protest from the members of his family.

It seemed then as though ex-Secretary Blaine were sinking into his last slumber amid tumultuous excitement, which surged to his very door, and echoes of which might have beat upon his ears.

Mr. Blaine is so near death that a bulletin announcing his end may be issued while these words are being wired, and, on the other hand, under the influence of the most powerful drugs known to medical science, his soul may be kept within his body for several hours.

The Blaine mansion has been every hour of the past month as much the center of observation as though every moment might be his last. Ever since early yesterday every personal movement of the members of his family, every entrance and exit of the physicians, Drs. Johnston and Hyatt, and every arrival and departure of callers, who are friends of the family, has been vigilantly observed. It was 1 a. m. when the presence of both physicians, and the evident alarm of the family, made it plain that another and perhaps the final crisis in Mr. Blaine's illness had been reached.

Battle With the Destroyer.

Such was indeed the case. All through the early morning hours either one or the other of the physicians labored over Mr. Blaine, whose rapid pulse, heightened temperature, and fluttering heart threatened immediate dissolution. Indeed, it is understood that only by the administration of nitro-glycerine, combined with other most powerful stimulants, was the action of the heart restored to something like its normal regularity. Toward morning the unconscious patient breathed more naturally, and the members of his family ventured to snatch a few hours' needed sleep, while Dr. Johnston went to his own house, Dr. Hyatt remaining in the sick chamber.

At 7 o'clock in the morning Mr. Blaine's symptoms again became acutely alarming, and, in response to a telephone message, Dr. Johnston hurriedly returned to the Red House.

Both physicians were almost continually at Mr. Blaine's bedside throughout the entire forenoon, and the bulletin which they issued at midday was conclusive evidence to all who read it that the end was near.

Dr. Hyatt, when he left the house for a short period early in the evening, said that Mr. Blaine was a "little better" and that there was hope that he might be kept alive "for a few hours." The other physician, Dr. Johnston, who has persisted in saying every day that Mr. Blaine was improving, also admitted that Mr. Blaine was much worse and expressed no hope of even his temporary recovery.

The distress of Mr. Blaine's own household during these moments of solicitous watching may only be imagined. Only at intervals would the physicians and the trained nurse allow even Mrs. Blaine to enter the immediate presence of the dying man, although every one of the family was within immediate call should a crisis occur. Miss Hattie and James G. Blaine, jr., received most of the callers, who were for the most part confined to the oldest and most intimate friends of the family in the city.

Rev. Dr. Hamlin Summoned.

One caller at the Red House, whose visit excited much comment, was the Rev. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, where Mr. Blaine has been an occasional attendant. Dr. Hamlin's call was in response, it is understood, to a message from Mrs. Blaine, who sent for the Presbyterian minister in accordance, it is reported, with a request made several days ago by Mr. Blaine.

CONGRESSIONAL FORECAST.

The Anti-Option Bill Will be the Chief Topic of Discussion This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Interest in the proceedings of Congress this week centres in the prospective treatment of the Anti-Option bill in the Senate. The bill is now in a critical position and it is the judgment of a large number of Senators that it must be passed within a few days or must give way to other matters as the patience of the Senate is well-nigh exhausted.

Some of the strongest opponents of the bill have seized upon the opportunity offered by the pendency of the Quarantine bill to further delay the enactment of the great moral measure in the hope of deferring action upon it until the time arrives when the Senate must turn its attention to the annual appropriation bills.

As part of this plan, final action on the Quarantine bill was prevented Saturday, and that bill comes up again to-day as the special order, unless an adjournment is caused by unforeseen events, and may easily occupy two or more days of this week without justifying the parliamentary charge that it is being used as an obstruction.

So it may be that the Anti-Option bill will not again be taken up before Wednesday at the earliest, but the indications are that when it is taken up there will be a vigorous contest brought on by the efforts of the friends of the bill to force it to a vote, involving, as Mr. Washburn has said, protracted sessions and much tiresome talk.

The McGarraghan bill will fill in the morning hour to-morrow and perhaps during the remainder of the week, although it appears that it is really approaching a final vote.

The Raum report, the bill for the election of Senators by direct vote of the people and the Commerce Committee with its Omnibus Light House bill, will each be given a day.

WAR AGAINST ORGANIZED LABOR.

Men Who Are to Work for the Pennsylvania Must Leave Their Unions.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 9.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has openly declared war against all organized labor. No longer is there any doubt of the road's hostility to the different brotherhoods to which the employes in different departments have attached themselves. Openly and without any equivocation the order goes out that the men must sever all connections with organized labor bodies or their names will be erased from the pay rolls of the company.

For months the officials have been clandestinely at work using suasive means to diminish the membership of brotherhoods among the force of men in their employ. Lukewarm members renounced their orders. Others refused and openly denounced the road, but got a welt with the official axe across the neck.

The crisis has been reached and as the news of the company's action has reached every point on the line, including its spurs and ramifications, there is intense agitation all over the country.

At Indianapolis Oran Perry, city freight agent, summoned the freight handlers before him, saluting them with the remark:

"All of you who desire to remain with the company instead of the union will walk to this side of the room."

Fifteen did so and five refused.

"I do not want to be misunderstood," continued Col. Perry. "This company will not furnish bread and butter to men who are likely to prove unfaithful to it. You cannot be loyal to the company and to your union, and if you prefer your union to the company that pays you your wages, well and good."

TO DEFEND THE CUP.

Unless the Volunteer is Sold She Will Be in the Race.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—Capt. John Barr, the well-known yacht skipper, has been engaged by Gen. Paine for the coming season. The general will put the Volunteer in commission, unless he should happen to sell her before the season opens, and she will be on hand at the cup races.

Should he sell the Volunteer, he would build something smaller, though not as a forty-six-footer. A sixty-footer would probably suit him very well.

The engagement of Capt. Barr by Gen. Paine undoubtedly means that Capt. Charles Barr will sail the Carroll boat which is to cross the water.

Bordentown Citizens Indignant.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Jan. 9.—The citizens of this place are indignant that no reward has been offered or no effort made to arrest the colored highwayman who assaulted Daniel V. Bower, a tobacco and cigar agent, on the platform of the Pennsylvania railroad Thursday night, when he was about to take the train for his home at Trenton.

The railway station and platform were tastefully decorated in their honor. There were many royal guests and officials aboard the train.

The party, as it started from the station for the castle, was saluted by a regiment of troops drawn up in front of the station, while all the bells in the town pealed forth a welcome.

There will be two religious services, Protestant and Roman Catholic, Princess Marie being a member of the Church of England and Prince Ferdinand being a Catholic. The first ceremony will be full choral and will take place in the large Roman Catholic chapel, high Catholic dignitaries officiating.

The second ceremony will take place in the small Protestant Church.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—Emperor William started for Sigmaringen last evening to attend the wedding of Princess Marie of Edinburgh and the Crown Prince of Roumania.

THEY PILLAGED AND BURNED.

Bridgeport's East Side Excited Over Several Outrages.

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 9.—The portion of this city known as the East Side is greatly excited owing to the fact during the early hours of the morning two incendiary fires were started and burglars were active in their work.

Fireman Konstanzer, returning home from the engine house at an early hour, met two men pushing a wheelbarrow. The men ran away when they saw him. The wheelbarrow contained a large quantity of groceries taken from the co-operative grocery store.

A few minutes later Konstanzer saw smoke issuing from the First Advent Church. The fire had gained but little headway and was quickly extinguished by the department. It had been started in one corner with papers and in another with the baptismal robes.

A partially finished dwelling house, owned by C. E. Seofield, was found on fire about 5 o'clock. This was also the work of incendiaries. The structure was saved but considerable damage was done.

PANIC OF HOTEL GUESTS.

The Fiercest Fire Ever Known in Gouverneur, St. Lawrence County.

WATERTOWN, Jan. 9.—At 1:30 a. m. fire broke out in the barroom of the Van Buren house at Gouveneur, St. Lawrence county, and the 50 guests of the hotel barely escaped with their lives, being compelled to jump from the windows and fly from their rooms in their night garments.

The entire building went up in smoke. It was the biggest fire that had ever visited the little village, and caused a loss of over $50,000.

The boot and shoe store of J. W. Ormiston, and the clothing stores of J. J. Block and Max Tumpowsky, located in the building, were also consumed, together with their contents.

ELECTORS IN SESSION

New York's College Convenes at Albany.

MAY FINISH ITS LABORS TO-DAY.

Speaker of the Assembly Sulzer Will Announce His Standing Committees This Evening—Legislature and Electors to be Entertained by the Governor.

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—The State Electoral College met at noon to-day in the Senate Chamber. Secretary of State Rice convened the college and administered the oath of office to each one of the 35 Electors.

It is expected that William Steinway, of New York, will be chosen as president of the college from the fact that he heads the list of Electors as an Elector-at-Large. After the college is organized, the Electors will vote for President and Vice-President separately by ballot. The Electors shall certify to lists of the results of such ballots and then appoint a person to deliver such lists to the President of the Senate at Washington before Jan. 16.

Similar lists must be forwarded by mail to the President of the Senate at Washington, and must also be delivered to the Judge of the United States for the Northern District of the State.

Each Elector is entitled to compensation at the rate of $15 a day and mileage at the rate of 10 cents a mile.

The Secretary of State has everything ready for the consideration of the Electors, even to their checks for compensation, as it is expected the college will finish its labors to-day. Previous colleges, however, for several years back have always taken two days to complete their work.

To-night Gov. Flower will give a reception at the Executive Mansion to the Electors and members of the Legislature.

Speaker Sulzer is busily engaged in his rooms at the Delavan house, assisted by Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, in selecting the standing committees of the Assembly, which he will announce to-night.

CAST THEIR VOTES TO-DAY.

The Electoral Colleges of All the States in Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—To-day the electors in every State in the Union meet to carry out the will of the people as expressed at the polls last November.

After having given their vote these electors sign three certificates as to the result. One of these is delivered to an elector appointed to take charge of it and carry it in person to the seat of Government and to deliver it to the President of the Senate.

The second certificate is sent by mail and the third is delivered to the United States District Judge for the district in which the electors assemble.

Congress is required to be in session to count the electoral vote at 1 o'clock on the second Wednesday in February after the meeting of the electors, which will be Feb. 8. Meanwhile each body will have appointed tellers whose duty it will be to read the vote. A few minutes before 1 o'clock of the 8th of February, the Senate will proceed in a body to the hall of the House.

The President of the Senate will preside over the joint assembly, with the Speaker of the House sitting at his left. The certificates will then be opened by the President of the Senate in the alphabetical order of the States and handed to the tellers, who will read them and note the result.

It is possible that objections may be raised to some of the votes from the States of California, Kansas, Michigan, Ohio, and Oregon, and in this event the law provides that the two Houses shall separate, consider the objections, and report the findings. The count cannot proceed until each objection has been disposed of.

After the certificates have all been returned the tellers deliver the result to the President, who, in accordance with the facts, makes the proper announcement.

This announcement is declared by law and will be a sufficient and constitutional declaration of the election of Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson.

This will conclude all formalities prior to the inauguration.

BROOKLYN'S SCANDAL.

The Indicted Officials Must Plead or Demur To-morrow.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 9.—The municipal scandal is the great theme of conversation. The indicted public officials claim that they merely cast a vote in the board as their best judgment dictated, regardless of the fact that, as custodians of the public funds, they are supposed to prevent illegal appropriation of money.

All of them have engaged counsel, and their defense is being carefully prepared.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Senator Carlisle very emphatically denies the report that he had resigned his seat in the Senate to accept the position of Secretary of the Treasury in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet. AN OLD MAN'S DEATH.

Killed on the Road Whose Property He Protected.

Trackwalker James Sullivan was killed by a Royal Blue line train near the Peace street bridge shortly before 6 Saturday night.

He was walking along his beat, and stepped out of the way of the 5:43 New York local eastbound train, over on the westbound track.

The trainhands on the local shouted to him that the Royal Blue was behind him, but he seemed not to hear.

The Blue line was going at terrific speed, and the shrieking of the whistle was no sooner heard than the locomotive struck him.

The poor man's body was hurled under the wheels of the other train, and frightfully mangled. Death was mercifully instantaneous.

Sullivan was 48 years of age. He was one of the most popular men on the road. He leaves a widow and son on South 2d street.

The son's grief was so intense that after viewing the body he went about the streets moaning and sobbing and wringing his hands.

The Blue line stopped at Grant avenue and backed up to get details for its report to headquarters.

The body was carried on a stretcher to the freight-house, and later taken to his late residence.

Sullivan had only just gone on duty for the night when he met his tragic fate. He had been 17 years employed by the road.

At 1 Saturday afternoon, opposite L. M. French's carriage repository, while some boys were catching on sleighs, one by the name of Willie Conover, of Pearl street, droped off the bob that he had his small sled hooked to. He tried to avoid a grocery wagon of C. W. Tallman's that was following in the rear, when he slipped and fell, and both wheels of the wagon ran over his chest. The plucky little fellow, (only about 6 years old), jumped to his feet and exclaimed "I ain't killed".

This practice of catching on sleighs is very dangerous. Parents should caution their children against it.

Monday afternoon, January 2, four of the members of the South Sterling Gun club met at the residence of Quincy Brokaw, to decide who should obtain the honor of being the crack-shot of the town. Mr. Brokaw being in good practice, and not troubled in the least with his disease rheumatism, made the glass fly in every direction.

The people of the place have great reason of being proud of their leader, as he was a sharpshooter in the civil war, and has not lost any of his ability, in the least. Sage ranked next to Brokaw in record.

The Rev. W. W. Moffatt, superintendent of the American Bible society, desires to have it known that the Bible depository for Union county is at Marsh's store, 85 Broad street, Elizabeth. Bibles and Testaments are sold there at exactly cost prices, as published by the American Bible society. The destitute poor will be supplied free. Such cases may be reported to any pastor in the county.

Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. It only goes to prove what's been said: incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Other so-called remedies may palliate for a time; this cures for all time. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it conquers the worst cases. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell or hearing, watering or weak eyes, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are.

Remedy sold by druggists, only 50 cents.

Read and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.00.

SOMERVILLE FAKEY AS USUAL.

The West End Club Boys Put up Some Fine Prizes to be Raffled Off, and the Members Win Nearly All.

Two weeks ago, the West End Athletic association held a fair at which they made considerable money. The big prizes were put up and chanced off. The drawing of the World's Fair ticket was held on the last night of the fair, and Lewis C. Mack—cherubic Loo—drew it. This was suspicious, and people talked much about a club man winning the prize. The other two prizes—the horse, wagon and harness, and the cow, were drawn on New Year's day at the County house. The reason of the delay in drawing the last two was that chances sufficient to make the thing pay had not been sold. The horse had been bought of Peter D. Rockafellar of White House, for $80, he taking five chances. The wagon, a fine surrey, was partly the gift of a local carriage firm, the club paying $70 for it. The harness was procured for nothing. The cow was the gift of Theo. F. Cornell and his brother, Jacob. In all, 325 chances were sold on the horse, wagon and harness at $1 a chance, while the cow brought in only about $40. The understanding was that the cow should bring at least $50 or no gift. When the time came to draw the prizes, quite a crowd of local sports gathered at the County hotel to see the winners set up the crowd, a performance that is invariably gone through with by the winner of a raffle, no matter how great or small the prize may be. When the numbers had been put into the box and well shaken, the lucky one was drawn by a small boy supposed to be disinterested. It proved to be number eleven, and was held by P. D. Rockafellar, the original owner of the horse. The cow was drawn by Theo. F. Cornell, the former owner of the cow. The drawing was probably square enough, but people will not believe but what the thing was fixed so that the right number came out according to the wishes of those most interested. As the fair bled people in the town pretty well, the townfolk are rather sore over the drawing New Year's day; and the local tradesmen are hot because the fair spoiled their holiday trade.

Enfeebled Age Despises Stalwart Youth.

The dotish old men who compose the Courier's "staff" are continually sneering at youth and young men. Their enfeebled intellects fail to comprehend that this is an age when young men lead the nation in all notable achievements—distinctively an age of young men. But then the Courier cannot be expected to keep up to the times. Fossils are interesting, in a way, as antiquities, as relics of the past, but they are not capable of getting out a modern daily newspaper. The need on the Courier "staff" of a smart young lad such as the Courier affects to despise, grows each day more apparent. "The awful crime of being a boy" seems to worry the senile editors of the ring-rule organ.

It is a fact that the Courier has gradually cut adrift from all the bright young men whose enterprise and zeal gave it its start, and with each such parting has degenerated more and more.

Thanks for Everything, from Oysters to Socks.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Woman's Auxiliary board of Muhlenberg hospital wish to express their thanks to all who have again helped to make Christmas at the hospital so pleasant and joyful for our poor patients and our faithful attendants.

To the daily papers, which have published kind words in behalf of our good cause; to all warm-hearted friends and benefactors, among them several of our former patients; and to the merchants of our city who have so generously contributed by sending a liberal supply of meats, provisions and many other useful articles: we feel especially indebted and grateful for everything we have received.

The donations from the different stores were: Newman Bros, 6 cans fruit, 6 cans vegetables; A. Lutkins, ham; J. W. VanSickle, 2 ducks; Chas. Arnold, 2 ducks, 3 chickens; David W. Rogers, 2 qts. oysters; Garret Q. Packer, furniture; Seely Edsall, 11 pair socks; George Rockfellow, 1 basket apples; S. H. Whitney, stockings; P. M. Demarest, 2 lbs. tea; A. Griffin, kitchen utensils; Gavett & Co., 1 doz. plates and dishes; Henry Liefke, coffee cake; White & VanArsdale, 1 flannel blanket; Frank Linke, wine; Boice, Runyon & Co., 5 tons coal; Chas M. Ulrich, ham; James Flynn, 6 lbs. starch; Misses Gorsline, sofa pillow; Mrs. Sullivan, sofa pillow. EMILIE SCHIPPER, Corresponding Secretary.

He Finds the Syndicate Worthy.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In justice to the syndicate doing business at the Crescent rink, I write to say that the manager has presented my son Charles with an elegant pair of Raymond ball-bearing nickel-plated extension skates together with oiler and wrenches, the prize offered to the winner of a one-mile race. After a careful investigation I am satisfied that the persons composing the syndicate are reputable people, are acting in good faith in offering prizes, are entitled to the confidence and patronage of the public, and that the magnificent prizes now on exhibition at the rink for the carnival will materialize when won and surely go to the winners. The delay in awarding the prize skates was caused by reason of the fact that it was necessary to send to the factory in Boston for them. WILLIAM W. PEARSON.

Swift in Name, and Decrepit in Nature.

The Courier has gotten rid of the last young man of its "staff", and its "chief of staff" is now Mr. Henry Swift Thomas, alias Mr. Thomas Swift, alias Mr. Thomas Henry, alias Mr. Henry Swift, who under his various convenient aliases has had brief and interesting "careers" at Tarrytown, Bayonne, Montclair, and elsewhere. If there is no deviation from the rule that "Birds of a feather flock together", the Courier "staff" judged by some of its importations must be a very unsavory crowd.

GLORIOUS VICTORY.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION YIELDS TO PUBLIC CLAMOR.

What THE PRESS Demanded for the Public, It Grants—An Expert Accountant to Prepare a Financial Showing for the People—The Old Board Concludes Its Labors, and the New One Organizes—Supt. Maxson's Salary Raised.

THE PRESS is happy to inform the public to-day that already its earnest argument in favor of giving the tax-payers an exact, clear, and up-to-date showing of its public school finances, has borne fruit, and at Saturday night's session the board of education decided to grant to the people just what they have been clamoring for through these columns.

Mr. Finch and Dr. Hurlbut took the sensible view of the matter and very truly said: "No one for a moment believes that there is anything wrong with the accounts, but it is due the public, it is good business, to have the proposed accounting made." And to the credit of the entire board be it said that they voted unanimously for the project.

The opposition of the Courier to the plan, gives new evidence of its fealty to bossism and ring rule, and proof of its disloyalty to the people's interests. If there is a private scheme to further the personal gain of a certain few, rely on the Courier to father it. But for a public-spirited cause the Courier's opposition may always be expected. THE PRESS alone of Plainfield's papers has a clean record of unswerving devotion to the people.

After a search at both the Franklin and Stillman schools, a PRESS reporter found the board of education in session in a small and cozy executive chamber on the first floor of the Stillman building. The door was closed, and when the reporter had the temerity to enter he found no accommodations ready for outsiders. All of the chairs were grouped snugly about a long table, and all but two were occupied. A moment's painful silence ensued, and then one of the vacant chairs was yanked from under the table, shoved into a corner, and indicated as a seat for the welcome caller. Clerk L. E. Clark was in the midst of the reading of minutes. This progressed until the clerk came to some mysterious paragraph when he was stopped and told that that could wait till later. The minutes "as read" but unfinished were approved. This trifling irregularity was about the only one of the evening's session.

Dr. Probasco for the committee on photographs reported that the pictures of the schools and class rooms were ready for forwarding to the State and World's Fair exhibit. The report was received, and the matter of forwarding was referred to the superintendent.

The two new class rooms in the assembly room, High school building, were reported complete and occupied. They were nicely finished, to the entire satisfaction of all, and the improvement was greatly appreciated by teachers and pupils.

Bills amounting to $596.72 were ordered paid. Of this amount $168.02 was for repairing heaters in the various schools, $77.60 was for repairs to buildings, $86 was for curbing at Bryant school, and $30 was for paving with flagstones sections at the Irving school where it was found that cement would not last. The balance of the bills was for books, inks, sponges, magic lantern, new blackboards, and various other supplies and sundries. The bill of $25.50 for city water was referred to Dr. Probasco, "for certain investigation."

Thomas W. Morrison had two bills in for the same work, and in the rush of business both were ordered paid, having been certified by president Babcock. Clerk Clark's sharp eyes detected that one was a duplicate, and that was destroyed. It was stated that this was n't the first time Morrison had done thus.

County superintendent Holmes reported that $663.88 was the city's allowance of State school tax this year, and that amount had been forwarded to the city. Remarks were made that this was much smaller than usual, "owing to the false returns of the State school census takers".

The bill of the city for $814.04 was referred to secretary Finch. Of this $279.07 is the schools' share of the collector's salary, and $186 04 for the assessor's. Collector Johnson reported a total of $25,048 received for school purposes during the year.

Messrs. Finch and Hurlbut were authorized to employ an expert accountant to prepare a financial report for the past year, and to examine all the public school accounts to date and prepare an official statement showing the exact condition of the finances. It was believed that everything would be found to have been correctly done, and wisely handled, but the investigation and accounting was the correct thing to do, so said Messrs. Finch and Hurlbut, and the votes of the others endorsed their views.

The board of 1892 then adjourned.

THE CITY CLERK'S NEGLECT.

The preliminary meeting of the new board was ably presided over by Dr. Hurlbut. It was found that the city clerk had failed to give legal notice of the re-election of George H. Babcock, and Mr. Babcock and Dr. Hurlbut criticized and censured his neglect, stating that formal notice should have been given to the board by the clerk. The board was compelled to make use of its unofficial knowledge of the fact of election and organized with the re-election of:

President—George H. Babcock.
Vice-president—E. L. Finch.

Mr. Babcock thanked the board for the confidence they reposed in him, and said he should endeavor to do his best. Mr. Finch was likewise gratified.

The matter of appointing committees was laid over.

Much regret was expressed over the continued absence of member F. C. Lonsbury. His eyes greatly trouble him, but he was well enough last week to enjoy a sleigh-ride. The board do not feel that they can spare any member, and the need of full membership at the councils is greatly appreciated.

At the suggestion of Mr. Babcock, superintendent Maxson's salary was raised to $3,000 per year, beginning Jan. 1. Mr. Babcock and Mr. Maxson both said that when Mr. Maxson was empolyed the trial salary was set at $2,500 with the distinct understanding that he should get $3,000 as soon as he gave satisfaction. All agreed that there was no question about the satisfaction, but the understanding of Messrs. Hurlbut, Finch and Probasco was that $2,500 was to be for the entire first year, and $3,000 thereafter. Mr. Babcock had no trouble in carrying the day. This makes Mr. Maxson's salary for the full year $2,750, and $3,000 hereafter. Miss Bulkley got $2,500. The Newark superintendent, a most able man, and one having much larger territory, is understood to receive only $2,200. New Brunswick pays $2,000. Springfield, Mass., gives no higher than does Plainfield.

Complaint was made by a parent that his child had contracted mumps of another pupil. Dr. Probasco said that mumps was not contagious, but epidemic. Children in the family with a mumps sufferer should not be kept from school. The sufferer himself should stay indoors two weeks.

A settee was ordered placed in each school building, for the convenience of teacher or pupil taken suddenly ill. Hitherto there has been no place for one stricken to lie down.

The proper committee was authorized to provide new desks for the junior class, the present desks being old-fashioned and cramping to pupils. The evil of being compelled to turn sideways to write was commented on. Supt. Maxson said it produced crooked spines. Dr. Hurlbut said that in business and and professional life men and women had to face their desks, and to teach pupils to write sideways was a hardship.

The resignation of Miss Mitchell from the third grade, Franklin school, was accepted, and Miss M. A. Hudson was engaged in her place at $500.

It was decided to pay Miss Mitchell for two days' illness and for the two Columbian and after-Thanksgiving holidays. The sentiment of the board was that the payment of teachers for such days should be made at the end of each month instead of at the end of the year as hitherto, but no one could frame a resolution to cover it satisfactorily, and final action was reserved. The reason teachers are paid for holidays not legal is because they are ready to teach, but are prevented by the board's action in declaring a holiday.

The superintendent was (given authority to purchase needed supply of paper.

The board undertook the expense of $5.75 for the proposed Young Men's Lyceum public debate. They did not, however, wish their action construed as a precedent for future debates. It was feared that if the board were relied on each time to pay, the expenses might grow too heavy; and because of the growth of the ordinary expenses the board is forced to economize. So said Mr. Finch.

The superintendent reported that the Training girls were being kept too long in the primary classes at Bryant, where single classes numbered as high as 60 pupils. This was far too many for one pupil, and the Training class girls could not be expected to devote all their time to the lower grades. The employment of an assistant teacher was authorized. Mr. Mr. Maxson thought he could pick up a Normal school girl for $450 and train her into a desirable teacher for next year. She is to divide her time among the overcrowded classes.

Mr. Maxson says he is trying hard to advance all the lower grade pupils so as to make a plenty of room for next term's inrush of little ones.

The board adjourned.

The Chuckle of the Enemy.

The Somervillians can't show charity even in the downfall of a great and honorable foe. Under the head "The West Ends Broke 'Em", the Democrat of Harkinstown gleefully says:

"The Crescents of Plainfield are about to go under. The pace set by the West Ends last summer was too hot for the windy city blusterers, and in consequence they will disband. The expense of last summer's ball season was borne by a few of Plainfield's moneyed men, while the majority of members have worked the deadhead plan. It is said that the last base-ball season cost the Crescent manager about $400, which he was compelled to pay out of his own pocket. No more Crescents. No more (great?) ball team in Plainfield. But like the babbling brook the West Ends go on forever."

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of fifty years among a discriminating people like Americans, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. The value of a medicine is best proved by its continued use from year to year by the same persons and families, as well as by a steady increasing sale. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the introduction and progress of BRANDETH'S PILLS, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conceded to be the safest and most effective purgative and blood purifier introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit, and that BRANDETH'S PILLS actually perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

BRANDETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

THE BACHELORS WIN THE SERIES.

Murphy, Their High Man, Celebrates His Success by Acrobatic Antics—The Cake Disappears.

The third and deciding game in the Park club bowling series between the Bachelors and Benedicks, resulted, Saturday night, in the married men's defeat. L. S. Darling should have been high man, but he bowled in hard luck, and though his score was excellent it was low for him. The "feature" of the occasion was Clarence Murphy, who was so astonished and overwhelmed with delight, at his extraordinary score that every time he made a ten-strike he jumped four feet in the air and almost turned somersaults, at the same time yelling like a Bull Frog City Indian. He is evidently in training for a circus acrobat. Had he performed his antics when playing cowboy on the Casino stage, he would have been a great success.

The score:

"THE BACHELORS."

HOPE IT MAY COME.

Plainfield's Prospects of Railroad Connection with New Brunswick.

In these columns Saturday it was stated that there was likelihood of direct railway connection between Plainfield and New Brunswick, a thing much to be desired. The New Brunswick Home News gives credence to the report as follows:

"A statement was made in one of the papers a few days since that the Pennsylvania railroad authorities contemplated building a branch road between this city and Plainfield.

"This report was denied by certain railway officials, and a HOME NEWS reporter called on T. Robinson Warren, who is generally well informed on all subjects of public interest, for his views.

"Mr. Warren stated that some time ago there was held at his house a meeting, composed of members of every manufacturing concern in the city and a few other representative citizens, to discuss a plan for another railroad, as reported in the HOME NEWS last July.

"Application was made to the first vice-president of the Lehigh Valley railroad for that company to build here, and the matter was receiving that company's favorable attention when the Reading deal interfered with its further progress.

"Since the failure of that scheme some of our citizens have been in correspondence with the officials of the Reading system, who feel kindly disposed in the matter, but who require that the initiative be taken by our own people in the matter of obtaining the right of way, permission from the legislature and issuance of bonds to the extent of $200,000 for the building of the road, including a bridge across the Raritan river.

"The question of another line of railway to this city is still a live issue, as on its accomplishment depends the prosperity of the city, but nothing further has been done in the direction of securing it than is here stated.

"As far as the Pennsylvania's intention to build a branch road to Plainfield is concerned such a plan has probably never been thought of, is the opinion of Mr. Warren."

Editorially the Home News says:

"The Pennsylvania railroad can be relied on to give us direct communication with Bound Brook, Plainfield and Somerville whenever there is immediate danger of its losing a large share of the $35,000 passenger and $38,000 freight monthly receipts from this city, and these can only be encroached upon by a competing line likely to break the monopoly now enjoyed by the Pennsylvania company."

Carmencita and the Comedy Both Great.

The following from the Syracuse Standard, about the dual attraction which appears at Music Hall, this week Wednesday, will be of interest to local theatergoers: "Carmencita came, was seen, and conquered the large and fashionable audience last night. Indeed, the Spanish danseuse received an ovation. Her dancing was at first disappointing but as she warmed up to her work she was greeted with a storm of applause, and four times compelled to respond to encores. Carmencita is the incarnation of grace, dignity and refinement, and her statuesque posings were the very poetry of motion. She is as far superior to the stuffy elephantine dancers, who have jigged and ambled their way into public favor, as the blaze of an electric light outflashes the flicker of a rush candle. The flash of her lustrous black eyes, the pose of her shapely head, the incomparable grace and dignity of her stately movements, completely captured the audience. The comedy of 'The Prodigal Father' was very funny, and was excellently rendered by a most capable company."

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yield to it. Price 50c.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MACHINISTS.

The Grand Organizer Tells Plainfield's Prosperous Branch What Its "Aims and Objects" Are.

Grand Organizer Harry E. Easton, of the International Association of Machinists, arrived in the city Saturday, the 31st ult., to pay an official visit to Watchung lodge, No. 167, I. A. M., and deliver an address on the "Aims and Objects of their Order". The meeting took place at Odd Fellows' Hall on the same evening and was attended by a large audience of the best mechanics of the vicinity, although a great many had left the city to spend their New Year's elsewhere.

Mr. Easton was introduced to the audience by councilman B. F. Millington, the master machinist of the lodge, in a few brief remarks. Then the grand organizer launched out on his subject in a vigorous and strong argument which was eloquently illustrated by bright sayings, witty anecdotes, and a revelation of the true situation of his craftsmen who are such an important factor in this hive of industry. His remarks were frequently received with outbursts of applause. For a half hour, organizer Easton invited his hearers to ask any question they saw fit as to the working of his association. This privilege was taken advantage of, and every doubt was answered to the entire satisfaction of those present. There were many converts made to the cause which will increase considerably the membership of No. 167, as there is a splendid field in this section to work on.

Mr. Easton has been ably working the New England States, having organized 13 lodges in the past 30 days in and around Boston, one at Newark, N. J., and one each on the way in Hoboken, Paterson, Rahway and Jersey City, two at Waterbury, two at Stamford, Conn., and six in New York city and Brooklyn.

The association has been having a marvellous growth the past year, and now has 349 healthy lodges with over 22,000 legitimate machinists throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. The "Aims and Objects" are being put in practical operation, particularly in the South and West, where the officers and officials of large railway systems and machinery constructing plants, now have harmonious relations with their men and agreements are made without clashing and striking. The members are being sought after and retained in service on account of their sobriety, industry and mechanical qualifications in preference to others. The association is educating its craftsmen to a gradual reduction of hours of labor per day, the abolishment of nefarious systems in existence in the East, such as piece work, the running of two machines, unnecessary over-time, the putting on of too many apprentices (whom the employers do not teach the trade in its various branches, but only make specialists of them), the advancement of laborers under instruction (who seldom if ever perfect themselves, and are an injury to the poor boys who are bound and working for a mere pittance). All these things are unjust to the men and to a trade that has done as much, if not more than, any other, to advance civilization, build up this country and enrich others. The International Association of Machinists purposes by organization to rectify all these matters.

Watchung Lodge, No. 167, gave a fine repast to grand organizer Easton and their friends which was highly appreciated. He left for Paterson highly pleased with his visit.

Archbishop Ireland and the New York "Conspiracy."

NO NEED FOR HIM TO CALL ON ROME.

The Allegations Would First be Presented to the Pope's Representative at Washington Father Conway Says There is a Plot—Archbishop Corrigan Silent—The Vatican to Make Inquiry—Dr. McGlynn Makes a Statement.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 9.—Archbishop Ireland will not talk about the story that he had forwarded charges to the Pope that Archbishop Corrigan and others had organized a conspiracy for the overthrow of Mgr. Satolli and himself. However, Rev. Dr. John Conway, editor of the "Northwestern Chronicle," who stands nearest Archbishop Ireland of all ecclesiastics in the Northwest, stated that such a conspiracy existed and severely scored the persons and news papers alleged to be engaged in it. He further said:

"As to the statement that Archbishop Ireland has preferred charges in Rome, there is no necessity for his doing so, because Rome's representative is here in the person of Archbishop Satolli. Moreover, he has just learned the clear evidence upon which charges could be based."

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The story printed in a Chicago morning paper asserting that Archbishop Ireland had preferred charges against Archbishop Corrigan, and that the charges, duly formulated, were now on their way to Rome, created considerable excitement in Catholic circles in this city.

Archbishop Corrigan absolutely refuses to say anything regarding the matter, except that if the charges have been made he will wait until he receives official notice and then it will be time enough to speak.

The New York Archbishop, it is said, is accused by Archbishop Ireland of having engaged in an unlawful conspiracy to weaken or undo the effect of the Pope's decisions in respect to Church matters in America, and of having had recourse to methods unbecoming a Bishop, designed to discredit and disgrace Archbishop Ireland and Mgr. Satolli, the Papal delegate to America.

It has always been a mystery why so many people suffer from cnapped hands when Salvation Oil will cure them at once.

NAN'S HUMILIATION.

How a Naughty Little Girl Was Cured of Sugar Stealing.

Nan was fond of sugar, she often helped herself without being asked.

"Dear me!" said mamma one day, "this must be stopped, or we shall have Nan ill." So, calling her little girl to her, she said:

"Now, Nan, you must not take any more sugar without asking. Do you understand?"

"Yes'm," answered Nan. But though she did understand very well, I am not at all sure that even then she intended to obey, for it was that very same evening that what I am going to tell you about happened.

Mamma had company at supper, and Nan was seated beside a gentleman of whom she was very fond. He had been telling her a funny story, and had passed everything to her, "just 'cif I was grown up," said she to herself; but now he had turned away, and was talking to sister Kate. Just at that moment mamma passed Nan her "cambric tea." Nan tasted it, and looked as though she did not like it very well, and glanced longingly at the sugar bowl. But suddenly her face lighted up and she slipped her hand into her pocket. When it came out there was a lump of sugar between her finger and thumb. One, two, three, four, five, six, seven lumps went into the cambric tea.

"Why, Nan!" Nan looked up with a start, and blushed crimson. Everybody at the table was looking at her, her dear friend among them, and Nan thought he must feel very, very badly to put his handkerchief up to his face like that.

But that was not the end of it. The next morning mamma came to Nan with a large piece of cardboard, on which was printed: "Sugar thief."

"What's it for, mamma?" asked Nan, in rather a shaky voice.

"For this," and mamma turned Nan around and pinned it on her back.

"Now," she said, "you must wear this all day, unless," she added, "you forgot what I told you about taking sugar yesterday; did you?"

"No, mamma," said Nan, looking down, "I didn't forget."

"Very well, then; and now you may go out and play if you want to."

"Must I go out, mamma?"

"Not unless you want to," said her mother.

"May I stay in my room?"

"Certainly, if you choose."

And so all that long day Nan staid in her room, and when at night mamma came to take off the cardboard, Nan told her that she never, never would take sugar any more without asking.—Annie L. Hannah, in Our Little Men and Women.

Well Amended.

Undoubtedly one way of testifying a genuine affection is by helping a somewhat timid suitor. A member of the house of commons was once very grateful for a graceful and witty bit of encouragement from the lady of his choice.

For a long time he had been paying the lady attention, and had taken her to attend the house until she was well acquainted with the rules.

One day he brought her a bouquet of flowers, and said: "May I offer you my handful of flowers?"

She replied promptly: "I move to amend by omitting all after the word hand!"

He blushingly and happily accepted the amendment, and the motion was adopted unanimously.

A Feline Fire Patrol.

Among the servants of Uncle Sam are about three hundred cats, scattered among the government buildings in Washington and fifty large post offices of the country. These cats are necessary to prevent rats and mice from chewing up mail-bags, letters and other documents; and several postmasters make regular quarterly requisitions upon the government for money to buy "cat meat." Twice the building of the war department has been set on fire by mice gnawing matches; and, to say nothing of possible damage to valuable papers through the teeth of hungry mice, the danger of a conflagration is great enough to make the cats a necessary fire patrol, and the cheapest possible sort of insurance.

Why This Distinction?

Everyone likes to be treated fairly, and so everyone will sympathize with a little girl whose saying is reported by the Chicago Post.

Five-year-old Mary had fretted and made herself generally disagreeable, and at night her older sister put her to bed with a feeling of relief.

"There, child," she said, as she kissed her good night, "I hope you won't be so cross to-morrow."

Mary had cuddled down under the blankets, but at this speech she sat upright again.

"I notice," said she, "that when it's me you say 'cross;' when it's you you say 'nervous.'"

In No Mood for Sympathy.

The milkman gathered himself up from the ruins of his demolished wagon, scraped the whitish-gray mud from his clothing, smoothed out the dents in his hat, wiped from his whiskers the dripping fluid that had drenched his face when the catastrophe came, gave one glance at the runaway horse disappearing down the street, surveyed the dirty-white puddles that represented his stock in trade, and turned to the crowd.

"All I've got to say," he observed, rolling up his coat-sleeves and speaking in the tone of a man accustomed to calling cattle, "is that the first son-of-a-gun that says a word about it's being no use crying over spilt milk is going to get his blamed head punched!"—Chicago Tribune.

FUNNY PRIZE FIGHTERS.

What an Ingenious Boy Can Do with Clothespins and Paper.

An enterprising boy may have a Corbett and Sullivan miniature prize fight. In this case the two illustrious gentlemen are made of clothespins and card board arms and legs and manipulated with a string, as suggested by the illustration. They perform curious antics, such as their illustrious prototypes never dreamed of.

To manufacture these gentlemen, cut the clothespins half in two and after cutting out the cardboard legs and arms after the pattern in the picture fastened the members loosely to the wooden bodies with pins. The arms connect the combatants and a string through the middle of the arms completes the marionettes. Pull the string gently and watch the result.

A fakir sold this ingenious toy on the street recently. He had a crowd of admiring juvenile spectators about him constantly. He voiced the acrobatic performances in eloquent tones calculated to attract attention, in this wise:

"'De Sullivan and Corbett prize fighters, only 5 c'ts each. You can have more fun out of this toy in ten minutes den you can out of any odder toy in a week. They never gits tired fighting, and they never gits knocked out." Here he illustrates: "Now the great Corbett and Sullivan will shake hands. Now den—time and windup"—here a vigorous manipulation of the string produces an active encounter.

Ingenious boys may make this interesting toy with little or no trouble.—N. Y. Recorder.

FOND OF PERFUME.

The Effect of Lavender Water on Two Ferocious Tigers.

All of the cat tribe are fond of certain perfumes, and the ferocious tiger is equally amenable. A sister of the late Rev. J. G. Wood, the distinguished naturalist, relates of a certain visit she once paid to a traveling menagerie in company with her brother.

"No sooner," she states, "were we near the cages containing the lions and tigers than they got restless and rubbed themselves against the bars, evidently recognizing a friend in my brother. They received his caresses with much pleasure, though apparently with the expectation of something more to come.

"Upon his taking a small bottle from one pocket and some pieces of thick brown paper from another, their excitement increased. He poured a little lavender water upon the paper, and calling each animal by name, presented it upon a stick to the favored one, who, on taking it, rubbed the paper upon paws, cheeks and back, and indulged in other antics, all expressive of extreme delight.

"When two animals were in one cage, the favored possessor of the scent would lie down upon the paper and roll over and over upon it to keep it from its disappointed mate.

"The strange part of the matter was that no other scent than lavender water had any attractions for these creatures."

Princelings Who Learn Trades.

It is the rule in Austria and Germany that all the members of the imperial family, boys and girls, shall learn a trade. On account of this the queen of Spain was enabled to do a little unpremeditated act of cleverness which greatly added to her popularity with working people. Visiting the other day the famous factory of mosaics at Orio, she stopped to watch one of the workmen for a few moments and then asked him to let her finish his job. Then taking his seat she completed in the most deft and workmanlike manner the mosaic he had commenced, according to the methods she learned when a little archduchess, with no idea of becoming a queen.

A Prayer That Was Heard.

When little Ruth Cleveland was born, a little girl living in a Catskill Mountain village wrote a childish letter of congratulation to Mrs. Cleveland. She expected no reply, and none came; but last Christmas there arrived for her a pretty Bible, with the girl's name and that of Mrs. Cleveland coupled on the fly leaf. The best part of the story is that the child had been praying faithfully for some weeks for a Bible "of her own" to carry to Sunday-school, so that she firmly believes this came in answer to her prayer.

She Was Supplied.

Young Housekeeper—Have you any boneless bacon?

Butcher—Yes'm.

Young Housekeeper—Well, send me some; and some boneless liver, also. I want to have liver and bacon for breakfast.—Puck.

His Chief Study.

Coralie—What is your favorite study, Mr. Belarny?

Belarny—Your face, Miss Coralie.—

Making a Good Start.

Wife—I think we ought to begin the New Year by turning over a new leaf, don't you?

Husband—I do; and I have a suggestion to make right here.

Wife—What is that?

Husband—Begin on a new turkey. That Christmas bird is getting a little tired.—Life.

Bright Expectations.

Dudely Canesucker—We will be so happy. I will share all your joys and sorrows with you.

Esmeralda Longcoffin—But I haven't got any sorrows.

Dudely—Don't let that worry you. You will have plenty of them after we

He Yearned for the Unattainable.

Sarah Bernhardt loves to tell the following story about Ollivier, a famous French actor. The latter, it seems, possessed incredible power of mimicry. He could assume the voice, gestures and facial expression of any person he chanced to meet. One day he called on his tailor to ask him for a little more time on an account which had been running on for three years. At that moment he saw a customer enter the shop and pay for several articles of clothing, which were immediately delivered. Then the actor heaved a deep sigh of pain.

"What is the matter with you?" inquired the tailor.

"Alas!" replied Ollivier, "there is a man I shall never be able to imitate!"—Music and Drama.

A Nice, Broad Evening.

She—Did you have a pleasant evening at the Tollivers?

He—Yes. As soon as I put my right arm around Daisy's waist she put both hers around mine. Then she screamed. I let go, but she hung on. Her father came in and read the statutes referring to breach of promise—and—yes, I had a very nice time.—N. Y. Herald.

She Doesn't Play for Him Now.

"I am afraid you do not love music, Mr. Keenear," she said, as she finished a selection at the piano.

"Oh, I do," he said, eagerly.

"I thought you looked bored," she said.

"I may have looked bored," he answered, "but I love music for all that."—Boston Globe.

A QUESTION OF LAW.

"Is the owner of this dog liable for theft? or is the owner of this crab liable for assault and battery?"—Puck.

Cruel.

Ferguson (inspecting his friend's new suit)—Yes, it's immense, Hankinson. Would you mind telling me who your tailor is?

Hankinson—Certainly not. Snipwell, No. 694 Waxem street. If you want anything in his line tell him I sent you.

Ferguson—Thanks. I want something for a masquerade. I think I'll go and order—hum—one of his ordinary suits Hankinson.—Chicago Tribune.

Applying Her Belief.

They were discussing the labor question.

"I believe in shorter hours," said Mr. Linger.

"So do I," replied Miss Keedick, earnestly. "I think an hour and a half is plenty long enough for an evening call."

As the young man had been there three hours, he began to look for his hat.—Jury.

Charity.

Farmer (emerging from shadow of hen house)—Hold on, there, you old rascal! I saw you coming, an' I jest thought you wouldn't be able to go by that pullet.

'Rastus—Go by dat pullet? No, sah—reckon not, sah! I'se got some humanity in me, sah. Yo' didn't s'pose I cud see a po' chicken roost out a freezin' night laik dis, did yo'?—Judge.

A True Philanthropist.

Mr. Goodmann—You should tell our doctor to call on the washerwoman's family.

Mrs. G.—Dear me! What's the matter there?

"Influenza, I think."

"Who told you?"

DECIDEDLY CORRECT.

Teacher—Now, my boy, tell me what animals are best protected by nature from the ravages of winter?

My Boy—Those that live on the line of the equator, sir!—Puck.

All Idiots.

Mrs. Maxwell—The paper says that an Iowa state board is trying to prevent the marriage of idiots.

Mr. Maxwell (crossly)—What nonsense! If they would do that there wouldn't be any marriages.—Des Moines Argonaut.

Nothing to Complain About.

Mr. Jawkins—Mrs. Henpeck is fearfully lonesome without her husband.

Mrs. Jawkins—Humph! I don't see what fault she has to find.

Mr. Jawkins—That is precisely what makes her unhappy.—Des Moines Argonaut.

Catering to the Public.

Friend—Why do you dump all that dirt into your soap kettles?

Soap Manufacturer—If folks don't find the water dirty after washin', they think the soap is no good.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Drawback.

"There is one thing about New Year's day that I think is demoralizing," said Mr. Fullobia. "The fact that it is a legal holiday compels us all to begin the New Year by taking a day off."—Puck.

He Sleeps in Peace.

Cumso—How is your husband? Is he free from that trouble that used to keep him awake at nights?

Mrs. Nagley—I guess so. We were divorced last week.—Truth.

BLAINE STILL LINGERS

Wonderful Vitality of the Ex-Secretary.

CAUSES SURPRISE TO THE DOCTORS.

Mr. Blaine Rallied Considerably Yesterday, and Passed a Fairly Comfortable Night—He Was Conscious Nearly All the Day—To-day He Has Sank Into a Stupor—He Suffers Little Pain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. — Mr. Blaine passed a comparatively comfortable night. His vitality is so low and the stupor in which he sinks as his eyes close is so deep that the anxious watchers about his bedside can form no estimate of his real condition. A melancholy satisfaction is afforded them, however, by the doctors, who assure them that the patient is not suffering and that in his moments of consciousness he is in command of his mental faculties.

Dr. Johnston remained with the sick man throughout the night. Dr. Hyatt left about midnight with several friends of the family, and his departure from the house was unheeded. He had previously consulted with Dr. Johnston and the patient's condition seemed to warrant one of the physicians in going home for a little much-needed rest.

Mr. Joseph Manley paid another visit to the Blaine house last evening and remained more than an hour. When he left the house Mr. Manley said that he did not see Mr. Blaine, but had a talk with Mrs. Blaine, who told him that Mr. Blaine had rallied considerably, and the family were much encouraged.

He was conscious while Mr. Manley was in the house, and had been conscious during the day.

Several times the sick man had shown an inclination to converse, but he was persuaded not to talk. Mr. Manley's visit to Washington was for the express purpose of seeing his old political and personal friend.

It was clearly apparent that Mr. Blaine had surprised his physicians by his recuperative powers, and while they attached no more meaning to the improvement realized than an exhibition of physical ability to rally almost from the extreme rigor, it sufficed to convince them that there was still some store of vitality upon which the patient might draw for a time. One of the bright features too, was the ability of the patient to take nourishment and to get along without extraordinary stimulants.

LIVED TO GREAT AGE.

A Woman Dies in Vermont With 110 Years to Her Credit.

RUTLAND, Vt., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Bushey died in the town of Georgia two days ago. She was the oldest woman in Vermont, possibly in the United States, being 110 years old.

A daughter 80 years of age and a son of 75 survive her. She outlived three husbands.

At the time of her death her hair was burnished-gold color, and her skin as yellow as parchment, free from wrinkles, but tightly drawn over the face.

A Supervisor Short in His Accounts.

WESTCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The taxpayers of the town of Westchester are very much surprised over the discovery of a shortage in the accounts of ex-Supervisor Michael Rauch. The money collected by Rauch for back taxes has not been accounted for, and the accountant, who has finished his investigation, reports that Rauch has not accounted for $5,171.89, which he collected during the five years of his holding office.

Carlisle Hasn't Made Up His Mind.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Mrs. John G. Carlisle emphatically denies the published statement, purporting to be on her authority, that Senator Carlisle had made up his mind to decline the invitation of the President-elect to accept the Treasury portfolio. She said that up to Saturday night, when the Senator left Washington for Kentucky, he was still uncertain whether to accept or decline.

Dead from the Chill.

SAYVILLE, L. I., Jan. 10.—Lewis Hehn, of West Sayville, broke through the ice in Great South Bay yesterday while spearing for eels. He was unable to help himself out of the water, but by clinging to the broken ice he kept from going under until rescued by men from the shore. He had been in the water half an hour, and was so chilled that he died while being taken home.

He Failed Both in Love and in Play.

LOCKPORT, Jan. 10.—Frank Kimball, aged 20, son of Ira Kimball, a wealthy hotel keeper, attempted to commit suicide last night. He was stage-struck. His appearance with a local company was a signal failure, and this preyed on his mind. To add to his grief, his sweetheart jilted him. He took a big dose of morphine. Doctors arrived in time to save his life.

Is Cockrell Going Into the Cabinet?

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 10.—Senator Francis M. Cockrell has assurances that Cleveland will select him for Cabinet honors. Cockrell's successor in this event is likely to be Major Harvey M. Salmon, chairman of the State Democratic Campaign committee, who conducted the State campaign and insured an old-time vote for his party.

Dynamite Brought Into Play.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—A dynamite bomb was exploded in Geisenkirchen yesterday afternoon. Two small hotels were shaken so that the windows broke and plaster fell from the walls. No one was injured. The man who placed the bomb has not been caught. He is supposed to be an Anarchist emissary from the Saar district.

Too Old to Work, So Killed Himself.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—John Balmes, aged 66 years, was informed by the Cooks' Union last Saturday that he was too old to work, and yesterday he placed the muzzle of a revolver to his right eye and sent a bullet through his brain. Balmes was at one time one of the leading chefs in this city.

Four Women Trampled on by Horses.

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—Four women were trampled on by one of Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s runaway horses yesterday afternoon, which took the sidewalk in one of the most crowded parts of Washington street and caused a panic. That the women got off with only slight cuts seems little short of a miracle.

REV. E. L. CLARK'S WITHDRAWAL.

The New York Pastor's Announcement Causes a Sensation.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A sensation in the New York Presbytery overshadows the Briggs case. Rev. Edward L. Clark, pastor of the Church of the Puritans, at No. 15 West 130th street, announced yesterday that his sense of honor called upon him to resign from the ministry of the Presbyterian Church.

He read a short paper announcing his intentions and reasons, and asked that a committee be appointed to advise him as to the best way for him to give up his pastorate.

Mr. Clark in his paper announces that the action of the General Assembly of 1892, in calling upon all ministers who do not believe in the "inspired word coming to us without error" to resign their ministry, and the action of the religious press in calling upon all such ministers who have a sense of honor to obey the mandate, has been the cause of his action. He believes that there may be error in the Scriptures.

Mr. Clark has been the pastor of the Church of the Puritans for 20 years. His congregation is greatly disturbed over his action.

MAY BE THE NEXT POPE.

The Pontiff's Significant Words Regarding Cardinal Vannutelli.

ROME, Jan. 10.—A sensation has been caused here by the letter of Pope Leo to the people of Bologna, in which the Pontiff states that in nominating Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli to be Archbishop of Bologna, he had obeyed divine inspiration.

This unusual declaration on the part of the Pope is regarded as tantamount to designating Cardinal Vannutelli as his successor in the Pontificate.

The Pope is also reported to have remarked, "Vannutelli goes to Bologna a Cardinal and will return a Pope."

The letter of the Pontiff also removes perplexity which the nomination of Vannutelli to be Archbishop of Bologna had caused, some regarding it as an exile from Rome.

An Ultimatum to the Sultan.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A despatch from Tangier to the "Times" says that Great Britain has sent an ultimatum to the Sultan giving him 48 hours in which to decide whether or not he will pay indemnity for murder of a British subject by the native police recently.

BAIHAUT UNDER ARREST

The Former Minister of Public Works Imprisoned.

REVELATIONS OF CHAS. DE LESSEPS.

He Gives Up His Cipher Notes Regarding the Relations of Many Public Men With the Panama Canal Company — More Arrests Expected—Trial of the Prisoners Begins To-day.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—M. Baihaut, former Minister of Public Works, was arrested last evening and locked up in Mazas prison. The consequences of this arrest will be most important.

M. Baihaut was arrested after a long interview with Magistrate Franqueville. He has heretofore been allowed to go about under surveillance. The authorities are said to have been moved to sterner measures by the reports coupling President Carnot's name with that of M. Baihaut, the arrest being intended to prove that the government is not afraid to take action against any one.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Charles de Lesseps has given to M. Tiburce Franqueville, Examing Magistrate, a pocketbook in which he kept notes concerning the relations of the Canal company to many public men. The notes are in cipher, but M. de Lesseps has added a key with which all have been translated.

The consequent evidence is exceptionally important. It shows conclusively the connection of many Senators and Deputies with the illegal operations of the company. Two celebrated writers on economic and international questions and two ex-Ministers are said to be among those compromised.

These revelations are expected to lead to more arrests.

Although Gen. Saussier has taken all precautions to prevent street demonstrations, and the ranks in the Paris garrisons are kept full, every effort will be made to avoid anything like a public display of troops.

At the reassembly of the Chamber today fewer troops even than usual were seen in the streets.

The men have received special orders, moreover, to take exceptional pains to avoid street or saloon rows with civilians, in order that the Anarchists and Socialists may have no excuse to incite tumult and popular demonstrations against the military.

Similar instructions have been given to the police. Otherwise, both police and military are under no exceptional orders for to-day.

The parties put on trial to-day are M. Charles de Lesseps, Director of the Panama Canal Company; M. Marius Fontane, Secretary General of the company; M. Cottu, of the firm of Reinach, Kohn & Co., and M. Gustave Eiffel, the distinguished engineer.

Charles de Lesseps has caused three English directors of the Suez Canal Company to be summoned as witnesses in his behalf.

The indictment against the accused charges M. Charles de Lesseps, Fountane and Cottu with having employed fraudulent means to persuade people to believe in the existence of fallacious enterprises, and imaginary influence or credit, and persuading divers persons to remit subscriptions that would not otherwise have been given, for an issue of Panama Canal bonds made on June 26, 1888. The defendants, by the fraudulent means thus alleged, cheated and defrauded others out of all or part of their money thus subscribed.

The second section of the indictment relates to the Panama Canal loan of Dec. 12, 1888. The accused are charged with having tried to obtain subscriptions to this loan on false pretenses, their attempted swindling being only frustrated by circumstances independent of their intentions.

Thirdly, it is alleged that the accused had misappropriated or expended, with a view to prejudice the interests of the bondholders, effects and money given into their charge as trust deposits for specific purposes.

M. Gustave Eiffel is indicted as an accomplice in the alleged swindling operations, and is accused of having wilfully and knowingly received a share of the money unlawfully procured from the public, and with having wilfully and knowingly shared in the profits of the fraud.

M. Eiffel is also accused of having misappropriated funds entrusted to him for the mandatory purpose of expenditure for salaried labor.

Nothing is said in this indictment as to the bribery or corruption of public officials.

M. Cottu, it is said, persists in asserting his innocence. He asserts that Baron de Reinach never placed in the coffers of the bank the sums he was accused of having received from the Panama Company for distribution. Baron de Reinach had an account at the bank, varied between two and three million francs, but precisely at the moment the distribution of money was alleged to have been made it was diminished by one million francs.

The attempt to involve President Carnot in the scandal causes much excitement. So far as made apparent, there is not the slightest evidence of corrupt complicity in Panama swindling on the part of M. Carnot, the utmost alleged in any definite way being that he may have perfunctorily and ministerially given official sanction to a transaction on the part of other officials who were corrupt.

The enemies of the Republic have from the first been endeavoring to involve M. Carnot, believing that, by bringing about a Presidential crisis, they would strike a fatal blow at the Republic.

Besides, there are several candidates for the Presidency in the field, who would be delighted to see M. Carnot forced to resign.

MEETING OF ELECTORS.

Colleges of All the States Cast Their Votes Murphy Endorsed at Albany.

ALBANY, Jan. 1.—When Secretary of State Rice called the college to order, all the thirty-six delegates were present.

Wm. Steinway was selected President of the College.

At 12:30 o'clock, on motion of Edward A. Maher of Albany, a recess was taken for fifteen minutes in order to allow the Electors to hold an informal conference. This was carried. The electors met in conference, when a resolution was adopted indorsing Edward Murphy, Jr., for United States Senator.

On motion of Richard Croker the electors then went down stairs and paid their respects to Governor Flower. The Governor made a few brief happy remarks in response to introductions on the part of Mr. Steinway.

The electors then returned to the Senate Chamber and after the usual formalities cast the thirty-six votes for Grover Cleveland for President.

IT PRACTICALLY ENDS EMIGRATION.

The Decision of the North Atlantic Steamship Association.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—A "Star" special cable from London says:

In view of the danger from the cholera epidemic in the coming spring, the North Atlantic steamship conference, which includes the Allan, the Dominion and the Beaver lines, have instructed all their European agents to refuse to book any German emigrants for the United States or Canada, unless the would-be passengers had been removed from German territory three weeks previous to the sailing date.

This proposition will practically suspend all German, Russian and Polish emigration, as Hamburg, where the cholera has reappeared, is the port of exit. In addition, by strict orders of the conference, all British or continental emigration to the United States has also been suspended, so far as the boats of the companies composing that body are concerned.

The Scandinavian outflow, however, will be very large. The agents on the basis of advices already received believe that the present year will show the largest number of emigrants ever yet recorded.

Miss Cousins Gives Up the Fight.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Miss Phœbe Cousins, who brought suit to compel her reinstatement in the position of Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Columbian Exposition, has given up her fight. The case was first heard by Judge Blodgett in May last. Miss Cousins' attorneys failing to appear when the case was reached by Judge Grosscup, he accordingly caused the suit to be dismissed.

Quarantined Passengers Want Damages.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Alfred B. Beers and David P. Reed, who live in Connecticut, have filed libels in the United States Court against the steamship Normannia for $10,000 each, owing to their detention at Quarantine and Fire Island during cholera times. They set up a claim that they were told on embarking that there would be no steerage passengers taken.

Mr. Raines Not After a Cabinet Place.

ROCHESTER, Jan. 10.—Referring to the report that ex-Senator George Raines is a Cabinet possibility, that gentleman said: "I am not seeking and do not desire political office. I am content with the rewards of my law practice. The report from Washington has no foundation."

WRECKED BY A STREET CAR.

Billy Lee's Driver Was Careless, the Rails Were Slippery, and a Collision Resulted.

Car No. 2 of the Plainfield Street railway collided with William Lee's bottled-beer wagon on Front near Liberty street, this morning. The driver of the wagon, which was following the rails, did not heed the cries and gong-clangings of the motor-man to clear the track, and the rails were so slippery that when the motor-man shut off the current and clapped on the brakes the car still forged ahead and thumped into the rear of the wagon. The vehicle was considerably damaged, and some beer was spilled, but no one was hurt.

A PLAINFIELD FORGER

A GOOD DOCTOR'S BAD NEPHEW ARRESTED IN NEW YORK.

Frederick I. Rushmore Says He Is in the Devil's Clutches, and Warns a Plainfield Friend Not to Follow in His Footsteps—He Forged His Park Avenue Uncle's Name, and Got the Bogus Checks Cashed on False Letters of Introduction—He Blames Rum and Women for His Downfall—Thinks His Family Will Save Him.

Frederick I. Rushmore was arrested by the Eldridge street police in New York yesterday for obtaining jewelry and money from I. Lewkowitz of 200 Pearl street on a forged check and a forged letter of introduction.

A letter in his pocket told a friend that he had gone into the business extensively and expected to land in Sing Sing.

Rushmore said he was a nephew of Dr. Edward Rushmore of Plainfield, N. J. He says he has been cashing forged checks in several cities around New York.

Investigation showed that he had got a number of checks cashed, at small Long Island towns. In his pockets were five others. They were all made to Rushmore's order, and purported to be signed by his uncle, Edward Rushmore.

Rushmore said that from July to September of last year he had been employed as a messenger for the Long Island Express company.

While in Great Neck, L. I., he made the acquaintance of a young woman to whom he became engaged to be married, but when he left Great Neck he forgot his sweetheart. In Brooklyn, however, he found another one.

To her he gave the ring and locket that he had obtained from jeweler Lewkowitz.

Rushmore was remanded for trial this morning by Justice Hogan at the Essex Market Police court.

Young Rushmore appeared in court this morning dressed in the height of fashion. He is tall athletic looking man, with a sandy mustache and dark brown hair. He gave his age as 22 years, although he looks much older.

"Well," he said, "I suppose the birds have come home to roost, and the jig is up with me. I have been a high roller in my time, and rum and women have been the cause of all my trouble, but my arrest was just what I expected it would all result in.

"My family live in Plainfield, where I was born and raised. My father has been dead for some time, but my uncle, Dr. Edward Rushmore, is a well-known physician there.

"I used to work for the Long Island Express company, but was fired from that place for missing my train on Dec. 27 last. I'll get out of this trouble as I have an income of $800 a year, and as soon as my mother hears of it she will advance me the money, although I have led a reckless life.

"I enlisted in the army once, and was stationed at Newport for a long time, but soon got tired of that and bought my way out. I have brothers at Swathmore College in Pennsylvania, and I was also educated there."

While in Brooklyn Rushmore lived at the Clarendon Hotel, and, it is said, made many acquaintances among very prominent persons there with whom he was a great favorite.

Jeweler Lewkowitz said he would not press the charges against Rushmore if he settled with him. Rushmore said he intended to notify his family at once, and expected to receive a remittance.

The letter found in Rushmore possession addressed to a friend of his in Plainfield said:

" * * * I am playing a very precarious game, but it is for big stakes and I must not let my nerve fail me, though it has almost done so once or twice. I have got my hand in quite nicely now, and the only fault I have to find with the d——d business is that it will shove me higher than a kite if I am corralled, but while there is life there is hope, and I do not despair. If I could only make a good haul I would be all right. * * * Take my advice and stay clear of the devil. For God's sake, do n't drop in his clutches as easily as I have "

Capt. Cross refused to tell to whom the foregoing letter is addressed, but after reading it, Capt. Cross questioned Rushmore closely. After standing the investigation for a few minutes, Rushmore broke down and made a confession of his guilt.

His mother lives in Plainfield, N. J. Edward Rushmore, whose name appeared on the forged checks, is his uncle, the Park avenue doctor. Rushmore's story is that he visited his mother on Dec. 27 last. On that day the thought first came to him to lead a life of crime.

He knew his uncle kept an account in the City National bank of Plainfield, and he called there and told him he was going to open an account at the bank himself. He thus secured the blanks which he used.

SHE GETS $250,000.

Mrs. Alice A. Schell Wins Under the Will of Richard T. Clarke—Her Tears Driven Away—The Old Man's Kisses and Terms of Endearment Were Only Platonic, His "Good Friend" Said.

Mrs. Alice A. Schell won yesterday in her claim, under a will, before Surrogate Ransom, to $250,000, left her by Richard T. Clarke when he died at Hotel Albion, this city. Others who demanded the old man's property were two cousins of his, to each of whom he left $1. They declared that their kinsman, who was 82 years old at the time his last will was made, was of weak mind then, and that Mrs. Schell had unduly influenced him to execute the will in favor of her and her relatives.

The testator had kept the Franklin Coffee House, a once popular downtown restaurant, in Malden lane. There he made the great bulk of his money. He retired from business soon after the close of the civil war. He was never married, and for seven years he lived at the St. Nicholas Hotel, where he was visited almost daily by Mrs. Schell, who, during part of that time, also lived at the hotel. In May of last year, the two moved to Plainfield, where Mr. Clarke died, after a short illness.

PLATONIC KISSES.

Mrs. Schell testified in the Surrogate's Court, that she was not in any way related to the old man, and that she had no claim upon his generosity further than that of a good friend. Mr. Clarke's kisses and terms of endearment, which she had enjoyed, she declared were given in a strictly Platonic way.

The contest was resumed yesterday morning when lawyer William J. Mitchell, who drew the will, was recalled to the witness-stand. He testified that he had no interest in the property owned by the old man, and that he drew the will from a memorandum supplied by Clarke and Mrs. Schell. Counselor McClure, who conducted the case for the contestants, thought he had scored a point in obtaining this admission. He asked Mitchell to tell him when Mrs. Schell first informed him that she was drawing rents from certain property, and he explained to the court that his object was to show that Mrs. Schell had endeavored to conceal the real value of the estate, so that her share should appear less.

Mrs. Schell, who was seated in the body of the court, jumped to her feet at this announcement and exclaimed: "I think I can explain that"——

Surrogate Ransom interrupted her by saying: "Sit down, madam. You are not on the stand."

Lawyer McClure offered in evidence a large number of documents found among the papers of the testator in his former office at 11 Gold street. One of these was dated No. 23, 1887, and it showed that Clarke had at that time in his possession $74,669.73 which belonged to the estate of his deceased sister, and which lawyer McClure contended should be deducted from his estate, and given to the cousins. Other papers put in evidence showed that Clarke had made presents from time to time to Mary A. Devine, Mrs. Schell, her daughter, and others of the family in sums ranging from $3,000 down to $500. The will of Mary A. House, which appointed Richard J. Clarke residuary legatee, was read and put in evidence.

IN THE WOMAN'S FAVOR.

When the testimony was all in the Surrogate asked the lawyers if they desired to sum up. Both ex-Surrogate Rollins and Col. McClure answered "No", and Surrogate Ransom then delivered his decision. He said: "The surrogate must be satisfied that the paper in dispute was executed by a person having proper mental capacity; that it was a free act, and that there was no improper or undue influence. The testimony in this case satisfies me that the paper was executed according to the formalities of the law, and that there was no undue influence. The defendants are entitled to probate the will."

Mrs. Schell, who had the impression that the decision was going to be against her, was in tears a moment before the Surrogate began to speak. Immediately afterward, however, she dried her eyes, and her face became radiant with smiles. Both she and her daughter were surrounded by their friends, who showered congratulations upon them. The Surrogate's decision was pronounced a great victory for Mrs. Schell.

George B. Clarke, of 165 Tompkins avenue, Brooklyn, one of the contestants, left the court, with disgust depicted on his face.

Good News If So.

In connection with the railroad matters already referred to in these columns, the following is handed to THE PRESS for publication:

"It is understood among commuters and the traveling public in and around Plainfield that there is to be a petition started very soon requesting the Pennsylvania Railroad company to run a branch from New Brunswick, through Plainfield north of Fanwood, and connect with the main line at Emmet street, Newark, thus giving us a direct line to Newark, Jersey City and New York that will avoid Newark passengers changing at Elizabeth and also avoid commuters the mortification of being a half hour late in their various offices, having had to go back by way of Newark because there was a mud-scow in the bay. This also will make a great real-estate boom along the proposed new route."

PLEASANT REMINISCENCES.

[For The Press and Constitutionalist.]

MY DEAR FRIEND:—I read with pleasure your account in THE PRESS of our trip recently to Morristown, Tennessee, but I think you were a little modest about your own reception by the good people there. Don't you remember how they introduced you to friends? Was it not this way: "Mr. So-and-so, this is Billy Force, not the Force Bill!" And you know with what enthusiasm it was received, and how the title stuck to you until our departure for home. Don't you remember, too, how that "lunch" leaked in Billy Killdee's pocket, and how you told him always to follow the example of the illustrious Grover by "telling the truth"? Don't you remember that hunt in the rain on the Holstein river, when you appeared tired and wet at the ferry with some ten pounds of clay sticking to your shoes? Oh! how you sighed when you got in that good spring wagon. Don't you remember those tall ten-rail worm fences? Eh! What did you say when good dogs on a point in an adjoining stubble-field and a wire fence of six strands between you and the dogs, and Ithe Bob Taylor, who had scaled the fence, asking you in his cool manner—"Come Billy, ain't you coming over to kill a bird?" Don't you remember those tall corn stalks (15 feet high) through which you had to shoot the whirling quail; and the frozen ploughed ground you had to walk over? Don't you remember the poor shots you made and the beautiful double ones?

Do n't you remember how you made a wager with Joe Hill that you would go to the Gazette composing rooms with him and set up a notice in type although you had not handled a "stick" in fifteen years? How you both proceeded to do so, and how the item set up by yourself appeared in the next issue of the Gazette? Here it is:

Messrs. W. L. Force and Elisha Shepherd, of Plainfield, N. J., are visiting our town on a hunting trip. They are having good luck and killing lots of quail. They express themselves as highly pleased with their reception among our people, especially with Cols. Tom and Jim Cain, Bob Taylor, Joe Hill and John Michaels; also with the genial proprietor of the Cain house, Col. M. C. Thurman.

Don't you remember how poorly "Ben" acted one night, and how our bunch of quail disappeared to satisfy the maws of some of the colored brethren on Christmas Day, because they found them and we did not? Don't you remember that pleasant gathering at Col. Tom Cain's mansion on that day? You ought to, for you said that was your birthday. It was a pleasant occasion.

Don't you remember the little minister who asked us to come to his church where there was a "choir of pretty young ladies who sang like angels"? Don't you remember the "Tennessee grouse" we shot for our Republican friends, and how mine was appreciated by my friend to whom I gave it? Don't you remember that long dreary wait for a belated train at Leadville station, and the motley crowd who were trying to keep the stove warm there, in the little 12x15 station? Do you believe the people of that section are left-handed, or why is it that they invariably turn out to the left when you meet them? How you wished that "Dutchy" and "Tee Kay" were along so that the natives could have an exhibition of their powers of mimicry! How about that thermometer which you said registered zero? I say it was tied down.

Why don't you tell our friends of these little things? Ah! I guess you don't want to tell of my mishaps and bad shooting, and so, to screen me, say nothing about either of us. Well, you "told the truth" anyhow in your little article in THE PRESS. May we both live to visit Morristown, Tennessee, again, is the wish of

Your friend,

'LISH.

RUTGERS MEN STORM BOUND BROOK

And Narrowly Escape Being Lodged in Jail Over Sunday.

Saturday afternoon, about fifteen Rutgers College students drove to Bound Brook in a big bobsled and attempted to take possession of the village and cover the snowy landscape with a crimson mantle. They made known their arrival to the village by shouts and yells as they drove through the main street. They were all dressed in the garb now affected by college men, that of long ulsters and Alpine hats. Going first into Watte's meat market, they angered Mr. Watte by foolish questions and petty remarks; from there they went to Cawley's restaurant, where the odor of "pale extra" was sufficient to excite their minute brains to such an extent that they became quite obstreperous. After talking and yelling in a most disorderly manner without buying anything, they finally began throwing articles about the place. Although mine host Cawley is a quiet and fun-loving man, he became angered at their actions, and ordered them out. They refused to go, and Mr. Cawley sent for officers Sebring and Taylor. On the arrival of the officers, the students became most lamb-like in their manner, and said they were just going home and asked the officers to let them off. The officers were inclined for a time to make an example of the boys and take them to the Somerville jail, but finally let them go on their promising never to visit the town again. They left in a jiffy. None of their names could be learned.

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of fifty years among a discriminating people like Americans, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. The value of a medicine is best proved by its continued use from year to year by the same persons and families, as well as by a steady increasing sale. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the introduction and progress of BRANDETH'S PILLS, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conceded to be the safest and most effective purgative and blood purifier introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit, and that BRANDETH'S PILLS actually perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

BRANDETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

ITS CLAIM IS A FALSE ONE.

The Ring Organ Was Censured for Trying to Create a Cholera Scare in Plainfield, Not for Any Public-Spirited Action.

The Courier said last Saturday night: "Both mayors uphold THE COURIER. The fight which this newspaper began last summer against the condition of Green Brook taken up by Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Saunders. Will The Press dare to accuse these officials of attempting to injure the town because they call public attention to a pest breeding stream? That's what it did when THE COURIER directed public attention to this matter last summer. The messages of the mayors a complete vindication of THE COURIER'S interest in the health and welfare of the city."

The Courier falsifies when it states that THE PRESS ever criticized it for objecting to sewers emptying into Green brook. THE PRESS has been fighting that same nuisance so long that it welcomes all allies. What THE PRESS did censure the Courier for was its effort to get up a cholera scare in this city in the midst of the excitement about the plague. The Courier was spreading broadcast the claim that the sanitary condition of Plainfield was so bad as to invite the scourge, and thus the fair name of the city was being tarnished abroad, while timid and nervous people were being frightened at home.

If it was a fact that the sanitary condition of Plainfield was bad, it was indiscreet to complain at such a time except in private to the proper authorities. If the danger of cholera was not as the Courier told, then its great outcry was vicious and criminal. In either event, the discredit was to the Courier.

THE PRESS endeavored at the time to allay excitement and fear. It was an occasion for calm reasoning, not livid sensationalism. And THE PRESS said "The health and municipal authorities can be trusted to handle safely and wisely whatever outbreak may occur or whatever problems may arise, without the Courier's assistance." Developments have proved that the confidence of THE PRESS was not misplaced. The Courier's scare was found to be but a mere bugaboo, and the sanitary problem is being admirably and actively investigated by the city and borough officials.

As for the North avenue sewer, that has always had the opposition of this paper, which, bitterly fought, for instance, the notorious Elkwood connection with it. THE PRESS was a pioneer in the crusade against Green brook contamination, and has always been at the fore in the effort to secure a model general sewerage system for the city. But it is satisfied and has always been satisfied that the authorities realize the needs of the day, and that they are zealously and with all due expedition working to secure the best results.

How F. M. Hulett's Brother Died.

Details have just been received concerning the sudden death of D. W. Hulett, brother of F. M. Hulett of this city, at Gloversville, N. Y. It transpires that Mr. Hulett stopped at his office late at night after attending an entertainment and eating a very hearty supper. He lay down on a couch to rest, and fell asleep. There was a very small leakage of illuminating gas in the room, from a burner which had been burning low and whose flame a draught from the opening of the door had probably extinguished. The physicians say that to a man in normal circumstances this need not have been fatal, but to Mr. Hulett in the overloaded condition of his stomach it was overpowering, and he was found dead in the morning.

F. M. Hulett is staying in Gloversville to look after the business interests of the estate for the widow. The deceased was a very large glove manufacturer, and had contracted for an exclusive exhibition of that industry at the World's Fair.

Don't Leave Your Horse Untied.

At 11:30 this morning a horse attached to a sleigh owned by Mr. Baldwin and left standing in front of Coriell's market took fright and ran down Front street at a lively gait. But for the pluck of Wm. Giddis the horse would have ran into J. A. Smith's grocery store. No damage was done. In this blustering weather it is not only bad practice but very dangerous to leave horses standing untied. Drivers and owners should remember this.

Muldowney's Jury Disagree.

Trial was reached yesterday afternoon, before judge Coddington and a jury, in the case of James Muldowney, accused of selling liquor illegally. The jury were out about three hours, from 4 to 7, and were discharged because they could not reach a verdict. It is understood that 9 were for acquittal and 3 for conviction.

At the Crescent To-Night.

The complimentary party tendered to "couples" at the Crescent rink to-night should prove a popular event. Gentlemen wishing to take a lady can obtain an invitation by looking in another column of THE PRESS and cutting the ticket therefrom. Some of the carnival prizes are now on exhibition.

A Way They Have at Vassar.

Not all the Vassar students are wealthy. Some of them work their way through college, and one has recently started a dye shop in her room, which brings in a neat little sum every week. She uses diamond dyes for all her work, and says they are easy to use, and make beautiful colors that never crock or fade.

The innumerable testimonials in the possession of its proprietors show the good work Salvation Oil is doing. 25c.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 8-16-y

WITHDRAWS FROM THE COMBINE.

The Jersey Central Asks for Permission to Prove the Fact.

TRENTON, Jan. 10.—It is stated that the Central Railroad of New Jersey has withdrawn from the Reading combine and has asked the Chancellor to be allowed to prove the fact.

The decree of the Chancellor of New Jersey, directing the officers and directors of the latter company to again take charge of their property, pending litigation as to the legality of the lease, is referred to.

The report says the Philadelphia & Reading is by this decree relieved of all responsibility for the operations of the Central, and that the details of the operations of the Central properties by the Port Reading do not in any way affect or bear upon the operations of this company.

On the subject of having secured a controlling interest in the Poughkeepsie bridge system, now operated under the title of the Philadelphia & Reading & New England railroad, the report says that the new company is already earning more than the charges guaranteed by this company, and it is expected that the traffic will be greatly increased.

Speaking further on the Central Railroad of New Jersey lease, the report says that the continuance of the delivery of coal to the coal and iron company by the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre company was considered by some as a disobedience of the court's orders, and it was, therefore, deemed wise and prudent to cancel this latter contract.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Attorney-General Stockton, of New Jersey, who is conducting the suit against the Central Railroad of New Jersey and other railroads entering into the combine, when asked as to the truth of the report that the Central Railroad of New Jersey has withdrawn from the coal combine and had applied to Chancellor Abbott to be permitted to make proof of the facts in the pending suits, said: "My information is to that effect.

What effect this action will have on the pending suits against the Central railroad, the Attorney-General said, "will depend upon the character of the proof submitted to the Chancellor. If he is satisfied that the lease and the trifling agreement in reference to the coal lines has been annulled and that no agreement now exists the effect of which is to raise the price of coal by combination, the object sought by the bringing of these suits will then have been accomplished."

The net profit in operating the coal and iron company for the year was $24,339.40, leaving a surplus of $3,181,485.52 over first charges of both companies.

Miss Eades Not the Agent of Bishops.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Bishop McQuaid, who was shown the published statements about Miss Eades being the agent in Rome of all the Bishops in the New York province, denounced it as an unqualified calumny. He also said: "To my certain knowledge she is not the agent of a single Bishop in the New York province, and, although an esteemed friend of nearly 40 years, it so happens that for close upon three years I have not received any communication from her, nor have I written a word to her or communicated with her."

Miss Morton's Debut.

The Assistant Postmaster's Escapade.

Assistant postmaster Frank A. Pope's fast horse struck his heels against the cutter while being driven under the Park avenue bridge this afternoon at 2, and, taking fright, galloped down the thoroughfare at terrific speed. Expert horseman Frank A. himself had the reins, however, and by superb strength and skill gained control of the spirited animal and saved himself from threatened wreck.

A SENSATION.

A Nine Days' Wonder in a Small Town.

Facts and Details From Our Own Correspondent.

Surprised Many But Does Not Surprise Us.

Mansfield, Ohio, is not a large place, but it has certainly experienced a great sensation.

The people are not done talking about it yet, and indeed it will furnish the subject for conversation for a long time to come, as well as food for thought.

Our correspondent, C. C. Coulter, who is a prominent and influential citizen of Mansfield and agent of the Rockford (Ill.) Silver Plate Co., has furnished us with the facts and details, which we are positive will prove most interesting to our readers.

"I have a brother, Harry E. Coulter, 21 years of age," writes Mr. Coulter, "who has never done a day's work in his life; never ran ten rods in his life—indeed could not even walk fast.

"Heart disease was his trouble. Last fall he got the grip and went down, down, down.

"Two of our best physicians treated him.

"His tongue was coated badly, had backache, urine high colored, brick dust sediment—worst I ever saw.

"His stomach was almost as hard as a board, in fact, we gave up all hopes of his life.

"He quit the doctors and commenced using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and nothing else, and the third day was better. He is now better than he ever was in his life, can run and do violent exercise and not suffer in the least.

HARRY E. COULTER.

"He says he never felt better in his life in fact, this wonderful medicine, he tells me, saved his life.

"He coaxed me to take this remedy, and I was troubled something as he had been, only my heart is all right. I had been doctoring since last fall to clear up my system, but without beneficial results. I have now only used two bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and feel like a new man. In fact, I am well, and I write this because I feel so grateful to the remedy for saving my brother's life and my health.

"This is the greatest medicine I ever heard of, and I am sure that if you knew my brother's condition before he commenced the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the cure would much surprise you."

We do not wonder that this remarkable restoration to health is looked upon as almost a miracle in Mansfield, where, perhaps, the marvellous virtues of this remedy were until now not known, but the cure does not surprise us in the least, for it is something which is taking place constantly in our vicinity, no day, scarcely an hour, in fact, passing in which we do not learn of it curing some one who has been suffering from nervous weakness, blood disorder, kidney or liver complaints, insomnia, malaria or stomach trouble. It is a fact that this wonderful medicine cures the sick, and it is perfectly harmless to use, being purely vegetable. Druggists keep it for $1.

It is the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th st., New York, the famous specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, who has the largest practice among the sick of any physician in the United States, and who can be consulted free personally or by letter.

Fishing and Religion.

Parson—I have heard, Mr. Pettijohn, that you would like to attend my church, but cannot afford to pay anything for a pew?

Pettijohn—Yes, sir; my expenses are large and my income is small.

Parson—But your wife tells me that it costs you a dollar and a half to go fishing every Sunday.

Pettijohn—Well, that's all she knows about it. It costs me at least two dollars.—Jury.

The Day the Ghost Walks.

She (gushingly)—There are days when we seem more in unison with nature than at other times; when our hearts seem to beat in accord with the sublime harmony of the universe. Have you never noticed?

He—Indeed I have. It is always that way with me on pay day.—N. Y. Herald.

Didn't Need Stretching.

"I think I'll get out and stretch my legs a little," said a tall man as the train stopped at a station.

"Oh, don't," said a passenger who had been much embarrassed by the legs of his tall companion; "don't do that. They are too long already."—Demorest's Magazine.

Easily Cured.

Father—My son seems to be about as smart as other young men, but he no sooner gets settled in a position than he tires of it and resigns. He lacks staying powers.

Friend—Oh, that's easily cured. Get him a political office.—Good News.

More Tender Than Her Heart.

Cora—What did Jessie say when Tom threw himself at her feet?

Dora—"Oh, murder! that's my favorite corn!"—Demorest's Magazine.

One Good Eye.

Lawyer—Are you sure, sir, that the moon was shining at the time? Remember, you are on oath.

Witness—Yes, sir, I am perfectly sure the moon was shining at the time.

"Very good. Now tell the jury if you have not been for years troubled with defective vision."

"Gentlemen of the jury, I have been blind in one eye for many years, but I can see well enough with the other to read with perfect ease this promissory note for sixty-four dollars and seventy-five cents which I hold in my hand. It was given me sixteen years ago by that lawyer there, and I can see the back of it well enough to be perfectly sure that there isn't an indorsement to the extent of a single cent. Yes, sir, I'm entirely willing to stand aside if that's all you want to know."—Chicago Tribune.

Another Swindle.

Farmer Hayseed—No, I don't want any more labor savin' machines. I've tried enough of 'em. Look in there. That's a type-writin' machine my wife spent all her egg money to get for me, 'cause I ain't very handy with th' pen. Just look at th' tarnal swindle.

Agent—What's the matter with it?

Farmer Hayseed—Matter? Why you can't even write y'r name with the tarnal thing unless you know how to play a church organ.—N. Y. Weekly.

Valuables.

Witherby—That's a nice little safe you have for your home, old man. I suppose that is for your wife's use?

Plankington—Not much. She hasn't even the combination.

Witherby—You must keep something very valuable in it, not even to let your wife know the combination of it.

Plankington—You bet I do. I keep all my collar-buttons and shoestrings in that safe.—Judge.

Making Sure of His Pay.

Liveryman—I'm afraid, sir, I must ask you to pay in advance for the hire of the horse.

Amateur Rider—What's that for? Are you afraid that I shall come back without the horse?

Liveryman—Oh, no, sir! But the horse might come back without you.—Boston Globe.

Big Enough for Him.

Very Stout Old Lady (watching the lions feed)—'Pears to me, mister, that ain't a very big piece o' meat for such an animal.

Attendant (with the greatest show of politeness)—I s'pose it does seem like a small piece of meat to you, ma'am but it's big enough for the lion.

Oh, Those Razors Pull.

Barber (impatiently)—Well, if you can't calm yourself I can't shave you, for I am just about as nervous as I can be.

Customer—What's the matter?

Barber—Why, I've got to be shaved by one of my men myself this after noon.—Des Moines Argonaut.

A Great Many More.

"I handle more letters in a day than you do," said a man to one of Uncle Sam's postal employes.

"Indeed, what post office do you work in?"

"Don't work in a post office at all I'm a type-setter."—Truth.

Out of Touch.

"I saw you talking with young Simpson just now."

"Yes. It was a touching interview."

"Why so?"

"Oh, he touched me for a ten."—Chicago Mail.

Charles—Why will you not elope with me, darling?

Ellen—I would, dearest, but that odious Mrs. Nuwed I gave a ten-dollar cake dish to when she was married owes me a wedding present and I'm not going to let her get off so easy.—Chicago News Record.

Just the Same.

"Well, Carter, been punished at school lately?" asked his aunt.

"Oh, no, ma'am," replied Carter; "the teacher sends a note to papa, and he attends to it at home."—Harper's Young People.

Capital Punishment.

Bride (throwing her arms about the bridegroom's neck)—You are my prisoner for life!

Acute Hearing.

"John," said his mother, severely, "I hear you were very naughty in school, this morning, and disturbed every one by making a noise."

"Yes'm," answered John; "but I didn't know I made loud enough noise for you to hear."—Harper's Young People.

BLACKWELL'S BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO.

SO SAY WE ALL OF US.

"I'm an old smoker, and have at one time or another tried all the different Smoking Tobaccos, but for a good smoke Bull Durham beats 'em all.

EDWARD J. MURPHY.

The Man Who Wants to Succeed Mr. Hiscock in the Senate.

Edward J. Murphy, Jr., is a resident of Troy, N. Y., and has represented his state in both the senate and legislature. As chairman of the democratic state committee he had charge of Senator Hill's campaign, and issued the call for the famous February "snap" convention, the outcome of which was the opposition convention by the friends of Mr. Cleveland, which, it will be remembered, was held in Syracuse.

At the beginning of the campaign it was due largely to Mr. Murphy's efforts that the state committee went over to the side of Cleveland, and he had no more enthusiastic supporters than the state chairman and his friends.

It is understood that Mr. Murphy has the support of President-elect Cleveland for admission into the United States senate. It is known that he is the choice of Senator Hill, and his election to the place now held by Senator Hiscock is certain.

There is some talk of Carl Schurz for the place, but as he has the support only of the so-called "anti-snappers," and as these have absolutely no strength in the legislature, it is pretty generally conceded that Mr. Murphy will be named.

He is a young man, not much over forty, and one of the most popular politicians in the state. He, together with Sheehan and Croker, form the most powerful trio the state of New York has known.

Capital and Labor.

A Chicago employer of labor, when questioned by a member of the special senate committee, which is now investigating the Pinkerton system, made the remark that "the employer owes more to his employes than the mere wages he pays them. They should be treated with justice and consideration." This gentleman, writes G. W. Weippiert in the Chicago Graphic, takes a correct view of the most important problem which confronts the world to-day. The mere payment of wages is considered by many employers the sole duty they owe to them who give them their best years and work. They do not recognize the fact that millionaire and pauper are dependent upon each other when it comes to the preservation of mutual rights and national liberty. Labor troubles will demoralize the industries of the United States until sentiment—or justice and consideration—governs the relation between capital and labor

Remark by a New York Man.

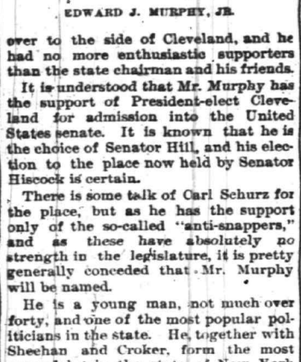
"Terra-cotta and white, divided into three parts—let me see—what was it old Cæsar said? 'Gallia om—omnis in'—how does that go, anyhow?—'in' partes tres divisa est.'"

"What did he mean?"

"All Gaul is divided in three parts."

"All gall! That's good enough for Chicago!"—Chicago Tribune.

FASHIONS FOR WINTER.



"Doesn't it seem to you, Moses, that these sleeves are too long?"

"Mein gootness, friend! dot vas de latest style! Vinter vas coming on, und de great secret of comfort vas in keeping your wrists warm!"—Jury.

MURPHY'S NOMINATION

But Five Votes Against Him in the Caucus.

NEW JERSEY LAWMAKERS ORGANIZE

Gov. Abbett's Message—The State Congratulated on Its Financial Condition—The Suits Against the Reading System—Proclamation Against Corporations.

ALBANY, Jan. 11.—The Assembly Chamber was filled with Democrats of high and low degree from all quarters of the State when the Democratic members of the Senate and Assembly met in joint caucus to fix upon a candidate to succeed United States Senator Frank Hiscock.

At 8:11 p. m., Senator Plunkitt, chairman of the Senate Caucus committee, called the caucus to order, and Speaker Sulzer moved that Senator Parker act as chairman of the caucus.

As soon as Senator Parker took the chair Senator Cantor moved that Senator Bloodgood and Assemblyman Ryder act as secretaries. Carried.

The calling of the roll showed all the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen to be present, with the exception of Senator Hagan and Assemblyman Cooney.

Senator Cantor then rose and congratulated the members of the caucus on being in a position to elect a Democratic Senator, and formally presented the name of the Hon. Edward Murphy, jr., of Troy, for the Senatorial nomination.

At the mention of Mr. Murphy's name the large audience began clapping, but this soon gave way to cheering, which was kept up for several minutes.

At this point Mr. Hagan entered the Chamber. Mr. Cooney's absence was caused by illness.

Assemblyman William Kernan of the First Renssalaer District seconded the nomination.

Senator McClelland then made his protest in the course of which he said:

"The people of the United States in no uncertain sound declared at the last general election in favor of Grover Cleveland and Grover Cleveland's policy, and I believe the man to be selected as Senator from this State should be competent to aid and maintain him in carrying out the policies of which he is the especial champion. When I have an opportunity I shall cast my vote for Hon. W. Bourke Cockran, who, I believe is the choice of seven-tenths of the Democracy of the State of York. I say now and I say it with emphasis that if the representatives of the people had been allowed to come here without pressure that their choice would have been the gentleman whom I have named."

Senator Brown was then recognized by the chair. He said that he yielded to no man in his gratification at the success of the Democracy, and continued:

"I am in full accord with my associate fellow-Senator and Democrat, Mr. McClellan. I have no animosities or asperities to express against any man, much less a Democrat. I endorse the nomination of Mr. Cockran."

Assemblyman O'Sullivan spoke in favor of Mr. Murphy.

Senator Cantor then read the following telegram dated Washington, Jan. 10:

TO WM. F. SHEEHAN—If my name is mentioned in the caucus I beg you to say that I am not a candidate for the office of Senator, and nobody has authority to present my name.

W. BOURKE COCKRAN.

On motion of Mr. O'Sullivan the roll was called, and each member rose in his seat and named his choice for Senator.

Of the Senators, 22 voted for Edward Murphy, jr., and two—McClelland and Brown—for W. Bourke Cockran.

Of the Assemblymen, 63 named Mr. Murphy, and 3 W. Bourke Cockran.

Three dissenting were Frazier of the First Westchester District, Kemper of the Seventh New York District and Searing of the Second Queens District.

Total—Edward Murphy, jr., 85; W. Bourke Cockran, 5.

Senator Parker announced that Mr. Murphy was the nomines of the caucus.

There were present in the Speaker's room during the session of the cancus, Richard Croker, Corporation Counsel Clark, Police Commissioners Martin and Sheehan, and Subway Commissioner Ridgeway, of New York; John D. Kernan, of Utica, and Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan.

On the announcement of the vote Senator Brown immediately moved an adjournment, which was ordered without making the nomination of Mr. Murphy unanimous, which is usual.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

Organization Effected Last Evening—The Governor's Message.

TRENTON, Jan. 11.—The organization of the Legislature was attended by the usual scenes. The officers chosen in the Democratic caucuses were duly elected. Thos. Flynn, the Speaker of the House said in his speech of thanks for the honor conferred upon him that he appreciated the great responsibility and would so conduct the business of the House as to merit the approval of all the people in the State.

All the successful candidates then assumed their positions and the machinery for legislation being in order the introduction of business began.

Before adjournment Speaker Flynn named the following members of the House to serve on joint committee to arrange for the inauguration of Governor-elect Werts: Messrs. Wright, Packer, O'Brien, Parker and Boeblin.

In the Senate the credentials of new Senators were presented after temporary organization and they were all sworn in, including Mr. Hoffman of Atlantic, whose seat is contested by Mr. Riddle.

Senator Barrett of Essex filed a protest against this action. President Adrian appointed a special committed to consider the case consisting of Messrs. Daly, Miller and Smith. The inauguration ceremonies will take place in Taylor's Opera house next Tuesday at noon.

Both houses adjourned until next Monday night after the introduction of several bills.

Gov. Abbett's Message.

The Governor congratulates the Legislature upon the financial condition of the State. It has no floating debt, and the balance in the Treasury has increased by $217,532.19. The large resources of the State are due in part to its liberal policy toward corporations.

The Governor reviewed at length the educational and charitable institutions of the State. Entering upon the subject of quarantine measures, he recalled the protest made by him to the President against the use of Sandy Hook as a quarantine station.

Gov. Abbett stated that ample preparations were being made to represent the State and its administrative departments at the Columbian Exposition.

He reviewed at length the railroad litigation in the suits brought against the Reading system and in conclusion says:

"The final decision of these suits by the courts will establish the law upon the most important questions that can arise between the citizens of New Jersey and the corporations of this and other States. If the courts hold that they are powerless, under the law as it stands, it will be the duty of the Legislature to pass whatever laws may be necessary to protect our citizens. In the opinion of the Attorney-General the courts now have all the power necessary for this purpose.

Everything that can possibly be done by the Executive or the Attorney-General has been done to protect the rights of the State and of the people, in view of the great work and labor involved in these suits, they have been advanced to their present status with unexemplified celerity.

The Governor devoted considerable space to show what had been accomplished for the interests of labor and the relief of employes, by the passage of State laws and the appointment of special officers and commissions.

The Governor's Proclamation.

The proclamation issued by Gov. Abbett relative to corporations simply declares invalid the charters of a number of concerns which never had an existence except upon paper and a few which are already dead.

They have paid no taxes to the State in two years, and biennially a similar edict is issued.

This action by the Governor emphasizes the complaints against the loose laws on incorporation in this State. Most of those obtaining charters are wildcat corporations whose only purpose is to unload stock on unsuspecting investors. Fully 2,000 bogus companies have been incorporated in New Jersey during the past five years.

BOSTON'S BIG BLAZE.

A Reporter Killed and Twelve People Hurt—Loss, $1,650,000.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—The largest and most exciting fire the city has known since Thanksgiving Day, 1889, started soon after 8 o'clock yesterday in the basement of the four-story building 219 to 221 Federal street, owned by Hecht Bros., wool dealers, who occupied the greater portion of the premises. The fire burned over some 25,000 feet of land and involved a loss estimated at nearly $1,650,000.

The cause of the fire has not yet been definitely ascertained, although spontaneous combustion is the theory accepted by many.

The oily nature of the fuel caused the flames to spread rapidly and before they had been conquered four fine blocks on Federal and Summer streets were in ruins and their contents, largely wool, were consumed.

Nine firemen were injured besides three spectators, but the saddest accident of all connected with the fire was the killing of Joseph F. Parker, a "Transcript" reporter, who was crushed by a falling wall of Hecht Bros. building.

A Missing Postmaster Returns.

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 11.—Postmaster Benjamin McGrew, who caused considerable comment in this city by suddenly disappearing, has returned to his office. He was accompanied by his father, who is a well-known Washington lawyer, and by a deputy postoffice inspector. The bondsmen of McGrew expressed surprise that he should leave town because there was a small shortage in his accounts, which will be speedily straightened out.

One Son Killed, the Other Badly Hurt.

HARTFORD, Jan. 11.—A special from Colorado Springs says: While out riding last night James A. and Norman Clark were thrown from their carriage, the horses becoming unmanageable at the sight of a street car. James died in a short time, and his brother is in a critical condition. The young men are the sons of Millionaire Clark, the thread manufacturer.

To Prevent War on Union Men.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In the House Mr. Miller (Pop., Wis.) offered a preamble and resolution reciting the report that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is discharging men because they are members of the labor union, and authorizing the Committe on Labor to inquire whether there is any remedy to prevent this outrage upon people who are obliged to labor.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Andrew George MacRae, who, on December 24, was convicted of the murder of his mistress Annie Pritchard, was yesterday executed at Northampton. The hanging was private, but the Governor of the jail states that there was not a hitch in the proceedings. MacRae made no confession.

To Refund Interest on State Money.

SUFFERING AT CINCINNATI.

Poor People in Distress on Account of Rapacity of Coal Dealers.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 11.—It develops that in former despatches telling the story of the destructive ice gorges in the Ohio River during the past week a serious error occurred in naming various coal companies as losers by the carrying away of 75 barges of coal. It now appears that the consumers of that indispensable commodity are losers.

The Cincinnati and Pittsburg Coal combine have steadily advanced the price of Youghiogheny and Kanawha coal according to the severity of the weather and the stages of the river. From $3.50 per ton it went to $3 and then back to $3, at which figure it was quoted last week, and at that price large quantities were contracted for by consumers to be delivered.

Then came the ice gorges carrying away a comparatively small amount of coal. The elevators are still jammed and there are yet many barges of coal safely moored at Cincinnati. The dealers, however, were not to let the opportunity for a squeeze to escape, and at a meeting held in this city between Pittsburg and Cincinnati coal barons it was agreed to raise the price of soft coal to $6 per ton, which was done yesterday. With the mercury marking one degree below zero, some dealers who accepted contracts last week at $3, now refuse to fulfil their obligations and offer to refund money paid on contract with a bonus of ten cents per ton.

Poor people cannot buy coal at the present price, and the suffering among the poorer classes is intense.

There is no prospect of a decrease, but, on the contrary, it is expected that the price will go to $7 or even $8 before the limit is reached.

There is general and bitter indignation expressed on all sides at the heartlessness of the coal dealers.

MR. ROSENDALE'S REPORT.

New York's Attorney General Complains That Citizens Want to Know Too Much.

ALBANY, Jan. 11.—The annual report of Attorney General Rosendale shows that 880 opinions were written in the department during the year.

The report this year goes more than usual into details, and the Attorney General shows how much of the attention of himself and deputies the heads of the different State departments require. For years there has been growing in the departments a custom of answering all sorts of inquiries from individuals, which has become almost an evil.

It is recommended that all the papers in proceedings for the dissolution of corporations be brought together in the Attorney General's office, where a complete record can be kept of such proceedings.

Thirty-two applications were made to Attorney General during the year requesting him to bring actions in the name of the people. During the year the following actions and proceedings were commenced by the Attorney General: Sequestration actions, 82; voluntary dissolution proceedings, 84; foreclosure actions, 27; partition actions, 10; actions for admeasurement of dower, 3.

In addition 18 other actions and proceedings have been begun, in which the Attorney General has appeared for the State or some State officer.

THE FIREMAN KILLED.

A Tug Sunk in the East River by a New Haven Liner.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The new twin-screw steamboat Richard Peck of the New Haven line ran down a tug boat in the East River last evening off Conlear's Hook. The tide was very swift and dangerous at this point and the river was filled with ice.

The tug was struck just aft of the centre and, filling with water, sank almost immediately. The fireman of the tug was killed by the collision. All the crew were thrown overboard but were rescued by another tug.

The Peck continued on her way to New Haven apparently not having been injured by the collision.

GENERAL BUTLER DEAD

He Expired in Washington Early This Morning.

DEATH DUE TO HEART FAILURE.

He Had Gone to the Capital on Supreme Court Business and Was Apparently in Good Health—Attacked With a Fit of Coughing This Morning and Died Before Help Could Reach Him—Sketch of His Career.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Benjamin F. Butler, the famous soldier, statesman, politician and millionaire manufacturer, died at his Washington residence, No. 220 New Jersey Avenue, southeast, at 1.30 this morning.

The General has always, to a more or less extent, made his residence in Washington, although many of the scenes of his successful ventures have been located elsewhere.

During the past winter a case which had been decided against him in the highest court in Massachusetts and in which he took an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, has demanded his almost constant residence in this city. Every Monday he was a familiar figure at the session of the body.

The familiar face and broad-brimmed hat of Gen. Butler was seen in the Supreme Court room during Term yesterday. The old contest over the will of Samuel Strong, heard by the General Term on an appeal from the Circuit Court was to have been tried this term. Judge O. D. Barrett asked the court to put the case down for hearing next week to accommodate Gen. Butler, as it might not be convenient for him to attend later in the term.

The court was disposed to refuse the request as other important cases had the precedence and the bench is short handed until Judge Cole takes his seat.

The General was accompanied to the city by his valet, a colored man. Shortly after 1 o'clock the valet heard the General cough severely and hastened to his bedside. The General spoke of having expectorated blood, but did not seem to think seriously of the matter and the valet was dismissed. Shortly afterward the valet was again alarmed by the heavy breathing of the General and once more hastened to his side, but before help could be summoned the General had breathed his last.

His death was due to heart failure.

Benjamin F. Butler was born at Deerfield, N. H., in 1818. After graduating at Waterville College, Maine, he was admitted to the bar in 1840.

He was a delegate to the Democratic convention which was held in Charleston and in Baltimore in 1860.

At the beginning of the Civil War he took command of a brigade, with which he occupied Baltimore. He was appointed a Major-General the same year and had the command of Fortress Monroe.

In August of the same year he commanded the land forces against Fort Hatteras.

In 1862 he was sent to New Orleans in command of the Gulf Department.

In that city he signalized himself by the inflexible rigor of his administration. In November of the same year he was relieved of his command.

In the following year he was given the control over the military of Virginia and North Carolina.

On May 16, 1864, he was attacked at Drury's Bluff, which occasion he succeeded in saving the army by falling back to the cover of the breastworks.

In December of that year he was sent in command of the land forces against Fort Fisher, failing to carry this place by assault, he returned, and was soon afterrelieved of his command by General Grant.

He was elected to Congress in 1866, and was one of the managers selected to conduct the impeachment of President Johnson.

He was the successful candidate for Governor of Massachusetts in 1875; in 1878-9 he was the candidate on the Independent-Greenback ticket for the office, but was defeated.

In 1882 he was elected by the Democrats, and renominated in 1883, but was defeated.

In 1884 he was the candidate of the Greenback and Anti-Monopolists for President and received 133,825 votes.

In the latter part of his life he devoted his time to the practice of law. He was counsel in many cases of importance before the U. S. Supreme Court.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Crane advertises winter goods at great reductions.

—Now is the music lover's chance. Allen is closing out sheet music, 20 copies for 50c. Don't delay.

—The members and friends of Winfield Scott post and the Women's Relief corps had a merry time last night at the joint installation of officers and accompanying celebration.

—A few members of the Workingmen's Athletic club of Pondville, enjoyed a pleasant sleigh ride over the county roads last evening. There were about twenty-five in the party.

—Two intoxicated young men were saved by the police from freezing to death on the streets last night. This morning they gratefully paid $5 apiece. 'Twas their first offense.

—All holding unsold tickets or money for Mrs. Wiggin's reading, are requested to make returns at once to Mrs. George P. Dupee, North Plainfield, or Mrs. Kimball, 29 East Fifth street.

—It is reported that a man was struck to-day near the Greenbrook tanks by the Royal Blue line train No. 510, due here on its way to New York at 12:56. The train is in charge of conductor Cuthbertson, father of Mrs. Charles W. Bunyon of this city.

—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Young Men's Christian association of this city will be celebrated on Thursday evening, the 19th inst. There will be a popular meeting for all at 8 in the Crescent Avenue church to be addressed by Major-General O. O. Howard.

—A special meeting of the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage association, of which Florence Howe Hall of this city is President, will be held to-morrow at 3 p. m. in the W. C. T. U. hall, Market and Mulberry streets, Newark, to discuss plans for more active work in the State. All who are friendly to the cause are invited to attend.

—Modern every-day newspaper writers no longer use the unnecessary prefix "Mr." or suffix "Esq." to men's names, unless, as to the former when there is a "Mr. and Mrs." and the latter when the man is really an "Esquire." This is for the information of some who have questioned the absence of the "Mr." in these columns.

—A most enjoyable and profitable occasion was the prayer-meeting for men only in Trinity Reformed church last evening. Considering the weather, the attendance was large, and the spiritual results were highly gratifying to pastor and officers. A number asked for prayers and professed repentance. Altogether the hour was well spent, and the experiment will soon be repeated.

—Patrick Cahill denies that he was cruel to the horse which the New Market Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals killed. He says that he tried to nurse the animal into health and usefulness, and that its injuries were self-inflicted by falling in its stall and kicking woodwork to pieces. He claims to be too warm a friend of dumb animals to inflict suffering upon them.

PRETTY CLOSE TO ZERO.

Coldest Weather Since the Winter of '86.

Old Sol and Jack Frost had a struggle for supremacy this morning, and Sol got the worst of it. He could not overcome the cold snap. The sun was out good and strong at early morn, and by midday there was some warmth in its rays, but you only had to go across the street to get in the shade to realize that the mercury was quite close to zero.

According to the official record of the Weather Bureau this was the coldest morning this winter. Last night was the coldest since 1886 and at midnight Thos. Armstrong's thermometer registered 4 below zero. Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning it was just 1 above and then it began to grow warmer.

At 10 a. m. the record showed that it was 8 above, but F. B. Dunn, the weather observer, up in the Equitable building, New York, says that the cold snap had not ended, and that it would continue to the delight of sleighers and skaters for several days.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Carmencita to-night.

Chancellor McGill yesterday appointed Craig A. Marsh special master in chancery.

Mrs. Leander N. Lovell and Mrs. Henry B. Newhall will be "at home", 4 Crescent avenue, Thursday afternoon of next week, from 5 till 8.

Capt. George F. Edwards is so highly complimented on his Leal's School Cadets and their fine showing that he is planning for a public drill in the Crescent at an early date. The mayors and other officials will review the corps, and a promenade and dance will follow.

The appearance of Carmencita during the comedy of "The Prodigal Father," is particularly appropriate. The exquisite dancing of the Spanish beauty combined with the jollity of Glen MacDonough's play makes indeed an attraction which is altogether exceptional in strength and artistic character.

In the current number of The Standard, a weekly insurance paper of Boston, is a fine picture of C. M. Goddard, ex-councilman of this city, and now secretary of the New England Insurance Exchange. The paper also prints an exhaustive article by Mr. Goddard on "Electric Light Inspections in New England".

Miss Sarah J. Allen, sister of the hustling merchant J. C., jr., was married last evening by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks to William T. Fesmier of Chicago. Following the ceremony was a reception at the home of Herbert S. Thatcher, brother-in-law of the bride, corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets. The bridal couple left for Philadelphia. Thence they will go to Chicago, their future home.

A CRIMINAL BY PREFERENCE.

Though Not in Need, Young Rushmore Swindled Right and Left From Choice—He Has Two Sweethearts and Most Honorable and Respected Relatives.

Further particulars of the case of young Rushmore, whose tale was told in yesterday's PRESS, show that he deliberately chose the career of a forger.

The Rushmore family lived on Long Island until a few years ago, when they moved to this city. At the death of a grandfather each of three brothers inherited $50,000. When Frederick got his share a year ago his capital had been impaired by his extravagance until it amounted to only $14,000, which yielded an income of about $800.

Four years ago a hope of adventure led him to enlish in the army. He served two years and seven months as a private at Fort Adams, when he could stand it no longer and purchased his release. He had then only five months more to serve on his enlistment. He did not return home, but went to Great Neck, near where his family had lived. He idled awhile, living at country hotels in Great Neck, Port Jefferson, Minneola and Westbury. His income supported him, but life was dull there, so he got employment as a messenger in the Long Island Express company. In September, however, he threw up his job and went back to his idle barroom life. When he again tired of this he decided to try a life of crime. Long before this, while, while a mere boy, he had fallen in love with an estimable girl in Great Neck. The engagement was broken off while he was a soldier, but a few months ago he renewed it.

He went to Plainfield, where his uncle, Dr. Edward Rushmore, has an account in the City National bank, and secured some check blanks on the pretext that he was going to open an account there. On one of these blanks he drew a check for $128.43 to his own order and forged his uncle's name.

He then went to Brooklyn, where the immediately succeeding chapters in the history of his experiment in crime are not fully told. While in Brooklyn he became engaged to another girl, to whom he wrote passionate letters, not, however, breaking off his engagement with his first love at Great Neck,

Last Saturday young Rushmore entered the jewelry store of Ischar Lewkowitz at 290 Bowery, and gave the jeweler this letter:

GREAT NECK, L. I., Jan. 6, 1893.

To Mr. I. Lewkowitz:

This will introduce the bearer, Mr. I. W. Rushmore, who lives here and wishes to make a few purchases of you, and if it may be too late for him to get the bank, I endorsed a check for him so that he will have no trouble on account of being a stranger to you. The check is for $75 on a New Jersey. By doing well by him you will confer a great favor on me.

HENRY NINELING, of Great Neck, L. I.

The check had the signature of Edward Rushmore. Lewkowitz accepted it and Rushmore selected a diamond ring at $45, and a gold locket for $3.75. He received the change in cash. Lewkowitz then telegraphed to Nineling, and found that he had not written the letter or endorsed the check. On Monday Bushmore came to the shop again with another check and another note signed with Mr. Nineling's name. The jeweler sent to the Eldridge street police station, and meanwhile engaged Rushmore in conversation until Detectives Price and Smith arrived, and arrested him. Rushmore smiled when he was arrested, and remarked that it had come quicker than he he expected.

On his person were found other checks on the Plainfield bank signed with Edward Rushmore's name for $115, $67, $198, $54 63, and $34. There was also the letter, written to a friend in Plainfield, and published in yesterday's PRESS.

Rushmore made no attempt at concealment when questioned by the police authorities. He said that he had deliberately decided to try a criminal life, and if he liked it to adopt it. His first successes, he said, pleased him, and he had decided to go ahead with it. He related the story of his life with the greatest frankness.

"The American people", he remarked with a smile, "are great suckers. They give up like lords."

He said he had sent the ring and locket he obtained from Lewkowitz to the young woman in Great Neck to whom he was engaged. Capt. Cross asked him for a letter to her on which the articles might be recovered, and he wrote this:

MY POOR DARLING: I have been arrested for forgery, which is true. I have come to the end of my rope and will get no more than I properly deserve. I suppose it is useless to ask you to still remain mine, although I shall always feel the same. Please give an answer to the party who will call and give you this. Do not feel too badly for one who is not worthy of your love. ISAAC.

Give the bearer the ring and locket. They were bought with money which I obtained by crooked work.

The girl gave up the ring and locket without a word.

Rushmore told Capt. Cross that he had plenty of money to make good his forgeries, and that in any event his relatives, who were respectable and well off, would see that no one lost through him. He was arraigned before justice Hogan in the Essex market police court yesterday morning, where he smilingly pleaded guilty and was remanded for trial.

While in Capt. Cross's charge he wrote a long letter to the Brooklyn girl to whom he was recently engaged. It was full of passionate phrases and expressions of devoted love.

Rushmore is a tall, well-built, boyish-looking fellow, with a pleasing face and blond hair and moustache. He gave his name as Frederick J. Rushmore, although he signed some of his letters Isaac.

Insurance Agents Election.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Board of Underwriters, comprising all of the insurance agents represented in Plainfield, and under the jurisdiction of the Middle Department, was held at the office of M. M. Dunham, 7 East Front street, on Monday last, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—J. C. Pope.
Vice-president—W. A. Woodruff.
Secretary and Treasurer—M. M. Dunham.
Executive Committee—W. A. Woodruff and H. W. Stover.

THE SECOND MORNING RECITAL.

Mr. Tidden Reaches Even Greater Heights in Plainfield's Appreciation.

The second and last piano recital by Paul Tidden was given at the Casino, Tuesday morning, and listened to by an attentive and appreciative audience.

The programme was selected and arranged with much skill. The brilliant and classical music of the opening prelude and fugue paved the way for a Beethoven sonata in two movements, so dear to the hearts of all musicians. No one could fail to enjoy Mr. Tidden's rendering of "On the Holy Mount" by Dvorak, whether musically trained or not, so delicately was the work done and so directly to the heart did the tones and harmonies appeal, by his sympathetic touch. The applause was generous and continuous to which Mr. Tidden responded most generously, not only repeating this selection, but following it with the Magic Fire Scene from "Die Walkure" which had appeared on the programme of the previous recital.

A word of commendation should be bestowed upon his remarkable rendering of this music so difficult to interpret on the piano. It required but little imagination to behold the action and scenic effect brought out on the operatic stage, and aroused all the enthusiasm Wagner is sure to awaken when his music is well performed. The selections from the favorite Grieg were most happy in their variety and rendering.

The Pasquinade by Gottschalk was a bit of high color coming as it did between a nocturne by Brassin and the delightful studies from Chopin. The closing polonaise with its brilliant tones, delightfully interpreted, was a fitting climax to the entire programme, leaving a most favorable impression of the delight of morning piano recitals so universally enjoyed abroad and growing in favor at home, and of the great, good fortune of Plainfield people in having such a finished and sympathetic interpreter of their favorite composers.

LOCAL LICENSE REFORM.

This Correspondent Wants Judge McCormick's Good Example Followed in Plainfield.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I observed in your issue of Monday a few notes under the heading "Strong Evidence Wanted", as coming from judge McCormick of the Union county court of common pleas. He declared he would grant no more liquor licenses in the township unless stronger evidence was submitted to him that such places were an absolute necessity", and he promptly denied four applications.

Now, Mr. Editor, this coming from a court of common pleas, it seems to me that it tells in the right direction. Let the courts and legal profession strike against this loose idea of licensing rumshops everywhere because some big fellow wishes to make his living out of the common people at the expense of their families. It seems to me that the authorities of our city might with the same propriety demand stronger evidence than we have usually had given before granting fifteen or twenty rum-hole licenses in our beautiful city. A strike of this kind by the authorities would tell for more good to the community than all the preaching and singing temperance songs coming from every source in our city. Let them try it. OBSERVER.

Shut the door against disease. Danger comes through impure blood. Keep your blood in order, and you keep in health. For this, nothing equals Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthy action. By this means it cures. Every part of the system feels its saving influence. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages, all yield to it. It's the only Liver, Blood and Lung Remedy that's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded. Trying terms to sell on—but it's a medicine that can carry them out.

Can anything else, at any price, be really as cheap?

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol to inebriate, and no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a concentrated vegetable extract; put up in large bottles; pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children.

"IN HIS NAME."

Fruitful Year of a Worthy Plainfield Society of Young People.

The following interesting annual report of the Seventh-day Christian Endeavor society in this city was read to the society by its secretary, Ernestine C. Smith, at its recent anniversary:

We meet to-day on the first anniversary of the Y. P. S. C. E. of this church, and it is with pleasure and gratification that we review the work of the past year. The society was organized December 9, 1891, with 16 members. At the next meeting this number was increased to 31. These 31 became constituent members of the society. New names have been added from time to time, until now there are only a few out of the ranks. The society now numbers 58 active, 3 associate, and 20 honorary members, 11 honorary members being teachers and officers of the Sabbath-school. A business and consecration meeting has been held every month, and a prayer-meeting every Sabbath afternoon. The members have been faithful, both in attendance and in the observance of the pledge. The average attendance at the prayer-meetings has been 45. As a rule those who could not attend the consecration service have sent a message to be given in response to their names. The committees have all done excellent work.

The Flower committee has furnished flowers every Sabbath, and in many instances the flowers have, after the service, brightened the sick room.

The field of the Lookout committe is somewhat limited, but they have been very faithful in the performance of their duties. We are glad to report that the Relief committee, although ready and willing, have found but little to do during the year. We have all realized how easy it is for a duty to become a privilege and pleasure. The work of the society was somewhat interrupted during the summer months, but has been taken up with renewed interest. This society joined the Union County union Feb. 10, and the Local union March 9.

We have many kind friends and well-wishers who have manifested their interest by gifts, such as printed constitutions for each member, and 50 singing books from an honorary member.

The society has also been fortunate in having the support of the church in all its endeavors, as was shown by the interest taken in the service conducted by the society on Easter Sabbath, and the substantial evidence shown by the amount of the collection, which was devoted to our work. We gladly welcome the older members of the church; we need your help and your prayers; will you not grant them?

Our society had the pleasure of entertaining on Sabbath-day, July 9, the friends attending the convention in New York city. The entire day was devoted to Christian Endeavor work. The influence of this rally was surely felt by our society.

One of the pleasant features of the society has been its socials, giving us an opportunity to know each other better socially.

The treasurer has received during the year from dues, subscriptions and collections, $126. Of this amount $37.15 has been sent to the Mizpah mission in New York, $25 to the Tract society, and $25 to the Missionary society. There is now a balance of $4.56 in the treasury.

Twice this year the touch of sadness has entered the heart and life of our president; notwithstanding his personal sorrows he has proven his sincere interest in the society by his faithful attendance and his words of encouragement and counsel. The society has given him its sympathy and prayers.

We have reached only the first milestone in our journey as an organized band of young people. The wheel of time has rolled over but one year since we took the Christian Endeavor pledge. Along the wayside of time obstacles have been met and overcome, new fields of labor entered upon, and many battles won; so we have pursued our course until now the time has come to choose new leaders and with them to march into a new year of events, awakening to individual responsibility. We must not only look ahead, but go ahead with a determination that "In His Name" we will conquer self and sin, more valiantly than in the past.

Let us remember that,

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts not breaths,
In feelings not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs;
He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

HOW HE GETS A TEXT.

Dr. Lewis Draws Sermon Inspiration from Bicycle Jaunts Over the County Roads.

That expert wheelman and famous divine, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of this city, says:

"If your liver is torpid, ride a wheel. If you can't find a text for next week's sermon, ride a wheel into the country or into the crowded city and find one, among the birds and trees, or among hurrying and worrying men. The world is full of texts and themes, and a good wheel knows where to find them.

"Saxe, and Sancho Panza, said: 'God bless the man who first invented sleep'. I say blessings on the man who invented the wheel, which at ten miles an hour, can capture the most absconding sleep that ever tried to rob an over-worked preacher of his 'natural rest'."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Gary, Corning, N. Y.

THE BOARD SPEAKS!

President Babcock Says the People Are to Be Kept Fully Informed of Public School Matters.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Returning to-night from a trip to New England, I have just read in THE PRESS the full report—excellent in many respects—of the meeting of the board of education, together with the editorial remarks on the same. I have great respect for journalistic enterprise, having been of that persuasion myself in my youthful days, and admire the "push" of THE PRESS, even though it may occasionally seem to be misdirected. But in this case THE PRESS should not go too far in congratulating itself upon having worried the board of education into granting "to the people just what they have been clamoring for through these columns", or into doing anything else which the board had not been doing all the time. In the first place the Board do not recognize in the fulminations of two anonymous correspondents, even when backed by the powerful influence of THE PRESS, a "clamoring" of "the people"; secondly, it has always been ready to give THE PRESS and the "people" all they had a proper interest in knowing; and thirdly, it has in no wise changed its plans or inaugurated any new step in that direction. The action or reference in the late meeting to the employment of an expert to go over the returns of the collector and compare them with the records of assessments, was inaugurated one year ago, and had a PRESS reporter favored the board with a visit before, he would probably have heard the same subject talked about at nearly every meeting, and quite as unanimous a desire expressed to have it speedily done. That it had not been done by the committee with whom it was left, was the only reason why it came up again in the last meeting.

The other auditing referred to at that meeting—and by the way your reporter seems to have strangely mixed the two and so reported neither correctly—was in reference to the usual annual report of all receipts and expenditures, such as has been prepared and published every year since I have known anything of the working of the board and which in this case was prepared last October, and would then have been published but for the sickness of one member of the committee whose business it was to examine it, with the vouchers, and certify to its correctness. His sickness having continued much longer than was anticipated, another member was asked to take his place so long ago as early in November, but his engagements has interfered so much, that the subject was brought up again at the last meeting and a time agreed upon when it could and would be done. The wild "clamor" of two "people" had nothing to do with the matter.

Permit me to add that the board always welcomes reporters and has nothing whatever to conceal, unless it be certain cases of disciplne and similar matters which should never be made public, but it is true that it does not sit with all the doors wide open at this season of the year. Its place of meeting is the same as it has been for about two years, and the duties are the same as they always have been, except when it becomes necessary to change it to enable the members to be present, so your reporter having come once will, possibly, not have the same trouble in finding his way hereafter.

GEO. H. BABCOCK,
Pres. Bd. Ed.

Plainfield, Jan. 10, 1893.

His Course Was "Right, Honest and Manly".

The Courier last night censured a Plainfield newspaper man for having "the nerve three years ago to start a monthly magazine, collect yearly subscriptions for the same, and then suspend publication". The intimation was that the subscribers had been defrauded. It is a fact which the Courier editor knows that every subscriber to the magazine in question had his unexpired subscription money returned to him. Despite the lamentable fact that suspended publications are not in the habit of restoring such balances to subscribers, the newspaper man referred to went to especial trouble and expense to hunt up every subscriber and restore to him his own. He can show receipts for all such amounts. The magazine cost no one a cent, except its publisher. In this connection the following extract from a letter from an honored and honorable old-time newspaper man and author may be interesting to the paper which is so concerned in the Plainfield newspaper man's private affairs:

1228 Bedford ave.,
Brooklyn, May 1, 1890.

Enclosed find receipt for postal note received. Permit me to assure you that I sincerely regret that you have been compelled to give up the undertaking. * * * I thought much and highly of the scheme. Allow me also to compliment you upon the unusual action you have taken in returning balance of unexpired subscriptions. Of course it is right, it is honest, it is manly; but such conduct is rare, even among those who call themselves honorable. I do not remember of but one similar case, Ben "Wit and Wisdom", my pet eclectic, suspended, my partner and I followed the same course. Of course there are others who have done the same, but I do not know of them. Once more let me express my approbation, and sign myself

Yours with respect,
HARRY J. SHELLMAN.

STATE CHARITIES' AID.

Plainfield Officers Re-elected—Renewed Interest in the Work.

The annual meeting of the Union County Branch of the New Jersey State Charities' Aid society was held Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. Benjamin Williamson, Elizabeth.

A larger number of members were present than have been at the society's meetings for some time, and a renewed interest was taken in the work of the society.

The Rev. Dr. F. M. McAllister, vice-president of the Union county branch, presided. In the election of officers for the year the Rev. Dr. Kempshall declined to serve on account of his ill-health, and the Hon. Foster M. Voorhees was elected. The following officers were re-elected: The Rev. F. M. McAllister, vice-president; Miss Edith R. Leonard of Plainfield, secretary, and Mrs. J. K. Myers of Plainfield, treasurer.

Among other business transacted a committee was appointed to act with State secretary Mrs. Williamson to prepare for an exhibit at the World's fair.

The following standing committees were appointed:

Executive Committee — Howard Richards, Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, Mrs. J. M. Watson, Mrs. Nelson Trimble, the Rev. James M. Nourse, the Rev. Hobart Clark, David P. Hall, S. A. Blackwell, E. B. Clark.

Committee on Children—The Rev. James M. Nourse, Thomas More, Prof. J. M. Watson, Mrs. George Opdyke, Mrs. George Kline, S. A. Blackwell, Frederick C. Marsh.

Committee on Jails and Alms-houses—David P. Hall, E. B. Clark, the Rev. H. H. Sleeper, D. D., J. A. Dix, Mrs. Nelson Trimble, Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, Mrs. J. M. Watson.

Committee on Poor-Laws—Frederick C. Marsh, R. V. Lindabury, Howard Richards.

The following committee was appointed to take measures to bring about charity organization in Elizabeth with authority to add to its number five other residents of Elizabeth who are not members of the association: Mrs. Benjamin Williamson, the Rev. Dr. Oberley, the Rev. Dr. Sleeper, J. A. Dix and Mrs. J. C. Rankin.

Mrs. Nelson Trimble, Mrs. Charles E. Ryder, Mrs. George Kline and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh were appointed a committee to arrange for the county exhibit at the Chicago fair.

By the new arrangement adopted Dec. 14, anyone who pays the dollar membership fee becomes a member not only of Union County branch, but also of the State association, which has direct relations with and is authorized by the Legislature of New Jersey.

Now Attacking Judge and Jury.

Another of its venomous attacks on judge Wm. A. Coddington appeared in the Courier last evening. The editor of that sheet can never forgive the successful young lawyer for being elected by so overwhelming a popular vote in the face of the Courier's vicious opposition.

The jurors in the Muldowney case indignantly repudiate the Courier's allegations that they were biased by the judge into a "befogged" state so that they could not render a verdict according to the facts. The Courier would fain constitute itself judge and jury and convict Muldowney without legal process. Its slander of judge Coddington, and slur on the jurors' intelligence and judgment, are characteristic of its spiteful and wicked methods. Such is the journalism of the city clerk and his "staff".

Carmencita's Entrancing Dances.

The entrancing movements of Carmencita in the Cachuca are admitted to be truly remarkable for their subtlety and poetical thought. In every motion of her body, in every look of her eye, in every gesture of the hand and arm, there is a naturalness which can only be inborn in the great artist. She is the embodiment of grace, and no wonder that for three years New York society has raved over her charms and beauty. Her appearance in conjunction with the comedy of "The Prodigal Father" at Music Hall, this evening, is anticipated with the greatest delight by the hundreds who have never had an opportunity of seeing her outside the great metropolis.

Such a Paper Is THE DAILY PRESS.

The afternoon paper—says the Colorado Sun—reaches the home after the labors of the day are over, when the hour of rest and reading has come. It contains news twenty-four hours later than the morning, and therefore the reader wants it in place of the paper received in the morning and which contains news twenty-four hours old. The afternoon paper is essentially the home paper. It contains news particularly of interest to the home, and which every member of the family desires to read. It not only covers the general news of the day, but it also publishes news specially prepared for home reading, for which reading the morning papers have no space.

The Rev. Mr. Earle's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Rev. Wm. R. Earle was held at Westfield yesterday afternoon. Mr. Earle was the first rector of the Episcopal church there, known originally as Christ Episcopal church. The name was afterwards changed to Grace Episcopal, of which J. B. Jennings is rector. Bishop Scarborough assisted.

No Hope for the Crescent League.

At the meeting of the Crescent League, last evening, nothing was accomplished in the way of getting the club out of its perplexities and on its feet again. Tee Kay proposed that the creditors be seen and urged to accept 25 cents on a dollar —or something else—in settlement. Then for the league to go on after clearing out the dead-wood. After a good deal of talk the meeting adjourned without hope until Friday evening.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

VIGOROUS IN OLD AGE

Mary E. Brown of Concord in Her 83d Year.

The Mother of Ten Children, Five of Whom are Living.

The Good Old Lady Has Quite Recovered. Paine's Celery Compound Did It.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 10—Very few women in their eighty-third year are as hale and vigorous as Mrs. Mary E. Brown, one of Concord's oldest and most beloved inhabitants. She is now living a happy old age at her home on Grove street, in full possession of her mental faculties, bright and cheery as can be.

Mrs. Brown's maiden name was McCauley. She was born in Fryeburg, Me., in 1811, of a good old New England family. Her husband, who was engaged in the shoe and leather business in this city, died in 1888. She is the mother of ten children, five of whom are now living, one of whom is Mrs. H. W. Ferrin of Concord.

Mrs. Brown, although so well now, suffered some time ago, as old people often do, from rheumatism, but like many others in Concord, has been cured by the use of Paine's celery compound, the discoverer of which is held in grateful memory by scores of people here.

MRS. MARY E. BROWN.

The following letter from Mrs. Ferrin appeared last week in the People and Patriot, and should be read by old people everywhere who are subject to rheumatism.

"My mother, Mrs. Mary E. Brown, was taken sick last September with rheumatism. She could hardly walk and could not dress or undress without my help. She had two different doctors, and one's medicine seemed to help her for a time, but only for a time. Then she took some sarsaparillas, but without benefit. Mr. Sabin of St. Albans, who was visiting my sister at the time mother was sick, was using Paine's celery compound and recommended it, very highly. Mother took it and has used several bottles. She is loud in her praises of it. She has had no pain as formerly since taking this compound and will continue taking the medicine. I think it superior to anything that she has ever taken and shall get more at once."

Mrs. Brown's case and others like it are well known here, and there is a great demand for Paine's celery compound in consequence.

He Laughs Best Who Laughs Last.

Will Milliken has the laugh on his Dunellen friends. The other night a party of them went sleigh-riding, headed by editor G. E. Lowrie of the Call and popular Walter Runyon. Mr. Milliken had anticipated going, but was prevented that evening. He could not induce the others to wait till next day, when he could go. They were driving gleefully past his house when the sleigh upset and they were treated to a snow-bath. Their discomfiture was heightened by being compelled to take the injured into his house and thaw them out.

Working for Sewers.

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yield to it. Price 50c.

CUT OPEN HER HEAD.

A Young Dunellen Villian Assaults His Teacher.

Report comes from Dunellen that Miss Carrie Fisher, a teacher in the public school there, was brutally assaulted by a vicious and incorrigible youth in her class. She undertook to correct him for some fault, when he sprang upon her and with a chair rung felled her to the floor. The blow cut open her head, and she was taken home in an insensible condition.

The young villian should be severely punished.

WILL ASK FOR A NEW TRIAL.

Attorney Brenner's Intentions Regarding the Duquesne Rioters.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 11.—Attorney Brenner, who had charge of the defense of the Duquesne rioters in the trial which has resulted in finding 10 of the defendants guilty of riot, two of unlawful assemblage, and one acquitted, states that to-morrow he will make a motion for a new trial.

Should he fail, he will likely, after sentence has been imposed on Saturday, move for an arrest of judgment and take appeal to the Supreme Court.

The maximum penalty in this State for riot is $500 fine and two years in the workhouse.

The poisoning cases, which were to have been tried to-day, have been postponed until to-morow because the defense was not ready to proceed.

J. M. Overton, one of the men who made a confession, has not been seen since the day he gave bail for appearance in court.

The trial of Jack Clifford for murder has been set for Monday. Attorneys Erwin, of St. Paul, and Argo, of Sioux City, have been summoned to assist in the defense.

The principal work of the rest of the week will be the trying of Homestead cases.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Epitome of the Styles Prevalent in the Metropolis.

A Marked Improvement Noticeable in All Directions — An Elegant Reception Gown—Wraps and Capes for Winter—Stylish Millinery.

[Special New York Letter.]

Now that we have been reprieved from the trailing skirt for street wear, and the very high hump-shouldered sleeve has given place to the broad, sloping effect—two serious defects in the feminine make-up of last winter have been improved, and I think the lovers of good form and correct lines are agreed that women have a chance to show to the best advantage this year. There are no particular excrescences or exaggerations, unless the full sleeve may be so called. The lines of the figure are well retained, without undue accentuation. The materials have never been equaled for beauty of color and weaving, even in cheap goods.

Passementeries show the work and influence of a true artistic feeling, and the whole are combined with a graceful effect unequaled for many years.

The bell skirt effect is retained for house wear, though there is a decided increase of fullness at the belt, which is gathered instead of plaited.

For street wear the skirt is gored and gathered into a belt at the back.

Some English models of tailor-made gowns show several very narrow gores, but at present that is not the accepted style here.

RECEPTION DRESS.

The long bodice has to a great extent given place to the short waist—for tailored gowns an all around effect is given, while house gowns are made so short that they practically end at the waist, or are so draped with sashes, belts, bands, etc., as to give that effect.

A graceful gown just arrived from Worth is a good model to describe, as it gives an idea of novel effect so much striven for and yet not to go beyond the bound of good taste and judgment. A wool crepon of a peculiar new dull shade of brown has a full plain skirt lying some ten inches on the floor. Three narrow bands of petunia velvet are edged with jet and mink.

A short zouave jacket of petunia velvet rests over a vest of rich brown bengaline, the draping of which comes from the side seams and is tied in a knot at the waist, the ends hanging to the knees. A graduated ruffle of silk comes in cape fashion from the shoulder. Full puffs of velvet are on the upper sleeve, the silk forming the lower part, below the elbow. Variations of this model are seen on the newest, most effective costumes. For evening gowns a more decided empire effect is given, of which I will give some descriptions later.

A smart gown for afternoon receptions (here illustrated) is made of reseda face cloth. The skirt has a border and side panel of black applique velvet in a simple loop pattern, outlined with a dainty silk braid (see illustration). The lighter loops are meant to indicate lace outlined in the same way, giving a shadow effect. The bodice is treated in the same way, according to drawing.

We have to again congratulate ourselves upon the beauty, comfort and usefulness of the winter wrap.

The short cape—pretty as it was—has been superseded by a longer model which affords more protection. Fur capes have been lengthened anywhere from waist to knee length, while cloth mantles are usually made to reach the knee or even lower.

There are many models to choose from—though the one presented here combines some of the best features.

A golden brown cloth is trimmed with narrow bands of jet and a border of fur at the bottom and around the high collar.

WINTER CAPE.

Variations of this style are worn for all occasions, though the material and color varies with its purpose.

The winter millinery is very pretty and generally becoming, as we are gradually arising from the squashed effects of past seasons and are enjoying the happy medium.

It is impossible to announce any particular mode of trimming, as unlimited license is given to individual taste, though as a general rule the bows are flat and the feathers stand up.

Buckles are as much favored as the early importations indicated. In fact it is exceptional to see a hat or bonnet without a buckle, large or small, tucked in somewhere. The rhine stones have been overdone and now we have some exquisite ones in enamel repousse and filigree. The hat illustrated here is brown felt, trimmed with small tips and two short plumes. A bow of handsome ribbon is embroidered with Persian colors, fastened with a chased gold buckle. The strings come from the side immediately back of the ear and tied under the chin.

A PRETTY HAT.

The mink and sable collarettes, introduced two years ago, have taken the town by storm. They are very pretty and effective, but I would not advise the purchase of an expensive one, as now they are made so cheaply that they are within the reach of all—which means their abandonment by people of conservative taste.

We are shown two buttoned gloves in English box colors as the latest novelty of that department, and now that even tailor gowns are made with sleeves the extreme length and an inch of cuff below that, two buttons are sufficient, though novelty is the point and not utility.

NANSEN'S EXPEDITION.

He Will Aim to Find a Route Across the Apex of the Arctic Ocean.

Dr. Nansen, the Norwegian explorer, who is about to undertake a voyage for the discovery of a northwest passage, has adopted plans essentially different from those followed by his intrepid predecessors. Hitherto, with one possible exception, all attempts to reach the North pole have been made in defiance of the obstacles of nature. Dr. Nansen, on the other hand, writes G. W. Weippiert in the Chicago Graphic, proposes to learn whether nature has not herself supplied means of solving the problem, and whether there is not, after all, a possibility of reaching the north pole by utilizing certain natural facilities in the frozen seas of which all early arctic navigators were ignorant.

The circumstances upon which Dr. Nansen bases his hopes are summarized by him as follows: The "Jeannette" expedition of 1879-81, and the loss of that vessel, seemed to sound the knell of all expeditions to reach the pole by Behring straits. But in June, 1884, three years after the "Jeannette" sank, there were found near Julianshaab, Greenland, several articles which had belonged to the "Jeannette," and had been abandoned at the time of its wreck by the crew, and which had been carried to the coast of Greenland, from the opposite side of the Polar sea, on a piece of ice.

DR. FRIDTJOF NANSEN.

This weird and mysterious voyage across the Arctic ocean leads Dr. Nansen to think that the unknown current is nature's means of communication, and he will endeavor to realize his hopes of a direct route across the apex of the Arctic ocean.

The Nansen expedition, whose cost is to be defrayed by the Norwegian government and King Oscar and other public-spirited citizens, will leave Norway next June and proceed direct to Nova Zembla. The explorer and his party will take with them five years' provisions, although they hope to be absent only two years. The scientific world takes a deep interest in the proposed voyage, as Dr. Nansen is a practical man, who will carry out his plans and promises unless prevented by acts of Providence.

DOM PEDRO'S JOKE.

He Adopted a Rather Startling Test for a New Railroad Brake.

The late Emperor Dom Pedro, of Brazil, once gave audience to a young engineer who came to show him a new appliance for stopping railway engines. The emperor was pleased with the thing, and said:

"We will put it at once to a practical test. The day after to-morrow have your engine ready; we will have it coupled to my saloon carriage and then fire away. When going at full speed I will unexpectedly give the signal to stop, and then we will see how the apparatus works."

At the appointed time the emperor entered his carriage and the engineer mounted his engine and on they went for a considerable distance. Indeed, the young engineer began to suspect that the emperor had fallen asleep, when the train suddenly came to a sharp curve round the edge of a cliff, on turning which the driver saw to his horror an immense bowlder lying on the rails.

He had just sufficient presence of mind to turn the crank of his brake and pull up the engine within a couple of yards of the fatal block.

Here the emperor put his head out of the window and asked what they were stopping for. The engineer pointed to the piece of rock, on seeing which Dom Pedro burst into a merry laugh.

"Push the thing on one side" he called out to the engineer, who had jumped down from the locomotive, and when the latter in his confusion blindly obeyed and kicked the stone with his foot it crumbled into dust.

It was a block of starch that Dom Pedro had ordered to be placed on the rails the night before.—Boston Globe.

MRS. JAMES G. BLAINE.

The Worthy Helpmate of Her Distinguished Husband.

Where She First Met and Married the Man She Loved—Her Ability as a Letter-Writer—Other Points of Interest.

Harriet B. Stanwood Blaine was born in 1830 at Augusta, Me., whither her parents had removed from Ipswich, Mass. Her father, Jacob Stanwood by name, was of the purest Puritan lineage, and of extreme pride of ancestry. Harriet was the fifth child in a family of seven, four of whom were girls. She received her education at home, under the care of private teachers. In the spring of 1848, says the Ladies' Home Journal, she went to Kentucky to join her sisters, Caroline and Sarah, who were teaching in the Female collegiate institute at Georgetown. The sisters were women of high standing and good education, and much respected by all who knew them. Harriet was the brightest of the three sisters, both in her mental and social qualities, and soon became a great favorite.

The principal of the Female collegiate institute at Georgetown, where the Misses Stanwood were teaching—Thornton F. Johnson—remained in that city in 1847 the Western military institute, to which, in October of that year, James Gillespie Blaine, a young Pennsylvanian, came to assume the position of assistant professor of languages, Latin and Greek. Young Blaine, a graduate of Washington college, but nineteen years of age, came with high recommendations for scholarship and ability, which he soon merited, and the following year, upon the removal of the senior professor to Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. Blaine succeeded to the chair of languages.

In the latter part of 1850 the Female collegiate institute, with its staff of teachers, was moved from Georgetown to Millersburg, the county seat of Bourbon county, Ky., and about the same time the Western military institute was removed to Blue Lick, also in the same state.

During the two years of the institute's location in Georgetown, Mr. Blaine and Miss Stanwood became close friends, their similarity of ages, dispositions and pursuits forming a strong bond of attachment. The resultant engagement was followed, after the separation of the two colleges, by their marriage in the parlor of the seminary at Millersburg.

Mrs. Blaine has been the mother of seven children, only one of whom, her oldest, Stanwood, died in childhood. The others are Emmons, Walker, Alice, James G., Jr., Margaret and Harriet. Of the many sorrows which have come to Mr. and Mrs. Blaine in later years, the heaviest has been the sad deaths of their son, Walker, and their eldest daughter, Alice, wife of Maj. Coppinger, of the United States army; and the untimely death of their son Emmons. Of the other children all but one, the youngest daughter, Harriet, have married.

Mrs. Blaine has been a most devoted mother to her children, receiving from them the most extravagant devotion in return for her years of unselfish care. She is a most brilliant and charming hostess and delightful conversationalist, with fine command of words and graphic power of description.

In appearance Mrs. Blaine is pleasing. She is rather tall, and in figure is inclined to stoutness. Her hair is changing rapidly from gray to white, and is always well and tastefully arranged. Her eyes are a blue-gray; her taste in dress is quiet but elegant. Her favorite color for street wear is brown, while her evening dresses are of soft grays.

To be one of Mrs. Blaine's correspondents is the desire of all who know her. Her letters are remarkable for their beauty of expression, cleverness and originality. Not the least of her accomplishments with the pen is her rare facility of expression through the medium of telegraph blanks. Her dispatches of condolence or congratulation are unusual examples of brevity and meaning.

Unconsciousness, unworldliness, unselfishness and truthfulness, a power to make those who know her enthusiastically devoted to her, an industry almost limitless in its accomplishment, cheerfulness which never fails in the darkest of crises, and frankness—these are the characteristics of the woman who, though so little known in her own personality, has reflected in her husband's brilliant successes the strength and nobility of her life.

Mrs. Mossman Was Petrified.

In June, 1884, Mrs. Abigail Mossman was interred at the Hazelwood cemetery in Poweshiek county, Ia. Not long since relatives determined to remove the remains to another cemetery. The workmen engaged to perform the job found the coffin filled to overflowing with red colored mineral water. This was drained off, whereupon it was found that the corpse, with the exception of the fingers and toes, was perfectly petrified. The hair was perfectly natural, as was also a bouquet of roses that lay on her breast. After a thorough examination by relatives and friends the coffin was again closed and covered up.

A Natural Mystery.

"Why?"

"Every night I can hear ghostly sighing and whistling. It seems to come from the pipes, and I believe the place is haunted."

THE PANAMA SCANDAL

Ministry Not Considered Sufficiently Purged.

M. Eiffel Quails Visibly Under the Caustic Words of the Presiding Judge—He Makes Damaging Admissions Regarding the Money He Had Received.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—A strong feeling is expressed that Premier Ribot has not sufficiently purged the Ministry of those who, whether innocent or guilty, have been under suspicion in connection with the Panama scandal.

In deference to this overwhelming public demand for a further reconstruction of the ministry, M. Ribot had a long conversation with Admiral Gervais, Chief of the Department of Marine and of the Colonies in regard to accepting the Ministry of Marine and of the Colonies in place of M. Burdeau. Admiral Gervaise, however, declines the Ministry of Marine and Colonies. His ostensible reason is that he prefers to devote himself to his present naval duties, as thereby he can better serve the interests of France.

At the Cabinet Council, after a discussion of Admiral Gervais' declination, it was decided to detach the Colonies from the Marine and attach them to the Department of Commerce, under M. Siegfried. The Marine portfolio will be offered at once probably to another high naval officer.

The Cabinet Council decided not to make a ministerial statement before the Chamber, but to give any explanations which deputies might request.

M. EIFFEL QUAILED.

The Judge Openly Censures Him During the Conspiracy Trial.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The trial of Charles de Lesseps, Marius Fontane, Baron Cottu, and M. Eiffel, accused of complicity in the Panama Canal frauds, was continued in the Court of Appeal and gave much valuable information regarding the bribery of newspapers to prevent hostile attacks upon the company, and also to prevent the publication of matter that would have shown the true condition of affairs on the Isthmus of Panama.

M. Fontane stated that he had held the position as manager of the company's press affairs until 1885, when the exactions of the newspapers became so heavy that he was compelled to abandon the post. Since that time he had been merely the private secretary of M. de Lesseps.

M. Fontane stated that he had distributed to the press only 60,000 francs in drafts payable to bearer.

Interest in the proceedings centered in the examination of M. Eiffel, the contractor. The questions put to him by the court resulted in lively fencing between the President and M. Eiffel's lawyers, who raised objection after objection to the interrogations. The legal sparring occupied considerable time and afforded amusement to the audience.

Finally M. Eiffel admitted that he had cashed checks for 12,000,000 francs, which had ostensibly been drawn to pay for machinery, while he had actually only expended 1,500,000 francs for that purpose.

It required considerable questioning to bring M. Eiffel to the admission that, besides the 2,000,000 francs given to M. Hebrard and the 2,000,000 francs given to Baron de Reinach, 2,000,000 had been paid by him to a certain contractor whose favor, like that of Hebrard and Reinach, was indispensable to success. Presiding Judge Perivier then asked:

"What did you do with the 6,000,000 received by you for taking to pieces and shipping to the Isthmus and there reconstructing machinery, which, as a matter of fact, you never even supplied in this country?"

"I kept that sum because it formed part of my remuneration for the risk I was undertaking," lamely replied M. Eiffel.

"I consider such a transaction void," replied Judge Perivier, severely, "since it was the result of an error, to say nothing more. The Prosecutor-General will tell you more about this at the subsequent sittings of this court."

M. Eiffel visibly quailed under these words, and the audience rose to their feet to get a better view of the manner in which he bore the reproof.

Judges for the Yale-Harvard Debate.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 12.—The Yale and Harvard unions have been unable to secure the services of Profs. Hadley, of Yale, and Taussig, of Harvard, as judges of the debate at Cambridge on Jan. 18, and Prof. Seligman, of Columbia, and President Andrews, of Brown University, will officiate instead. The third judge will probably be Speaker Barrett, of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

No Trouble at Coal Creek.

KNOXVILLE, Jan. 12.—The report that went out apparently from Knoxville stating that trouble is imminent at Coal Creek between free miners and militia over convict miners is without foundation. In fact, the mountains are in such a condition from the heavy snow drifts that operations against the fort would be impossible.

Want the Receivership Vacated.

SENATOR KENNA.

Funeral Services in the Senate Chamber To-day—His Career.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The death of Senator John E. Kenna, of West Virginia, was announced to the Senate by Mr. Blackburn. A committee of seven Senators—Faulkner, Blackburn, Ransom, Daniel, Walthall, Manderson and Squire—was appointed to take charge of the funeral ceremonies in the Senate this afternoon and to accompany the body to West Virginia.

The direct cause of Senator Kenna's death was heart disease, from which he had been for some years an acute sufferer, so much so that for long intervals he had been compelled to abandon his duties as Senator and to forego all mental exertion.

Two summers ago, with a view of diverting his mind from his physical ailments, he established an amateur boat builder's shop and busied himself in the mechanical operation of constructing a boat. He partially recovered and resumed his seat in the Senate, and made one memorable speech which was remarkable, both for its length and vigor, but he soon suffered a relapse, from which he never rallied.

His sufferings during the last few months of his life, from heart spasms, were so poignant that to himself as well as to his family, death must have been looked upon as almost welcome.

Mr. Kenna was born in 1848, and was consequently only 45 years of age—the youngest man in the Senate.

His birthplace was Valcoulon, Va., since incorporated into West Virginia.

He worked on a farm until the outbreak of the civil war, when he entered the Confederate Army as a private, and fought through to the end.

His afterwards studied and practised law until elected to Congress. He served six years in the Lower House, and in 1883 was elected to the Senate as a Democrat to succeed Henry S. Davis, the father-in-law of Secretary Stephen B. Elkins, and the business associate of James G. Blaine.

His term of service would have expired in 1895.

His death, at this time, will add a new feature to the Senatorial contest now in progress between the supporters of his colleague, Senator Faulkner, and ex-Senator Camden, who are contending for the Senatorship now held by Mr. Faulkner, which will expire on the fourth of March next.

Mr. Kenna's Washington residence was on Capitol Hill, at 130 B street, N. E., and it was there he died.

THE KANSAS ASSEMBLY.

A Truce Decided Upon—Split in the Populists' Ranks.

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 12.—The political vendetta declared yesterday by the Populists and Republican members of the House of Representatives against each other has been abandoned. Arbitration has taken its place. Last night's turn of the legislative kaleidoscope has brought about entirely unlooked for and surprising conditions.

The changed aspect of affairs present two phases. One of them is that the double-barrelled legislature tired itself out last night and both sides consented to an adjournment until to-day.

The other surprising phase of the matter is that the Populist party in Kansas evidently has two factions. One of these factions headed by Jerry Simpson, had determined upon insisting that the Republican members whose seats were contested should not vote. That faction was composed of the Populist House and had counted upon its recognition by Gov. Lewelling and the Senate as the legally and constitutionally organized House.

But the Governor and the Senate, who with other Populist leaders comprise the more conservative element of the party, refused to grant such recognition.

Thus the scheme of the more radical Populists is balked by members of their own party, and in addition to their fight against the Republicans they have an internal fight.

AWARDED TO THE CRAMPS.

Secretary Tracy Gives That Firm the Contract for the Brooklyn and Iowa.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Secretary Tracy has awarded the contracts for constructing the armored cruiser Brooklyn and the sea going battle ship Iowa, to the firm of William Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia, at its bid of $2,986,000 for the Brooklyn, and $3,010,000 for the Iowa.

This settles the controversy as to the necessity and fairness of allowing one of the vessels to be built on the Pacific coast and also as to the right of the Secretary to award the bids on plans prepared by the bidder.

Tunnel Company Incorporated.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—The Westchester & Long Island Island Tunnel Railroad company has been incorporated with a capital of $100,000. The company will operate a tunnel road from some eligible point on the shore of Long Island Sound in the town of Westchester, under the waters of Long Island Sound to a point in or near College Point, Queens county, a total length of two miles.

New City Hall for New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—At the meeting of the Municipal Building Commission it was decided to erect a new Municipal building on the site of the present City Hall. It is proposed to make it one of the city's greatest ornaments. A committee has been appointed by the Mayor to prepare for advertising for plans and pecifications for the building.

For a Bridge Across the Passaic.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 12.—Two deeds have been recorded with the County Clerk which convey authority to the New York Bay Railroad company to construct a bridge across the Passaic River. The line will join the Pennsylvania tracks at Harrison and thus effect an entrance to Jersey City.

GEN. BUTLER'S FUNERAL

Simple Services to Precede the Removal of the Body.

INTERMENT WILL BE AT LOWELL.

The General Had Predicted That His Death Would be a Sudden One—Profound Sorrow Caused by His Demise—What He Requested for His Epitaph.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The body of General Butler will be removed from the residence of his relatives where he died, to the railroad station at 3 o'clock this afternoon, whence it will be taken to Lowell, Mass.

The exercises at the house prior to the removal of the body will be brief and of a very simple character.

Ex-Gov. Ames, General Butler's son-in-law, arrived in the city last night and will return with the remains to their last resting place.

The news of Gen. Butler's death came upon the watching newspaper men of Washington during the night with the suddenness of an electric shock. For weeks past their attention had been centered on the bedside of James G. Blaine and while watching the strange fluctuations of his mysterious illness no one had for a moment anticipated that another leading figure in American history—almost as notable and even more picturesque—was about to be removed.

General Butler's home in Washington of late years, since he turned over to the Government the use of his big granite castle on Capitol Hill, had been in a handsome brick residence owned by him at 220 New Jersey avenue, southeast, also in the neighborhood of the Capitol.

There his two nieces, Mrs. Lanier Dunn and Miss Stevens, kept house for him. His extensive law practice kept him very much in this city during the winter months, when the Supreme Court is in session.

Gen. Butler came over from New York on Friday last. He was taken ill on the train but recovered and no marked premonitions of his sudden death manifested themselves. There had been some apparent increase of feebleness in his gait recently, but not more so than might be expected from his advanced age—74.

This was partly due to his increasing bulk and the fact that he had exceptionally small feet and week ankles upon which to support so heavy a weight. His faculties remained unimpaired.

He went to the War Department after leaving the court in the afternoon looking after some business, and during the day took a severe cold which later developed into pneumonia.

Nevertheless he sat down to dinner at his home with his accustomed cheerfulness and afterward sat chatting with the members of the household.

The subject of sudden death was one upon which he had frequently spoken and he had predicted that he would go off like a flash some day. He had no dread of sudden death; on the contrary he had said frequently he would prefer to go suddenly rather than to linger and suffer.

He spoke of Mr. Blaine in this connection at dinner and asked how he was. Being informed that he was holding his own, he replied: "Mark me, he will outlive us all yet."

HIS EPITAPH.

The Words General Butler Asked to be Placed on His Grave.

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 12.—Upon receiving news of Gen. Butler's death, Mayor Peckman ordered all flags on public buildings to be placed at half mast and called a special meeting of both branches of the City Council for to-night to take formal action upon the decease of their distinguished fellow citizen.

In a speech in Lowell Jan. 29, 1890, Gen. Butler said: "When you bear me to that little inclosure on the other side of the river, which I hope for as my last resting place, I pray you put over me for my epitaph:

"'Here lies the general who saved the lives of his soldiers at Big Bethel and Fort Fisher, and who never commanded the Army of the Potomac.'

"I ask," he said, "for nothing else."

Senator Kenna's Death Causes an Early Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mr. Kenna's death was announced in the Senate at the opening of the proceedings by Mr. Blackburn, of Kentucky, in the absence in West Virginia of the dead Senator's colleague, Mr. Faulkner.

The Senate thereupon adjourned.

No business but the reception of the Banking committee's majority and minority reports on the repeal of the Sherman act was done in the House. Senator Kenna's death was announced, and the House adjourned.

Democratic Caucus in Hartford.

Populist Gov. White's First Act.

DENVER, Jan. 12.—Peter Augusto, under sentence of death for the killing of Harry Sullivan, has been granted a respite of 90 days. This was the first act of the Populist Governor, Davis H. White, who is opposed to capital punishment.

HISCOCK HONORED.

Nominated by the Republicans at Albany for United States Senator.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—The joint Republican caucus to nominate a candidate for the United States Senate was held in the Assembly Chamber last night. Senator O'Connor called the caucus to order.

Senator Hunter was made chairman. He said that all that was proposed was to confer what was called an empty honor upon some member of the Republican party. The lesson to be learned from the present situation of the Republican party was the need for unity. The person to be named should be named unanimously and should receive every vote.

Senator Aspinall and Howard P. Foster, of Albany, were made secretaries.

Senator Smith presented the name of Senator Frank Hiscock.

Mr. Wykoff said that Mr. Hiscock had served the party honestly and well, and he deserved the gratitude of that party.

Senator Coggeshall said that for his long services to his party, the State, and the nation, Senator Hiscock enjoyed the respect, the confidence, and the admiration of all.

Senator O'Connor said that he did not propose to raise a note of discord in the caucus.

If it were worth while to make a fight over the nomination, if the voice of the caucus could be made a reality, if the naming meant an election, he would feel disposed to present the name of that young, fearless, and uncompromising Republican who led the canvass in 1891—J. S. Fassett.

Mr. Hiscock's nomination was made unanimously, and the caucus adjourned.

NO RELIEF AT CINCINNATI.

Coal Dealers Now Refuse to Sell to Small Consumers at Any Price.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—No relief appears in sight for those affected by the action of the coal dealers' combine. Coal merchants refuse to sell to small consumers at any price. They are husbanding what they have in their yards and elevators for the unavoidable fulfilment of contracts with large consumers.

The abnormal condition of things just now—the river gorged with ice, navigation absolutely closed and the thermometer down to zero—is causing intense suffering among the poorer elements of the people.

Unless coal can be brought in by rail consigned to dealers outside the combine, it is hard to foretell the limit to which the suffering may extend.

DISGUSTED MINERS RETURNING.

The San Juan Gold Fields Exist Only in Imagination.

MANCOS, Col., Jan. 12.—The great San Juan gold fields are now declared to be a fake of the first water, and the rush homeward has started. Between 75 and 100 angry men came in here yesterday from the south, and hundreds are following them as rapidly as their means of transportation will permit.

All are loud in their denunciation of those who originated the stories of rich placers, and large rewards are offered for any reliable clue as to their identification.

The situation would be ludicrous were it not for the fact that many of these deluded men risked every dollar they owned in the undertaking.

DID NOT RIDICULE THE POPE.

The Rev. Dr. Funk Denies the Statements Attributed to Dr. McGlynn.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Rev. Dr. Funk was seen by a reporter last evening in regard to the published account of the reception given Rev. Dr. McGlynn at the former's house, during which it was stated that the latter had delivered an address ridiculing the Pope.

Dr. Funk said that not a word had been uttered which could be considered improper, and that every allusion made by Dr. McGlynn to the Pope and Monsignor Satolli was most respectful.

Dr. Funk accused the reporter present (unknown to the assemblage) of eavesdropping, and with misrepresenting facts.

Creditors Will Wait No Longer.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Jan. 12.—An execution for the sale of the Witherow Iron plant here has been issued in behalf of the Totten & Hogg Iron and Steel company of Pittsburg. Mr. Witherow has failed to raise money to operate the plant as was expected and his creditors will wait no longer. The liabilities of the firm are said to exceed $500,000.

Brooklyn Firm's Dry Dock Attached.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Jan. 12.—The dry dock leased by Simpson & Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., was seized by the Newfoundland government owing to the firm being $34,000 in arrears for rent.

A Train Frozen Fast to the Track.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—The Diamond special from St. Louis, met with a strange experience which delayed the train four hours. While taking water at Gibson, this State, the overflow from the tank congealed on the tracks under the tender and froze the wheels fast to the track. The trainmen cut the ice away, but to no purpose and the train was stuck fast until another engine came to its relief.

Mrs. Marshall Will Recover.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Walter Marshall, who was shot by her husband on Tuesday night after he had killed Robert Dingfelder, her suspected lover, and before he killed himself, is in Bellevue hospital and will in all probability recover. Her three bullet wounds are all in the flesh and ought to heal rapidly.

He is a Valuable Burro Now.

DURANGO, Mex., Jan. 12.—A burro, loaded with $5,000 worth of silver bars, is roaming at large in the mountains around the town of Pueblo Nevva, if he has not been relieved of his valuable burden by robbers. He wandered unobserved away from a train of burros carrying silver to this city.

On Trial for Hazing.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 12.—The trial of Naval Cadet Leland F. James of South Carolina for hazing has begun here. Naval cadets Hutch J. Cone, Richard J. Fellows, J. J. Bryant and C. S. Jones testified for the prosecution. No direct testimony was developed against Cadet James.

Ice Jam in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—On account of an unusual jam of ice in the East and North rivers navigation throughout the day was effected with extreme difficulty. Many of the ferryboats could not reach their slips, and with their loads of passengers were wedged in the ice for hours.

INDIGNANT AT BROWN

Chestertown Excited at the Governor's Action.

THE CRIMINALS AT BALTIMORE.

Loud Talk of Lynching the Four Murderers Whose Sentences Were Not Commuted—Maryland's Governor Gives Reasons for Sparing the Young Negroes.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Jan. 12.—Intense excitement reigns in Kent county. Four of the octette of murderers who assassinated Dr. J. H. Hill have been removed from this place. Their sentences have been commuted by Gov. Brown.

Those whose lives are spared are Henry Hurtt, Joshua Balnard, Charles Emery and Lewis Benson.

Those who are left and who will surely hang to-morrow, if they are not lynched before, are Charles Brooks, Moses Brown, Fletcher Williams and Frisby Comegys.

Sheriff Plummer was awakened early yesterday morning and informed that Captain Cadwallader of Baltimore was at the door with 30 policeman and an order from Gov. Brown for four of the condemned prisoners, whose sentences had been commuted to life imprisonment.

"I charge you," the order went on to say, "to be careful that secrecy is preserved and that these men are delivered instantly aboard the vessel which goes for them and safely conducted to the Maryland penitentiary. Caution your deputies that secrecy must be observed and nothing must interfere with this order."

The criminals were carefully awakened and in a few minutes were on their way to the ice boat Latrobe, the vessel on which Captain Cadwallader had arrived. A few persons came to the wharf as the Latrobe steamed away for Baltimore, but they did not know what had happened until hours later.

Excitement and indignation amounting almost to madness followed the discovery. Remarks were made that it would be dangerous for the Governor to be seen about the town now that the murderers had been commuted.

Crowds gathered in the neighborhood of the jail and in all places of public resort and discussed the matter in loud tones. There seemed to be but one opinion—that the eight men should have been hanged.

Lewis Justice, a prominent merchant, appeared to voice the sentiment of the excited populace when he said:

"You can hardly realize the pitch of excitement to which the people are worked. If the secret had leaked out the police would not have had so easy a job to get those men."

GOV. BROWN'S REASON.

Maryland's Executive Tells Why He Commuted the Sentences.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12.—Of the eight colored men and boys who were sentenced to be hanged at Chestertown to-morrow for the murder of Dr. J. H. Hill, of Kent county, last summer, four are now in the penitentiary at Baltimore.

These are Joshua Brainard, Lewis Benson, Henry Hurtt, and Charles Emory. Their sentences were commuted by Gov. Brown to imprisonment for life at hard labor.

Gov. Brown gives the following, among other reasons, for commuting the sentences:

"I had to protect the fair name of Maryland. Such a wholesale execution as this would have been has never been heard of before in the criminal annals of the country. The whole country was aroused over it.

"The murdered man will be amply avenged, the outraged law of the State will be carried out by the execution of the four whose sentences have not been commuted, and the fair name of Maryland will be preserved from the stain that would have been inflicted on it by the execution of those ignorant boys who were in all probability the unwilling witnesses of a crime that they were powerless to prevent."

FLEMING FOUND GUILTY.

The Authoress' Son Convicted of Manslaughter, Second Degree.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 12.—The jury in the case of Frederick Fleming, charged with the killing of Patrick Taylor on July 10 last, returned a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree.

Fleming, who is the son of May Agnes Fleming, the authoress, met Taylor in a saloon, and an altercation arose over the Homestead troubles.

On leaving the saloon the two renewed the quarrel, which culminated in Taylor attempting to strike Fleming.

The latter resented this by striking back. Taylor fell to the sidewalk, and, his head striking the curb, fractured his skull.

Taylor died the next day.

Kidnapped and Held for Ransom.

HAVANA, Jan. 12.—Ignacio Herrara, son of Count Barreto Herrara, was kidnapped yesterday from a plantation near San Antonio de las Vegas by four bandits, among them being Manuel Garcia and the notorious mulatto, Plasencia. The bandits declare that they will not release the captive until they receive $2,000. A detachment of troops has been sent in pursuit of the robbers.

Found Frozen to Death.

KINGSTON, Jan. 12.—Eliza Wharton, aged about 50 years, living alone on Shawangunk mountain, was found frozen to death a short distance from her home. Indications point to her having left home during the severe gale for a pail of water, as a pail partially filled with the water frozen, was lying close by her side.

Trial of the Homestead "Poisoners."

PITTSBURG, Jan. 12.—The Homestead poisoning cases are to be taken up in the Criminal Court to-day, when Hugh Dempsey, District Master Workman of the K. of L., J. M. Davidson and Robert Beatty will be placed on trial.

$5,000 FOR HIS FOOT.

John T. Hill Claims These Damages for What the Railroad Says is His Own Fault.

At the Circuit court, Elizabeth, yesterday, the case of John T. Hill vs. the Central Railroad company, to recover damages was called and a jury impaneled.

The plaintiff in this case, Mr. Hill, is eighty-four years old and resides at 7 Washington street, this city. On the afternoon of May 9, 1891, Mr. Hill being desirous of visiting his son who lives at Somerville, left his home for the purpose of taking the 3.34 o'clock train from Plainfield, but unfortunately boarded a train which went no further than Dunellen.

The Dunellen train which Mr. Hill boarded was several minutes late on reaching Plainfield, and consequently arrived in the station at the time the Somerville train was due, consequently it was due to this fact that Mr. Hill mistook the train for the one he was waiting for.

The train had not proceeded far when Mr. Hill was informed by the conductor of his mistake and that he must change at Dunellen. When the train arrived at Dunellen Mr. Hill proceeded to alight, but before he could step from the platform of the car the train began to back, when by the sudden jolt caused thereby he lost his balance and fell heavily to the ground and in endeavoring to get up he accidentally pushed his right foot beneath the train and it was so horribly crushed and mangled by the wheels that it had to be amputated above the ankle.

Mr. Hill says that he was one of the last persons to attempt to get off the train, and he holds that had due caution been exercised by the conductor and train men that the accident would not have occurred. Mr. Hill is at present confined to his bed, and is therefore unable to be present at court in person. He is represented by Mr. Lindubury.

The case will be given to the jury today. The railroad company believe they have a clear case because Mr. Hill was getting off a moving train. It is said that Jackson & Codington of this city refused to take Mr. Hill's case as they felt he would lose and they could not consistently take his retainer.

THE VERDICT—HILL WINS.

The case reached the jury at 10:45 this morning. At 12:35 a verdict was given for the full amount, $5,000. The company will appeal.

TWO NEGROES IN THE TOILS.

They Are Accused of Stealing William E. Johnson's Property and Maliciously Damaging Pool Tables.

Benjamin Perkins, a North Plainfield negro, was held for the grand jury by justice Wadsworth last night on the charge of burglary. It is charged that he and Boyle VanLiew, a Plainfield negro, broke into William E. Johnson's pool room at 34 East Front street, the night of Jan. 3, and stole a snuff box, some cash, and pool balls, besides slashing the pool tables with a knife.

Johnson swore out a search warrant before justice Crosley, and marshal Pangborn searched the premises and found the snuff box. Perkins was arrested. At the trial last night it was shown that he and VanLiew had sought to enter Johnson's room and that VanLiew had been refused admission. Perkins then went in alone, and before sitting down to play cards slipped back a window fastening so as to make entering easy. He and VanLiew were known to have threatened to "lay for" Johnson. "Confidential friends" told of the two accused men's damaging admissions.

After judge Wadsworth gave his decision concerning Perkins, VanLiew was arrested, and will be tried this afternoon.

The Carnival Date Changed.

The National skate and bicycle syndicate have decided to hold the great Columbus skating carnival on Tuesday night, Jan. 24, instead of Thursday, Jan. 26, as previously advertised. Several of the prizes are now on exhibition at the North Avenue pharmacy opposite the railroad station, and tickets will be on sale there six days before the date of the carnival.

The admission to-night at the rink, including the use of skates, will be only twenty-five cents. There will be no music.

On Saturday night the Citizens Band will furnish music, and on Saturday afternoon all neatly-clad school children will be admitted without tickets free.

Somerville to Hire Only a Battery Next Season.

The West End Athletic association of Somerville had their annual meeting on Tuesday evening at which time new officers were elected. A resolution passed by the club forbids the employing of anything except a professional battery in the future, the rest of the team to be always of amateurs. The association spent over $6,000 in the past year but claim that a nice balance still remains in the treasury.

Frozen to Death.

An unknown man was found frozen to death yesterday morning in a small house on the farm of Taylor Jelliffe, near Bound Brook. He was discovered by two men driving along the road who saw his body through a window. He was about thirty years of age and poorly dressed. The house has been unoccupied for some time.

Get the Genuine.

If you suffer with lame back, especially in morning, ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS are a sure relief.

If you cannot sleep, try an ALLCOCK PLASTER, well up between the shoulder blades—often relieves—sometimes cures Try this before you resort to opiates.

If any of your muscles are lame—joints stiff—feel as if they wanted oiling—or if you suffer with any local pains or aches, these plasters will cure you.

If you use them once you will realize why so many plasters have been made in imitation of them. Like all good things they are copied as closely as the law allows. Don't be duped by taking an imitation when it is as easy to get the genuine.

If you always insist upon having ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS and never accept a substitute, you will not be disappointed.

AN EQUINE JOB.

This Horse Had a Marvelous Series of Mishaps, and Finally Died of His Trouble.

About the middle of last November, one of the sorrel team of Hoagland's express ran a nail into his foot.

To reduce the fever in the foot, the horse was turned out in a wet pasture. When he was brought in at night it was found that he had broken the os suffraginis, a short bone between the hoof and fetlock in his left front leg. Dr. Pocock was summoned, and the broken leg was firmly bound in a plaster cast. A sling was placed under the horse, and he was left for four weeks for the bone to repair. He kept in perfect health and was on the mend. About Christmas the sling was removed, also the plaster cast, and the horse was left free to lie down if he chose.

He seemed afraid to do so, and stood up for a week, principally on three legs, only slightly resting on the broken one; then it was noticed that the well front leg was giving way from the constant strain. The muscles had been overtaxed and stretched, so that his well front leg was bent backward like his hind legs. The horse was then thrown, and lay down for the first time in six weeks. While the doctor was still there, the horse went sound asleep and dreamed; he moved his legs as if he dreamed he was trotting, and snored in perfect bliss.

All went well until one day he got up and ate some feed left in a manger by another horse. Not being used to ground feed, acute indigestion set in, and he died.

During his illness twenty grains of morphine had no effect on him. One-eighth of a grain is a dose for a man; a horse may safely take ten times as much. He was given ten grains the first injection, and ten more one hour afterwards, but it seemed not to lessen his pain at all. After death the broken leg was amputated, and the bone was found to have been shattered into no less than ten distinct pieces. Although so badly shattered, the process of repair was going on nicely, and the bone would ultimately have become solid again and the horse practically as good as ever.

A MAN AND A HORSE KILLED.

Blue Line Flier No. 510 Badly Injures Jacob Smalley, Kills His Horse and Then Knocks the Life Out of Jacob Cunningham.

The Blue Line flier No. 510, Engine 388, known as the "Washington Express", struck a man at Fisher's crossing just west of Bound Brook at noon yesterday, as told exclusively in these columns. The man was Jacob Smalley, a carpenter, living in the village. He was just driving on the crossing when he saw a coal train coming. He waited until it had passed and then drove on the track.

He saw the express when not more than twenty feet from him and tried to pull the horse back, knowing he could not get across. The train struck and killed the horse instantly and threw Smalley into the air a distance of thirty feet. He landed on his head not more than a foot from the rails.

When picked up he was unconscious but regained his senses in about an hour. He was severely cut about the head and shoulders but his injuries will not prove fatal. The crossing is a doubly dangerous one as there are no gates and a view of the track is cut off by a high bank for nearly half a mile.

The same train a few moments later at Greenbrook tanks struck and killed John Cunningham, a moulder, employed in the Singer machine works at Elizabethport. He was walking on the track with his ears muffled up and did not hear the warning whistle. He was 40 years old, married and had one child.

Somerville Wishes Their Victors a Speedy Resurrection.

(From The Somerset Messenger.)

The Plainfield Crescent League is a thing of the past. At a meeting held last week the members threw up the sponge and decided to disband. The club had become financially embarrassed and a few of its patriotic members had become tired of putting up the dust to keep the thing afloat. This is the reason assigned for the collapse, and there can be do doubt that the clip set by the West Ends the last year or two had much to do with the result. The Crescent management evidently believed that Plainfield could keep pace with an enterprising town like Somerville, and they perished in their attempt to prove it.

The League has done much for athletic sports in Plainfield during its brief career, and we think the people of the town are taking a long step backward in allowing it to dissolve. If it were merely a matter of finances, the crisis might have been averted by borrowing Louis Mack and some of our Somerville ladies to engineer a fair for them; if, again, it were, as some unkindly hint, in order to eliminate those members who contributed wind at the ball games instead of cash into the treasury, we have no criticisms to make.

The Crescents, in one way or another, have furnished the people of this town with much amusement in the past, and, out of pure selfishness if nothing more, we are sorry to write their obituary, and we wish for them a speedy and happy resurrection.

Amicably Adjusted.

Charles Ammerman, of Raritan, who was indicted by the last grand jury on a criminal complaint made by Annie Wyman, of the same place, who became a mother last November, was brought into court yesterday morning. He retracted his plea of not guilty made two weeks ago, and entered one of non vult. It is said that the case has been settled by the parties and that the charge will not be pressed any further.

—The grand jury came into court Wednesday morning and presented a batch of sixteen indictments after which they retired to complete their duties.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

A PLAINFIELDER DOWN EAST.

After an Eventful Voyage on the Storm-Tossed Sound, He Spends an Interesting Sabbath in Boston, Where Churches, Skating Ponds, and Y. M. C. A. Reading Rooms Are Alike Wide Open.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—THE PRESS has no doubt many readers in Plainfield who formerly lived in the Bay State and have never lost their interest in the Hub. Then I do not forget that one of your citizens is connected with the great transportation route to this point that is a favorite of the traveling public even in the winter time. I refer of course to Leander Lovell of the Fall River line of steamers.

That line was put to a very severe test, as I can bear witness, in the severe snow storm of last Thursday night. The good steamer Providence had to face a gale that at times reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour, and lashed the waters of the Sound into a heaving sea. But the vessel was guided on its way with great caution, and before it reached the point on its course where the waters of the ocean made their movements felt, the steamer was placed safely at anchor under the shelter of an island where it waited several hours for the storm to abate, as well as to be assured of the greater safety that daylight would afford in making the remaining and most perilous part of the voyage.

The passengers appreciated the careful management, though they were to be many hours late in reaching Boston. It was expected that the delay would be lessened by landing the passengers at Newport, but when the steamer reached that point it was found that no train was in waiting. The eager multitude had been crowding about the place of exit ready to disembark, but upon hearing the disappointing news they went back good-naturedly to the saloon deck to take a further sail of two hours to Fall River.

This meant that Boston could not be reached until 4 p. m., instead of 1:30 if a train had been ready at Newport. Thereby hangs a tale which has not been told in print. It gives a denial to the old saying that "a corporation has no soul". The entire party of 300 passengers before reaching Fall River were invited to be guests of the company at an appetizing lunch, which proved in fact to be as good a dinner as anyone could wish for.

I did n't observe that any one rushed into print as soon as we reached Boston to tell the people of this generous act. If some trespass upon their rights, so-called, had occurred, the growlers could not have uttered their wail too soon where the world should hear it.

You know how it is yourself. A newspaper can do a man a favor nine times out of ten and not get a "thank you" for it. But if the tenth time the paper happens to to tread on his toes, he rushes into the office the next day mad enough to clean out the entire establishment.

The snow storm through which we made our way that night covered Boston streets to the depth of seven inches, and the city has been very merry with its jingling sleigh bells. Yesterday afternoon, if it was Sunday, all the fine driveways, of which there are many, were gay with the unnumbered equipages that glided along in the frosty air. Though with the coming of this pleasure that of the skater departed, the good city fathers had a snow-scraper at work that same afternoon cleaning a space on one of the ponds in the Common, and a thousand or more wicked little boys and girls mingled with their elders to take advantage of the thoughtful act of the municipality.

Let no one suppose from this that Boston has no Sunday in the American sense. It has been a common belief in New Jersey that Boston's Sunday was principally distinguished for its breakfast of baked beans and brown bread. But it is a mistake to think that it makes so much of sensual and material things. Boston's Sunday has a very religious side. The churches are well filled with worshipers. Crisp though the air was yesterday, and high the wind, saints of every name and degree congregated in large numbers.

One of the representative audiences was gathered in the Rev. Dr. E. E. Hale's church, and numbered about five hundred—a pretty fair proof that Unitarianism in Boston is not dying out as fast as it is reported to be. Nearly as many were present at the vesper service which was established in this church the first Sunday of this year. Mr. Hale, the cosmopolitan preacher, who had spoken in Plainfield several times and is known as a near relative of your indefatigable philanthropist, Mrs. Dr. Kimball, and her sister, Miss Everett, was in the pulpit, and gave a sermon that was as inspiring and helpful to men and women engaged in the practical affairs of this work-a-day world as anything he has spoken.

Passing from this church to the Episcopal church which Phillips Brooks made famous as the foremost preacher of America, the great auditorium was found to be packed with people listening to the earnest words and sonorous tones of the new rector, Rev. Mr. Donald.

But if anyone is still in doubt whether people in Boston go to church, let him step into Tremont Temple and see a Baptist congregation that numbers three thousand, drawn together not by any extraordinary occasion but by the usual service conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Lorrimer.

These are only a few specimens, and not all of them the best that can be given, of the interest shown in this city in Sunday church-going. Then what shall be said of special services like that held in Music Hall every Sunday afternoon, where from two to three thousand people have been gathered each Sunday for five or six years to lift up their protests against what they believe to be the encroachments of hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church. Their zeal is burning, and though it must seem to be a very foolish expenditure of labor to the tolerant mind, it is an evidence in point, after all, that religious enthusiasm is a long way from disappearing in this modern Athens.

That the old Puritan Sunday has gone, never to return, there is little doubt. Even the Young Men's Christian association has its reading room open during a part of Sunday,—a most commendable arrangement in a large city where there is a large population of young men who have no home but a boarding house, or, worse still, perhaps only a lodging room. A kindred organization known as the Young Men Christian union, which is under Unitarian auspices, has its fine reading room and parlors open on Sunday the same as on other days, and they are filled from morning to night with men of all ages.

I have already encroached too much upon your space, and must defer what else I may have to say until another occasion.

T. O. BULLOCK'S TROUBLES.

The Master of Arbor Vitæ Lodge Dodging Service Papers.

Blanche Douglass is adding to the notoriety she gained as the chum of the Malley boys at the time of their sensational trial for the mysterious murder of Jennie Cramer, near New Haven, by her recent marriage to Thomas O. Bullock, a rice broker, with an office at 125 Water street, New York. This woman has always had an unlucky faculty for getting her friends into trouble and her marriage to Bullock was no exception to the rule, for ever since that event Bullock has been hounded by two former wives. He has not been in his office for several months, except on Sundays, and it is believed he keeps away to prevent service of papers in several suits against him.

"Mr. Bullock married Blanche Douglass," said Albridge, of the law firm of Smith & White, representing Mrs. Bullock No. 2 in a suit to recover moneys alleged to have been loaned him by her, "in his summer home, Arbor Vitæ Lodge Farm, at Succasunna, N. J., on Aug. 23, 1892. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. E. W. Stoddard, Miss Douglass giving her name as Miss Gertrude Saunders, of Brooklyn."

Bullock is a portly man of fifty-six. He married for the first time in 1864, and his wife left him in 1877, receiving thereafter an allowance of $50 a month. She asked him in 1878 to increase this, when he coolly informed her that he had obtained a divorce from her in Utah.

Then, in 1879, he married Mrs. Ridgeway of this city, a young, pretty and rich widow, one of whose sisters was the first wife of Albert Hedden of West Fifth street, and another is the daughter-in-law of James Merritt. She put much of her money into Bullock's rice business, and spent money freely, it is claimed, fitting up a luxurious home on 123d street, New York, and the summer home at Succasunna.

All this happiness was spoiled by Blanche Douglass, with whom he had become so infatuated that it reached the ears of the first Mrs. Bullock, who also learned of the second marriage. She brought suit for divorce, and a decree was awarded her, with $100 a month alimony, Judge Truax ignoring the Utah decree.

Through this suit Mrs. Bullock No. 2 learned of Blanche Douglass and of Bullock's career, whereupon she left him and began a suit to recover the money she put into his business and the houses. Mrs. Bullock No. 1 added another straw to Bullock's load by beginning suit through Hobbs & Gifford to collect her alimony. It is to avoid service in these suits that Bullock is believed to stay away from his office in this State. Still another complication followed Bullock's last marriage. When his second wife left Succasunna she took a phæton to a livery stable in the village. Bullock broke into the stable and took a phæton away, but he got the wrong one, and is now defendant in a replevin suit. Meantime, Blanche Douglass Bullock is enjoying daily drives about Succasunna in it.

The lawyers for the first and second wives of Mr. Bullock claim that when the cases come to trial they will prove that Bullock has known Blanche Douglass for many years, and that he was once arrested for showering endearing terms upon her in the street with such vehemence that a big crowd gathered and he was arrested.

Arbor Vitæ Lodge farm is built on the plan of an English manor, with rustic bridges, winding paths, trim hedges, plenty of statuary, spacious lawns and every evidence of wealth. It is estimated to be worth $40,000. Bullock recently swore it was worth but $7,000 or $8,000. Blanche Douglass went there last May, it is said, although the marriage was not celebrated until three months later, as announced in a marriage notice shown a PRESS reporter by the second Mrs. Bullock.

A Remedy for Faded Clothes.

Don't say good-bye to that rusty and faded gown yet awhile. With a package of diamond dyes, you can easily make it look like new. Diamond dyes color cloaks, dresses, men's clothing, ribbons, carpets, everything, at the rate of about two pounds for ten cents.

Turn to the right medicine, if you're a weak or ailing woman. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If you're overworked or "run-down," it builds you up; if you're afflicted with any of the distressing derangements and disorders peculiar to your sex, it relieves and cures. It improves digestion, invigorates the system, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, produces refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. In the cure of all functional disturbances, weaknesses, and irregularities, it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or the money is refunded. It does all that's claimed for it, or it couldn't be sold in this way.

That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

It is a legitimate medicine—not a beverage. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrups or sugar to sour or ferment in the stomach and cause distress. As peculiar in its marvelous, remedial results as in its composition.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be, without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

Mr. Gotham—Ah, he became a commission merchant then.

Farmer Hayseed—In a small way, yes. You see, he doesn't get any goods to sell but mine. I farm, and he sells.

Mr. Gotham—I see. Well, how has he got along?

Farmer Hayseed—Fairly well, I should say. I'm still workin' th' farm, but he's got a mortgage on it.—Good News.

THE PRINCE OF MONACO.

Virtual Head of the Gambling House at Monte Carlo.

He Is a Scion of the Grimaldis Who Have Ruled the Little Principality for Nearly One Thousand Years—Trouble at Genoa.

For the first time since his ascent to the gilded throne of that delightful opera bouffe principality in the Riviera, the sovereign of Monaco has a war on his hands, says the Illustrated American.

It is only a war with a poor little two-sheet newspaper, published at Nice, but in view of the limited extent of the prince of Monaco's domains, the paltry number of his troops, and the scanty natural resources of his country, his opponent need not be thoroughly despised because of its diminutiveness.

L'Eclaireur, the journal that has ventured to oppose itself to the knight of the rolling wheel and the king of the green cloth, recently went so far as to question the propriety of the prince of Monaco's attendance at the imperial fetes at Genoa. According to L'Eclaireur, on the occasion of the Columbus celebration, at Genoa: "His majesty, King Humbert, notwithstanding the fact that he had neglected to invite this Albert Grimaldi, was obliged to conform to the requirements of the protocol, and to tolerate his presence and that of his spouse, at the same time forcing, in spite of himself, admirals and chiefs of squadrons to meet the head of the gambling house at Monte Carlo."

Of course, his serene highness the prince of Monaco could not allow such an affront to go unnoticed, and he at once instructed his lawyer to proceed against the unruly journal. Under the laws of France offenses against the heads of foreign states are liable to severe punishments, including both fines and imprisonment.

The affair in hand marks a crisis in the hostility which the offending journal has for years shown toward the sovereign of Monaco. L'Eclaireur alone, of all newspapers published in the Riviera, has steadfastly declined the bribes paid by the gambling casino at Monte Carlo, which is really the property of the prince of Monaco. Almost all of the prominent journals in France receive handsome subventions from the casino, and the saucy little sheet of Nice threatens to tell the whole shameless story of the wide-spread corruption in the trial of the suit brought against it by his serene highness Albert Grimaldi.

Monaco has been the possession of the Grimaldis for nearly a thousand years, they having acquired it in 968. Mentone, Roquebrune and Castillon were added to their sovereignty in 1220, and a few years later Antibes came under their sway. After the war of 1859 the entire territory fell for a time into the hands of Victor Emmanuel. The lawful owner protested to all the sovereigns of Europe against this ruthless seizure of a peaceful domain, and the matter was satisfactorily arranged two years later, when Napoleon III. bought Mentone and Roquebrune for 4,000,000 francs.

Monaco is now under French protection.

One thousand of the inhabitants are employed in the rooms and gardens of the celebrated casino. These gambling rooms, built at Monte Carlo on ground leased from the prince of Monaco, belong to a joint stock company, and are annually visited by about four hundred thousand pleasure seekers and gamblers of all descriptions and from many climes. The casino offers attractions and comforts of various kinds, which are free to all. Its gardens are world-renowned.

The present prince, Albert, was born in 1848 and succeeded to the throne in 1889. He has one son, Louis, by a marriage with Lady Mary Hamilton, which was dissolved in 1880.

The Lightest Metal.

"Some people seem to think that aluminium is the lightest metal in the world," said a gentleman who deals in all the fancy articles now made of that commodity, "but that is a mistake. The specific weight of magnesium is only one-third of that of aluminium, and is even more hard and durable. It is not as useful, however, as it catches fire very easily, even at the open hearth. It is not destined to crowd the popularity of aluminium, although up to a short time ago it was even the cheaper of the two."

ROMAN ARITHMETIC.

It Is Much Simpler Than Is Supposed by Most People.

The teacher of Latin in the high school of a western city was asked by one of the scholars how the Romans used their notation when they wished to make any calculation. Strange to say, this teacher could not give the required information, nor could any teacher in the school. The method of using the Roman numerals is very simple, nevertheless, says the Youth's Companion, and while perhaps longer and more tedious than the system we now employ, is equally accurate. We should be as familiar with it as with our own.

The only change that has to be made in the notation, as we now understand it, and as the Romans used it, is that the position of the letters makes no difference in the amounts represented. For instance, X and I always represent eleven, whether written XI or IX. Nine and four will have to be represented by VIIII and IIII, and not, as we are accustomed to contract them, by IX and IV; and so with all similar abbreviations.

In performing examples in addition, all that is necessary is to arrange the different denominations so that like amounts shall be placed under each other, and then proceed as in our present system. These denominations—in place of being, as in our decimal notation, units, tens, hundreds and thousands—are units, tens, tens, tens, hundreds, five hundreds and thousands. For example:

Add 99[1]—	DCCCCLXXXXVIIII
2646—MM	XXXXV
1648—M	DC XXXX IIII
927—	DCCCC XX VII
Total 5[00]	MMMMMDCCCCC X I

In subtraction, the same arrangement of letters will have to be observed; like denominations must be placed under each other, and when a perfect subtraction cannot be made enough must be borrowed from the next higher denomination, as in our present method. For example:

From 3345 —	MMM CCC XXXX V
Take 1682 —	MDC LXXX II
Remains 1663	MDC LX III

In multiplication it is more convenient to begin at the left, as in algebra; but the operation may be begun from the right, care being taken to keep like amounts under each other for aid in the addition afterward.

For example: What is the cost of 45 cows at $25.00 each?

45	XXXXV
125	CCL
100	CCL
	MC XXV

As the value of the Roman characters is always the same, no matter where they may be located, division may take place either from the right or from the left.

For example:

15)1125(75	XV)MCXXV(LXXV
105	DCCL
75	CCCLXXV
75	CL
	CL.
	LXXV

SARAGOSSA'S LEANING TOWER.

An Ancient Landmark Now Being Destroyed.

One of the famous leaning towers of the world—the only one that has ever been completed—is now being taken down. The Torre Nueva, which stands in the Plaza San Felipe at Saragossa, the capital of Aragon, is one of the finest examples of a brick-built tower at present existing. The tower, which was built in 1504, is about two hundred and seventy-five feet high, and stands some ten feet out of the perpendicular—a little less than the magnificent Campanile at Pisa, which leans over about thirteen feet. Tradition asserts that this departure from verticality was part of the original conception of the designers of such edifices. This, however, is not the case. When the Torre Nueva was restored in 1860 it was conclusively proved that its inclination was caused by defects of the foundations. The elaboration of this building by means of brick diaper work and tracery patterns gives it that rich appearance so frequently met with in Gothic-Moresque work, and causes it to be mistaken, when seen from a distance, for a Moorish tower. But on closer inspection, the design of the tracery, the treatment of the buttresses and the unmistakable pointed arches are seen to be distinctly Gothic. One hears with feelings of regret of the destruction of this picturesque structure, for so many years the pride of an old Spanish town; but, in a country which is a veritable mine of artistic and historic wealth, its loss will not be felt so much as it would be in a less favored land.

Singular Fact About Gems.

It is a rather singular fact that the most precious gems are composed of the most common substances. The diamond is the purest form of carbon, and is identical in composition with ordinary charcoal without the impurities of the latter. The ruby, on the other hand, is nearly pure alumina, a substance found in profusion in every clay bank. The scientific name for crystallized alumina is corundum, and the gems comprehended under this designation are sometimes more valuable than diamonds of the same weight. The ruby, the sapphire, the oriental emerald, topaz, amethyst, aqua marine, chrysolite, the hyacinth and other precious stones are all alumina, the varieties of color being caused by inappreciable quantities of metallic oxides.

A BOVINE MONSTER.

The Biggest Ox in the World Owned by a Pennsylvania Man.

Col. William M. Singerly, of Philadelphia, intends exhibiting at the world's fair the largest ox in the world. Just now, says the Illustrated American, his oxship is doing nothing but eating, drinking and sleeping, and is getting bigger every day at the colonel's stock farm at Gwynead, Pa. He is breaking all records in the growth of his kind as he waxes broad and heavy, keeping his trainers in a constant state of wonderment as to when he will quit growing. Already he has surpassed all other oxen on earth, which is saying a good deal when one considers how many of these beasts are browsing around in different parts of the world.

He is under the immediate charge of Jason Sexton, the foreman of the big farm.

The big ox occupies a box stall about the size of an ordinary city house. The illustration shows what he looks like, but it gives little idea of his size. Yet, with all its development, the animal isn't abnormally fat. His growth has been about the same in every part, and he is a perfect picture of health and strength.

The last time the ox was measured he was twelve feet long from head to rump. It took an eleven-foot measure to go around his body, and he stood five feet three inches high. Then he weighed 3,840 pounds, but he has grown since, and by the time he boards a train for Chicago and the world's fair, it is freely predicted that he will tip the scales at even 4,000 pounds. This is the result which both Col. Singerly and Foreman Sexton aim at, and the big beast isn't stinted on food or drink.

His name is Jumbo. In his veins flow in equal parts the blood of the Holstein and the Durham stock—a combination which all breeders are fond of. He is six years old, and was calved in Michigan, where he lived up to eighteen months ago.

The ox is very gentle. In color he is black and white—mostly black—and his horns have a graceful turn.

County fair committees who have heard of Jumbo's blue-blooded existence have made bids for him, and many people have journeyed from considerable distances to view his mammoth proportions.

To all the varied inducements Col. Singerly has turned a deaf ear, preferring to exhibit him in all the glory of his greatest development in Chicago next year.

One reason for the colonel's sanguine expectations is that Jumbo's parents were both of tremendous size.

Fine Clothes.

"The soil of California is so fruitful," said a native of the Golden state, "that a man who accidentally dropped a box of matches in his field discovered the next year a fine forest of telegraph poles."

Vessels in Danger and Railroad Traffic Impeded.

RESCUE OF A CREW AT SEABRIGHT.

A Train Pushed Through on the Jersey Southern Railroad After Four Days' Hard Work—Schooner Sunk in the Hudson—Navigation Extremely Difficult in New York Harbor—Newark Bay Frozen Over—Reports of Havoc and Suffering from Many Quarters.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 13.—The accumulation of ice along this portion of the coast is unprecedented and nothing like it can be recalled by the oldest seafaring man along the ocean front.

Last evening the guards of the life-saving crews at Seabright patrolling the beach at that place reported to Captain Smith that they sighted a vessel about a mile off shore wedged in the ice. The Captain summoned all hands to the rescue, and with hawser, carriages, mortars and a full complement of men work was energetically pushed towards saving pilot boat James Gordon Bennett No. 6 and the crew of nine men.

The largest mortar was brought into play and a life line shot over. It was connected with the great hawser carrying the breeches buoy.

The rescue of the following nine members of the crew was accomplished: Harry Mapes, boatkeeper, in command; James Crocker, pilot; James Adger, steward; Thomas Bercot, Frank Miller, Chas. Milburn, Edward Worth Ellison and Andrew Olsen, seamen.

These men were brought ashore more dead than alive with a thick coating of sleet and ice so enveloping them as to render them unrecognizable.

THE DELAWARE ICE PACKED.

For the First Time in 25 Years People Walk the River.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—For the first time in 25 years people walked on the ice from Petty's Island on the Delaware across to Camden.

The river is a mass of heavy packed ice, and ferryboats for three days have had the utmost difficulty in effecting landings. They are running to-day through narrow channels cut in the great masses of snow-covered ice, while all about them as far as the eye can reach on the Jersey shore is an unbroken stretch with not a patch of water visible.

Caught in an Ice Floe.

GREENPORT, L. I., Jan. 13.—William Petz, of Shelter Island, while rowing across Peconic Bay in a small boat yesterday afternoon, nearly lost his life from exposure. His boat was caught in an ice floe, and all Petz's efforts to free it were in vain. He battled with the ice for nearly three hours without protection from the northeast wind, which was blowing a gale. When rescued Petz was unconscious, and his hands were frozen stiff.

Finally Got a Train Through.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 13.—After four days hard work the New Jersey Southern Railroad company have finally succeeded in running a train through from Winslow Junction to Bayway. The drifts have been so heavy that the snow plows could make no headway and men had to be sent out with shovels and scoops. The railroad men say that not since the blizzard have their tracks been so blocked with snow as they have this week.

Delay and Suffering in Ohio.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 13.—Trains on the twenty roads entering Toledo are delayed from three to fifteen hours by snow. A Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan train was fast in the snow bank north of Corunna for twelve hours. The street car system last night was demoralized, over 100 motors being stuck. The natural gas supply is next to nothing. There is scarcely any wood in town and there is much suffering.

Steel Works Had to Shut Down.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Jan. 23.—The cold snap has played havoc with the operation of the Edgar Thompson Steel works, four of the big blast furnaces being banked down and the big steel rail mill is closed down for the want of material to work on. All the ore is frozen up about the furnace plant, and to add to the embarrassment of the situation many of the Hungarians have refused to work in such cold weather.

Crossing Over Frozen Foam.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—A complete bridge of ice covers what is known as the "Big Kettle," extending from about 100 feet below the Suspension Bridge to within 50 feet of the falls. The bridge is composed of frozen foam, heaped to a height of six or eight feet, and frozen so solid that several persons have crossed it. This is the first time in 100 years that these boiling waters have been frozen over.

Schooner Crushed by the Ice.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The British schooner Cricket, Capt. Ernst, which arrived from St. John, N. B., Dec. 30, was crushed in the ice in the North river at 95th street yesterday. The captain and crew had only time to save a few personal effects before she went down.

BERGEN POINT, N. J., Jan. 13.—Newark Bay is entirely frozen over, preventing navigation. It is many years since navigation with the City of Newark has been closed. Trains are passing over the two-mile bridge with much caution.

Buoy Lamps Broken by Ice.

SANDY HOOK, Jan. 13.—The ice has broken three of the electric buoy lamps in Gedney's Channel and has prevented the repair of others out of order. The ice is about as heavy as yesterday and the weather is thick and foggy.

Difficult Navigation in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Floating ice continues to impede navigation in the harbor here, and some of the boats have had the greatest difficulty in entering their slips.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

SUFFERING IN CINCINNATI.

Subscriptions Started to Supply Poor People With Coal at Reasonable Rates.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 13.—The present supply of coal in the yards in Cincinnati is inexhaustible, that is to say, inasmuch as it is relative to the cold and the choke-up of the river, even estimated at a duration which is admittedly impossible.

At the elevators and yards of W. H. Brown's Son & Co. the mountain of coal loomed high and looked as if it had not been disturbed for months. Mr. Brown said:

"We do not anticipate stopping at all. We have enough coal on hand to keep us busy."

The Marmet Coal company, which is refusing coal to small customers, has in reality an immense quantity on hand. At Sol P. Kinon's yards there are conservatively estimated, 250,000 bushels of coal on hand.

Notwithstanding the immense quantities of coal in Cincinnati, the fact remains that a piece of coal is worth as much as a diamond. The dealers will not sell coal at less than the exorbitant price of $6 a ton, which is clearly unjustifiable.

The Cincinnati "Post" has started a popular subscription for the purpose of buying coal to be shipped to Cincinnati and sold to the poor people at $2.50 and $3 per ton.

WILL QUIT FARMING.

The Economite Society Said to Be Planning an Entirely New Venture.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 13.—It is reported that there is official authority for the announcement of an entirely new and highly important departure, since the death of Father Henrici, in the management and future aims of the Economite Society.

Of course, Trustee Duss is the leading spirit.

Farming, stockraising and kindred interests will be disposed of. It is said that the farming operations of the society have not been profitable for some time. About the first of February some three hundred laborers will be discharged.

The brickyards, saw-mills and all the manufacturing interests have not involved an actual loss to the society and will be retained and operated with renewed vigor and on approved principles.

TO LOBBY FOR REFORM.

Bishop Hare's Fight Against the Divorce Law in South Dakota.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Jan. 13.—It will create little short of a tremendous sensation when it is learned in the State that Bishop W. H. Hare, who has led the opposition to the divorce law, is going to Pierre to lobby for reform.

The Bishop left yesterday for Huron. From there he goes to Pierre, where he will preach Sunday, and after a few days' trip north from Pierre will return to put in his best work against the law.

The Bishop has prepared a pamphlet embodying the points of his opposition, and will circulate thousands of copies in the State.

The Stallion Ormonde in England.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The celebrated stallion Ormonde, which was recently sold to Mr. William McDonough of San Francisco, who, it is said, paid $150,000 for him, has arrived at Southampton from Buenos Ayres, where he has been for a considerable time past. The voyage does not seem to have affected him, and he is in good form. The Sportsman is the authority for the report that Ormonde will serve ten mares in England, at 200 guineas each, before he is taken to America.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 13.—There is serious doubt whether Chief Justice Peter Turner, Governor-elect of Tennessee, will be able to leave his home in Winchester and come to Nashville next Monday to be inaugurated. WANT THEIR ACTS LEGALIZED.

Efforts in the Senate to Aid the Indicted Brooklyn Officials.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—The special order in the Senate during the morning hours was Senator McCarthy's bill legalizing the appropriations made by the Supervisors of Kings county for the Columbian celebration in Brooklyn.

Senator O'Connor proposed an amendment providing that the bill shall not affect the right of any taxpayer to bring suit. He said that he did not think it a good plan to legalize the illegal acts of officials, but it was constantly done, and he did not see why it should be done for Brooklyn. With his amendment he thought that the bill would not nullify the pending indictments.

Senator Aspinall protested against the passage of the bill. He said that Brooklyn was well provided with highly paid city officials who had plainly been derelict in their duty. There was no excuse for them. This was a Brooklyn affair and Brooklyn could manage it without interference. A prominent Brooklyn lawyer had telegraphed him that the bill would nullify the indictments which had been found. He could not vote for the bill.

Senator O'Connor said that he supposed that the bill with the amendments proposed would be satisfactory.

Senator Aspinall declared that the bill would legalize the expenditure not only of the $11,000 named in it but of the whole $60,000.

Senator McCarren said the money had been spent in good faith. The bill was intended merely to legalize a technical violation of the law.

On motion of Senator McCarthy, the amendment proposed by Senator O'Connor was adopted and the bill re-committed to the Judiciary committee for a hearing.

HE CONFESSES ARSON.

McKenna Implicates Two Others Solely Through Revenge.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Thomas McKenna, a laborer with a very bad record, who is 36 years old, and lives at 301 East 61st street, this city, has confessed to Police Inspector McLaughlin that on September 22 last he burned the house at East Chester, N. Y., occupied by Michael Sullivan and his wife Kate.

He says he was hired to set fire to the house by Mrs. Sullivan, and that he was to secure $500 for so doing. The Sullivans had their furniture insured in the State of Pennsylvania Insurance Company for $3,000. After the burning of the home they collected from the company $2,290.20.

McKenna admits that his confession is prompted solely because Mrs. Sullivan gave him only $90, instead of the $500 she had promised him.

The police have learned that Sullivan and his wife have been placed in custody, at East Chester.

THE KANSAS TROUBLE

Populists and Republicans Still Remain Firm.

A RESORT TO VIOLENCE FEARED.

The Populist House of Representatives Recognized by Governor Lewelling—Republicans Commence Proceedings Against the Secretary of State.

TOPEKA, Jan. 13.—Mandamus proceedings against Secretary of State Osborne have been begun in the Supreme Court to compel him to hand over to George L. Douglas, Speaker of the Republican House of Representatives, a certified copy of the roll of members elected to the Kansas House of Representatives on file in his office.

The returns were compiled by ex-Secretary of State Higgins and show 64 legally elected Republican members of the Legislature, a majority of two, entitled to certificates.

Mr. Douglas is the Speaker chosen by the Republican organization, and the object of the suit is to obtain from the court a decision as to whether or not the Republican organization is the House of Representatives. The court laid the matter aside for consideration to-day.

The returns here and doubt that the court's decision will be favorable to them, and in this way hope to checkmate the latest move of the Populists, which resulted last evening in the recognition of the Populist House by Gov. Lewelling.

Excitement, however, is great, and a resort to violence is feared. Many of the Republicans say they will not leave the hall until driven out by the militia.

The arms and ammunition in the State armory have been quietly moved since Tuesday to another part of the city. The armory is in the Capitol square. Some of the Republicans believe a regiment of the State militia will be called out to drive them from the House of Representatives. They declare they will not yield or leave unless they are removed by force.

2,000 PERISHED.

Many Hundreds of People Burned in a Temple on a Chinese Holiday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—A Canton correspondent sends this account of a terrible disaster in a country town about 50 miles from Canton, which occurred early last month, and resulted in the loss of nearly 2,000 lives:

A band of robbers made a raid on the village of Kam Li, in the Shin Hing district. They first levied a tribute of several thousand taels on the priests of the temple.

The latter had just received large offerings from the people who were celebrating a holiday with a dramatic entertainment under a big shed temporarily erected in front of the temple. The angry robbers applied the torches to this shed and the people in crowds rushed into the temple for refuge.

The main entrance of the temple, which was of wood, caught fire from the fierce heat of the burning shed, and over 1,400 men, women and children were either burned, smothered or trampled under foot. Most of the fatalities resulted from suffocation, as a strong wind drove the smoke into the temple.

At the time of writing the roll of missing numbered 1,940, and it may be that some of these were burned beyond recognition. The disaster is the worst that has occurred in south China for several years.

PLOT TO KIDNAP A PRINCE.

Thirty-six Conspirators Killed and Ninety Wounded by Troops.

BUDA PEST, Jan. 13.—Despite official denials the "Pesti Hirlap" insists upon the truth of reports concerning a plot to kidnap the Prince of Montenegro. The plot was concocted in Cettinge, the capital of Montenegro and was of clerical origin.

It was discovered just before its maturity, but a desperate effort was made by the conspirators to carry it into execution. About 200 men started for the palace to seize the Prince.

Warning was received at the palace, already doubly guarded, and all the military in the city were called out. The soldiers met the conspirators a short distance from the palace and began firing at once.

The conspirators, who were well armed, returned the fire and tried to charge the troops, but were repulsed.

After 36 conspirators had been killed and 90 had been wounded the attempt to seize the Prince was abandoned.

Some 30 of the uninjured were arrested, the rest fled.

Subsequently 28 priests were arrested for having led in the formation and attempted execution of the plot.

Rogers Maxwell, President of the Jersey Central railroad company, said to a reporter this morning:

"We think we shall be able to prove to the satisfaction of the Chancellor that we have obeyed his order, and that the lease to the Port Reading railroad company has been cancelled, and also that the contracts between the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company, and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company have been cancelled, and that both the Central railroad company and the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre company are being operated independently."

Vice Chancellor Robert S. Green is confined to his home in Elizabeth by serious illness.

The Rev. Dr. C. S. Ryman, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district, will preach Sunday evening in the Park Place chapel. This is his first appearance in any pulpit in Plainfield.

J. A. Smith, the Front street grocer, who is just getting up after a severe illness, was elected at Jersey City, Wednesday, a member of the legislation committee of the Retail Merchants association of New Jersey.

Mrs. Henry Talmadge, of 538 Madison avenue, New York, gave a reception yesterday afternoon to introduce her granddaughter, Miss Louise Talmadge, of Netherwood. Lander's orchestra played throughout the afternoon. Lunch was served by Pinard. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Juilliard, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Rodge, Miss Lillian Stokes, F. F. Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Plummer, Frank Plummer, Mrs. Plummer, Mrs. H. E. Bowen, and Miss Edith Smalley.

EVERY PAGE A DELIGHT.

This Living Magazine Was More Popular Than Any Printed Production of the Sort.

At this season of turning over new leaves, it was a very bright and appropriate idea of the Rectory society of Grace church to provide for the people of Plainfield a book full of happy pages the contents of which made a cold and stormy night pass delightfully to those who gathered in the Casino last evening to see the leaves turned.

The excellence of the entertainment deserved a crowded house, and the cozy hall would have been thronged to overflowing had the elements granted more auspicious weather. As it was, the Casino held three hundred appreciative auditors, linked together in an atmosphere of warmth and geniality, and these resolved themselves into gay groups of kindred spirits, eagerly drinking in the delights of the stage pictures, or chatting merrily when the curtains were closed and there was nothing better than the incidental orchestral productions to rivet the attention of the senses.

The idea of a "Magazine" was happily and successfully carried out from cover to "ads". At the outset the front of the stage was occupied by a mammoth reproduction of the familar front of "Scribner's".

The frontispiece of the volume was a faithful tableau after W. T. Smedley's picture, "Taking Leave of the Lyric Muse". Mrs. August Kleinecke, as Erato, stood revealed, in classic robes, and adorned with roses and myrtle. Her lyre was for the moment cast aside, and she was fervidly kissing her finger-tips to a very modern and genteel young man admirer, Dexter O. Tiffany, who with sweeping bow and graceful flourish of silk hat and outstretched arms was tearing himself away. The dainty verses of T. B. Aldrich's accompanying poem "Thalia" were read from the wings by Maude Agnes Bowers. It was a well-blended combination of classic and modern art and grace.

Very true to Howard Pyle's conception was the clever rendering of his pastoral without words, in five verses. In this, Miss Massett was a very sweet and demure village belle, accepting, in the first scene, homage from a rustic swain, who was O. G. Waring in bucolic disguise. A courtly cavalier appeared in scene two, the same being Louis G. Timpson in gold and fine lace and powdered peruke. From the plainer to the handsomer courtier, the dazzled maiden turns. In scene three the city swain is chucking her under the chin, while the rustic holds up his hands in amazed horror. Scene four depicts the damsel struggling in the enamored embraces of the dashing beau, while the deserted rival turns sorrowfully away. The finale reveals the flirt forsaken by both transient lovers, rubbing her eyes sorrowfully with her knuckles, and blubbering disconsolately. The spirit of quaint humor was cleverly caught, and the costumes and groupings were very Pyiesque.

A short story was effectively told by Miss Maude Agnes Bowers, who appeared as a disheveled Irish domestic and over the ironing-board related to an imaginary caller her experiences "havin' her picture took". He brogue was good, and her gesticulations were very comical. The story was funny, and excellently told.

Three paintings by Albert Moore were very daintily interpreted by Mrs. L. G. Timpson, Miss Huntington and Miss Stewart. The first was "Midsummer", representing a group in butterfly costume, with fans wafting sweet-scented zephyrs about. In "Riverside" the trio stood with arms entwined about one another, evidently on the brink of an inviting stream, contemplating a plunge into the delicious depths. The costumes here were soft, clinging draperies, and the well-molded forms and sweet winsome faces, heightened by the color-effects, made a most enrapturing vision of feminine loveliness. "Reading Aloud" represented one of the three reclining with an open volume, while the two others listened intently, in graceful poses, their vision fixed as if on paradise beyond the distant cloudland. These were paintings far more sweet and radiant than ever artist's brush produced.

E. A. Abbey's picture of "Old King Cole" was capably treated by Miss Depew, Miss Erickson and Lawrence VanBuren. Mr. VanBuren made a most realistic and rubicund royal good fellow, a model of flaming jollity; and surely never had king fairer servingmaids than the two who were bringing his pipe and bowl.

The gem of the Magazine was the two-act comedy-sketch, "The Deacon", by Harry Arthur Jones. In this the city's best masculine amateur, William R. Cock, was given a "star" opportunity. He appeared in the role of Abraham Boothroyd, wholesale baconfactor, mayor of Chipping Padbury on the Wold, senior deacon of Ebenezer chapel, and generous patron of Tom Dempster. He was a bluff, honest, hearty old man; and one with a tender spirit animating his sturdy frame. His susceptibility to the wiles of Mrs. Bolingbrooke (the Juliet of ten years ago) was perfectly excusable when that character was developed by Mrs. C. E. Brooks, who for such a part is incomparable. Deuse M. Van Vliet as Tom Dempster, the handsome young barrister, was an unaffected and sincere lover of Rosa Jervoise (the new Juliet). Unfortunately for Tom's and Rosa's peace of mind, "uncle Abe" was violently opposed to theatres, and his opposition to Tom's union with even so superb a creature as actress Rosa was anticipated. But then he had never been to a play, and when Mrs. Bolingbrooke inveigled him into attending he became as delirious with delight "as a child with a new toy". The play carried him back to his own boyish lover days. He himself fell in love with Rosa from seeing her act, and his infatuation was heightened when he met her in person in Tom's apartments. And when he found in her his own granddaughter, the child of his disowned daughter who had run away with a theatrical troupe, the happiness of all was most complete. Mr. Cock was delightful as ever, in his humorous capacity, and he exhibited a rare warmth of feeling in the sentimental and pathetic passages of his parts. His telling of his tale of sorrow of the buried past, when he lost his idolized daughter, and his outburst of joy at having so marvelous a treasure as his lovely grandchild restored to him, were quite affecting. Mrs. Brooks gave renewed evidence of her histrionic talent and ability; and the divine favorite, Miss Maude VanBoskerck, was a fascination and bewitchery to hearts off the stage as well as on. R. W. Erickson was the faultless butler who seems a necessity to all modern society plays. Altogether the performance was most admirable.

Two of George DuMaurier's stiff and stilted full-page "joke" illustrations were given more life and spirit than ever his pencil portrayed. The first, "Perplexing—Very!" represented an indisposed hostess receiving the varying advices of her callers as to just who was the best physician to summon. The characters were by Mrs. R. H. Depew, Miss Guion, Miss Lowrie, Miss Green, Miss Holly, Miss Rodman and Mr. Kleinecke. "The Tables Turned", DuMaurier's second production, was as clever a thing as he ever did. A gray-haired mama was pictured pleading with her array of lovely but weary daughters, at 3 a. m., for "just one more dance". The group was composed of Mrs. Louis Howard, Miss Bowers, the Misses Betts, Miss Morgan, Miss L. VanBoskerck, Mr. Munn, Mr. Huntington and Mr. Clay.

Pear's soap was effectively advertised. The familiar picture of the chimney-sweep being held at bay by two laughing scullery-girls, armed with mops, was reproduced, and one heard the oft-quoted phrase, "Good morning! Have you used Pear's soap?"

Pearline was given extended fame by eight tidy white-aproned lasses, each holding aloft a new broom with big letters spelling Pearline.

The Rectory society ought to be paid liberally for the "ads" in the magazine. They were given prominence worthy of reward.

FIRE IN THE RECTORY.

Father Smyth and His Household Narrowly Escape Suffocation—Father Cushing's Bravery.

Fire originated in the basement of the rectory of St. Mary's church during last night, and at 3 this morning the house was filled with such dense smoke that Father Smyth and his household narrowly escaped death by suffocation. Fortunately one of them awoke in time, and aroused the others.

Father Smyth immediately telephoned to chief engineer Doane, who told him to send in an alarm. Father Cushing, assistant rector, heroically ran in his stocking feet through the deep snow to box 34, and summoned the department.

By the time the firemen reached the rectory, the worst of the fire had been extinguished with pails of water. The men's axes and chemical extinguishers finished the blaze. Then the house was cleared of the thick smoke. The fire was confined to the basement, and the damage was not heavy.

The recall was sounded 20 minutes after the alarm.

Entertained by Franklin Council.

After the regular meeting of Franklin council, 41, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, held in the K. of P. rooms, last evening, a reception was given to State Council Warden David Bodine. Speeches were made by Past Councilors R. E. Connolly, D.S. Dunavan, H. G. Adams, E. S. Weaver, D. Bodine and others, after which a bountiful collation was served by the good and welfare committee, Charles I. Young, E. E. Brown, G. S. Martin, L. B. Bodine and C. Force.

DENY A CONSPIRACY.

The Union County Freeholders Reply in the Hubbard Case.

In the application for a receiver for the property of Edson M. Hubbard, made by the board of freeholders of this county, and granted by Justice Barrett in the Supreme Court, New York, Potter & Potter, counsel for the freeholders, Wednesday submitted affidavits in rebuttal of the charge of conspiracy made by defendant's counsel against C. Arthur Coan and John H. Winans. Messrs. Coan and Winans are counsel for Miss Sallie J. Shotwell in two actions brought against Hubbard to recover $2,000, held in trust for her, and deposited in the Union Dime and Seamen's Savings banks. In Hubbard's answer to these suits he denied the trust and alleged, by way of counterclaim, the conversion by Miss Shotwell of property of his aggregating in value $5,000.

In opposing the motion for a receiver, William P. Burr, counsel for Hubbard, charged Miss Shotwell and the attorneys with conspiracy to defraud Hubbard of his property. The affidavits submitted Wednesday by the freeholders' counsel state that the object of the proceeding for a receiver is to obtain the benefit of any possible verdict against Miss Shotwell or either of the banks, which may be recovered by Hubbard. Counsel deny complicity with Miss Shotwell, and allege that their rights depend entirely upon Hubbard's success in his litigation with Miss Shotwell, and therefore the impossibility of conspiracy is apparent.

The suit of the freeholders is to recover $412 for the maintenance of Hubbard while he was an inmate of the Morris Plains Asylum. Hubbard is now in contempt, having failed to appear in supplementary proceedings before Justice Ingraham. In the action by the freeholders his counsel alleged that Hubbard was illegally confined in the asylum. In the contempt proceedings, Hubbard's attorney, Burr, declares it to be his opinion that Hubbard is insane.

"To the Pure All Things Are Pure."

(From The Newark News.)

Plainfield's truly good citizens have found that they are powerless to prevent the appearance of an objectionable play at the town's opera house, and consequently are vexed in spirit. Not so with those who are not truly good. They flocked to that opera house and feasted their ungodly eyes on the forbidden fruit, and rejoiced. But the truly good have vowed vengeance, and there will be a first-class rumpus.

A play of the kind objected to, whose main attraction is a liberal display in one act of the female human form unadorned, will injure no one who is not of a mind to receive suggestions that are not on the line of strict morality. And the prohibition of that kind of a play will not purify the minds of that class of young or old men.

Mrs. McCredy's Case Would Involve Scandal.

Henry referee. Mr. McCredy stated that he waived a jury trial because it would involve great public scandal.

ELECTRIC ROAD EXTENSION.

Plans Are Making to Connect This City With Other Places—Praise for Plainfield's System.

(New Brunswick Home News.)

The project of an electric road between this city, Bound Brook, Somerville and Plainfield seems to be steadily moving, although the scheme will not be originated entirely in this city.

The Bound Brook and Somerville projectors who are interested in an electric road to connect those two places will, it is expected, join with the New Brunswick capitalists to secure a good road from this city to Bound Brook. It is known that negotiations have been already made for the right of way over considerable property near Bound Brook, for the road to this city. It is believed that work on the Bound Brook road will be commenced in the spring.

Overtures have been made to the Plainfield Street Railway company, asking them to extend their line to Bound Brook. If this is done there will then be communication between this city and Plainfield and Somerville, via Bound Brook.

A HOME NEWS reporter who rode on one of the handsomely finished cars of the Plainfield electric railway the other day found that the trolley system was being operated with great success. The road is already paying, and travel on the line is better every day. The cars are models of neatness, warmth and general comfort; there have been no accidents to speak of, and the horses in the place very readily get accustomed to the vehicles.

Shooting in the Snow.

Yesterday was the time set for a little private shoot at live birds among a number of friends of Charley Smith, by his invitation, on the grounds of the Independent Gun club. Despite the inclemency of the weather, several of the invited promptly put in an appearance, and, proceeding to the grounds, shot at some 150 birds in a blinding snow storm. But few of the birds escaped. The party divided themselves into two teams, as follows: Messrs. Ben. Abbott of the Passaic City Gun club, Jack Parker of Detroit, Mich., Charley Smith (Dutchy), and Tee Kay, on one team; and Monsieur Lenoir of the Passaic City Gun club, Milt Linsley of Hoboken, and Nief Apgar, on the other; the latter shooting at double the number of birds to fill out the team. Each member of the teams shot at five birds, with the following result: Capt. Abbott's team, 18; Capt. Lenoir's team, 17. Jacob Peitz refereed the match, and Warry Squires managed the traps, assisted by Hank Pound and Ed. Conshea. Other sweepstakes followed, and the boys stuck to the shooting in the intense cold, as all lovers of such sport do. The party were afterward entertained at Charley Smith's restaurant, and then given a sleigh ride which they will all long remember. They departed at a late hour for their homes, well pleased with their day's enjoyment.

The school children of Plainfield are all invited to attend the rink to-morrow afternoon, and will need no admission tickets.

As an extra attraction a mile school race will take place at 4. The prize is to be a carnival ticket, which will admit the lucky winner to the great Columbus skating carnival, Tuesday evening, Jan. 24.

The syndicate have already received several letters, desiring to have a special reserved space for children at the great carnival, so that they may enjoy among themselves the wonderful sights that will be seen that night. The matter is to be brought before the carnival committee of the syndicate, and if favorably acted on all children under twelve years of age who have the written sanction of their parents or guardians will be entitled to a half-rate ticket. All tickets will be ready for sale next Tuesday at the carnival ticket office, 65 North avenue.

The Citizens band will play at the rink to-morrow night, and the syndicate will offer two carnival tickets as prizes in a one-mile trade race, open to all branches of business or trades, the race to start at 9:30. Skating will last until 10:30, a half-hour longer than usual.

A Trio of Somervillian Don Juans.

(From Town Topics.)

The hamlet of Somerville N. J., is seldom disturbed by scandal. Neighbors keep an eye on one another, and every son is circumspect and every daughter is perpendicularly accurate and trustworthy. Now, when it comes to my ears that the exclusive and wealthy West End club is under the shadow of rebuke, I am grieved and shudder at the wantonness of human weakness and the tendencies of taste. The story concerns the son of a wealthy wool gentleman, a relative and descendant of a late Secretary of State from New Jersey, and a doctor who does not doctor, who, together with four other young gentlemen of wealth and indiscretion, are suffering the pangs of social suspicion, and all on account of certain episodes embracing a Bridge street blonde of widespread renown throughout Somerville and the towns within its environment. My advice to the gentlemen of the West End club is that they be brave—there's nothing like bravery in a country town.

The children's health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yield to it. Price 50c.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-25-7

A School Teacher's New Dress.

"My new dress was the light drab cashmere I had when I first came to Plainfield," said a popular school teacher. "It faded so badly that I was ashamed to wear it, and with a package of diamond dyes I changed it to a handsome brown. After wearing it a season that way, another diamond dye, this time an olive green, made it the rich shade it is now. I think all druggists sell these dyes and they are a great help to me."

Unanimously Elected.

At a meeting of the Union County Democratic executive committee, held in Elizabeth on Monday last, at the rooms of the Young Men's Democratic society on Broad street, the following named officers were unanimously re-elected: Chairman—Thomas B. Budd. Secretary—C. A. Ryan. Treasurer—J. Williams Crane.

In the Rev. Mr. Jennings's Favor.

It has been given out on good authority that the commission recently appointed by Bishop Scarborough to investigate the charges of drunkenness and lying made against the Rev. J. B. Jennings, the rector of Grace Episcopal church, Westfield, has decided that there is not sufficient evidence to warrant an ecclesiastical trial.

HE DISCOVERED ARSENIC

Witness Hunt Expected to Give Startling Testimony.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE POISON CASES.

Dr. Cooper Says He Has No Doubt One of the Men He Treated Was Dosed With Arsenic—Chemist Hunt's Reported Findings in His Investigation.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 13.—So far the trial of Hugh J. Dempsey for complicity in the poisoning of the Homestead workmen last summer has not revealed much that is not already known, but that there is a large-sized surprise in the background the counsel for the prosecution and a half dozen doctors and expert chemists know.

The witness through whom this mine is to be exploded is Capt. Hunt' the analytical chemist, of the firm of Hunt & Clapp. He has been engaged for some time in making analyses in the cases of several Homestead workmen who died under suspicious circumstances.

He refuses to reveal anything as to the results of his examination, but it is learned from an authoritative source that arsenic in considerable quantities was found in one stomach, traces of croton oil in another, and traces of arsenic and other mineral poisons in other bodies exhumed.

The evidence of Dr. Cooper yesterday was pretty positive as to the poisoning of one of the men who worked at Homestead by arsenic. Dr. Cooper said after he left the stand that he had no doubt that the man Spayde, whom he treated, had been dosed with arsenic.

"Then it didn't surprise you, Doctor, to learn that arsenic had been found in the bodies of Homestead men?" was asked.

"No," was Dr. Cooper's reply. "Of course they found arsenic, and other poisons, too."

The prosecution has naturally taken all sorts of precautions lest this strong link in their case should get out before the proper time, but this, the first authoritative announcement of the results of the post-mortem examination will be confirmed in detail in court.

Capt. Hunt sat in Court all through yesterday's session, and was in frequent consultation with the attorney for the Commonwealth and the medical witnesses. He had a valise with him, which is said to contain some of the results of his analyses.

SENATOR KENNA'S FUNERAL.

Services in the Senate Chamber—The Body Taken to West Virginia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The funeral of the late Senator Kenna occurred yesterday in the Senate Chamber before both branches of the National Legislature, while a blinding snow storm was raging outside.

The Chamber was crowded with the family, friends and co-workers of the dead Senator. A delegation from the two legislative houses of West Virginia were present at the ceremonies. The grief of Mrs. Kenna and her children at taking leave of the remains was a very sad sight, the agony of Mrs. Kenna being especially too great to be witnessed by even her dearest friends. After the services which were conducted by the chaplain, the body, accompanied by the family and the Senate Committee was put aboard the train to be carried to its native State.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. — The United States Consul at Rotterdam reports to the State Department that the Netherlands-American Steam Navigation company has issued a public notice that after Jan. 1, 1893, it would suspend the transportation of steerage passengers to the United States. The transportation of first and second cabin passengers, however, will not be interrupted and is not subject to any restrictions.

Big Fire at Woodsport, N. Y.

Some of the household goods were saved in the hotel.

It would seem that from the fact that my nephew, A. M. STATUE OF HUMBOLDT.

The Great Scientist Honored by the German Citizens of Chicago.

Chicago, already noted for its handsome statues, was further enriched recently by the unveiling of a statue to Alexander von Humboldt in Humboldt park. The unveiling ceremonies were conducted under the auspices of the German Press club, and a large number of citizens were present to do honor to the memory of the great scientist.

Fredrich Heinrich Alexander Von Humboldt was born in Berlin, September 14, 1769, in the same year with Napoleon, Wellington, Canning, Walter Scott and Chateaubriand. He early developed a fondness for natural history, and devoted much time to the study of mathematics.

He traveled extensively throughout Europe, South America and North America, making investigations of everything that might lead to the advancement of science. He spent about twenty years in Paris preparing and publishing the results of his studies, the more notable of which are a "Journey to the Equinoctial Region of the New Continent," three volumes; "Astronomical Observations," etc., twelve volumes, 1808-1810; "View of the Cordilleras," etc., 1810; "Observations on Zoology and Comparative Astronomy;" "Political Essay on the Kingdom of New Spain," two volumes, 1811; and "General Physics and Geology." His great work "Kosmos," was undertaken when he was seventy-four years old (1845-58). An English translation of his "Personal Narrative of Travels" was made by Helen Maria Williams, five volumes, 1814. In 1810-12 he was chosen a member of the French institute. In 1826 he removed to Berlin, received the title of councillor, and between 1830 and 1848 was sent to Paris on several political missions. In 1829, with Ehrenberg and Rose, he made a scientific exploration of Asiatic Russia, one result of which was his "Central Asia," three volumes, 1843. His "Botanical Collections in the New World" were published in seven volumes, 1813-23. He published many other works, among which is a "Critical Examination of the Geography of the New Continent," five volumes, 1835-38, and "Aspects of Nature," 1808.

A FANCY SWIMMER.

He Dives with Both His Hands and Legs Securely Tied.

Those who have experienced some difficulty in learning how to swim, chiefly through lack of confidence in the buoyant power of water, will feel somewhat relieved when they look at this picture. It represents Mr. W. Sully, of London. Mr. Sully, it will be seen, attempts the apparently hazardous undertaking of diving with his arms and legs tied. The ordinary swimmer finds it a sufficiently difficult matter to keep himself afloat with the unhampered use of all his limbs. Mr. Sully, on the other hand, not only keeps himself afloat, but dives and performs various evolutions by merely wriggling his body about. These feats are performed nightly, and Mr. Sully is still enjoying vigorous health. With the free use of his arms and legs he can do such a variety of things that there is not sufficient space to mention them here.

The First Federal Volunteer.

Interest attaches to the first example of anything. Ten thousand dollars is said to have been paid for the first Columbus half-dollar which the United States government stamped in aid of the Chicago world's fair. The first federal volunteer in the late war ought, then, to be a famous man; but, although he is still living at the age of seventy-two years, few persons know his name. He is said to be Gen. E. C. Williams, of Chapman, Sydney county, Pa., where he has been postmaster for twenty years. His official record is: "First volunteer mustered in the United States service in the late war on April 15, 1861, in the executive chamber at Harrisburg, Pa., between the hours of 9 and 10 a. m., by Capt. S. G. Simmons, United States of America, in the presence of Gov. Curtin and all the heads of departments." Previous to that time Gen. Williams had served in the Mexican war, and had helped to suppress the Philadelphia riots of 1844.

On a Level.

Dorothy (aged three, to her older sister)—I'm as tall as you.

Marjorie—No, you're not. Stand up and see. There, you only come to my mouth.

Dorothy—Well, I don't care. I'm as tall the other way; my feet go down as far as yours!—Demorest's Magazine.

He Didn't Win.

Willis—What makes you so blue, Wallace?

Wallace—Why shouldn't I be blue! A fellow offered one hundred dollars for a case of catarrh he couldn't cure, and I let him try his hand on me.

"Well, what of it?"

"Why, he cured me, confound it."—

Fig. 11; turn them down as in Fig. 12 then your fish is complete.

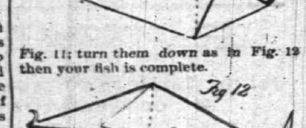

Fig. 12

You can make a lot of these and get a fishing rod and line with a bent pin on the end, and one through the nose, as shown in Fig. 12, and arrange them about the table and fish. A number of persons can take part in the fun. The object is to see who can catch most fish. —Golden Days.

Keeping Warm.

It is often said that residents of the extreme north do not feel the cold so keenly as the records of the mercury would lead one to expect. This fact, if it is a fact, may perhaps be accounted for in more ways than one, but the explanation offered by Mr. Julian Ralph, in his book "On Canada's Frontier," seems to be adequate. He says that the reason why the people do not suffer more from the low temperature is because "everyone puts on everything he owns—all his stockings at once, all his flannel shirts and drawers, all his coats on top of one another—and when there is nothing left, draws over all a blanket suit, a pair of moccasins, a tuque, and whatever pairs of gloves he happens to be able to find or borrow."

RESULT OF A WRECK.

How American Money Built Two Japanese Schoolhouses.

On a small island in the extreme south of the island empire of Japan, where a few thousand simple peasants and fishermen live in great isolation, are two pretty little villages, and in them are two schoolhouses with a pleasing and romantic history. They represent unselfish kindness, gratitude, international good will, a missionary spirit and practical sense in its manifestation.

In September, 1885, the American bark Cashmere was wrecked in a cyclone some two hundred miles off the Japanese coast. Seven sailors in the only ship's boat that was saved reached this island after great suffering. Three three sailors and the captain's little son remained on the wreck. It drifted so near the coast that they escaped on a raft and got to a village near that reached by the seven sailors. All were nearly dead from exposure and famine, but the Japanese islanders treated them with such skill and kindness that all recovered, and on arriving at San Francisco were earnest in asking that some thing be done to reward their benefactors.

Mr. Horace F. Cutter, of San Francisco, prepared a memorial which was extensively signed and presented in congress by Senator Jones, of Nevada. The government sent medals to the principal rescuers, and five thousand dollars was voted to the two villages—Anjio and Isaki. By advice of Minister Swift the money was used to endow these two schools, and photographs, twelve by twenty inches in size, of the two buildings have recently been forwarded to Mr. Cutter. The island is Tanega-Sima, thirty miles from the main island of Kiu-Sin, and the native photographer had to travel seventy-five miles from Kagoshima to take the pictures. They are very fine, quite up to the standard of San Francisco art, and were paid for by the Japanese government.

In each village the people have set up a little monument by the schoolhouse "to commemorate the goodness of the people of the United States." Although everything about these little frames is cheap and simple, the artistic sense of the Japanese appears in every detail. The Japanese flag flies over each building, as in some American states our own flag does, and the surroundings are all quite attractive. It is pleasant to conclude with the statement that boys and girls share alike in the school advantages.

AN ADMIRABLE WOMAN.

Mrs. Isabella M. Alden, Popularly Known as "Pansy."

Mrs. Isabella M. Alden, best known to the general public as "Pansy," the pen name under which she has written such admirable books for young people, is the wife of a clergyman, Rev. G. R. Alden, and lives in Washington. She is described as a woman of less than medium height, with brown eyes and dark brown hair. Personally she is just the sort of woman one would imagine her to be from reading her books. There is in and about her the same high standard of right and wrong; the same deeply rooted principles; the same unselfishness of life and loving sympathy; the same bright, happy Christianity, and, above all, the same entire consecration to the author of her faith and to his service which breathes through all her writings. With her they are not mere theories, existing only on paper and in the author's mind, but are the rules that govern her own daily life. Mrs. Alden is not one who, dwelling in the valley, tells of the imagined beauty of the mountain tops around, but instead tells of the beauty she knows is there; and, being a firm believer in practical Christianity, lends a helping hand to those who find the way strewn full of rocks and pitfalls. In manner she is unassuming, genial, refreshingly natural and possessed of a gentle dignity that while repelling undue familiarity from effusive strangers, yet invites confidence from any who may need her help or sympathy. Dress is a matter of secondary importance to her, but she is always neatly and tastefully attired. She has an especial preference for certain shades of gray.

It would be difficult to find two people better suited to each other, more tenderly devoted or more thoroughly one in all their interests and aims than are Mrs. Alden and her husband.

Will Meet Him Later On.

A six-foot spectator with a muscular arm and a hand like a smoked ham rushed in between the two young men who were pommeling, scratching and gouging each other, and separated them.

"If you don't stop this," he said, holding them at arm's length and shaking them till their teeth rattled, "I'll bump you together and break every bone in your worthless bodies! Now go!"

"That's all right," said the youth with the bruised eye and disfigured nose, picking up his hat and shaking his fist undismayed at the other young man. "I'll meet him in a football game some day where we can fight this out without interference!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Terrible Strain.

Son—If you think I can be a newspaper writer like you, what is the use of my taking up so many studies on subjects that newspapers never talk about?

Father (a dramatic critic)—They are simply for mental discipline, and the cultivation of the powers of memory, analysis, etc.

Son—What good will that do?

Father—If you do not acquire great powers of concentration, combined with wonderful penetration, backed by enormous retention, you will never be able to get the hang of the family history outlined by the servants in the first act of a new play.—Good News.

No Show for Him.

A pretty and altogether modest young Irish girl, evidently a nurse, stood patiently waiting her turn in a big drug store. At last one of the clerks, a rather dashing young fellow, disposing of his last customer, made his way to the young woman's side and asked, politely:

"Is anyone paying you attention, miss?"

HOSTILITY TO CARNOT

His Enemies Trying to Force Him to Resign.

TWELVE MORE DEPUTIES ACCUSED.

The Greatest Interest in the Trial of the Panama Boodlers—Little Doubt as to Their Conviction and Speculation Rife as to the Sentences They Will Receive.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—To-day the gravest rumors are afloat in regard to President Carnot. Several of the Deputies who have been most earnest in pushing the Panama investigation make no secret of declaring that they will not rest until Carnot is forced to resign.

The strength of the case against the President depends upon the credibility of Baihut, the ex-Minister of Public Works, and Carnot's friends claim that no faith whatever should be attached to Baihut's disclosures; that he is malignant against Carnot for not having protected him from prosecution, and that he wishes to drag the President down with him.

On the other hand, it is pointed out by the enemies of M. Carnot that Baihut's charges agree with the facts as known and that Charles de Lesseps would probably corroborate Baihut if he were permitted to reveal all that he could. These enemies of Carnot argue that the trial of the two De Lesseps has been hastened in order to bring them within the grasp of M. Carnot and keep them silent as to any connection of the head of the State with Panama affairs. They argue also that M. Bourgeois has not been as earnest as he might have been in bringing the truth to light, and that the opposition of M. Bourgeois to the arrest of Baihut was really based upon his fear that Baihut might accuse his former fellow Minister, Carnot.

Meantime President Carnot preserves a serene temper, and seems indifferent to the assaults upon him. These assaults are not confined to himself. The Radicals condemn Mme. Carnot for spending so much money on her dresses and trying to imitate the grande dames of the Faubourg St. Germain. In addition they pretend that Monarchist habits and customs are invading the Elysee, and, therefore, its present occupants must be turned out in the sacred interests of the Republic.

Constans the Instigator.

M. Constans is credited by nearly every one with being at the bottom of the attack upon Carnot. He is known to have a bitter feeling toward the President, on account of his ejection from the Cabinet, and to be desirous also of removing Carnot from the Presidential rivalry.

Constans keeps very quiet and disclaims responsibility for the existing agitation, but his declarations finds no credence among the well informed. All eyes are turned toward Constans as the coming master, if not already the master, of the situation, from a Republican standpoint.

The other prominent figure is that of General Saussier, whose control of the military in Paris would give him, in the event of an uprising, an all unlimited opportunity to gratify his own ambition or serve the purpose of others. It is known that Saussier has been sounded both by Royalists and Bonapartists, but these have not found the slightest encouragement for proceeding with their approaches.

Agents of the Duke of Paris have hinted at a ducal or prirical title and the enormous revenues that would be the reward of treachery on the part of General Saussier to the Republic, and while these hints have not been uttered directly to the General care has been taken that they should reach him. But General Saussier in immovable in his fidelity to duty.

The evidence so far in the Panama trial is regarded as assuring conviction. The report of M. Flory, the Government accountant, contends that the responsibility for the Panama frauds and deception rests upon the whole board of Panama directors, because, having squandered the share capital, they concealed the real situation by false statements in order to obtain subscriptions and protect their own interests. M. Flory's report leaves no doubt as to the deliberate character of the deception practised upon the public.

The public are already beginning to discuss the sentences that will be passed upon the de Lesseps and their associates in the event of conviction. It is believed that President Perivier will pronounce a severe penalty, as from the first he has exhibited considerable indignation toward the accused. Perivier has the reputation of being a perfectly honest man, incapable of being swayed by outside influence, however powerful, and not inclined to cover up the guilt of any one, however influential.

MORE DEPUTIES INCRIMINATED.

Evidence Discovered Against Twelve Members of the Chamber.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs:

"M. Franquevillé has acquired fresh evidence, betraying twelve deputies, four of whom are Boulangists. The incriminating entries on the counterfoils of the checks are in M. Arton's handwriting, together with the amounts fingered. They do not afford legal proof of guilty but will oblige the deputies to submit to examination and probably will lead to stronger testimony. A search has been ordered among the photographers whom Arton ordered to photograph the Panama papers.

"Mr. Perivier states that the trial of the directors ought to have been a civil one. That would have been impossible, since M. Brunet, the original liquidator of the company gave M. Eiffel and others a release from their civil responsibilities."

THE PANAMA TRIAL.

Charles De Lesseps Gives Testimony With Great Difficulty.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—The evidence in the Panama trial is justifying the advice given to the Parliamentary Commission of Inquiry by Viscount de Villebois-Mareuil that they should devote themselves to investigating the dishonest contracts made by the Canal Company. Through such contracts, he said, the company had squandered sums compared with which the corruportion fund spent upon the press was a trifle.

The testimony of Captain Frayssé and M. Etienne Martin corroborated the Viscount's statements. The evidence adduced yesterday was as follow:

Captain Frayssé said that after retiring from the navy he was sent to the Isthmus as Comptroller General. He saw at once that success was impossible, and that money was being squandered recklessly, upon men whose principal aim was to get as much as possible without doing the work which they had agreed to do.

Etienne Martin, once Chief Secretary of the Canal Company, described with gusto his experiences while in office and the scorn he felt at the methods of the directors. The unvarnished corruptness of the contract system, he said, often rendered him so indignant that he protested to the Board at their meetings against the scandalous abuses with which the whole canal work was honeycombed.

Eventually he resigned rather than sign contracts for machinery and supplies with French firms whose bids, taken together, were 29,000,000 francs higher than the bids of English and Dutch firms.

In a wrangle with Presiding Judge Perivier Charles de Lesseps admitted that two checks, payable only to bearer, were given to Arthur Meyer, editor of the "Gaulois."

Charles de Lesseps was recalled to testify as to the bonds payable to bearer issued by the Panama Canal Company. He was white and haggard, his eyes were bloodshot, and he spoke apparently with difficulty, as he testified recumbently and often sank his voice so that only persons within a few yards could hear his testimony.

He explained that of some 1,500,000 francs in bons au porteur, 375,000 francs went to M. Baihut, then Minister of Public Works, and 650,000 francs to Cornelius Herz. The rest of the money was distributed, in small amounts, among many persons whose favor was indispensable to the company.

THE CHESTERTOWN EXECUTION.

Four of Dr. Hill's Murderers Pay the Penalty of Their Crime.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Jan. 14.—Business in this little town was almost wholly suspended yesterday. The streets were almost entirely deserted, except by the posse summoned a couple of days ago by Sheriff Plummer. These guards in twos, and threes, armed with guns, rifles and pistols, patrolled the streets nearly all night long and until the execution of the four negroes took place.

The day dawned clear and cloudless. The Rev. A. A. Murray began his religious attentions to the prisoners at 7 o'clock. He called separately upon Brooks, Comegys, Williams and Brown to pray. Between each prayer a hymn was sung.

Comegys' prayer was the most affecting of all. It was an agonized cry for help and succor, delivered in the peculiar singsong intonation of the plantation negro, and its burden was: "O Jesus, save my soul."

A hearty breakfast was served to the prisoners. They apparently relished and enjoyed their last meal on earth.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Sheriff Plummer began the first preparation for the execution. The members of the posse who were inside the jail, the reporters and the twenty witnesses allowed by law crowded into the corridor, where they were admonished by the sheriff to get ready.

Watchman Storks opened the four doors and two deputies went into each cell and handcuffed and pinioned its occupant.

The sheriff ordered the crowd in the corridor to stand back and the short march to the scaffold commenced.

Brooks led with Comegys next, followed by Williams and Moses Brown.

The sheriff was waiting on the scaffold for the men and he silently motioned each of them to his position.

The heavy, awkward looking cotton nooses with their tremendous hangman's knots were soon arranged about the necks of the four men after the black caps had been placed over their faces, and their legs bound at the ankles.

The sheriff took a last look at the beam, the ropes, the traps and finally at the men themselves. The people waiting in the yard below could see nothing, so effectively was the gallows boarded up.

They heard the creaking of the traps, however, and waited with bated breath for the noise of the lever.

In a minute it came. At 11:30 o'clock the bar controlling the triggers slipped easily along the greased surface.

There was a crash as the eight battened trap doors fell to the ground, and four black bodies shot through the holes.

Four of the murderers of Dr. Hill had expatiated their crime on the gallows.

A POWDER HOUSE BLOWN UP.

One Woman Killed and Two Other People Badly Injured.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The powder house of Wedger's fireworks plant was blown up yesterday afternoon. Mary Flynn, one of the employes, was killed by the explosion.

B. M. Wedger, the proprietor, was badly burned while trying to rescue Miss Flynn.

John Cully, another employe, was terribly burned and may die.

Charley Strong After a Match.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Charley Strong of East Lee, Mass., says that he is ready to arrange a match to fight at 125 pounds for the largest purse the Coney Island Athletic club will offer, or he will arrange a match to box a limited number of rounds with the champion feather-weight, George Dixon.

Found Frozen in the Snow.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 14.—The body of Joseph Bennett, a colored man, was found frozen in the snow near New Egypt. Bennett was last seen alive when he left Cookstown, to return home in his sleigh. It is thought that he was thrown from the sleigh by the horse running away.

He Robbed the Pawnbroker.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Frederick G. Wood, a young English thief, is a prisoner at Police Headquarters charged with robbing pawnbroker Henry McAleen of Eighth avenue. He confesses that in a year he has stolen about $6,000 worth of goods.

DEAD A SECOND TIME

Clay Hopper Finally Passes Away and is Buried.

HISTORY OF A REMARKABLE CASE.

The Young Man Has Been in a Trance Since December 29—Successful Efforts at Resuscitation—Physicians from All Over the Country Visited Him.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 14.—Clay Hopper, the young man whose case of suspended animation has attracted so much attention, is dead for the second time. Life passed away yesterday. Undertaker Bennett was again called and for the second time he prepared the body for burial. Rev. S. D. Hutsinpiller again conducted funeral services and the body was taken to Woodlawn cemetery where a grave has been waiting to receive it for the past two weeks.

The case has been the wonder of the city ever since it was made public. The deceased was supposed to have died from dropsy of the pericardium, Dec. 29. The usual funeral preparations were made and the hearse was at the door to convey the body to the cemetery, when the parents yielded to a vague premonition that their son was not dead.

They dismissed the undertaker and mourning friends and called Dr. Sickles, a physician of standing.

Continued efforts at resuscitation finally resulted in the patient opening his eyes and since then he has breathed, his heart has fluttered, his feet and hands have twitched, his pulse has been felt, and a faint smile has responded to inquiries if he knew those around him.

Thursday he spoke. His mother sat in a room next to him, but only a few feet away. She was reading, when she heard a word which sounded like "Mother."

She stepped to the bedside of the youth in the trance and found his breast heaving up and down rapidly.

Dr. W. C. Gardiner, the president recently elected by the Toledo Medical College says that the stories of the returning to life being the product of overworked imaginations are absolutely false.

Physicians from all over the country have been here and the liveliest interest has been taken in the case.

SERVIAN RADICALS ARRESTED.

They Were Implicated in the Recent Riots Against the Government.

BELGRADE, Jan. 14.—One hundred Servian Radicals have been arrested for complicity in the recent riots, which were much graver than the official reports represented them to be.

At Semendria armed Radicals seized the town hall, stored it with a large quantity of arms and food, and tried to hold it against the government forces.

In the fight thirty Radicals were seriously wounded and a gendarme was shot dead. At Tsatsak a Radical was killed in a fight between armed Radicals and the police.

A MILE IN NIGHT CLOTHES.

Terrible Experience of Two Mutes and a Newly Born Child.

MILTON, Pa., Jan. 14.—Daniel Heiser and wife, both mutes, living in a lonely spot by the mountain, about seven miles from here, were awakened at midnight by smoke and flames in their room. Hastily wrapping themselves in blankets they rushed through the flames and escaped to the road carrying a newly born babe.

Not having time to save any of their clothing the unfortunates were obliged to walk one mile through snow and ice to the nearest farmhouse in their bare feet and night clothes.

BLAINE GROWING WEAKER.

Dr. Johnston Spent the Entire Night With His Patient.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Dr. Johnston spent the night with Mr. Blaine, and this morning states that his patient is resting quietly, but is gradually growing weaker.

Mr. Hill Cleans Out the Treasury.

KINGSTON, Jan. 14.—For forty-three years ex-County Treasurer Hill of Catskill held that office for Greene county, but he refused a renomination last fall, and a Republican named Ferrier was elected in his place. William H. Hackell, an expert accountant, examined Mr. Hill's accounts and found the county owed him $20,000. To pay himself Mr. Hill has retained every dollar in the treasury, thus leaving the present incumbent without any funds with which to pay the claims against the county.

A Yale Man in a Poorhouse.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 14.—Arthur Johnston, seventy-three years old and a graduate of Yale, is in the Kent County Poorhouse. He speaks several languages and has been a professor in two small colleges. In the booming days of Montana he went there and acquired $600,000. Bad mining speculations ruined him.

Immigrants Detained.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Six immigrants who arrived here on the steamship Dresden from Bremen are detained at Ellis Island on the ground that they came under contract to work in a factory in Pennsylvania. An examination of their case will be made.

Attempted Arson to Get Insurance.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Frank I. John, who, with a partner, occupied a stall in the Eastern Market, was arrested and confessed to attempting to set fire to the property of the firm to obtain the insurance.

EFFECTS OF THE STORM.

Mails Considerably Delayed Because of Its Severity.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—In consequence of the severity of the storm mails from all parts of the country are considerably delayed. Those arriving from the interior of the State were five hours overdue, and some of the southern and western mails which should have arrived last evening were not received at the Post Office until this morning, six or seven hours behind time.

No mails from stations west of Pittsburg and south of Washington were received at the Post Office to-day, the severity of the weather in those sections having prevented connections with the incoming trains.

The order for an early closing of the mails has not been extended to-day.

Despatches from Philadelphia, Washington and all cities as far west as Chicago report a similar state of affairs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The signal station at Atlantic Highlands reports that the pilotboat James Gordon Bennett is breaking up. Both of her masts are gone and a part of her deck.

At Sandy Hook a great deal of ice is passing out of the lower bay. The ship Cloudcap, which arrived at the Bar on the morning of the 11th, has not yet succeeded in getting up the bay. Yesterday the tug Talisman attempted to bring her up, but only got as far as Clifton, where she anchored for the night and this morning both the tug and ship have drifted with the ice below the Narrows.

IN LONG ISLAND SOUND.

Ice in Every Direction—Navigation Extremely Difficult.

CITY ISLAND, Jan. 14.—Ice covers the Sound as far as the eye can see in every direction. It is very thin, but is covered with snow and is in the right condition to freeze solid if the temperature falls before the wind arises.

The steamers H. F. Dimock, City of Bedford, City of Lawrence, Nashua and City of Bridgeport passed in soon after daylight, and the H. M. Whitney passed out.

The tugs S. J. Meed and Resolute, with a tow of sixteen coal laden barges for New Haven, worked up from Whitestone during the night and are anchored here.

The tugs A. E. Burnside and Vandercook, with tows of coal laden barges for New Haven, are fast in the ice at Hammond Flats. One two-masted schooner is in sight trying to work in the harbor, but is making little or no progress.

Several schooners dragged their anchors last evening, owing to the drifting ice, but sustained no injury.

River Frozen to the Bottom.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 14.—Despatches from Morgantown, W. Va., report an ice gorge extending two and a half miles above that place. Below Morgantown the river is believed to be frozen to the bottom and the ice at the mouth of Decker's Creek is piled up thirty feet high. The snow is thirty-six inches deep on the level and most of the county roads are buried under ten feet of snow.

Suffering Among Oystermen.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 14.—Maryland is experiencing an almost unprecedented protracted cold spell. There is intense suffering among the oystermen. It has been three weeks since tongers have had work, and even if the weather should moderate it would be some days before the ice would permit them to work.

Not Much Ice in Lake Michigan.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Jan. 14.—There is considerable ice for two miles outside Grand Haven Harbor, but otherwise there is very little in the lake.

Considering the Irish Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Mr. Justin McCarthy, leader of the anti-Parnellite section of the Irish Parliamentary party, held a long conference at the Prime Minister's residence in Downing Street. The matter under discussion was the financial proposals that are to be embodied in the Home Rule bill.

The Companies to Be Made Sound.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—At a meeting of the Western stockholders of the American Security and Trust Company and the Leeds Improvement Company, it was voted that the stockholders subscribe amounts sufficient to pay off all obligations, take up notes and place the companies on a solid financial footing.

Order of Solon May Reorganize.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 14.—The Supreme Lodge of the Order of Solon announces that a plan has been decided upon by which the order can be taken out of the receiver's hands and placed on a firm business footing. Forty sub-lodges represented, voted unanimously for the reorganization plan.

NEVER FAILED!
Gen. Hamilton, Scholar and Soldier.
Is a Grandson of the Great Alexander Hamilton.
Proud Record in the War for the Union.
Now Living and Writing at Tarrytown, N. Y.
The Author of "Cromwell" is Strong and Active.

Major Gen. Alexander Hamilton, the friend of Lincoln and Grant, is living in well earned retirement at Tarrytown-on-Hudson.

Proud of his family, for he is the grandson of the great patriot whose name he bears, and proud of his war record, for he was a fighting artillery officer, and was wounded at the front, he was always popular with the government at Washington. It has been well said that his clear sense of duty was never known to fail him.

Gen. Hamilton was educated at Columbia college, and also studied for a while under Captain Kingsley at West Point. At an early age he was left the care of his family estate in New York city. At the breaking out of the war, he was actively employed in organizing and forwarding troops to the front. In May, 1861, Gen. Scott assigned him to duty at Arlington House, Va. In October of that year after a vigorous service in various fields, having recruited several brigades of volunteers in New York city, he was appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers by the President, at Gen. Scott's request, and was ordered to a command in the regular artillery. He was appointed Maj. Gen. at Falmouth, Va., by the President, in 1863, having served continually until that time, and was thereafter in special service until the close of the war. He was one of the guard of honor to Lincoln's remains.

Since the close of the war, although he has always been interested in Grand Army affairs, and is a Past Commander of Post 182, Department of New York, he has devoted much of his time to church and literary work. A volume of his dramas and poems was published in 1887 and attracted great attention in literary circles. Of these, "Cromwell" is the most famous.

GEN. HAMILTON IN 1893.

"A noble work," to quote the Boston Traveller, "and nobly written and planned."

Of his tragedy, "Thomas A'Becket," the able reviewer of the New York Herald says: "The nature of the subject, and the chaste and beautiful manner in which it is presented, commend it to favor with all who appreciate artistic literature of this description." And it is certainly one of the best dramatic productions of American origin.

Gen. Hamilton is a gentleman of fine scholarly instincts, a patriot of the old school, and his recent recommendation of Paine's celery compound, the remedy that makes people well, is as frank and to the point as any action of his life. Writing an unsolicited letter from Tarrytown to Wells & Richardson Co., he says:

"Paine's celery compound has been a blessing to my family. It relieved Mrs. Hamilton, who, after suffering from a severe attack of the grip, suffered from excessive nervousness and great prostration. And our daughter of 16, who also suffered from the grip and measles, was cured by this remedy in the same manner.

"I have a dear friend who was kicked in the abdomen by a horse and was almost helpless. Excessive nervousness ensued and the physicians ascribed it to the injury. He is now, after using two bottles of Paine's celery compound, able to travel in the city and take long rides and attend to his business on the farm.

"I have, for many years, suffered from wounds received during the late war, there being one over my left lung and heart, and have carried round a musket ball for twenty years. But after using Paine's celery compound for the past year or two, I am vigorous and well, and free from the great nervousness and hemorrhage from which I suffered as the effect of the ball over my heart.

"My family would not be without Paine's celery compound in the house. It builds up the system, and is the best medicine that we ever used."

—Scely Edsall will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow at 4:15 p. m. Seventy-five were in attendance last week, and a very interesting meeting may be expected to-morrow.

—It is whispered that the Kitchen Garden classes are preparing to entertain their friends by an exhibition of their lessons in housekeeping, at some early date. Remembering their very interesting display at Music Hall some years ago, it is hoped that this rumor may be founded on fact.

—Dr. Frank Carver, who has a famous name as a scout and Indian fighter, is to appear at Music Hall, next Thursday evening, in "The Scout", a play which puts vividly before the audience the wild life of the West. The quondam scout is a man of heroic mold, standing six feet three without his shoes, and broad in proportion. He weighs 220 pounds and has a grip that attests the wonderful strength which constant practice with the rifle has given his wrist and fingers. His crisp hair is worn short—not in the style of the dime-novel scout—and is of a light auburn color, as are also his mustache and eye-brows. He talks simply and forcibly and with just a touch of the western accent which has been made familiar by Mayo. He has traveled with some sort of a show ever since.

The Blue Line Kills Another.

An Italian track hand was struck by a west-bound Blue Line train opposite the Central Railroad freight-house at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon.

The man was employed in trackboss Conway's gang, and was stooping over fixing the rails when the train struck him. His name was Wolfskei, and he lived in Elizabeth.

Willing hands conveyed the injured man into the freight-house, but he was so badly injured that he expired in a few minutes. His skull was crushed horribly, and his brains protruded from the wounds. A physician was summoned, and the ambulance was called, but neither arrived till after the man was dead.

New Rule for Physicians.

The Union County Medical society, at its meeting Thursday, amended its by-laws so that henceforth no mamber of the society may act as physician to secret or benevolent organizations at a yearly compensation. He can be the recognized physician of the lodge or society, but he must get his pay from the patient and not from the organization, and shall charge him the same as any other patient. The rule is to go into effect April 1.

The Crescent League in Its Creditors' Hands.

The sentiment at last night's meeting of the Crescent League was that the debts of the league should be met by assessments on the members, and that the club should not disband.

The creditors, however, have levied on all of the league's property, and will sell it off to get what they can of their claims.

What Plainfield Sports are Worth.

(Somerville Democrat.)

It grinds the Plainfielders that the Crescents have got to go under. The Press of that place says a project is on foot to effect a compromise with the creditors of the Crescent League on the basis of 25 cents on the dollar. That is about the size of Plainfield sports—they are worth about one-quarter of their face value.

New York's Novelty.

The gubernatorial chair of New York has changed its character somewhat within the year; it has become a Flower-holder. Although it is the only one of its kind in existence, there are flower-holders more suited to your needs at Collier's, and at prices easily suited to your purse as well.

Get the Genuine.

If you suffer with lame back, especially in morning, ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS are a sure relief.

If you cannot sleep, try an ALLCOCK PLASTER, well up between the shoulder blades—often relieves—sometimes cures. Try this before you resort to opiates.

If any of your muscles are lame—joints stiff—feel as if they wanted oiling—or if you suffer with any local pains or aches, these plasters will cure you.

If you use them once you will realise why so many plasters have been made in imitation of them. Like all good things they are copied as closely as the law allows. Don't be duped by taking an imitation when it is as easy to get the genuine.

If you always insist upon having ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS and never accept a substitute, you will not be disappointed.

RED MEN MEET THEIR CHIEFS.

Pleasant Happenings at the Wigwam of the Plainfield Tribe.

Last evening the grand council of New Jersey of the Improved Order of Red Men held a district session in the Wigwam of Miantonomo Tribe, 118, of this city. Over one hundred chiefs were present. Among the distinguished visitors to arrive there were Grand Sachem, Fred. Wahl, of Camden; Grand Junior Sagamore, Chas. Brown, of Paulsboro; G. C. of R., Daniel M. Stevens, of Camden; Grand Prophet, Thomas McDonough, of Trenton; Grand Sannap, William J. Forsyth; and delegations from Leola Tribe, 164, of Elizabeth, Raritan Tribe, 114, of Raritan, and Naratycon Tribe, 31, of Somerville. The regular order of business was transacted, after which Grand Sachem Wahl exemplified the unwritten work of the adoption ceremony and conferred the Past Sachems Degree on those brothers who were entitled to it. The distinguished guests and brethren retired to the banquet room and partook of the elaborate collation provided by the tribe.

After the collation the brethren repaired to the wigwam and were entertained until the small hours of the morning, with the following programme, after which the guests and brothers dispersed to their respective wigwams very well satisfied with the evening's proceedings.

PROGRAMME:

Short and long talks from Grand Sachem Wahl, Grand Junior Sagamore Brown, Grand C. of R. Stevens, Grand Prophet McDonough, Grand Sannap Forsyth, Past Sachem Westlake, Sachem Daily and Past Sachem N. C. Magee.

Recitations from brothers John H. Carney, George Leighs, E. A. Neal and William Newcorn.

Songs from brothers Eli M. Odam, Andrew J. Stiglitz, R. B. York, William Klein, Chas. L. Halstein, Fred. Wahl, John H. Carney, George S. McGinnis, Joel Pennington and others.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. H. C. Compton and daughters are home from an extended absence.

Charles White, formerly of Plainfield, has been visiting his old friends in town.

Jacob Pentz and family will remove from Fanwood to Bergen Point on March 1, much to the regret of their many friends and acquaintances in this section.

Frank J. Hubbard, of F. A. Dunham's engineering corps, has been granted an extension of his absence from Olean, N. Y., and will assist engineer Dunham in his Plainfield work.

Messrs. Mohn and Mallery, two of the "Student Volunteers" for foreign missionary work, and members of the Princeton and Rutgers Y. M. C. A., will address the meeting at the Congregational church to-morrow evening at 7:30.

Daniel Nolan, formerly of this city, and now of Yonkers, where he holds the position of advertising agent of the Yonkers Herald, was in town yesterday visiting his parents and a host of friends. Success is bound to attend Dan in his new venture.

Harley B. Nichols of East Sixth street, long connected with the Barbour Bros. Co., manufacturers of the world-renowned "Barbour's Flax Thread", with mills situated at Paterson, N. J., Lisbon, Ireland, and Germany, has accepted a lucrative and responsible position with their Boston branch. Mr. Nichols will move his family April 1 to one of Boston's beautiful suburbs.

A Railroad Society Note.

Among the crew of that particularly polite Jersey Central railroad conductor, Joseph Tennyson Ross, whose train passes through Plainfield for the gold and iron mines of Morris county every day at 7:10 a. m., is a genteel and accommodating baggagemaster named Walter Clickner. "Mr. Joe's" train is compelled to spend three hours at Rockaway, Morris county, every day; and the "baggage", why, "she" just skates From Rockaway to Dover and back again on the canal "she" glides merrily along on the rollers. Arthur Douglass has already offered to back Mr. Clickner against Joe Donoughue the world's champion in a contest on Lake Hopatcong, if the lake ever freezes over again.

Salvation Army Specialties.

The Salvation Army will hold special meetings to-night and to-morrow led by staff captain Marshall and captain Caygell, from New York. The subjects will be: 8 to-night, salvation temperance meeting; Sunday—7 a. m., "Sharpening of Bayonets"; 11 a. m., salvation politics; 3 p. m., "Why I am a Salvationist"; 7:15 p. m., "Raising of the Dead". All welcome.

Somerville and Westfield Were in Deeper Holes.

The papers of Somerville are trying to lead people to suppose that the pace set by Mr. Mack's ball team of that place was so hot that the Crescent League was bankrupted to win.

The truth is that Somerville went in a hole $1,200 and Westfield $1,600, more than they took in, just trailing along behind Plainfield.

Annual Meeting of the Local Union.

On account of the anniversary of the Young Men's Christian association occurring Thursday evening, Jan. 19, the annual meeting of the Plainfield local union of the Christian Endeavor societies, has been postponed until Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, in the Seventh-day Baptist church, at 7:45.

Tours to California, Florida, etc., via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For people contemplating either extended or limited pleasure jaunts during the winter and spring of the new year, an inspection of the Pennsylvania railroad company's announcement of its personally-conducted tours will prove of great assistance. As far as territory covered is concerned, the first in importance is the series to the Golden Gate and Pacific coast points, starting from New York and Philadelphia Feb. 8, March 2 and 29. The same liberal provisions accorded last year, as to conditions and use of tickets, will be in effect for these tours.

A series of five will be run to Florida—Jan. 31, Feb. 14 and 28, March 14 and 28. The rates of $50 from New York, $48 from Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Washington, and proportionate rates from other points, cover all necessary expenses en route in both directions. Tickets for the first four tours will admit of a stay of two weeks in the flowery State, and for the fifth until May 30.

There will be a series of six to Washington, D. C., each tour covering a period of three days—January 19, February 9, March 23, April 13, May 4 and 25. The rates of $13 from New York, and $11 from Philadelphia and Wilmington, and proportionate rates from other places, include railroad fare and hotel accommodations during the stay in the capital. For information and itineraries application should be made to tourist agents, 849 Broadway, New York, and 233 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, or ticket agents of the Pennsylvania railroad company.

Keep Your Temper, Motor Man.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I would like to have a little space in your valuable paper, to say that I think if the motor man on each street railway car did not get mad and cast black looks at a driver of a vehicle, because he does not turn out as soon as the first gong is sounded, he would get along just as well. As I have ridden in a milk wagon, I find it is impossible to hear the motor men sounding the gong the first time, because there is so much noise about the milk cans, and besides the wagon is all closed up, and in this cold weather the driver has his ears protected against the weather. A TAXPAYER.

New Jersey's Fine Arts Exhibit.

At the meeting held yesterday at the Seminary, the following women were appointed the committee on fine arts: Mrs. John Ward Stimson, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. James Middledith.

The object of this committee is to collect all art work done by women in Union county. It is the sincere wish of the committee that the women workers in this line make themselves known to the committee, as the time is limited. Notices will be sent to all names forwarded to the committee.

The Railroad Company Appeals.

When the verdict of the jury in the case of John M. Hill, assessing his damages at $5,000 for the loss of a foot at Dunellen was announced, in the Union county court, Thursday, Frank Bergen, counsel for the Jersey Central, moved for a rule to show cause why the verdict should not be set aside as excessive. The rule was granted.

Five Grandmothers to Coddle Him.

A bright little boy arrived a short time ago at the home of W. A. Schutt, 41 Duer street, and one day recently five grandmothers assembled and went into ecstacies of admiration over the little fellow. Two of them are "great-grand", and one is a "great-great-grand". Of course each of the five will want to name him.

Plain enough—the way to a clear complexion, free from blotches, pimples, eruptions, yellow spots, and roughness. Purify your blood, and you have it. With pure, rich blood, an active liver, good appetite and digestion, the hue of health follows. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives you all of them. It is the blood-purifier. There's no lack of them, but there's none like this. It's guaranteed to accomplish all that's claimed for it. In all diseases arising from torpid liver and impure blood, it benefits or cures, or the money is refunded. With an ordinary medicine, it couldn't be done. But this isn't an ordinary medicine.

It is the cheapest blood-purifier sold, through druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

The "Discovery" acts equally well all the year round.

That's the kind of medicine to try.

FINE, DELICATE, NATURAL!

Such are the FLORAL POWDERS (or sachet powders) prepared at REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY. Even those persons who don't care for Handkerchief Essences strongly approve our Floral Powders, because of their truth to nature and their richness. Especially worth mention is Reynolds's Jacqueminot Rose, the best in all the world. It may sound boastful, but it is a fact, nevertheless. Then come our Heliotrope, Jockey-Club, Violet, all very fine. These powders are sold by the ounce, and are much in demand for Holiday Fixings. By the way, we are showing the completest stock of Perfumery ever offered in Plainfield—fine quality, elegant styles, low prices.

A CARD.

It would seem that from the fact that my nephew, A. M. Vanderbeek, is closing out the sporting goods business, a few of my friends have the impression that I too am about to go out of the piano and organ business. This impression I wish to correct by saying that I shall remain a member of the firm of Vanderbeek & Sattels and can always be found at the old place of business (33 Park avenue) where I have been for the last 40 years. Very respectfully,

BOWLING.

Hard Luck Lost Plainfield the Game.

The Young Men of Plainfield rolled in hard luck in the Journal trophy bowling tournament last night. They deserved to win, for they put up a good score, and though they started off behind hand they were catching up in great shape when the Roselles made a wonderful spurt and won. The score:

The Elizabeth Field club met with its first defeat, Thursday night, in a sharp game. Its opponents, the Alcyones, won by the score of 1478 to 1473. This puts the Y. M. C. L. A. first.

The Union County Roadsters have withdrawn from the tournament. Their captain says: "I regret very much to take this step at this date, but find it now impossible to get ten good men together. Our men will not practice, I suppose they think they are too good."

This action of the Radsters is to be regretted, as the club contains a number of good bowlers, and up to the day of their resignation it held fourth place in the league contest, having won two and lost two games in this season's series. Its victories were won from the Roselles and Crescents; its losses were to the Y. M. C. L. A. and C. Y. M. L.

Some diversity of opinion has been expressed as to whether or not the games in which the Roadsters have rolled should be allowed to remain on the records or be erased, and it is probable that a meeting of the league executive committee will be called at an early date to consider the matter.

The resignation of the Union County Roadsters prevented the scheduled game between that team and the Pioneers, which was to have been rolled Thursday night. Secretary Cooley visited the alleys early in the evening, and posted a notice of the Roadsters' withdrawal, but it is understood that the Pioneers will claim the game by forfeit on such short notice.

The tournament record to date:

MR. COMSTOCK WEAVING A NET.

He Says Elizabeth Men Will Be Involved in His Green-Goods Case.

Anthony Comstock and four detectives were in Elizabeth yesterday hunting evidence against the green-goods men who recently had their headquarters at 344 Morris avenue. Mr. Comstock told a reporter he was weaving a net of guilt about some folks' heads, and they lived in Elizabeth.

Mr. Comstock said he hoped to have a complete chain of evidence at the trial of the green-goods men under arrest in Jersey City, and citizens of Elizabeth would probably be involved.

NOTHING FOR CARLYLE HARRIS.

Dr. McCready Cuts Off His Grandson Entirely in His Will.

The will of Dr. Benjamin W. McCready, uncle of Mrs. Julian Hasbrouck of East Fifth street, was filed for probate yesterday. His daughter, Mrs. Frances Jane Harris, is the mother of Carlyle W. Harris, under conviction of murder for poisoning Helen Potts. The will was executed March 14, 1892, and makes an unmarried daughter, Mary Louisa McCready, sole executrix. His property is said to exceed $100,000.

After giving his daughter Mary certain furniture and making a bequest of $2,000 to Elizabeth Hills, a niece, he provides that the rest of his estate shall be held in trust. The income is to be divided into four parts, and one part is to be given yearly for life to each of his three daughters, Mary Louisa McCready, Frances Jane Harris, and Elizabeth Beck Sykes. The income of the fourth part is to go to the children of his deceased son, Thomas Lawrence McCready, while they are minors. The daughters, excepting Mrs. Harris, have power to dispose by will of the principal of their shares. Mrs. Harris can will hers to anybody but her son Carlyle. The principal of the fourth share goes absolutely to the children of Thomas when the youngest attains his majority. Each, however, gets $5,000 of it as he reaches that age. The will says:

In no event shall my grandson, Carlyle W. Harris, receive either under this, my last will and testament, or under the power of appointment given herein to either of my daughters, any portion of my estate;

He, however, provides for the expenses of the trial of Harris by the following clause:

I give to my daughter, Frances Jane Harris, all advancements made and hereafter to be made on account of the expenses connected with the trial of her son, Carlyle W. Harris, the same to be deducted from her one-fourth share of the estate.

He gives his residence at Scotch Plains, value $6,000, to his daughter, Mrs. Sykes, widow of the former pastor of All Saints Episcopal church, but it is to be deducted from her portion.

THE JERSEY SENATORSHIP.

Neither Side Dared Try Its Strength in Jersey City Last Night.

The Hudson County Democratic committee met last night in the Democratic headquarters in Grove street, Jersey City. Besides the members there was a large attendance of prominent politicians, as it had been rumored that an effort would probably be made to endorse either James Smith, jr., or Gov. Abbett for United States senator.

The effort if it had been made would have been a test of the relative strength of the two bosses, ex-Judge Robert Davis and county clerk Dennis McLaughlin. The two have heretofore pulled kindly together in double harness but are divided on the question of the senatorship.

Davis favors Smith, and McLaughlin is for Gov. Abbett. Probably because neither knew the other's strength with the committee, and each was afraid to make the test, the subject was not introduced.

THE DUAL TOPEKA HOUSE

Populists Propose a Plan to Settle the Trouble.

THE GOVERNOR URGES ARBITRATION

Republicans Considering the Proposition Made by Their Opponents—Populist House Recognized by the Senate—Bankers Refuse to Go on the State Treasurer's Bond Until the Matter Is Settled.

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 14.—The leading Populists have proposed a plan for settling the House squabble.

The plan proposes that the Populists concede the legality of the Republican organization; prominent committees to be made up of equal numbers of Republicans and Populists and one Democrat; that no legislation be enacted excepting the creation of a commission to consider all contest cases and report to the House its findings, which shall be final and conclusive; the membership of the House, after having been determined, to decide which set of presiding officers shall officiate.

The plan further provides that contesting members shall be allowed to vote on the plan and have a voice in the selection of the arbitration commission.

The Republicans have not yet accepted the plan.

The Populist House of Representatives was recognized yesterday by the Senate. The recognition by the Senate came by Lieut. Governor Daniels, when Chief Clerk Rich of the Populist House addressed him with a message from the House and it was received. Senator Scott (Rep.) appealed from the decision of the Lieut.-Governor, and the latter's action was sustained by a vote of 23 to 16. Taylor (Pop.) and O'Brien (Dem. Pop.) voted with the Republicans.

W. H. Biddel, State Treasurer elect, has not yet been qualified, and all attempts to make good his bond have proved unavailing. The trouble in the Legislature has frightened his bondsmen so that several of them have already withdrawn their names. Bankers have positively refused to go on the bond while the present unsettled condition exists.

The Republican Treasurer, Stover, who holds over, has reopened his accounts, all of which had been closed to be in readiness for the transfer of the office.

Gov. Lewelling seems to regret his recognition of the Populist House for he now refuses to bring about the logical sequence of his action and that of the Senate by removing the Republicans from Representative Hall, and is exerting all his influence towards securing arbitration of the difficulty.

DESPERATE GERMAN MINERS.

They Attack the Overseers and Are Repulsed By Troops.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Driven to desperation by the futility of their strike, which promises to result disastrously for many of the men who have taken part in it, several hundred of the miners at Dortmund made an attack upon the overseers of the Schlke pits.

Trouble had been anticipated in the district and the gendarmes were prepared to put down any disorder.

The strikers resisted the officers and a short but sharp fight followed, during which several of the rioters were wounded. A miner named Schoenwald, who led the rioters was arrested, as were also several others of the strikers. The mob, when they saw their leader under arrest, took to flight.

OVERWORKED CLERK.

This Will Greatly Interest You.

A young, hard-working clerk broke down in health and strength from overwork and overstrain upon the nerves. Through nervous weakness he fell into discouragement, because wife, mother and sister were dependent upon him.

The same applies to thousands of overworked clerks, mechanics and others who see themselves growing thin in flesh, pale and sallow, and find themselves losing their physical strength and strong nerve. They grow weak, nervous, tire easily, have dull-feeling head, backache, kidney and liver complaint, wake tired mornings, lose their appetite, become constipated, feel miserable, old. They are rapidly breaking down, and should use immediately the great nerve strengthener and blood invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will give a clear head, strong and steady nerves, vigorous strength of body, perfect action of kidneys, liver and bowels, and thus they will be able to keep up to their work.

It is purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists, $1.

"I feel it my duty to write what wonderful benefits I have received from Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I had nervous prostration and dyspepsia terribly. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and before I had taken two bottles I could sleep and eat and felt like a new man. I took three bottles in all and call myself a well man. Should I again get in that nervous state, I shall know what to take to make me well again. I would recommend all who suffer from nervous prostration to take this wonderful remedy, for it is a sure cure. Barney Wilson, Champlaine, Clinton county, N. Y."

Dr. Greene, the discoverer of this wonderful remedy, is the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 West 14th st., New York, and can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case or send for symptom blank to fill out and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

IN ROMANTIC DAYS.

When California Was Ruled by Spanish Mexicans.

The Administration of a Great Ranch—The Peonage System—Social Customs of the Patricians and Their Followers—At a Ball.

[Special Los Angeles (Cal.) Letter.]

Those who have read the "Happy Valley of Rasselas" can form some idea of the pastoral beauty of California and the Arcadian happiness of the inhabitants, prior to the discovery of gold in 1848, and the consequent rush of the adventurers of the world to "these peaceful shores." No country since the days of the Biblical patriarchs has presented such a scene of rural simplicity, peacefulness and general prosperity as California. The conquest by the Americans was almost bloodless, and of short duration. The hidalgos and priests who came from Spain and Mexico had selected the most fertile spots for their haciendas, and mission churches. The population, exclusive of Indians, was about thirty thousand, extending along the coast, the missions being San Diego, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Jose, Yerba Buena (San Francisco), and Sonoma, a stretch of country about seven hundred miles in extent.

The ranches ranged in extent from one to eleven leagues—or from 4,000 or 5,000 to 50,000 acres. The hidalgos, when they left their native land, had been given grants as an inducement to settle in this new country, and many of the ranches were baronial in their extent and surroundings, containing from 1,000 to 10,000 head of horned cattle and from 500 or 600 to 8,000 or 4,000 head of horses, and other stock in proportion. The proprietors were great dignitaries, "lords to the manor born," maintaining large numbers of vassals, even greater than many of the feudal barons of old. These vassals were mainly Indians, who, under Mexican major domos, did all of the work on the ranches. They were good harvesters and the best horse breakers in the world. The Indians were very numerous, docile even to servility and incapable of "self-government," and so the Mexicans practically enslaved them under a peonage system. They were paid off on Saturdays for their week's work, generally in aguardiente, when they would drink, gamble and fight, and generally find their way to the mission jail.

On the following Monday they were offered for sale for the following week for money due their employer or the prison keeper. The proprietor generally bought his men in at from $6 to $8 each. ASS from week to week these Indian peons were publicly offered for sale in the pueblos, as negro slaves were at the southern auction marts. These sales were generally made on village fair days, and during festivals. On these days the pueblo was both a slave mart and a beauty market—many purchasing wives.

These ranchos had numerous major domos, or "bosses"—one for every department—like the court of royalty. The chief major domo had general supervision. Then there was a major domo for the unbroken horses, one for the broken horses; the major domo de la casa was the steward of the house; the major domo del campo had charge of the vaqueros, or mounted herders of the field; another had charge of the men who branded the cattle; another, of those who made riatas, or ropes—every department had its corps of men, over whom was a major-domo.

At daylight three men clad in the native costumes worn centuries ago in the Vega of Granada, or on the plains of

MEXICAN RANCHERS.

Morocco, mounted on their spirited horses and on foot, report with hat in hand to the chief major domo for duty. As a general sending out detachments of troops, the major domo in chief gives orders to his sub-commanders and they file off in detachments for their respective duties. They have all had their coffee, and perhaps a drink of aguardiente. At about nine o'clock all return for breakfast, the major domo of each detachment reporting what work has been done. The chief, hat in hand, in turn reports to the proprietor of the rancho. After the army has finished breakfast work is resumed. Dinner is called at twelve o'clock, and then the siesta, or sleep under the shady trees of the rancheria.

The siesta—sleeping, smoking and relating stories—lasts about two hours, and then to work until sundown. The night is passed in music, dancing, gambling drinking, and sometimes varied with fighting. But, with the "American invasion" this Acadian simplicity vanished.

While these rancheros lived in baronial splendor, with the power of feudal lords, their hospitality was commensurately great. It was not for outward show, but was a general rule of the country, founded on a generous, hospitable spirit. A man could travel from San Diego to Sonoma without it costing him a dollar, even if he were a stranger. At each ranch where he stopped over night a fresh horse would be provided him on the morrow, he leaving his own until the return trip, which would be taken care of, and no charge. Perhaps he rode away a better horse than his own, and, if he did not return muy bien (very well), horses are plentiful, and the senor is welcome." Religious fiestas were celebrated at the pueblos (villages) and missions with great pomp and ceremony, and afforded these isolated people great relief from the monotony of ranch life. When the daughter of a ranchero married, the family gave a grand fiesta at the rancho or a baile at the pueblo or mission, to which the entire country was invited—people coming a distance of 100 and even 150 miles, according to the prominence of the rancheros.

Families traveled in their elaborate carretas and the caballeros and senoritas rode their prancing steeds. These feasts lasted from one to three or four days as the spirit moved the revelers.

The baile, or ball, is a select gathering of the rancheros' friends. He had provided provisions ample for a siege of several days, and the guests had brought along their boxes or trunks of clothing. The costume of the ladies was a dress of red, green or yellow silk, or white lawn skirt, worn over a red petticoat—a pretty combination of colors—with red or white satin slippers, and wearing the jewels of past generations, handed down from grandmother to the mother and to the daughter for perhaps centuries.

The senors wore pantaloons of black cloth, open at the outer seams of the legs, the seams being laced with silken cords, fastened with tiny bell buttons, a close-fitting blue or black jacket, gold embroidered, a red sash around the waist and a "ruffled" bosom shirt.

The grand room, or sala, in which the baile takes place, has chair boards extending around the entire length on each side, where are seated the dancers and spectators. A favorite amusement, which afforded much flirtation, was the carnival of the cascarones. A cascarone is an egg shell filled with gilt paper of all colors, cut into infinitessimal parts and liberally saturated with cologne. A senorita breaks one of these over a senor's head, which gives it the appearance of being powdered with gold dust. This is a great compliment, and he is bound by all of the rules of courtesy to acknowledge it by breaking one over her head—perhaps he breaks a half dozen at once, and the effect is beautiful—spangles of red, blue, white, green, yellow and purple glistening in the senorita's head of coal black hair. When the amusement is at its height there is a battle of cascarones, and the young people's heads and dresses glisten with the radiant colors, and the floor is covered with the painted egg shells—a battle of beauty and gallantry.

But the happy days of the Spanish baile are gone, with other amusements and sports of romantic California before the days of the "invasion of the Americano." The noisy fandango of the Mexican has succeeded the Spanish baile. The fandango is something like the French masquerade or the American "public grand ball"—everybody and anybody can go, and the best stay away.

The fandango is what the tourist and the native superficial observer sees, and they think they have seen something of ancient Spanish life. Very few of the customs of the ancient hidalgos are observed in these latter days, and there are very few of the old adobe ranch houses of those days now in existence. The modern adobe house is of different structure and construction—not built with a view to comfort, hospitality and pleasure, but merely to live in. The days of the baronial rancheros were the golden days of the romance of California.

A Revolution In Eating

has been brought about by the introduction of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening. The discovery of this product, and the demonstration of its remarkable qualities, has attracted the widest interest. Hitherto the common shortening has been lard, or indifferent butter. Every one has probably suffered occasional discomfort from lard-cooked food; while it is well known that thousands are obliged to abstain entirely from everything of that kind. To such people, COTTOLENE is of peculiar value, widening as it does, the range of what may be eaten and enjoyed. COTTOLENE is a cooking marvel. It combines with the food—imparts to it a tempting color, a delicate flavor, and an appetizing crispness. No trace of greasiness remains to offend the taste, or disturb the digestion.

COTTOLENE is worthy of the careful notice of all those who value good food, of itself or for its hygienic properties.

BUTLER LAID AT REST

The Last Rites Over the Body of the Dead General.

LOWELL CROWDED WITH VISITORS.

State Officials, Distinguished Civilians, Militia, Veterans, and Many Societies Unite in Paying Respect—The Body Lay in State Yesterday and This Morning.

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 16.—The final services over the body of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler are being held to-day, and the event is the greatest one that this city has ever witnessed. The militia, the visiting dignitaries, Grand Army posts, and the Lowell societies swell the funeral procession to enormous proportions.

Gov. Russell and his staff, Gov. Smith of New Hampshire and staff, and delegations from the Legislature and Boston and Lawrence city governments are present.

At Gen. Butler's late residence on Belvidere Hill, private funeral services were held yesterday morning. Rev. Dr. A. St. John Chambee of St. Anne's Episcopal Church read the office for the dead.

The body was in the drawing room. President Harrison's wreath and wreaths of ferns and lilies were laid upon the coffin.

Among the people present there were such leading men of this city as are close friends of the family, and the General's kinsmen, Messrs. Plympton and Drinkwater, Cadet Butler Ames of Westpoint, Gen. Ames, Frank L. Washburn, O. D. Barrett and others. There was no eulogy and no address by the clergyman.

Comrades bore the body from the house to a hearse drawn by four horses. A wild wind was blowing from the river over the hill. The veterans suffered, but not a man sought shelter. As the body was carried from the portals of the house the drums of the band rumbled, the colors were dipped, and the company saluted.

When the march to the hall was taken up, arms were reversed, and the officers fell to the rear of the detachment. The streets were crowded as the band signaled by dirges the passage of the General's body from the house to Huntington hall, where the body was to lie in state.

A great crowd was waiting to be admitted to the hall. In the hall the coffin was placed in the middle of the floor. From the ceiling to the floor a wall of black extended. Grand Army men guarded the casket.

On the coffin rested the sword and epaulettes that were worn from Lowell to the Gulf and back again in the days when the negro was made a contraband of war by the brain that lay at rest under the coffin lid.

Behind the catafalque rested a bank of flowers that had come from President Harrison, from the convicts of the State prison, and from all classes of people between those extremes.

President Harrison's wreath was placed on the coffin in Washington. Senators Dawes, Chandler, and Hale, Gov. Russell, Hon. Frederick Douglass, militia companies, societies, and friends in Lowell, Boston, New York, Washington, Chicago, and other places sent pieces that took up one side of the hall.

When the crowds were admitted to the hall, they almost carried the doors off their hinges. They struggled up stairs and ran over the police, who tried to restrain them. Shouts and cries awoke the echoes of the hall where the dead man lay.

Huntington Hall, whenever Gen. Butler appeared there in life, saw turbulent scenes, but those of yesterday surpassed anything ever seen before at the old hall. Down in the street thousands pressed forward when they saw the doors open. All the afternoon a steady stream of people poured in, but the crowds that wanted to get in did not diminish.

The exit was on Shattuck street and a stream of people poured through that door. No impression could be made in the mass that clamored for admission at the other side of the hall.

Late in the afternoon the doors were closed and the officers had an hour's rest. It was designed to close the hall at 5 o'clock until this morning, but at 6 o'clock they were opened again. This time the people were beaten into lines and more order was maintained up to 11 o'clock, when the final closing was made.

Hundreds left the place without getting in and many others who wanted to get out of the jam, were forced to wait and be swept into the hall by the stream.

There was another clash this morning as those who failed yesterday tried again. The rush was almost as bad as that of yesterday.

McCLELLAN'S FATAL MISTAKE.

Disregarded a Subordinate's Warning and Lost a Great Opportunity.

MILTON, Pa., Jan. 16.—A batch of manuscript belonging to the late Gen. J. Irvin Gregg, for many years a citizen of Lewisburg, Pa., has just been found. It includes a copy of a report of Gen. Gregg to Gen. McClellan when the latter commanded the Army of the Potomac.

Gen. Gregg, who at the time was a colonel commanding a regiment, was detailed as commander of McClellan's outposts and while occupying that position he discovered that Gen. Johnston of the Southern Army was moving on McClellan's flank. He reported the movement to McClellan at once, but the Union commander could not be convinced of the accuracy of Gregg's report, and therefore did not take the precaution that he should have taken.

Three days after Gregg submitted his report McClellan found out that his subordinate officer was correct. Johnston suddenly attacked the Union forces on their flank and McClellan was forced to retreat. Then the fighting on the Peninsula ensued, the Southerns followed our army to the James River, where the hard fought battle of Malvern Hill followed. McClellan was relieved and Pope, who was placed in command, met Johnston at Bull Run and was fearfully routed.

It is contended that had Gen. McClellan taken the advice of Gregg, when the latter first reported Johnston's contemplated move on the flank of the Union forces, Richmond could have been taken and the backbone of the rebellion broken.

WAS THE VILLAGE BULLY.

"Mutton" Devlin, of Woodbridge, Sought a Fight and Got It.

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Jan. 16.—Thomas Devlin, alias "Mutton," the bricklayer, who was shot and killed yesterday morning, was looked upon as the village bully, and one of his amusements was annoying a gang of Hungarians who have been working just outside of the village.

With two companions, Devlin was in James McGowan's saloon on Main street about 3 o'clock in the morning, when Andrew George, one of the Huns, entered the saloon and bought a pint of beer.

Just as he was going out Devlin tried to grab the pail, and in doing so spilt a part of the beer on the floor.

A number of other Huns ran up when they saw what had happened, and a fight was expected.

Before this could take place, however, George drew a revolver and fired five shots at Devlin. One of the bullets entered his left breast and lodged in the heart.

He fell to the floor dead. George ran out and disappeared, but later surrendered himself to Constable McDonald.

Devlin's companions have not been seen since the shooting.

LOTH'S LAST HOURS.

Stolidity of the Condemned Man Before the Execution.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Kornell Loth, the Hungarian, who was electrocuted this morning, was convicted in Schenectady county of the murder of Mrs. Ettie Demacesk, the crime being committed in her own home in Schenectady.

The trial, conviction, and the time elapsing between the conviction and the carrying out of the death penalty was the shortest on record in this State. Loth committed the crime on June 14, 1892, was arrested in July, put on trial in November, convicted in two days, and sentenced on Dec. 3 to die Jan. 16.

Loth slept most of the time yesterday. He had to be awakened to have the death warrant read to him, and also when his spiritual adviser called to see him. He ate a hearty supper and breakfast, and at no time during the day or last night did he show any feeling or interest in the execution.

SATOLLI'S POWER.

Father Connolly's Views on the Archbishop's Appointment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—No official announcement of the appointment of a permanent apostolic delegate has reached Archbishop Corrigan, nor does he expect any.

Speaking as his representative, Father Connolly stated that whatever might be said in regard to the result of the appointment of Mgr. Satolli as Apostolic Delegate must necessarily be conjecture only.

"We do not know what power will be vested in Mgr. Satolli," he said, "they can only be learned through the documents which it is announced have been forwarded to Washington. Of course, beyond a doubt, he will have entire control in the judging of cases that might come under his direction, because he has already had that power, and his present appointment indicates its continuation.

"Just what effect the establishment of an Apostolic Delegation in this country will have I am not prepared to say, nor am I in a position to say whether its influence will be noticeable in any of the dioceses."

Father Connolly explained that the United States is under the Congregation of the Propaganda, and that just at present it was impossible to state whether the Apostolic Delegation would bring this territory under a new board of direction.

The appointment, he said, was not entirely an innovation, as appointments of a like nature had been made in other countries.

It is generally believed among Catholics here that the trouble between the liberal and radical wings of the church in this country and the talk that has been created by the restoration of Dr. McGlynn to the priesthood hastened the Pope's action in the matter.

A prominent Catholic when asked today what effect the new order of things would have on the church in this country, said:

"Beneficial. Mgr. Satolli is now virtually Pope of the United States. He is well fitted to deal with any question that may arise, and his standing at Rome, especially with Pope Leo XIII., will almost preclude the possibility of any decision he might render ever even receiving consideration at the Vatican, should an attempt be made to appeal it."

PRECAUTIONS AT CHESTER.

Police Officials Fear an Attempt to Lynch Parricide Rodgers.

CHESTER, Pa., Jan. 16.—The terrible tragedy enacted here Saturday afternoon, which resulted in the loss of two lives, the wounding of one woman and made Thomas Rodgers, 24 years old, a double parricide, has thrown the community into great excitement.

Police officials have taken extra precaution to prevent lynchers from adding the final chapter to the bloody deed.

That the young fiend intended to commit murder, is admitted by himself.

To a reporter, he said the attack was the result of a family row, and that he intended to kill his father. He gave no reason, however, for the assault on his mother and sister.

FRACAS AT PATERSON.

The toughs escaped save the one who was wounded. He was taken to a hospital. Wilkesman was arrested.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE

Forecast of the Work Mapped Out for This Week.

ANTI-OPTION TO BE DISPOSED OF.

Not Hoped that This Can be Accomplished Without a Hard Struggle—The Opposition to the Immigration Bill—Commerce Committee Plans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The week promises to be eventful in the Senate. Save the passage of the Quarantine bill the Senate has accomplished very little and not one of the annual appropriation bills has been passed.

The Committee on Order of Business has determined that something must be done to advance the public business. It was at the suggestion of Mr. Sherman, Chairman of the Committee, that Mr. Washburn gave notice that he would ask the Senate to sit Wednesday until the Anti-Option bill is disposed of.

That this can be done without a bitter struggle is not expected. What will follow the Anti-Option bill will be decided by the Committee on Order of Business before Wednesday.

At present the indications are that priority will lie between some of the Interstate Commerce bills, if Senator Cullom is able to resume his duties, the Nicaragua Canal bill, and perhaps a resolution to repeal the Silver Purchase act.

Mr. Peffer of Kansas is down for a speech on the limitation of the Presidential term, and Mr. Morrill of Vermont on the McGarrahan bill, both for to-day.

The majority have mapped out a big programme for the House. To-day is suspension day. Efforts will be made to pass the Raum Pension Office report and the bill for the election of Senators by the people by a two-thirds vote.

The majority of the Rules Committee has decided to allot to-morrow to bills coming from the Judiciary Committee, Wednesday to the Immigration bill, and Thursday and Saturday to bills originating with the Committee on Foreign and Inter-State Commerce Committee.

Friday, under the regular rules, is private bill day. There is some opposition to the Immigration bill, and it is hardly likely that one day will suffice for its passage.

The friends of the Quarantine bill, reported by the Committee on Foreign and Inter-State Commerce, which will, it is contended, meet all the evils as to cholera, which the Immigration bill was designed to remedy, are opposed to the Immigration bill.

The Quarantine bill was antagonized very strongly by the State Quarantine officers of New York, but a part, at least, of this opposition has been withdrawn. There is a probability of some trouble for each of these bills from the opposition of members who favor the other of the two members.

The Commerce Committee has a formidable list of measures which it hopes to pass, headed by the Omnibus Lighthouse bill and the bill for the erection of a couple of additional revenue cutters.

CARNEGIE COMPANY ACCUSED.

Dempsey's Attorney Says They Have Bribed Their Witnesses.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 15.—The trial of District Master Workman Dempsey, of the Knights of Labor, charged with complicity in the plot to poison men at Homestead, is being continued to-day.

There arrived in this city last night Wm. C. Kaiss, a coal dealer, of Baltimore. He had a letter written by Dr. James Cooper, one of the witnesses for the Carnegie company, in which, it is alleged, the writer said he had received money from the Carnegie company.

As he performed no professional services for the company, the attorneys for Dempsey claim there is no other conclusion but that the money was taken by him for services as a competent witness.

Attorney Porter, chief counsel for Dempsey, says he has a clear case of perjury and bribery.

Proceedings will follow later, when the Carnegie company and Dr. Cooper will have charges preferred against them.

IN JAIL FOR FORGERY.

Misdeeds of a Prominent Citizen of Georgetown, Mass.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 16.—A sensation has been caused in Georgetown by the arrest of Frank Vining, a prominent citizen and Sunday school superintendent, who, by his own confession, is a forger.

Over two years ago Vining came to Georgetown with good references and purchased a half interest in business with Harold F. Blake for $10,000, paying $1,000, and giving notes as collateral for the balance. The notes bore gilt edged names, but Vining always opposed their negotiation, and finally confessed that they were forged.

He confessed also to forging other notes, the amount aggregating some $11,000, of which the Georgetown National bank has $5,500, the Savings bank $1,000, and Mr. Blake the rest.

These were mostly settled by the parties interested, and Vining given a chance to reform.

Within a few months, however, other checks endorsed by Vining and bearing the signature of D. L. Outon, of this city, have been presented to and endorsed by the Georgetown bank.

Outon having no funds there, these transactions led to Vining's arrest.

He is in jail in default of $3,000 bail.

MR. BLAINE'S RESTFUL NIGHT.

Dr. Johnston Says His Patient Has Not Lost Strength.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—There are no developments in Mr. Blaine's case other than favorable. When Dr. Johnston left the house this morning he said that Mr. Blaine had passed a quiet, restful and uneventful night.

There has been no appreciable change in his condition during the last three days and none is expected during the day.

In answer to an inquiry Dr. Johnston said that to all appearance Mr. Blaine had not lost any strength since his attack last Thursday, and on the whole he regarded his condition as favorable as could be expected.

The well is 80 feet deep, and while Williams was at the bottom Cuff sauntered over to Babbitt's pool room and spent a dollar in playing pool, leaving Williams at the bottom of the well for over two hours. The air was blue when Williams was hauled up.

Another Protest From Plainfield.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck in a vigorous sermon yesterday morning protested against the passage of a bill opening the gates of the Columbian fair on Sundays. His congregation had previously protested by a petition signed by nearly all its members. As it now stands, there was no time to sign written protest, but all of his congregation arose in their seats, and by so doing asked him as their pastor to write to Congressmen Geisenhainer and Senator McPherson, telling them of their earnest desire in the matter. The Rev. Mr. Todd of Dunellen, and C. J. Baxter, of Richmond street, also spoke against the opening.

His Is a Temperance House.

B. Brittin, of Evona, feels that he has been misrepresented by the papers of Dunellen and Plainfield in the statement that he had opened a saloon at that place. He has simply opened a pool and billiard room, where no intoxicating liquors are sold. He says it is not his intention to apply for a license but simply to conduct a well-regulated temperance pool and billiard room. THE PRESS is glad to hear this from Mr. Brittin.

M. Powers hung an overcoat in a local barber-shop, Saturday, with $35 in bills showing their ends from between the leaves of a book in the inside pocket. After his shave, he went to the bank to deposit the money, and found that $17 had been abstracted. There is of course no clue to the thief.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

That Is Alleged as the Cause of Penton Barn Burning.

The barn of T. B. Penton of Rockview avenue was badly damaged by fire Saturday night.

The discovery of the fire was made by the coachman, who occupied apartments in the building, at 7:30 o'clock. An alarm was immediately telephoned to Warren engine-house, and the district signal 9 was sounded on the steam-gong.

Considering the bad roads, the engine was at the fire with commendable quickness, and the building was saved from complete destruction.

The engine took water from a fire hydrant.

The fire was a stubborn one, and made more so by a tin roof that had been left over the first story when the second was put on, but it was well handled by the company, ably directed by chief Fairchild.

The loss is between $2,000 and $3,000, and is covered by insurance.

Mr. Penton supplied hot coffee and sandwiches to the firemen. He feels very grateful to the firemen, and they are grateful to him.

The cause of the fire is not known, but the flames are believed to have been generated by the spontaneous combustion of decaying carrots.

The horses were saved from the flames.

A birthday party was given Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Livezey, at their home, 161 Park avenue, to their daughter Lissa H. Music for dancing was furnished by Andrew G. Carpenter, and singing and refreshments were other of the enjoyable features. Those present included Robert L. Coates and Mr. and Miss Tinsman from Philadelphia, and the following from this city: Miss Clara Williams, Miss Ella Gardner, Miss Cora Gardner, Miss Adelaide Runyon, Miss Lilla Livezey, Miss Caroline Livezey, and Messrs. Wm. Jessop, George A. Rockfellow, J. Linn Edsall, Frank Vail, Joseph Fuller, G. E. Fuller and Frank Howland.

The funeral of John S. Ward, who died last week Monday at his late residence on Clinton avenue, Evona, was largely attended, Thursday, by many who will greatly miss him. The attendance was especially large on the New York side, and a throng followed the remains to their last resting-place in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Ward was a member of the Manhattan Council of the Catholic Benevolent Legion. He formerly lived in Brooklyn, and had a large painting and decorating business, having a large place both on Nassau street, New York, and in Plainfield. He was an excellent provider, and leaves his family in good circumstances. He was a large-hearted man, generous to all with whom he came in contact, and his loss is severe to the little world in which he was so highly esteemed.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1836 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

A FLOURISHING PARISH.

This Financial Showing Is a Credit to St. Mary's, and an Inspiration for Others.

The annual financial statement of St. Mary's church of this city, is not only always an interesting document but a credit to all concerned and an example to many other like institutions. The figures as given below show contributions of $50 each to Muhlenberg hospital and the Relief association; a reduction of $2,000 in the church debt; and collections alone amounting to over $5,000. One special collection—which was decided upon instead of the usual fair—amounted to $1,062, and among the largest contributors to it, were: Miss Verdon, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Anne Kelly, the Rev. P. E. Smyth, Patrick Casey, Mr. Harpending, Patrick Keely, John Lavery, I. L. Slevin and Michael Quinn.

The Land Improvement company, desiring to cut a street through the cemetery, the rector secured from them in exchange for the privilege more land on the other side than the church surrendered, besides a fine lot on Berckman street, 75 by 200, upon which a new church can be built as soon as the growth of population in that direction demands it.

The financial statement in detail from Jan. 1, '92 to Jan. 1, '93 is as follows:

A Musical Treat Served by Miss Ketcham.

The afternoon with Schubert, which was given Saturday by Miss Julia J. Ketcham, assisted by her pupils, at 51 East Fifth street, was decidedly a musical treat. Miss Ketcham is a teacher whose true interpretation and artistic phrasing of a song are carefully instilled into her pupils, while her keen sympathy with the evident intention of the composer, will not allow her to permit any infringement of given rules. Even in the singing of the pupils who were the least advanced, distinct enunciation, well sustained tones and decided expression were evident. Besides showing excellent training, the voices of Miss Blair, soprano, and Miss Carroll, contralto, are exceptionally good. There is a decided possibility of either of these young ladies making her mark in the world of vocalists. The instrumental selections by Misses Bigelow and Dewey added greatly to the entertainment. The programme was as follows:

SCHUBERT (1797-1828.)

Life of Schubert	Miss Carroll
Piano—Moment Musical	Miss Dewey
Song (a) The Last Greeting, (b) Impatience,	Miss Noble
Song—Serenade	Miss Ketcham.
Songs (a) Hark! Hark the Lark, (b) Who is Sylvia,	Miss Blair
Chorus Coronach (From Lady of the Lake), Misses Way, Blair, Noble, Abbott, Carroll, Dewey and Ketcham.
Songs (a) Her Portrait, (b) The Maiden's Lament,	Miss Dewey
Piano—Impromptu Op. 142, No. 3,	Miss Bigelow
Song—Ave Maria	Miss Carroll
Song—The Erl King	Miss Ketcham

An informal tea was then served.

As will be noticed in the "ad" of the Crescent rink, the National Skate and Bicycle Syndicate have notified their representative here to open the rink only on Saturday afternoon and night of the present week, as it is necessary to prepare for the great Columbus skating costume carnival that takes place Tuesday night, Jan. 24.

Serious Result of an Old Lady's Fall.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dower, aged 82 years, residing with Mrs. Stoll, 11 Elm place, fell in her room during Saturday night and injured her hip very badly. It is thought that she fractured it. She suffers excruciating pains. The kind ladies of the Church Work society of Trinity Reformed church have taken charge of the case, and the old lady was to be the first one to occupy the King's Daughters' bed in Muhlenberg hospital. She was there to be placed under an anæsthetic, and an examination made of her injuries; but the physicians have decided that her condition is too precarious, and she will be placed on a Garfield cot. She screams violently from agony, when touched, and her pulse is very feeble.

A CARD.

It would seem that from the fact that my nephew, A. M. Vanderbeek, is closing out the sporting goods business, a few of my friends have the impression that I too am about to go out of the piano and organ business. This impression I wish to correct by saying that I shall remain a member of the firm of Vanderbeek & Sattels and can always be found at the old place of business (33 Park avenue) where I have been for the last 40 years. Very respectfully,
A. VANDERBEEK.

THE DYING LEAGUE.

A Prominent Member Tells How the Crescents Were "Hoodooed" by the Tombstone that Hangs On the Front Wall.

Of the many stories that have been told about the Crescent League and its troubles, none is more novel and interesting than the following by a prominent member. He says: "In my opinion it was not dead-wood that caused the collapse, but a clear case of 'Hoodoo'. Up to the time the new club-house was built, the Crescent League was one of the most popular clubs in the State. The first year and a half of its existence it paid debts amounting to $4,000. Now let us get down to the 'Hoodoo'. After the fire it was agreed with Mrs. Ulrich to have a new club-house built on the site of the old one. In fitting up the new building the architect's specifications required that the front of the building was to be of brown sone, and on a tower on the top of the east side of the front there was to be a white marble slab with a crescent cut on it symbolical of the name of the club. When the front was built up to where the slab was to go in, the builder procured a torch and went over either to the cemetery across the brook or to Manning's marble yard and procured an old tombstone, or as Webster says, 'A stone erected over a grave to preserve the memory of the deceased', and on the stone was the inscription, 'Israel D. Osborn, died September 10, 1860'. While they were preparing to put the stone in position, with the reserse side out, I heard them laughing, and one of the men said, 'We got it cheap enough; we paid only 50 cents for it.' I appealed to architect B. Foegate, not to put that tombstone in the building, stating that we did not all think alike and that some were superstitious, and if it was a question of cash why some of the boys would chip in and pay for a good clean new stone that did not have any of the grave-yard air about it. He laughed and said he would see that it was taken out and that he would hold the builders last payment back until it was done; but it was never taken out, and is in the building yet. I appealed to Leggett, Green, Kenney, Dr. Fritts and Dr. Allis, about it. Dr. Allis said, 'Nonsense! If the foundation of the building was made of tombstones; it would be all right'. I replied 'You are a doctor, and it is your business to fight death'. 'Now just look what followed in the wake of this tombstone, the club up to that time being of the most popular kind and increasing in membership.

"No. 1. The wall on the east side of the building commenced to bulge, and I was told the priviledge to use the same was given to Mr. Bock for a nominal sum so he would extend his saloon and cover it from sight. Harry VanEmburgh made a survey of it at the time, as a question was raised that it might collapse.

"No. 2. The wall on the west side of the building became out of plumb, and it had to be taken down and rebuilt.

"No. 3. Evan Jones, the owner of the LaGrande avenue ball grounds, notified the club that he would not renew the lease, and the club must go elsewhere.

"No. 4. A five-years lease was taken of grounds across the brook and this was generally considered a mistake, as the best patrons would not go over there, such as the Netherwood Hotel guests, and such people as the Stewarts, Traeys, Murrays, Tylers and people of that kind who often attended the games on this side.

"No. 5. The grounds on Somerset street had no more than been laid out at considerable expense than the subject of opening Peace street was commenced to be agitated, it having lain dormant years before. The opening of Peace street will spoil the grounds.

"No. 6. The street from Mountain avenue where we had an entrance for carriages was boarded up, necessitating a new entrance to be made at considerable expense, in another part of the grounds.

"No. 7. In erecting a new grand-stand on the grounds, the scaffolding gave way and came very near killing one of the carpenters.

"No. 8. On the fourth of July an exhibition of fire works was given on the grounds and it was generally supposed that the club would realize some $500 or $600, but it was found when the returns were made that the club received only about $40, though 2,000 were said to be present.

"No. 9. An entertainment was given at the Music Hall. Talent from New York was obtained, and the boys all worked hard, and the result I am told was that the club received about $15. And so on. From the time that the tombstone was put in the building, the league has been getting deeper and deeper into debt, until now it is deemed best to wind up the affairs of the club.

"10. How the club ever managed to win the 'Pennant' is beyond me, but after winning the same the rag has never materialized, although Spalding Bros. have been requested to deliver the same. But the club has been put off with frivolous excuses, and has never received it.

"11. The club made a loss on its ball games of about $500, whereas on the La Grande avenue grounds, managers Burnett and Leggett came out with a profit of some $200.

"The raising the price of admission from 15c. to 25c. in all games, turned out to be a mistake. As some of the factory hands threatened to boycott the games the price was then reduced again.

"During this winter when the snow was on the roof of the club-house, the roof sprung a leak and if it had not been for the timely arrival of Barnes and some other members the billiard tables and alleys would have been ruined, as the water came through in a stream. After the city water was put in the pipes immediately froze up, but Tobin the hustling plumber was soon on hand and saved all damage except to the pipes.

"A word as to "superstitious people'—to bear me out in my tombstone theory—people who believe in the direct agency of superior powers in certain extraordinary or singular events, or in omens and prognostics. J. Pierpont Morgan, the banker, it is said, will not do any business on one of the days of the week (Wednesday, I think it is), and I have been told that in Wall street it is generally understood, and he will not be found at his office on that day nor will he be found down town. The late Jay Gould, it has been related, carried a singular pocket-piece which was said to have brought him luck, and that in the mornings on the way down town in the cars he would add all the ages together under the death notices and the total he would divide by his own age and get a basis for stock speculations. The only P. T. Barnum would never enter on any great or stupendous undertaking on any day but Friday. The only Chauncey M. Depew, I am told, carries a potato in his pocket and wears a ring on his finger as a preventive of rheumatism. Snapper Garrison, the jockey, makes everything blue around him when dressing for a race, if his valet by chance hands him his left boot for his right. He says it is always a sure omen of defeat. You know the great Recorder prize of $5 for life was won by a young miss of Elizabethport who said the figures were suggested to her in a dream. Dailey, our third-baseman, last summer in talking with me just before a game said, 'We will lose to-day'. 'Said 'Nonsence; we can't'. He said his reason for thinking so was that since he had left the train he had been followed around by a cross-eyed boy, and that he could not get rid of him. Sure enough, we lost. I had often heard that there was great luck in sporting games, in putting your hand on the hump of of a humpbacked person; so last summer I got a humpbacked boy living here in Plainfield, by the name of Ford, to go over to the games with me (but of course he had no knowledge of my object, which was to bring luck); and I introduced him to a number of the players, and it was very amusing to see the players edge up to him and get around so they could put their hands on his shoulders and reach the protuberance formed by the crook in his back. As all our players were gentlemen, no offence was given or taken. This boy went to Somerville at my expense, and his coat was worn almost threadbare from rubbing; this may have been the antidote to the tombstone, and the means of winning the pennant which we never got.

"But that tombstone certainly was our 'hoodoo", and to that all our bad luck is directly traceable."

How the Indians Who Are Coming to Plainfield, Are Handled.

Dr. Carver, who will be seen at Music Hall, Thursday evening, in a new sensational play entitled "The Scout", had a talk with a PRESS reporter the other day as to how he handled the Indians with the company.

With the Indians, as he told the reporter, he has had but little trouble, as far as the show business is concerned, considering the length of time he has been associated with them in this way. An Indian, he says, will drink anything with alcohol in it, so that the government has absolutely been obliged to prohibit the sale of cologne and Florida water in some of the western reservations. With this propensity on the part of his assistants there have of course been some few scraps in the course of his show career. He mentioned a little difficulty he had this year with a young Indian who had persisted in wearing a hat, which he had in some way obtained, in disobedience of his orders. The Indians got their heads together and held a pow-wow over the matter, but finally decided to let the matter drop, on hearing of a disturbance in Russia which the doctor had quelled.

The mention of this naturally brought up the Russian story, and the doctor went on to tell how the trouble had been caused by one Black Bear, an ugly Indian. Black Bear was one of the troupe in Vienna one season and just as the engagement was drawing to a close, distinguished himself by firing off his revolver in the lobby of the rotunda, where the show was playing.

"The police are very suspicious in those countries", said Dr. Carver, "and when they heard the noise about a hundred of them stampeded up the street to the theater—enough to arrest the whole outfit—and when they found out what had made the row they all stampeded back again. I was so busy that I did not pay much attention to it at the time and he said he only did it to have some fun."

The same Indian was with the show when it went over the following year, and was stationed in St. Petersburg. Black Bear was rather cocky on account of his former immunity from punishment, and one night when he was to do a bow and arrow act refused to go on. Dr. Carver asked him why and was answered by a series of grunts, which in the Indian language signified that the doctor might go to the devil if he liked. The doctor jumped off his horse and several other Indians came up in a hostile way. Things began to look ugly for a moment, but Dr. Carver is a man of action and with a butt of a six-shooter as a means of argument soon convinced the Indians to his way of thinking. He had no further trouble with the troupe.

Head and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.00.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. "BILLY" RYAN DEAD.

The Friend of Many Succumbs to Paralysis.

William J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, well-known and esteemed in this city, died suddenly at 3 o'clock yesterday morning at his home on West Grand street. He had paralysis. He was in his usual health when he retired at midnight. Mr. Ryan was in his fiftieth year. He was born in Boston and went to California when 12 years old. He learned the trade of a ship caulker at the Mare Island Navy-Yard, San Francisco, with Edward Harrigan. They were lifelong friends.

Mr. Ryan went to Elizabeth nearly twenty years ago and opened the Capitol Cafe at Elizabethport. He afterwards leased Trahon's Hotel in Elizabeth. He next opened the Elm House on East Grand street, where he made money. He sold out, and opened a place on West street, New York, but this did not prove successful, and he returned to Elizabeth and purchased Shrete's Hotel, near the Pennsylvania railroad, which he remodelled at an expense of several thousand dollars, and named it Ryan's Hotel.

"Billy" Ryan, as he was called by everybody, was a great friend of the theatrical profession and was known by every actor of note in the country. The late J. K. Emmett, Tony Hart and John McCullough were Ryan's warm friends. Nat Goodwin and George Thatcher, the minstrel, and other actors always made "Billy" Ryan's their headquarters when they visited Elizabeth.

Mr. Ryan leaves a widow. The hotel property is owned by Gottfried Krueger, of Newark.

Oh for a Smoothly Gliding Curtain!

It is sincerely hoped that the curtains on the stage of the Casino will be put in running order before another entertainment is given there. The hitches that occur at every play are vexations, though sometimes amusing. The curtains have a way of getting caught at the centre that is getting to be a nuisance. At the recent Magazine they developed a new freak, that of raising up three feet from the floor when drawn together, and revealing the ludicrous antics of the legs of the performers as each tableau broke up.

Too Earnest a Fireman.

Jack Werchamer, in hurrying to Saturday morning's fire, from Alert hose house, met with an accident that necessitated the calling in of two local doctors the next day. But unfortunately they could do nothing, and he will have to be taken to New York for treatment by specialists.

Endorses Mayor Saunders.

The Firemen's Herald quotes at length the passage from Mayor Saunders's message relating to fire department reform, and says: "Such words have the proper ring to them. The Mayor recognizes the importance of good fire protection, and the citizens should see that his recommendations are carried out. A bad fire or two would cost more than all the money the borough would save."

ENGLAND STORM-SWEPT

Terrible Experiences of Vessels Along the Coast.

FIVE PILOTS LOST AT DARTMOUTH.

The Weather Throughout Europe Very Severe—In This Country the Cold Continues, and Much Suffering is Reported—Many Homesteaders Starving.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A heavy storm from the northeast is sweeping over England. Snow, sleet and a high wind prevail along the coast. Many small accidents to shipping along the coast are reported.

The steamer Brighton, belonging to the Brighton Railway company and plying between Newhaven and Dieppe, left port in a gale yesterday. She had a terribly rough passage. A deckhouse and the smokestack were washed away, one of her byats was smashed and part of her port rail was torn away by a heavy piece of baggage while her deck was a wash.

When she approached the pier at Dieppe the storm was so blinding that the pilot could not see her bow. The wind was blowing 60 miles an hour and the seas were breaking over her deck so rapidly that none of the 80 passengers was allowed on deck.

Without any warning the steamship crashed into the pier. A large hole was stove in her bow, and for a moment she stuck fast. Ropes were got aboard and made fast before she was driven 20 feet from the pier. She began filling rapidly. A long gangplank was improvised, and the passengers were hurried ashore.

There was little panic. Half the baggage had been gotten off when the captain ordered the men to leave the ship, which was filling rapidly. He had hardly followed the last man to the pier when the vessel went under.

Off Dartmouth five pilots were drowned while trying to put a man aboard a cutter. The cutter was pitching heavily when the gig approached her. The bowsprit caught the gig and lifted it out of the water.

All seven occupants of the gig were thrown out, and but two caught the life lines thrown to them and were saved.

ON THE CONTINENT.

The Weather Intensely Cold — Traffic Badly Blocked in Berlin.

LONDON, Jan. 16. — The weather throughout Europe is intensely cold. In Russia the mercury is reported to have fallen to 69 degrees Centigrade below zero, and in Siberia to 79 degrees below zero. Wood fires are kept burning in the streets of St. Petersburg for the benefit of wayfarers. Even the double windows of houses are coated with ice.

In the south of Russia the mercury indicates 45 degrees of frost. An army of men is employed in the streets of Berlin clearing away the snow. So far they have been able to clear passages only in the leading streets.

All suburban traffic is suspended.

SUFFERING AT HOMESTEAD.

Nearly 300 Persons Starving on Account of the Continued Cold.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 16.—The continued cold weather has increased the suffering at Homestead, and it is stated that nearly 300 people are on the verge of starvation. Contributions are still coming in, but the aggregate amount is so small that it will not procure the bare necessaries.

In the mill there is much dissatisfaction over the wages.

Saturday was the first pay day under the new scale, and many of the workmen claim that their envelopes did not contain more than half the amount received for the same period before the strike.

A number of the men stated to-day that they would quit or strike as soon as there is warmer weather.

The officials deny that there is dissatisfaction, and claim that if the wages are smaller it is the fault of the men, who are not working as hard as formerly.

Mrs. Herbert, it is charged, deserted her husband ten years ago and soon afterward married a man of the name of Evans and has since lived with him at Cameron. She has been released on $1,200 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

A Railroad Closed.

CORNING, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The Bradford, Eldred & Cuba railroad, that runs from Wellsville to Allentown, Pa., has been closed and traffic will be abandoned. The court issued an order last week closing the road as the business has not been sufficient to keep it in operation. The road will probably be sold to the highest bidder, Jan. 25.

MINING FOR GOLD.

Operations Carried On in the Vicinity of Washington.

Senator Sawyer's Investment Not an Unproductive as the "I-Told-You-So's" Predicted—Underground Work That Pays Fair Dividends.

[Special Washington Letter.]

It may be a source of surprise to receive the information that there is a gold mine within ten miles of the dome of the capitol. Nevertheless, it is a fact that there is a paying gold mine just above the Great falls of the Potomac river. It has been known to a limited number for a great many years that gold existed in that section. The little stream that skirts the foothills and enters the Potomac river just above the Great falls contains a great deal of gold which it gathers as it washes over the gold-bearing quartz ledges of rock above it. For a hundred years or more it has been customary for the heads of families, in a rude and pristine manner, to pan out a handful of the golden sand whenever any young lady was about to be married. Just a little bit of gold would be brought into the city and made into a wedding ring for the occasion. Wedding rings from the little stream above the Great falls are scattered all over the state of Virginia to-day. They are kept as precious heirlooms in the families in which the young ladies have married. The people who have known that gold exists there, for at least a hundred years past, either did not know how to handle it or else they did not believe that it was to be found in sufficient quantities.

About eight years ago a big tunnel was made for our aqueduct from the Great falls of the Potomac to the city, and at that time it was noticed that, about a mile or two this side of the falls, the tunnel passed through several ledges of white and rose-colored quartz which appeared to contain gold in some uncertain quantity. This fact revived interest in the existence of quartz gold mines and the New Maryland mine was sunk. Gold, however, was not immediately found in paying quantities and the mine was eventually abandoned. It now appears that if those miners had only used a little more headwork in their search for gold, and sunk their shafting a little more to one side or run out tunnels in a slanting direction a little way from the bottom of the shaft, they would have been more successful and might have then found that mining in Maryland can be made profitable. Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, purchased a large tract of land in the vicinity of the forsaken Maryland mine and placed it in charge of Dr. Kempster, the celebrated scientist, who has been the family physician of Senator Sawyer for a great many years. Work was resumed in the neighborhood of the old mine and it has been demonstrated that gold can be found there in quantities sufficient to warrant a large expenditure of money. There are now some half dozen mines in the country to the north and east of the great falls, and it is current rumor that the owner of one of them has just been offered more than a quarter of a million dollars for his hole in the ground and the land around it.

And here we have been buying and selling town lots at so much per square foot, struggling to make a little more money every year by speculating on surface ground, when, as a matter of fact, right within our reach there are great quantities of gold-bearing quartz and we all should have been out in the mines instead of at work building a city. That is, if money is the chief end of man, and it seems that it is in the national capital. But the work of mining has commenced at last and activity and life are rife in the vicinity of the mines. Some of the more hopeful buyers of land and diggers in the ground seem to think that before a great while the state of Maryland will be supplying the American market with gold and have a little left over for export trade.

A visit to these gold mines in Maryland is neither interesting nor instructive, because all gold mines are alike. They are merely great holes in the ground with the earth removed and the rock ground to powder in search of the little yellow particles which are regarded as of exceptional value by the commercial world. The great big holes in the ground which are found in Maryland above the Great falls of the Potomac are no more interesting nor picturesque than the holes in the sides of the Rocky mountains, long since made famous by Mark Twain, Bret Harte and other writers concerning the olden times in the mines on the frontier. I did not see Ah Sin, Truthful James, Yuba Bill, nor any of the celebrated gentlemen written about as experts in the mining days of twenty years ago in the far west. There are two great holes with shafts in them and big windlasses above to lift them up from the depths when full of rock.

The manager of the mine was polite enough to offer me the privilege of going down into either one of these holes in the big bucket; but a series of ladders runs down the side of one of the shafts, and I went down that way. The descent was about fifty feet, and at the bottom I found that a subterranean tunnel a couple of hundred feet in length, connecting the two shafts, had been made. The workmen were busily engaged in digging tunnels and following the veins of gold-bearing quartz in various directions. These miners have had no previous experience in gathering the precious metal. They have been, except one of them, engaged in mining coal in the mountains of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. They like this new work and are becoming very much interested in the study of the quartz. The manager of the mine is an old and experienced practical miner, who says that he never saw a better prospect for big paying work in all of his life. He intends to follow all of these gold-bearing shoots in every direction, even if they lead down to China. A great many tons of quartz have been taken out and carted to a stamp mill, where it has been joyfully apparent that the rock contains gold in paying quantities.

At either end of the tunnel connecting the two shafts a number of men are at work with the pick and shovel on a mass of quartz which has been blasted out. They handle the product more carefully than they used to do when they were quarrying coal, and are careful about the bits of pieces that promise a particularly rich yield. Nearly all of these miners are colored men, and it is a curious sight to see the interest they manifest as they cluster around a particularly bright piece of stone, and hold their flickering lamp close to the rock to see what it may be. It is thus a matter of ocular demonstration that there is gold-bearing quartz in Maryland. The question has been settled that the gold is there and in largely paying quantities. Several gold mines in Virginia right south and west of Fredericksburg are also being worked, and it is said that pay dirt is being found there also. If it can be demonstrated, as now seems likely, that the Appalachian range has dipped down here and sunken to the sea level with a bosom full of gold, the national capital might become a big mining camp after awhile.

When you make that trip to Washington, which you have been promising yourself for so many years, you should go to the mines near the Great falls. Even if you don't care about going down into the big shafts, the drive will prove a pleasant and invigorating one. A portion of the trip was recently described in a letter concerning Cabin John's bridge, and the fashionable turnouts to be seen on the road. It is an extension of Pennsylvania avenue, beyond ancient Georgetown, and sometimes called the Aqueduct road, because for several miles beneath it run the tunnels which bring water to the city from the upper Potomac. But if you want to go down into the mines when you get there, you will have no trouble in getting permission to do so. The owners and managers are proud of their property and pleased with the developments. They like to have it known that they have achieved success, and they want people to see with their own eyes what has been done and is being done by them. When Senator Sawyer invested $00,000 in the property, his friends shook their heads, and said that the shrewd and successful old business man and statesman was getting into his dotage and losing his comprehensive grasp of affairs. They believed that he had simply thrown away that much money.

The old gentleman told me about it in his committee room at the capitol, and remarked: "I was called a very foolish fellow when I invested money in large tracts of land in Wisconsin, many years ago; because it was known that the land was a wilderness and could not be easily cultivated. But when they saw a railroad running through the land later on, and saw my workmen cutting millions of feet of the best timber in the country from those lands, they concluded that the old man knew what he was about. I guess I have made no mistake in my gold mines." And the sequel proves that he was as far-seeing in that matter as he has generally been throughout a long life of successful business enterprises. The gold is there, and the mine has paid for itself long ago. The other mines are rapidly developing and everybody seems more than satisfied with the present condition of the underground work.

SMITH D. FRY.

Delicate.

There is a class of super-refined young ladies, if common report is to be trusted, who think it a mark of superior cultivation to have small and delicate appetites. A Pennsylvania exchange has heard of one.

"Do you think you could eat a bit of the turkey?" said a gentleman to his cousin, a young woman from the city.

"Why, yes; but just a small piece, please," she answered.

He started to trim off a delicate morsel, and asked: "Is there any part you especially like?"

"Oh, no, I'm not particular," and she looked demurely at her knife and fork. "Just give me a wing and a leg and a few slices off the breast, with a portion of the gizzard and a spoonful of dressing. I can reach the vegetables myself."—Youth's Companion.

JAPANESE PUG DOGS.

A Famous Family Now Dwelling in San Francisco.

Defying All Precedent by Living—The Pretty Pets of Mrs. Gunnison and the Misses Stone Described in a Few Words.

Japanese pugs rarely thrive in this country. The few born on American shores generally die very soon afterward. There is one family of this breed of dogs, however, in this city evidently destined to defy all precedents, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

The great-grandparents of this family were Romeo and Juliet, brought from Japan a few years ago. Romeo is still living, and is about ten years old. He is the property of Mrs. J. Gollin, of Taylor street, near Bush.

Japan, the son of Romeo and Juliet, belongs to Judge Gunnison, of 1406 Van Ness avenue. Judge Gunnison a year since brought from Japan another pug, Yum Yum. Kekko, Nikko, Tama, Chinii and Yum Yum II. were the family of Japan and Yum Yum I. Of these all died except Tama, thus it would seem sustaining the theory that Japanese pugs cannot live in this country.

With Tama's little doggies came a change. Out of five four litter and these are over a year old. Tama's men her babies passed into the hands of Misses Laura and Belle Stone, of 807 Leavenworth street. Tama's little ones were named on October 17, 1891. Miss Laura Stone, who is a well-known artist, held a regular christening party in her studio. Amid a company of assembled friends the five baby pugs were grouped upon a white fur rug. A young gentleman performed the ceremony of tying a name card around each neck with baby blue baby ribbon. As he did so Miss Belle Stone sprinkled each with cologne, emptying over all the contents of a whole bottle. The names given were Torii, a bird; Kekko, wonderfully beautiful; Kin, gold; Hanna, a flower, and Amida, an endearing name of Buddha. The last perished, not of the grandeur of his name, but of congestion of the lungs, to which Japanese pugs are peculiarly liable. It was this fell disease which carried off his interesting relations.

At present the Misses Stone have charge of Tama, or Sweetheart, and her daughters, Kin and Hanna. Mrs. Kennison, the sister of Judge Gunnison, has Tama's sons, Kekko and Torii, also Japan, the grandfather dog, still living. Every morning and evening Mrs. Kennison and one or the other of the Misses Stone meet each other and take out the whole crowd of dogs for an airing. There are six in all. Strange to relate, the old and the young and the males and the females all look about the same size and all very much alike. It is difficult to realize that they represent three generations. The little dogs seem like animated toys, with their long, silky hair in patches of black and white, their big eyes and peculiar turned-up noses.

With the pug family Miss Laura or Miss Belle Stone takes out Fannie, a little thoroughbred black and tan. She was a great pet of the young ladies' mother before the advent of the Japanese dogs. Little Fannie has never been allowed to feel that her nose is out of joint.

Japanese pugs are as delicate as babies. These dogs in particular have had more care and attention than often fall to the lot of many a poor child. They are combed and brushed twice a day and have clean ribbons tied to their collars every morning. They are fed on boiled meat and vegetables chopped up as if for hash, graham bread and fresh fruits, with the seeds and skins removed. They are never allowed cake or sweets. They have a pan of fresh water, changed twice every day. Once a week the pugs are dosed with powdered charcoal. Occasionally a little sulphur is mixed with their food. Their greatest danger is from overfeeding, and this is carefully avoided. The little dogs sleep on clean blankets in one of the family bedrooms. These blankets are changed every day. A dog doctor is constantly employed to look after the canine welfare.

When the dogs are taken out for their airings they are held by strings attached to their collars, which last are all ornamental, some plated with silver and adorned with bells. As might be expected, the little animals attract a great deal of attention. Already they are so famous that people come from far and near, begging for the privilege of seeing them. Fabulous sums have been offered for them, but their owners say: "We will never, never part with our dear babies."

"You wouldn't believe how we love them!" exclaims Mrs. Stone, the mother of the two young ladies. "We can't help growing attached to them. They are so affectionate that we feel fully repaid for our care. And they are the best little watch dogs you ever saw. You should hear them bark. Nobody could get into the house without our knowing it. They're the sweetest little darlings in the world!"

Such, in brief, is the story of the family of Japanese pugs which seems destined to defy all precedent.

HAMILTON'S NEW HEAD

Rev. Dr. M. W. Stryker, the Young President of an Old College.

Rev. Dr. Melancthon Woolsey Stryker, the new president of Hamilton college, is still a young man, even in these days of young college presidents. Though but forty years old, he has held prominent pastorates at Ithaca, Holyoke and at Chicago, where he succeeded Dr. Herrick Johnson in the strong Fourth Presbyterian church. It is suggestive of Dr. Stryker's interest in young men and their education, says Harper's Weekly, that he gives up his church, where he is greatly liked, and a salary of $8,000, to accept the presidency of a small college in a small village. But the college, though small, has a fine record, and seems to need nothing so much just now as the leadership of a strong and enthusiastic man. Such Dr. Stryker is—a worthy descendant of his grandfather, Commodore Melancthon Woolsey, of the United States navy. In appearance President Stryker is above medium height, well built, inclining to stoutness, with ruddy face, blue eyes and brown mustache. Indeed, he shows none of the outward and visible signs of the clergyman. Rather, he resembles most of all our very best type of New York business man. He is a fine orator, a poet of no mean rank, a scholar, a leader in the councils of the Presbyterian church and withal an ardent tennis player and fisherman.

REV. DR. M. W. STRYKER.

GOVERNOR WERTS NOW

Jersey's Government Changes Hands To-day.

THE INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

James Smith, Jr., Unanimously Nominated for United States Senator by the Democratic Joint Caucus—Republicans Name Gen. Sewell—The Senator-elect.

TRENTON, Jan. 17.—To-day Gov. Abbett steps down and out, and Gov. George T. Werts is being inducted into office.

The Legislature, which had assembled this morning, adjourned at 11 o'clock, and proceeded from the State House to the Grand Opera House, where the inauguration ceremonies are being held.

Gov. Abbett, Gov.-elect Werts, and the other State officers met at the State House, and were driven to the opera house in carriages.

The Gov.-elect was escorted by the Werts Light Guards, of Morristown, his home.

After the transfer of the reins of government Gov. Werts will hold a reception, and later in the afternoon there will be a second reception, principally for ladies and children.

This evening there will be another reception at the State House.

Smith Nominated for Senator.

The second week of the Legislative session opened last night. About 8 o'clock word was passed among the members that a joint caucus would be held immediately after the adjournment of both houses.

The announcement that the caucus would be for the settlement of the United States Senatorship created some surprise. The members were not expecting the caucus to be held until next Monday night.

Later it was announced that neither the President of the Senate nor the Speaker of the House would name the Standing Committees just now.

The joint caucus was held in the Assembly chamber at ten o'clock and in less than half an hour Mr. Smith became the nominee of the Democrats for United States Senator. Gov. Abbett withdrew at the last moment from the battle.

Senator Barrett of Essex presided over the caucus and Mr. Lane of Union was chosen secretary. Nominations being at once declared in order, Senator Marsh of Union arose and announced that Gov. Abbett had released his friends from their obligation to support him and that he would therefore withdraw his name.

President of the Senate Adrian then took the floor and nominated James Smith jr. He spoke of his service to the party and of his ability, evoking much applause.

Assemblyman Timothy Barrett of Essex seconded Mr. Smith's nomination and then the roll was called and the nomination was effected by a unanimous vote.

The Republicans held their caucus in the Senate Chamber and gave the honor of the nomination of Senator to Gen William J. Sewell, of Camden. Gen. E. Burd Grubb was also a candidate, but received only two votes.

James Smith, Jr.

James Smith, jr., is a native of Newark, where he was born in 1841. He is a member of the big leather firm of Smith & Halsey. His first office was that of Councilman in 1883. Although the ward in which he lived was Republican, he was elected by a very large majority, and at once became a leader.

In the following fall the Democrats nominated him for Mayor, but he declined to stand. Subsequently he was offered other offices, but declined everything, although accepting the presidency of the Newark Board of Public Works.

The Minority Cannot be Provided For.

ALBANY, Jan. 17.—The constitutional amendment bill, which last night was recalled from the Governor, will be amended by striking out the provision for minority representation which authorizes the selection of two delegates-at large from the parties nominating by certificate. Senator Cantor says there is no way under the constitution by which minority representation can be provided for.

Wreck on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 17.—A collision occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Latrobe between the east-bound fast line and a freight train. The fireman of the passenger train, William Metzens, was instantly killed, and the engineer, George Cannon, was seriously injured. Other trainmen were also injured, but the passengers escaped unhurt.

Gov. Brown's Course Commended.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 17.—Members of the Presbyterian conference in session here express themselves highly pleased at the action of Gov. Brown in commuting the sentences of four of the eight persons convicted of the murder of Dr. Hill near Millington in 1892, and a resolution was offered commending his course.

MR. HAYES VERY ILL.

The Ex-President is Suffering From Neuralgia of the Heart.

FREMONT, Ill., Jan. 17.—The information has just been obtained that ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes has had an attack of neuralgia of the heart, and although his condition has slightly improved, he is still a very sick man.

Ex-President Hayes left home last Monday on a trip to Columbus, Buffalo and Cleveland. At the last named place he spent a few days with his son Webb S. Hayes.

During the last month the ex-President had complained of one or two slight attacks of neuralgia of the heart, but as they soon passed away he thought nothing of it. On Saturday he experienced a severe recurrence of the malady, but, being prepared for his return home, proceed on his journey, accompanied by his son Webb.

Quietness prevails at the Hayes mansion, and the only information that can be obtained is such as the physician in attendance gives out.

In speaking with the relatives and immediate friends, they state that the General is not seriously sick and that he will be out again in a few days.

The news that the ex-President has been ill, and that his illness has been of a serious nature, will be received with surprise, not only by the outside world, but by the people of this city. The sickness of the General has been attended with such quietness that very little attention was paid to the announcement that he was under the weather, and it was believed that he was merely suffering from a severe cold.

NINE CHINAMEN SENTENCED.

Thirty Days in Prison and Deportation to Their Own Country the Penalty.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 17.—The 12 Chinamen who three months ago were arrested on a canal boat at Rouse's Point as they were being smuggled into this country from Canada, were tried before United States District Commissioner Wheeler yesterday.

United States District Attorney Alexander appeared for the government and J. C. Thoms, a Chinese lawyer of Brooklyn, for the prisoners.

Nine of the Chinamen were sentenced to the Albany penitentiary for 30 days, and, upon their release, to be deported to their native country. The others, claiming that they were students, were discharged.

An effort will be made, it is said, to interest the Chinese Ambassador at Washington in the cases of the nine sentenced men.

A MASONIC EDITOR'S CASE.

Being Investigated Because He Printed the Proceedings Before a Lodge.

NORWALK, Conn., Jan. 17.—The Masonic Grand Lodge of the State is in session here for the purpose of investigating the case of the editor of a local paper who printed the entire proceedings of a meeting of St. John's Lodge, at which the latter refused to pay a bill claimed by another lodge.

The case promises to be a celebrated one of its kind, and high Masonic authorities in over 30 States have, in response to requests, given under seal their opinion as to the rights of an editor in such a matter in contradistinction to his duties as a member of the order.

Sandbagged and Robbed.

WHITESTOWN, L. I., Jan. 17.—Private John Downey, of Company C, United States Engineer Corps, stationed at Willett's Point, was sandbagged during the night while returning to the post from this village. The footpads took his gold watch and chain and $90 in money. He was found lying unconscious in the snow. He says he was struck from behind and did not see his assailants.

Niagara's Great Ice Bridge.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 17.—The ice bridge across the Niagara river, which formed on Jan. 3, is still intact, and the intensely cold weather has strengthened and enlarged it until it has become the greatest bridge since that of 1890, when the Canadian hackmen made a driveway across the river and used it for three months.

Suffering from Cold at Charleston, W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 17.—The unprecedented cold weather has caused the most intense suffering here. The peculiar construction of the residences renders them almost incapable of being heated when the temperature is below 20 degrees, a thing which rarely occurs here.

FROM THE OLD WORLD

Immense Damage Done by a Storm at Trieste.

BARK SUNK WITH ALL ON BOARD

Not an American Among the Fourteen New Cardinals—Plans for a New Church to Rival St. Peter's—Correspondent Alt's Expulsion—The Khedive's New Cabinet Not Recognized by England.

TRIESTE, Jan. 17.—A terrible storm has swept this city since yesterday morning. Sleet or snow has fallen incessantly. The wind has blown a hurricane. Tiles and chimneys have been blown into the streets, half the trees in the city have been snapped off close to the pavements, and tram cars have been tumbled from the tracks.

It has been impossible for vessels to enter the harbor. An Italian bark which tried to come in at noon was battered by the ice to a wreck in sight of the docks, and foundered with all on board. Two attempts were made to send help to the crew, but the sailors put back before getting a dozen yards from land, as it was impossible, they said, for small crafts to live in such a sea.

An English bark went ashore an hour later just outside the harbor, and four of the crew were drowned.

A huge wave broke over part of the water front early in the evening, and flooded the stores near by. Two cabs, with horses and drivers, were caught in the current where the water was receding, and were carried into the harbor. The men and horses were drowned.

Fifty persons have been injured by the falling chimneys and tiles.

TO RIVAL ST. PETER'S.

Cardinal Parocchi Proposes a Grand New Church at Rome.

ROME, Jan. 17.—Cardinal Parocchi has submitted to the Pope a plan for adding another to the many vast Catholic edifices of the country. The Cardinal's plan is for the erection on the Monte Vanicule a church with a cupola equal in size and effect to that of St. Peter's, the cost of which is to be defrayed by contributions of the Catholics throughout the world.

Round the sacred edifice it is proposed to group the ecclesiastical colleges of the different countries that are now situated in Rome.

The further consideration of the proposal will be submitted to a commission of Cardinals.

The estimated cost of carrying out the idea is about $20,000,000, and it is calculated that its construction would give employment to 14,000 workmen for six years.

More than 300 associations for receiving the gifts made to the Holy Father on his episcopal jubilee have been constituted in various countries, and in Italy there are about 80 committees that receive funds, part of which serve for the Obolo and part for the purchase of presents to the Pope. An Obolo committee will be formed, and there will be at least one for every diocese.

It is thought that the offerings will exceed those made on the sacerdotal jubilee which yielded more than forty millions lire in money, and about a hundred million objects for presents.

The English pilgrimage to Rome which the Duke of Norfolk has organized in connection with the forthcoming jubilee of Leo XIII. will include many persons of influence and high position who have not heretofore been prominent in undertakings of this nature.

The Duke will be accompanied by the heads of almost all, if not quite all, the religious houses who have a base of operations in Great Britain and Ireland, and by many ecclesiastics who occupy a large space in the public eye.

All the principal Catholic families in the United Kingdom will be represented in the pilgrimage.

What is even more noteworthy is the fact that the pilgrims will not be Roman Catholics only, but will number several High Churchmen and Ritualists.

FOURTEEN NEW CARDINALS.

Named by the Pope Yesterday—Not an American Among Them.

ROME, Jan. 17.—The Pope created fourteen Cardinals at the consistory yesterday, the list not including any Americans.

Archbishop Vaughan, of Westminster, was elevated to the Cardinalate, also Archbishop Logue, Primate of Ireland; Archbishop Kremenrz, of Cologne; Prince Archbishop Kopp, of Breslau; Mgr. Mocenni, Papal Under Secretary of State; Mgr. Persico, Secretary of the Propoganda, and others, there being in all six Italian Cardinals, two French Cardinals, two Prussian, one English (Vaughan), one Irish (Logue) one Hungarian and one Spanish Cardinal.

Pope Leo, in his allocution, thanked God for having preserved him to celebrate his episcopal jubilee.

This event, the Pope said, would be regarded by men as a sign of the divine protection extended over the church in these calamitous days through the preservation of the life of the Supreme Pontiff.

The Pope announced, in addition to the Cardinals named, the creation of two Cardinals reserved. They are believed to be Heinhuber and a French Bishop.

M. Alt's Expulsion.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Paris correspondent of the Morning Post says of the expulsion of M. Alt, a correspondent of the Corriere di Napoli: "He was a talented writer for the most Gallophe organ in Italy. He has long been a thorn in the side of the French government. His expulsion may be unavoidable, but it must be regarded also as an act of vengeance.

THREE WERE KILLED.

The Disastrous Collapse of Nixon Bros. Building in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—As the result of the collapse of the four-story brick building at 517 Commerce street, occupied by the Nixon Bros. Paper company, early last night, three men are dead, and one is badly injured. Three escaped uninjured from the building. The dead are:

JOHN MCKENNA, packer.
JOSEPH WALLACE, packer.
ALBERT W. MARKER, foreman.

Albert Gales, colored porter, injured internally.

The collapsed building was four stories high, 35 feet front on Commerce street, by 135 feet in depth. The three upper floors were stored full of paper bags.

In the office in the rear of the building on the ground floor W. H. Nixon, the head of the company, Samuel Bayles, the treasurer, and C. S. Forsythe, agent for the Wilkinson automatic stoker, were seated talking shortly before 6 o'clock.

Gales, McKenna, Wallace, and Marker were working further down towards the doors.

An ominous cracking of splintering joists was heard, and then with terrible suddenness the whole upper part of the building came down with a rush upon the men on the first floor.

Gales was nearest the front door and as the falling plaster began to rattle about his head he made a rush for the street. Just as he reached the pavement the front wall fell upon him burying him out of sight.

He was dug out by the firemen and was found to have been fortunate enough to have escaped with serious but not fatal internal injuries.

When the building began to cave in McKenna, Marker and Wallace ran to a window in the rear of the store. The first two reached it but the tons of bricks, joists and paper fell upon them just as they were about to jump out and crushed the life out of them.

Wallace was caught further back and his body was not recovered until early this morning.

The three men in the office escaped uninjured, as the debris fell further front towards the street than towards the extreme rear. They were effectually walled in, however, by the ruins, and were assisted out by the police and firemen when they arrived on the scene.

The cause of the collapse of the building was probably the weight of paper stored in the upper floors, although Mr. Nixon claims that the stock piled up there was not nearly so great as it has been on many other occasions.

The building is a total ruin and will have to be entirely rebuilt. The loss is about $30,000.

WAS HIRED TO POISON

Gallagher's Damaging Testimony in the Dempsey Trial.

HE USED THIRTY POWDERS IN ALL.

They Were Intended to Make the Non-Union Workmen at Homestead Sick, and the Strike Leader Did Not Mean Serious Harm to the Victims.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 17.—The testimony of Patrick Gallagher, the self-confessed poisoner, was then sworn. "I first saw Dempsey last August at No. 66 Third avenue, in K. of L. Hall," he said. "Robert Beatty and James Davidson were with me. Beatty said to Dempsey, 'these are the two men.'

"Dempsey said to me and Davidson, 'I suppose you know what we want?' We said we knew a little about it.

"Dempsey then spoke about breaking a street car strike in Chicago. He said powders had been used; that if we would use these powders in the Homestead mill it would make the men sick, and that we could break the strike in about ten days. He told us he would guarantee us $50 apiece. He then told us to get work in the mill.

How Gallagher Was Hired.

"I first met Beatty Aug. 27. He asked if I wanted to go to Homestead to do a special job, which he explained was to 'dope' the men working there. He said there was $3 or $3 a day in it. Davidson and I met Beatty next morning and I went to Dempsey's office. After coming out I met Mr. Linsay of the Carnegie company, got a job and went to work as second cook.

"Before going there Dempsey said he would furnish me with powders to put in the food furnished to the men in the mill. A bottle containing three yellow powders was given to me by Hugh Dempsey Sep. 7 or 8. He also gave me directions how to use them.

"The day following I put one powder into 30 gallons of soup. The second day I put one powder into 30 gallons of tea, and the third powder was used in the same way.

"I then got nine powders from James Davidson, and used some of them in the tea, giving the others to Alex McCord, another cook.

"I quit work Sep. 21 and Davidson went to work the next day. Dempsey asked once if there were many sick men in the mill. I told him quite a number were sick, and that I did not like the new steward and quit work.

"Dempsey and I talked in his office about sending to Cincinnati for two more cooks. It was decided to send Beatty to Cincinnati, and another to Beaver Falls.

Used 30 Powders.

"When I quit work I had received 30 powders from Dempsey. The day before I quit work Dempsey told me detectives were watching him, for me to slip into the traction company's office, and he would give me some money. A moment later a uniformed employe of the company came in and said: 'Sign this receipt.' I did so, and he handed me $35."

On cross-examination by Thomas Marshall, Gallagher said that when he first went to Dempsey's office he said he wanted men to do the work who could be relied upon; that one —— fool who had been in the office wanted to go to Homestead and kill the ——.

Gallagher was not confused on cross-examination, and answered all questions with a clearness and promptness that appeared to surprise Mr. Marshall. Mr. Marshall went over the whole story in detail as Gallagher told it on direct examination.

Robert Beatty was brought into court and identified by Gallagher.

J. M. Davidson, Gallagher's alleged accomplice, was then called. He confirmed Gallagher's story. Among other things, he said:

"Beatty suggested croton oil. I objected, and Dempsey did, too, saying he did not want to harm the men, only to make them sick."

To Settle the Frazee Lee Estate.

Alfred D. Cook, John H. VanWinkle and Andrew Vanderbeek were agreed on yesterday by R. V. Lindabury and Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the respective parties, as commissioners to divide the real estate left by Frazee Lee. The court made the appointment accordingly. Ten pieces of property are left, estimated to be worth between $50,000 and $60,000.

INCREASING THE EXPENSES.

Another City Official to be Hired at $50 a Month, to Do Some of the City Clerk's Work.

When Oliver B. Leonard or J. B. Coward held the office of city clerk, the incumbent had no trouble in attending to all the duties of that office, including the business of city auditor, which office was combined with that of city clerk. They were competent. After F. W. Runyon was appointed, however, it was found necessary to hire an outsider to audit the accounts, and now that individual office is to be perpetuated.

By resolution last night the council decided to employ A. S. Patterson at a salary of $50 a month as an expert accountant to supervise and audit all the city's accounts, bills, monthly reports, etc., and prepare for each meeting a budget of claims due and funds available. He is to be under the direction of the financial committee, and will have his official headquarters in the city offices.

Mr. Patterson has established a system of book-keeping in the city accounts the continuation of which he is to be paid this salary to supervise. He really relieves the city clerk of work formerly done by that individual, and is expected to be more thorough in his work than the supervisor of accounts has been heretofore.

Meanwhile the city clerk's salary is not reduced.

THEIRS NOT THE WORST LOT.

How About the Hardships of Coal Wagon and Truck Drivers, and Scores of Other Businesses?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Will you allow me a space in your columns? A short time ago there was something in your paper in regard to protecting the motormen from the cold, storm and severe winds. Since then I have not seen anything more in regard to it. Is there not any interest in us as citizens of Plainfield in our fellow man? Can we look on every day through such severe cold weather as we are having this winter and say nothing? Would it not be doing unto others as we would that they should do unto us, to ask the officers of the electric road if they would not take some method in protecting the motormen from the severe weather? For one I know I would not take their position through such weather as we have had this winter for three times the pay they get. I have seen them when I know they were most frozen and were suffering greatly with the cold.

I for one would ask the officers if they would not consider the matter and see if they cannot attach something to the car that will protect the men from the cold.

A FRIEND OF THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

[The motor men have an easier time than the drivers of horse cars, and fully as easy as drivers of grocery or coal wagons, or of trucks. And how about railroad brakemen, and ice cutters, and telegraph linemen, and masons and carpenters and scores of other businesses? Some people let their feeling run away with their comprehension. There are hundreds of people in this section who have for years had a much harder lot than the motor men have.]

To Extend the Street Lighting Service.

When a petition was read to the common council last night from residents of the western part of the city asking that the electric lights be extended from the Evons station to the city limits, councilman Frazee made a clever speech advocating the improvement. He urged that the matter be speedily attended to, and stated that the Plainfield lights would then meet Dunellen's, giving a continuous line from the city limit at Fanwood, through to the western limit of Dunellen. On his motion the lighting committee was given power to place the lamps.

Fighting the North Avenue Sewer.

The Plainfield board of health is determined to put an end to all sewerage connection with Green brook. In a communication to the common council last night they firmly expressed their intention in the matter, but said that they did not wish to conflict with the council, and as the North avenue sewer was created and perpetuated by the official action of the council the board called on that body to repeal the sewer ordinance and permanently abate the nuisance. The matter was referred to the committee on streets.

The Police Record for Three Years.

Ex-city judge W. R. Codington last night made his valedictory report, covering his entire term of three years and one month. During that time 1,077 prisoners were brought before him. Of these, 585 were fined, 123 committed, 5 fined and committed, 82 discharged, 4 held for the grand jury, and 178 released under suspension of sentence. The fines collected amounted to $4,251.26.

Progressing Towards a Sewerage System.

Councilman Case of the special councilmanic committee appointed to confer with the citizens' committee in the matter of obtaining a system of sewers, reports that substantial progress is being made in the matter, and that painstaking, thorough and persistent work is being done, so that very soon a definite plan may be submitted. The sewer committee and president Ginna were continued as the committee to act with the citizens.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE TO WORK.

Poor-Farms in Other Places Are Self-Supporting. For Instance, New Brunswick—Let Plainfield Follow Suit.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The proposition contained in the Mayor's annual message to our common council to provide a poor-house and poor-farm for the use of our city poor, is worthy of the support and encouragement of all good citizens.

In the first place, the city cannot lose anything by a prudent investment at this time of this kind. We will never see the time when a proper farm could be purchased and a satisfactory poor-house could be built cheaper than to-day. Therefore, as an investment, it is sound policy to act in this matter now.

In the second place, such an establishment affords the only proper way in which such a city as ours can adequately provide for its paupers.

First—They are then under the surveillance and care of a proper overseer who can keep them in order and will treat them according to their respective deserts.

Second—They are secluded and removed from the temptations of the city and can harm neither themselves nor their fellow-citizens by their bad examples or their dissolute habits.

Third—If they are physically able to work they can contribute to their own support, which will relieve the city of a burden and make them happier and healthier.

There is no other way of accomplishing these desirable ends in the care of the poor. Agriculture requires less skill of its subordinate employes than most any other calling. Every man and woman can work some way on the soil, and the tendency at the present time is to enlarge the spheres of employment in our poor-houses by adding the simpler kinds of machinery and affording opportunity for employment in the easier kinds of work. As an example of this tendency, I instance the kindling-wood factories and the stone-breaking departments which are found connected with many of our poor-houses. Idleness is the master-curse of the human race. In its trail follow drunkenness, debauchery and crime. Work means health, prosperity and success. Our whole modern system of dealing with the poor and the unfortunate emphasizes these truths. The poor-house and the poor-farm is one of the best instrumentalities a city can have to accomplish results in the direction of teaching industry.

In the town of Amherst, Mass., where I was brought up, the paupers are supported at an expense to the town of $1.12 a week each, which includes board, lodging, clothing and general supervision. That is, the cost of the farm superintendent is charged into the account and forms a part of the expense which results in this item of one dollar and twelve cents a week for each pauper. But the economy of the system is not of as much advantage as its general healthfulness. The police of the poor-house is good. The inmates are clean, they are well cared for and they work and earn their own living as far as they are able. Pauperism is thus relieved—as far as the circumstances will permit—of its most debasing influences. MASON W. TYLER.

A Plainfield Speedway Wanted.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I think I am speaking for many when I ask if there is not some way by which the present city ordinance relating to fast driving could be amended so that drivers and lovers of fast horses might have some street designated on which they might enjoy the friendly contests that the good sleighing we are now having makes possible? In Newark, Paterson, New Brunswick, and other cities I might mention, a street is set apart for fast driving and police are detailed to see that the drivers are not interfered with. Will not our worthy mayor help us to get ahead of New York by having our speedway before they have theirs? He should, for there are many who have been compelled to take his (dust) snow before he "retired from the turf". Won't you go for this speedway as you went for the street railway, and we will get it. HELPLESS.

Help New Jersey's Display of Art at Chicago.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—A committee for collecting original works of art, to be exhibited at the Columbian Exposition, has been appointed by the county chairman for Plainfield and vicinity. We hope the women of Plainfield will take an interest in having New Jersey well represented and that they will send us a specimen of what they consider their best work. This will be forwarded by us to the State committee in Newark. All works of art must be in the hands of the State committee by the first of March, consequently they must be in our hands not later than the 20th of February.

All expenses will be paid by the State of New Jersey. Pictures should have narrow frames as space is limited. If your work of art is for sale, the price should be attached to it. Each contributor must send with article full name and address. Works of art include: painting in oil and water-color and on china; illustrating; book-covers and head and tail pieces; modeling; wood carving and metal work, and original designs in needle work. All works intended for the Exposition should be sent to Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, corresponding secretary, the Albion. Committee—Mrs. John Ward Stimson, Mrs. James Middleditth.

REFINED TORTURE.

Hit Him When He Is Down, for He Has No Friends.

To the discredit of their thoughtless and cruel owners be it said, many horses even in enlightened Plainfield are compelled to go about on the icy streets with shoes worn smooth so that they slip and slide and strain themselves and are constantly in danger of going down. The owners are too careless or too stingy to pay the blacksmith, but too selfish to forego a sleighride, even if their faithful horses have to suffer. Every day falls of horses are reported, from lack of sharp freshly-pointed shoes to give them a grip. And the familiar experience of each such fall is faithfully depicted in a well-told story from every-day life by a Washington Star reporter.

Slip, slap!

A tug at the reins—yank, haul, pull and jerk.

No use; down he goes, broadside, with a snort of fear and a grunt of pain.

The packed snow, when it starts in to be slippery, knows where it is at.

A crowd at once gathers. A sympathetic lady in spectacles solicitously inquires:

"What's the matter?"

"Only a hoss down, mum"—volunteers a bystander.

Yes, that is all: only a horse down. Poor creature! Have you ever critically observed this simple and familiar sight? No? There's a lesson in it.

There are always a dozen men ready to assist in getting the fallen animal to his feet.

The man with the faded ginger hat and antiquated coat grasps the horse by the ears. Hold his head down and he can't struggle to his feet. Keep him down at all hazards. The ginger hat generally places one knee on the animal's head; sometimes it's both knees. This makes the ginger hat feel big in the eyes of the spectators. The harder the ginger hat can press the poor brute's head into the unyielding pavement the happier he feels. It's the horse underneath and not the ginger hat. Grind his eye nearest the pavement into the sharp icy particles; put it out if possible. If you succeed in blinding the beast the more credit to you.

The man with the leeward eye seizes the horse by the nose. Shut off his wind without fail. This makes him struggle violently and affords the ginger hat a golden opportunity to get in an extra grind on the horse's eye and a pull at the ears. The leeward eye also places his knee on the nose and yanks the bit so that the ring will flay the corrugated roof of the horse's mouth down to smoothness. The horse does n't like this. The owner does n't care. A horse with a sore mouth eats less.

Strange as it may appear the horse is uneasy. Horses are not inconsiderate of polite attention. So the man with the calico shirt jumps on the animal's hip, and, of course, this grinds the hair and skin off the under hip. But no matter: keep him down if it takes an army.

Horses under these circumstances seem to be unreasonable. The man with the game leg gets in his work now. He's been waiting anxiously in the crowd for the chance. The horse has a raw sore under the saddle. The man with the game leg grasps the saddle with both hands, braces his feet against the animal's back, pulls and presses and peels off the raw, sensitive flesh by the square inch. The end of the saddle ring is pushed through the hair padding and bores another hole on the other side of the vertebra. And still the horse continues to struggle!

Ah, now it is the driver's turn. He has been unfastening the harness and traces and all is free.

"Stand clear!"—he shouts.

The ginger hat puts out the horse's eye for good, the calico shirt makes the bare hip bone and pavement meet, the game leg pulls off an extra chunk of raw flesh, while the leeward eye causes the blood to run from the lacerated mouth.

Whack! Whack!

It would n't do, you know, to let the horse get up by his own unaided efforts. So, as the torturers release their holds the driver brings that cruel lash once, twice, thrice down upon the ribs, that raise welts on the quivering flesh as big as a man's finger.

Now he is up, nervous, trembling, excited, sore and lame. No matter, he is only a horse.

Who cares?

Elizabeth's View of the Crescent Crash.

(From The Journal.)

The Crescent League was organized in 1889 under the name of the Plainfield Bowling club, and prospered until it relieved the Y. M. C. A., of that town, of a base-ball team. Then the club's membership increased and a club house was furnished. With this increase came a number of "deadwood" members, to whose presence the Plainfielders lay the blame of disaster. But everybody who has followed the Crescent League through its base-ball seasons knows that the Plainfield teams have been costly ones.

A number of the wheelmen connected with the dying league, who, by the way, it is understood are the solid members of the organization, have prepared a plan for reorganization. The plan is to form an entirely new club, admitting to membership only persons who have been in good standing financially with the Crescent League, and to make wheeling the distinctive feature of the club.

The news of the probable disbanding of the Crescent League is accompanied by the announcement that a number of young men, some thirty in number, have formed an athletic club and will at once equip a gymnasium. They will also place a base-ball team in the field next season. They have adopted the name of the Plainfield Athletic club.

HARRIS MUST DIE.

The Judgment of the Lower Court Sustained.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—The Court of Appeals to-day decided against Carlyle W. Harris, who was convicted of murder in the first degree in causing the death of Helen Mary Neilson Potts, to whom he had been secretly married, by giving her morphine, affirming the judgment of the lower court. Harris's mother, who has been staying in Plainfield for the past few days, left for New York at noon to-day immediately upon receiving the news of the Court's decision.

The crime of which Harris was found guilty was committed on the 31st of January, 1891. He was a medical student in New York city, and prescribed for an ailment of his wife certain pills, into the capsules of which it was charged, and to the satisfaction of the jury proved, that he had introduced morphine in sufficient quantity to cause her death. So plausible were the explanations offered by Harris, that it was some time before he was even suspected of the poisoning. Even after the discovery was made that she had been poisoned, he was able to make it appear for some time, first, that it was due to a mistake made by the pharmacist, and, when this became untenable, that he himself had made a mistake. He was found guilty on Feb. 2, of last year.

Judge Gray of the court of appeals, wrote the opinion given to-day, all the judges concurring. He says:

"A careful reading of the evidence contained in this very voluminous record and a conscientious consideration of the facts disclosed must inevitably lead to the formation of an opinion that the verdict of the jury was not only justified, but that no other conclusion could have been reached by the fairest mind."

That Courier "Earthquake".

The New Brunswick Home News says: Some imaginative correspondent in Plainfield on Sunday night sent to a New York newspaper a few lines to the effect that there had been an earthquake there. The only basis for the story was that the town was shaking from the cold.

The only building in town that shook was the dilapidated Courier office, and the shaky Courier editor is responsible for the fake—as usual. He's the same chap who killed off three men in one day by the same Blue Line train, and one of them at Somerville where the Blue Line never runs. There's a limit to even Blue Lines, but the imagination of the Courier's news-inventor has no limit. He's the same chap who told in vivid language in the New York papers how a servant-girl caused terrible panic in the Crescent Avenue church by rushing wildly down the aisle in the midst of prayer and setting fire to the church when nothing of the sort occurred. He's the same chap who boasts that he gets never less than a dollar an article for all such stuff he sends in to the New York journals. He's the same chap—but why particularize further?

Anywhere in These Limits for a Quarter.

An ordinance to extend the 25-cent limit of hack hire was adopted on second reading last night and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to final passage. Under the proposed new ordinance, the boundary for the 25-cent limit is as follows: Green brook and Netherwood avenue, down Netherwood avenue to Belvidere, to Highland, to Hillside, to Randolph road, to Plainfield avenue, to Sherman, to Spooner, to Eighth street, to Grant, to Green brook, to Netherwood avenue.

Shivering Temperature for the City Fathers.

The city council was forced to shiver again last evening in a temperature of 58 and less, in their council chamber. A resolution was adopted emphatically expressing their dissatisfaction, and instructing the city clerk to have owner J. B. Coward properly heat the chamber as provided in the lease. Merry councilman Fisk forced the thermometer up to 120, and the blue-lipped members hudled about it and tried to imagine 'twas suffocatingly hot.

Assaulted by a Chicken Thief.

The hired man at Chadborn's, Netherwood, heard some one striking matches in the hen house, Sunday night, and opened the door and asked if that was Mr. Chadborn. It was not he, but a chicken thief, who felled the hired man with a club and escaped with several fowls. The man was found unconscious from his bruises and cuts on the head. He is still laid up.

How the Minister's Family Was Clothed

It is wonderful how the minister's wife in one of the small towns near this city manages to keep her family in good looking clothes at small expense. Her secret is said to be that she uses diamond dyes, those little money-savers that the druggists sell, and by dyeing and making over everything is worn to nothing. She says any woman can economize in this way and yet dress elegantly.

MR. BLAINE'S MALADY.

The Mysterious Disease that Baffles Physicians—His Condition To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—It was hoped that when the physicians announced that at a specified hour they would be prepared to issue a fuller statement on the subject than had hitherto been given out that some facts would be allowed to transpire which would satisfy the natural desire of the public to ascertain the truth in regard to the illness of one of its most distinguished citizens and at the same time stop the crop of contradictory and sensational rumors now prevailing.

This anticipation was not realized. There was a delay in the issuing of the promised bulletin, and when it did appear last night it contained nothing but what had previously been made known.

Mr. Blaine has at various times in recent years been treated by physicians other than those in immediate attendance upon him at the present time.

In the list are Dr. N. S. Lincoln, one of the most popular consulting physicians in Washington; Dr. G. S. Magruder, a Washington physician of large practice: Dr. Dennis, of New York and Bar Harbor, and others.

Not one of these gentlemen is able to state the nature of Mr. Blaine's organic disease.

One of them, however, said to-day that he had once prepared an intelligible bulletin as to Mr. Blaine's condition, but was peremptorily requested to withhold it from the public.

Mr. Blaine's condition is reported this morning as unchanged.

VESTRYMEN TO RESIGN.

They Do Not Seem to Like It Because Their Rector Was Exonerated.

Samuel Elliott, senior warden of the Episcopal church, at Westfield, has received a communication from Bishop Scarborough saying that the commission of clergy recently appointed to investigate the charges of drunkenness and lying against rector J. B. Jennings have decided that the charges were not sustained by the evidence presented. This confirms the report circulated some days ago that Mr. Jennings had been exonerated.

The entire vestry of the church, consisting of Samuel Elliott, Charles Forster, J. B. Greene, Charles Young, A. K. Gale, J. Harper Hunt and Mr. Schell, have signified their intention of resigning and turning the parish over to the bishop and rector.

The Samson and Davison families are said to be the only upholders of rector Jennings. Last Sunday only one woman attended the morning service. Several leading church members have resigned.

Relics Wanted for the Fair.

At the meeting held at the Plainfield Seminary on the afternoon of last Friday, January 13, the undersigned were appointed a committee to secure information regarding Revolutionary and Colonial relics in the possession of residents of Plainfield and neighboring towns, in order to make a full list of all such objects in New Jersey, and also with a view to having any such articles of especial interest as the owners are willing to loan for the purpose, form a part of the State exhibit at Chicago. As the time before the final arrangements must be made is extremely short, it is earnestly requested that the readers of THE PRESS who may have such articles in their possession or who can give any information on the subject will communicate with the undersigned as soon as possible.

Hackmen and Peddlers Take Notice.

The city clerk has for a long time been in the habit of giving license certificates on receipt of the usual application and fee, and the licenses have operated before the council granted them. That system is to be abolished as irregular and unbusiness-like, and hereafter no licenses will be in legal operation until actually granted by the council. The clerk will only be permitted to take the fee and application and submit them to council for official action. Hackmen and peddlers whose licenses expire soon should make prompt application so as to secure renewal on expiration of present licenses, as they will not be permitted to act under the renewals till those renewals are actually issued by the council.

HERE IS NEWS.

Just Now of the Utmost Importance,

And It Is Something All Will Appreciate,

Because It Is An Honest and Outspoken opinion.

"Rheumatism and neuralgia are perfectly curable," remarked one of our most eminent physicians, in conversation with the writer. "The only thing necessary is to use the right remedy and use it persistently."

"But what is the right remedy doctor?"

"Well, although a physician in practice, I must say that the best all-round medicine for rheumatism and neuralgia—that is the remedy which will effect the most cures—is the discovery of Dr. Greene, known and sold in every drug store as Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I have cured many cases with it," continued the doctor, "and call to mind several remarkable restorations which have come under my direct observation, notably that of Mr. William Guckemus, of 62 Stark st., Utica, N. Y. His was a terrible case. Why, he could hardly move in his bed, had terrible pains in his hip and back. His food would not digest but would bloat him up very much. He used Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and is now a perfectly well man. Mr. Guckemus is a very well known man in Utica, in fact has been foreman in the turning shop for 24 years, and consequently everybody knows him and his wonderful cure."

"And there was that remarkable cure of Mr. Michael Crowley," added the doctor, "who resides in New York city, at 74 Laight st. He had rheumatism so bad that he could not walk, indeed, could not eat or sleep. Nothing seemed to relieve him until he procured Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now he is a perfectly well man. He declares that this remedy saved his life and that it is the most wonderful medicine in the world.

"A talented lady of my acquaintance, also, Mrs. J. T. Cummings, of 1303 Lorain st., Cleveland, Ohio, told me that she suffered fearfully with pain in her right side for four months. She was extremely nervous in addition and could not sleep nights. She received no relief whatever until she used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now through the curative effects of this medicine the pain has left her entirely and she is well again.

"It certainly does cure rheumatism and neuralgia," wound up the doctor, "and I could go on indefinitely describing case after case among my patients where it has given almost instant relief and soon effected perfect cures. I pronounce it the great remedy for pains and aches and I prescribe and use it freely because I know it to be a purely vegetable and harmless medicine.

"No, we physicians do not class it among patent medicines because, as you must remember, it is the prescription of one of our best known and most successful doctors, the specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York. The doctor, in fact, endorses and recommends his valuable remedy in just such cases as those above stated and he can be consulted by anyone free of charge by calling at his office or writing."

THE FIGHTING PARSON.

Rev. Myron W. Reed, Who Will Go to Congress from Colorado.

Rev. Myron W. Reed, pastor of the First Congregational church of Denver, is one of the brainy men who was borne into the house of representatives by the recent political tidal wave. Rev. Mr. Reed was a candidate on both the democratic and populist tickets, and so, in the classic phrase of Henry Watterson, "caught 'e a-comin' and caught 'em a-goin'." He will go into the lower branch of the national legislature from the First congressional district of Colorado.

REV. MYRON REED.

He formerly resided at Hudson, Lenawee county, Mich., going into the army from that village in 1863 in Company A, Eighteenth Michigan infantry, of which he was chaplain. They was not fighting enough in that position to suit the parson, and at his request he was appointed by Gen. Thomas chief of scouts at Nashville, with the rank of captain, but the title usually given him was "the fighting parson."

He is very popular in Denver and is in charge of one of the wealthiest and most fashionable congregations in the city. The salary is far in excess of that of a congressman, but Mr. Reed has always taken a great interest in politics, and the great ambition of his life seems to be to occupy a seat in the lower house. He ran in 1886 on the democratic ticket but was defeated by a small plurality. While favoring tariff reform the watchword of his campaign was "free silver."

Rich Gifts to Royalty.

The emperor of Germany has consented to send to the world's fair what will be one of the most remarkable and attractive features to be seen at Chicago next year. It will consist of a collection of presents received by his grandfather, Emperor William, his father, Emperor Frederick, and himself from their fellow sovereigns in Europe, as well as from the people of Germany. The conditions under which it will be exhibited have not yet been announced. The presents consist of jewels and other personal ornaments, silver plate, decorations and an indefinite variety of other articles. The collection is worth millions of dollars.

A USEFUL MONKEY:

How Donna Chiquinha Rewarded a Four-Footed Friend.

Rarely, indeed, can any member of this lively and mischievous tribe be commended for usefulness, but to one little specimen of the South American family of Howlers must be given that praise. An English traveler had captured one of these monkeys, while but a baby, and made a pet of her, under the name of Donna Chiquinha. During her long rides upon mule back the little Donna regularly took her place upon the mule's head, perched between his ears. At first the mule did not take kindly to his extra rider, but he and the Donna soon became attached friends, for they had the very best ground for friendship—each could and did render useful service to the other.

The vast woodlands of Brazil are subject to a very great pest called the Motuca fly, which, as long as daylight lasts, follows and unmercifully persecutes all animals, save man and monkeys. Particularly do horses, mules and cattle suffer from its bites, which, like her sharp prick of a lance, draw blood every time. Donna Chiquinha—with a gratitude which does her credit—soon saw that in return for the rides which she enjoyed so much she could render the friend, the mule, a service by killing the flies which tormented him. She was very small, but being very lithe, or long-armed in proportion to her size, she could reach far. Sometimes she would hitch her tail firmly round one of the mule's long ears, and hanging herself from this, as from a pillar, would use both her tiny hands to clean the flies off of the mule's cheek, nostril and neck on one side, and then climbing over to the other ear would repeat the process on that side. The flies were so numerous that the little Donna was kept incessantly busy. The mule appeared to know well what she was doing, for he would always keep the ear from which she was suspended perfectly erect, in order to help her as much as possible. Their master thought that it was chiefly owing to the Donna's exertions that the mule was enabled to finish his very long journey in much better condition than any other mule of the troop.—American Agriculturist.

AN OFFICIAL CAT.

One Who Enjoys All the Comforts of Home in the Produce Exchange.

It isn't every cat that has the good fortune to come into a settled income, but that pleasing distinction from the rest of his race is enjoyed by an animal attached to the produce exchange staff. He has had the job of looking after the mice and rats on the big exchange floor ever since his kittenhood, and he is now very nearly a full-grown cat, and a sizable one as well. Grain samples are sure to attract the rodents, and the produce exchange did not secure exemption from their visits. Traps were tried with some success, but the relief thus obtained was only temporary, and it was finally decided to resort to a cat. To secure one which would not run away at the first opportunity it was deemed wise to obtain a kitten, which, having no experience of the delights of midnight battles on back fences, would be satisfied to get along without them. The theory of this has proved to be correct. The cat never leaves the main floor of the building, and apparently is satisfied with the hunting ground it offers, spending the nights there with praiseworthy regularity. At nine o'clock each morning he gives up business and seeks rest in a carpeted corner of the superintendent's office. When the gong rings at three o'clock to warn the brokers that the exchange day is over the cat starts out to patrol his beat, making a leisurely circuit of the hall and completing it about the time that the last stragglers are disappearing. He is a good hunter and eclipses the achievements of the traps, his presence on the floor at night having resulted in rendering the rats and mice far less of a nuisance than they were. His pay comes in the shape of regular rations, while a polished metal collar about his neck shows that he is the "official" cat of the exchange.—N. Y. Times.

He Had Not Lost It.

The young man led such a life that his employer was compelled to dismiss him. A few days later he met a friend.

"Hello, Frank," was the greeting. "I hear you lost your job?"

"It's a mistake. I didn't do anything of the sort."

"You are not working at the old place, are you?"

"No."

"Not on a vacation?"

"No."

"Then, why haven't you lost your place?"

"Simply because I didn't lose it; the old man took it away from me right before my eyes, and I was delighted."—Detroit Free Press.

One Consistent Woman.

A lady of an uncertain age was asked by a census-taker.

"How old are you, madam?"

"Thirty years," she replied.

"That's what you told me last census."

"Well, I am not one of the kind of women who tell one story at one time and another story at another."—Boston Globe.

She Knew What She Wanted.

Old Lady—I want a watch that won't tick so loud.

Clerk—They all tick like this, ma'am; there's no other kind.

Old Lady—Sho! I know better. I've heard of them "silent watches of the night" ever since I kin remember.—Black and White.

A CLEVER THIEF.

But He Was Defeated in His Great Knavery Trick.

"The slickest piece of knavery ever perpetrated in the world was the work of a Frenchman," said a traveler, joining in the discussion of coincidences in progress at the Lacleds.

"In 1864 I was employed in the private banking establishment of Jacques Barere, at Toulon. Barere was called to Paris on business, expecting to be absent three days.

"On the second day he returned, stating that he must have at once two million francs with which to close an important transaction he had on hand. There was not so much cash in the vaults, and he at once opened negotiations with the other banks to supply him with it. Not a soul suspected him. I entered his private office on an errand, his huge St. Bernard dog trotting at my heels.

"When he saw his master, instead of springing forward to greet him as was his wont, he uttered a vicious howl and began barking at him. Barere turned to me and demanded: 'Why did you bring your dog in here?' 'It is your dog, monsieur,' I replied, in some surprise. I went back to my desk with a feeling of uneasiness I could scarcely define.

"I noticed that Barere wore his hat in the office, something unusual for him, and that he gave me evasive answers when I asked for instructions. I was seized with a desire to have Barere take off his hat. I scarcely knew why I wanted it removed, for doubt of his identity had not taken tangible shape in my mind. I again entered his office with a paper for his signature, and as I place it on his desk I managed, by a seeming accident, to knock his hat off.

"It was not Barere. The resemblance, so marked when he wore his hat, entirely disappeared when it was removed. He replaced it hurriedly and I retired. I communicated my discovery to the cashier and an officer was summoned, but when he entered the office the impostor was gone. He had escaped through a side door."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

United States Mail Flag.

Hereafter United States vessels carrying mails will be recognized by a flag borne at the mizzen mast. Hitherto any such distinction has been impracticable, from the fact that no one vessel carried mails with any regularity. Now that contracts have been made, covering a stated number of years, with certain lines, it has been deemed advisable to indicate, by a recognized standard, that the vessels flying it are government mail bearers. There are occasions when a vessel flying such a flag would be given precedence over others, in a port, roadstead or harbor; whereas, without it, the ship would be compelled to take its turn, the delay being considerable as measured by the rapidity of post office methods.

Don't be discouraged by mistakes. The most successful men in the world would do lots of things differently if they could do them over.

Great pleasure and comfort can be given an invalid by changing not only the position of the articles of furniture in the room, but the pictures.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES

Death of the Ex-President at His Home in Fremont, O., Last Night.

THE END CAME PEACEFULLY AND HE WAS CONSCIOUS TO THE LAST.

He Had Been a Sufferer from Neuralgia of the Heart, but Only Within the Past Two Days Had His Condition Been Alarming—No Arrangements Yet Made for the Funeral—Sketch of His Career.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 18.—Although Rutherford B. Hayes, ex-President of the United States, had been ill for only a day or two, his death was not a complete surprise. He was a sufferer from neuralgia of the heart.

The end came at 11 o'clock last night. Most of the members of his family were present when he passed away. Consciousness did not at any time desert him.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

Rutherford Burchard Hayes, nineteenth President of the United States, was born at Delaware, O., Oct. 4, 1822, and graduated at Kenyon college in 1842. He was admitted to the bar at Marietta, O., in 1845, and entered upon the practice of law first at Fremont, O., and then at Cincinnati.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he was one of the first to offer his services, and he was made major of a regiment of Ohio volunteers.

He was ordered to service in Western Virginia, and was subsequently joined to the Army of the Potomac under Gen. McClellan, and took part in the operations pertaining to the Confederate invasion of Maryland in September, 1862.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

In November, 1862, he was made colonel of his regiment, which was subsequently on duty in Virginia, West Virginia, and elsewhere.

He was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general of volunteers, and brevetted major-general for gallant and distinguished services during the campaign of 1864.

Four Times Wounded.

In the course of his army service he was four times wounded, and had four horses shot under him.

At the close of the war in June, 1865, he resigned his commission. He had previously been elected a Representative in Congress from Ohio, and took his seat in December, 1865. He was re-elected for the following term, but resigned in 1867, having been elected Governor of Ohio, to which he was re-elected in 1869, and again in 1875.

His repeated success in Ohio induced the Republican National convention in 1876 to nominate him for President, after a deadlock between the two great forces in the party led respectively by Senator Roscoe Conkling and Speaker James G. Blaine.

When the election had taken place it seemed certain that of the 369 Electoral votes 184 would be cast for Mr. Tilden, the Democratic candidate, being one less than a majority; 172 were equally sure for Mr. Hayes; but there were 13 Electors in respect to whose election there were grave questions in dispute.

If only one of these votes should be counted for Mr. Tilden he would have a majority and would consequently become President. In order to secure the election of Mr. Hayes, all of these thirteen votes must be counted for him.

As the Republicans had a majority in the Senate and the Democrats in the House, it was certain that the two branches of Congress would not agree in the counting of the disputed votes.

The Hayes-Tilden Election.

In the emergency a proposition was made by the Democratic leaders to submit the entire question to an Electoral Commission composed of five Senators, five Representatives and five Judges of the Supreme Court.

This commission, by a majority of one, decided that the disputed votes should all be counted for Mr. Hayes, giving him a majority of one vote, and he was duly elected.

He endeavored to prevent the remonetization of silver at more than its intrinsic value, but his veto was overridden by the constitutional two-thirds majority in Congress. He firmly maintained, against a large majority of both branches of Congress, the resumption of specie payments.

Both the Senate and the House vigorously opposed his efforts at a reform of the civil service, so that the bill prohibiting political assessment on office holders was the only law on the subject of which he secured the passage.

On March 4, 1881, he was succeeded in the Presidency by Mr. Garfield, and has since resided at his home at Fremont, Ohio.

Since his retirement from political life he has been actively engaged in educational, philanthropic and other work of general interest.

He was president of the National Prison Reform Association and of the Slater Education Fund for the negroes; was a member of the Peabody Education Fund for the South; was commander of the military order of the Loyal League of the United States.

The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by Kenyon College, Harvard University, Yale College and Johns Hopkins University.

NAMED FOR SENATORS.

Elections and Nominations in Several States.

ALBANY, Jan. 18.—A number of spectators, including several of the heads of departments, were assembled in the chamber when the Senate was called to order after the morning recess.

The Lieutenant-Governor announced that in accordance with the United States Statutes the Senate would proceed to ballot for Senator. Each Senator was in his place and named his choice as his name was called.

The result was as follows: Total votes cast, 30; for Edward Murphy, jr., 17; for Frank Hiscock, 12; for Whitelaw Reid, 1.

The vote was a party vote with the exception of Senator Edwards who, in voting for Mr. Reid, said:

"It is sometimes agreeable to waive personal preferences in deference to the views of others; but in this case I see no reason for doing it. I intend to cast my vote in the manner that will, for me, best answer the question: 'Who is the fittest man to represent the State in the United States Senate?' I therefore cast my vote for that eminent diplomatist and distinguished journalist, the Hon. Whitelaw Reid."

The election of United States Senator drew a large audience to the Assembly chamber.

A resolution declaring that the best interests of this State require the early repeal or suspension of the act authorizing the monthly purchase of silver bullion by the United States, was adopted unanimously.

A recess of fifteen minutes was then taken.

At 12 o'clock the House was called to order. By this time it was crowded. There were only two or three members absent, and the call was suspended without sending for them.

The roll was then called for the vote for United States Senator and each man rose in his seat and named his choice.

When the Speaker formally announced the choice of the House as, for Edward Murphy, jr., 73; for Frank Hiscock, 52; there was general applause from the Democratic side of the House.

The absentees were Messrs. Adams, Dennistonand Vandewater, all of whom were excused.

Lieut.-Gov. Cady, Dem., in the Chair, declared the vote a tie.

In the House 234 votes were cast, with 16 members absent. Hawley received 128, French, 105, Forbes, Pro., 1, and there was one pair.

To-day both houses meet in joint convention, and elect the Senator for six years from March 4.

CRUELTY TO DREDGERS.

Brutal Treatment Reported by Several Men at Easton, Md.

EASTON, Md., Jan. 18.—Notwithstanding the shipment to Baltimore by the county authorities of so many dredgers on Saturday last, there are now in jail 46 more who have sought food and shelter. They arrive at all hours of the day and night. All tell the same tales of suffering and brutal treatment.

The sheriff says that in no instance has he yet found upon them more than the thinnest clothing and not a complete pair of shoes.

The actual violence and inhuman beatings received by these helpless beings have aroused the people of the tidewater counties, and an effort will be made to have the captains punished.

A French subject, a native of Paris, worked on the Escort, a Virginia vessel, of Onancock, Accomac county. He shipped from New York city Oct. 20 last at $14 per month, and was charged $10 for his trip from that city to Baltimore.

The captain also charged him $10 for an oil skin suit. He worked on the boat from that date till Dec. 27 last, and was put ashore at Tilghman's Island without pay or food.

There is a cut three inches long in the back of his head caused, he alleges, by a blow with a shovel by the captain.

After being knocked down in this manner, he was kicked in the face and on the body.

He avers that he was also beaten with a sailing hammer by the captain whenever he was unable to turn the winders as fast as desired. He is an intelligent man about 30 years of age.

James Crosby was put ashore at Tilghman's Island in a helpless condition from brutal treatment and exposure, and reached here after dragging himself along in agony. He now has erysipelas in the face.

William Merchant of Queen Anne county, a dredger for more than nine years past, met the fate of others, and after a long walk, arrived last night nearly frozen, penniless and half starved. He had icicles a foot long hanging from his whiskers.

THE DEMPSEY TRIAL.

Prosecution's Case Rested and Defense Commenced.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 18.—Edward W. Campbell, a Western Union messenger boy, was the first witness called in the Dempsey trial yesterday afternoon. Witness testified to delivering the Cincinnati message to some man in Mr. Dempsey's office on Sept. 26.

After brief examination of F. Price, a reporter, and W. E. Griffiths, who testified that they became sick after drinking coffee obtained in the Homestead mill, District Attorney Burleigh submitted the Cincinnati telegram from Beatty to Dempsey; Dr. Wibble's statement as to the number of cases of sickness in the mill; the bill marked "O. K. Dempsey" and identified by Pat Gallagher, in evidence. He then announced that the commonwealth rested.

Thomas M. Marshall then began the opening speech for the defense. In his speech Mr. Marshall claimed that the defense would be able to meet the commonwealth with evidence that the soldiers and residents of the town of Homestead suffered from the same sickness as did those whom the physicians now say were poisoned. Mr. Marshall's arraignment of Gallagher and his companions was scathing in the extreme.

At the conclusion of Mr. Marshall's speech Dr. George T. McCord was called as the first witness for the defense. His testimony was more in the nature of an expert witness, and the defense employed the direct examination in questioning him on the action of various diseases on the system which are similar in their symptoms to poisoning.

State Engineer's Schenck's Report.

ALBANY, Jan. 18.—The annual report of State Engineer and Surveyor Schenck, submitted to the Legislature to-day, recommends an appropriation of $100,000 for the bottoming of the Erie Canal, rebuilding and repairing culverts, waste weirs and walls and requests an appropriation to allow a survey to be made of the Erie with a view of increasing the water depth to nine feet at all points, the cost of the same to be reported to the next Legislature.

NEWPORT, Jan. 18.—The inner harbor is now completely closed except to large and powerful craft and the ice is fast encroaching upon waters of the outer harbor. STILL AT LOGGERHEADS

No Change in the Assembly Situation at Topeka.

ALL EFFORTS AT COMPROMISE OFF.

The Populists Declined to Listen to the Reading of the Governor's Message—Probable that the Difficulties Will Soon be Taken Before the Supreme Court for Settlement.

TOPEKA, Jan. 18.—Once more have efforts to settle the difficulties in the House and bring about a satisfactory solution of the problems of legislation which are daily growing greater have failed, and now the two factions are seemingly further apart than ever.

The Governor's message was represented to the Legislature, but the Populist House declined to listen to the reading of the document, which would fill a page in an ordinary newspaper, and it was ordered printed.

Whether there will be any further attempts made to bring about a settlement of the present complications in the House it is impossible to say, but the prospects are certainly not the brightest.

In the meantime the members are unable to draw any salaries, and as many of them, particularly the Populists, are not the possessors of bank accounts, there is sure to be trouble with the landlords of the city before long.

Yesterday noon after the two Houses met the conference committee reported that it had been unable to agree on any recommendation for a settlement of the controversy.

This ended all efforts at compromise and the two organizations resumed work as usual.

A legislative appropriation bill will soon be pushed through the Senate and Populist Houses under suspension of the rules and sent to the Governor for his signature. Anticipating this the Republican lawyers are getting ready to bring it before the Supreme Court, which would bring the issue between the two Houses squarely up for adjudication, and the more conservative Populists admit that its decision will bring one House or the other to a standstill.

The Populists consider their caucus nomination of E. H. Snow to be State printer to be equivalent to an election. They will prevent an election and Snow, being already State printer, will thus hold over.

CAUSE OF BUTLER'S DEATH.

The Bursting of a Blood Vessel—His Brain Heavier Than Daniel Webster's.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—An autopsy on the body of Gen. Butler previous to interment showed that the cause of death was the bursting of a small blood vessel on the brain, caused by a violent fit of coughing. All the internal organs were found to be in an excellent condition, and but for the accidental cause of his death he would probably have lived for many years.

His brain weighed four ounces more than that of Daniel Webster, which was one of the largest on record.

SANFORD IN CHARGE.

Long Island City's Mayoralty Muddle Becomes Interesting.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 17.—Mayor Horatio S. Sanford's office was besieged all morning by scores of prominent citizens who came to congratulate him on his assuming the duties of Mayor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Mr. Blaine's condition is unchanged. Dr. Johnston did not return to the Blaine residence after 9 o'clock last night. He said this morning that his patient's pulse was fairly good and that he had rested quietly through the night.

GODEY'S EDITOR.

Albert Hardy, the Poet and Author.

He Has Suffered Many Months With Insomnia.

Helen Jackson Also Laid Up in New York City.

Similar Cases Reported at State Capital.

Harman Henderer of Albany Now Permanently Cured.

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 17.—Albert Hardy, the poet-author, whose "Maid of Bethany" commended him to Mr. Gladstone and Edward Everett Hale, has been appointed associate editor of Godey's Magazine, a position he will doubtless fill with great credit to this leading periodical.

Mr. Hardy has entirely recovered from his long siege of insomnia and nervous prostration, owing to the use of the wonderful remedy discovered by Prof. Phelps of Dartmouth college. Says Mr. Hardy: "After suffering for months with insomnia (sleeplessness) and nervous prostration, I was persuaded to try Paine's celery compound.

ALBERT HARDY.

"Good results were shown after the use of one bottle, and three practically cured me.

"Fully appreciating the benefits derived from the use of Paine's celery compound, I take pleasure in recommending it to others. It is not only valuable as a remedy, but delightfully pleasant as a compound."

The case of Helen Jackson, who now resides at 23 Lawrence st., is not unlike it. Both suffered from the result of an impaired nervous system, and both were speedily cured. Says Mrs. Jackson:

"My left shoulder and arm, my knee and the lower part of my right leg became very stiff and painful. I could hardly walk. My doctor came and prescribed for me. Instead of getting better I got worse. It shifted from my shoulder down to my hand. That was so swollen I could not use it for some weeks. My leg remained the same. I hobbled around for one whole month before I gave up. That was in January. One afternoon in February I felt as though I would like to lay down for a few moments. I did, but I stayed there. I did not get up again for two months. I had three doctors and they told me that I had inflammatory rheumatism. I still had pain in my left arm, but my knee was a sight. That was so swollen and so crooked and so painful. I thought it would never get straight again.

"With all the medicine I took, nothing seemed to help.

"During that time my sister recommended Paine's celery compound, and I began taking it at once. Slow but sure, it did its work. I felt the effect in two weeks time. In two weeks more I began to walk with a cane. If you could see now the way I walk about, you would never believe it was I who could not walk for two months. Paine's celery compound did it. I believe in it and recommend it to everybody.

"My husband also had terrible sharp pains all through his body which located in his left hip. He commenced at once taking Paine's celery compound and can prove the wonderful effect it had on him. The pain left him and he felt a different man altogether."

From all over the State and particularly along the Hudson where it has been almost impossible to supply the demand for Paine's celery compound come the same kind of reports. Says Harman Henderer, of 243 Third st., Albany:

"It affords me pleasure to add my testimony to the value and efficacy of Paine's celery compound.

"During the six years between 1884 and 1890 I was a constant sufferer from acute rheumatism, for many days at a time being unable to leave my bed, and at all times suffering intense pain.

"I had tried every remedy suggested, without obtaining relief, and had about given up all hope of recovery, when, a little over a year ago, at the earnest solicitation of a friend, I began to use Paine's celery compound. From the time I began taking the compound, I began to obtain relief, and for the past nine months I have not lost a day from my business, and now consider myself permanently cured."

Paine's celery compound makes people well.

Ask President Tom Nevins: He Has a Good Heart.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Some few days ago I saw an article in your paper written by a gentleman in reference to the motor men on the Plainfield electric car line, having the cars enclosed for their benefit so as to protect them from storm and cold, and I heartily join with him in the same opinion. If anybody, a resident of Plainfield, will spend the amount of an excursion ticket to Newark, he will see plenty of cars that are enclosed, and the gripman, who has the responsibility of running the car and the safety of the passengers at heart, has protection as already spoken of. Why should n't they be entitled to as much consideration as an engineer and fireman on a locomotive? I am sure they have glass windows both in front and on the sides, and I am sure that the height of speed these cars sometimes go at the responsibility is just as great.

Will you kindly look into this matter and see if something cannot be done for their benefit, and win another laurel to your wreath of doing good?

DEAR SIR:—On my return from a brief absence I have read in the Daily Press an account of a recent meeting of the North Plainfield Democratic association at which I was honored with election as president.

Will you kindly express to the members of the association my incere thanks for so marked an expression of confidence; but I must ask to be permitted to forego the honor.

Political preferment has lost whatever charm it may once have had for me. My only ambition now is to be promoted to private life. My first duties are those which I owe to my family, to my business, and to the public office which I now hold. Furthermore, as a political worker I plead incompetence.

This decision has not been made without due thought and is irrevocable.

Again thanking the members of the association, I remain, Yours truly,

WM. L. SAUNDERS.

HEART-BROKEN MRS. HARRIS.

Summoned from Plainfield to Her Doomed Son's Cell, She Causes a Pitiful Scene in the Tombs.

The despatch that came to this city yesterday to Mrs. Harris, mother of Carlyle, was from the doomed son's own hand. He had just learned of the court's decision as told in these columns yesterday.

"This looks like the beginning of the end,"—he exclaimed—"but I will not give up the fight. I do not fear death, and I would wish that this whole thing were over, were it not for my poor little mother, who knows in her heart that I am innocent. Oh! if there were only way that she could be spared this terrible shock. She has been so confident that I would get a new trial when I could show that I am not guilty of having caused Helen's death, that I fear that when she learns that the sentence of death is to be pronounced again that it will kill her. Who will carry the message to her?"

"I will do it myself"—he went on, after thinking a moment,—"and will try to give peace and courage to her aching heart."

He picked up a keeper's pencil, and with fingers that trembled violently wrote: "Come to town at once. Carlyle." The message was directed to Mrs. Harris at 9 East Fifth street, Plainfield, where she had been living for several months with relatives, as was told exclusively in these columns.

The telegram to Mrs. Harris brought her to the Tombs at 4 in the afternoon. The lines of care could be seen through the black veil that she wore, and she seemed to breath with difficulty.

THE HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

"What is the matter with Carlyle?"—she said to a keeper, in a voice that trembled with emotion.—"Is he sick?"

"No, he is all right;"—replied the man—"but I am afraid the news from the court is not to his liking."

It was the first that Mrs. Harris had heard of the decision against her son. A cry of anguish escaped from her lips, and she exclaimed:

"God help him! Carlyle! Carlyle!"

Her face assumed an aspen hue, and she clutched at the clothing at the throat and gasped, and staggered against a cell door. Then she said: "Take me to my boy"—and a keeper gently led her to the corridor where Carlyle was awaiting her. He had gained control of himself, and the despair was out of him when he met his mother. She fell upon his neck and sobbed, and the prisoners looked out through the cell doors near by and then turned their heads away.

Harris bore up well, and his voice was strong when he urged his mother to be brave, and told her that he would surely be given a new trial on the grounds that Mr. Howe had laid out for a new motion. Her grief would not be assuaged, however, and during the half-hour that she held her boy's hand, looked into his eyes and heard his glowing promises, tears of anguish rolled down her cheeks. She became calmer toward the end, and when she kissed the quivering lips of her son to leave him she said dramatically:

"God will save you, Carlyle. You are innocent and must not die."

IT WAS PITIFUL.

As she left the prison she saw a reporter, and, turning to him, she exclaimed:

"Do n't you dare say that Carlyle Harris's mother's heart is broken." She sobbed convulsively, and, after a moment, said: "I can't help crying, but please do n't say my spirit is broken. It is not. I will save my boy. I will not rest night or day until his innocence is established. If I cannot have this, Carlyle will meet his fate like a man, without fear of meeting a just God, who knows that he is innocent."

Mrs. Harris left the prison weeping. She held a consultation with Howe and Hummel and then went to the home of a friend in West 17th street, New York, where she will remain for a few days.

Mr. Howe is preparing the papers for an application for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, and believes that he will be successful. The basis of the application will be that Helen Potts Harris was a confirmed morphine eater. Mr. Howe claims to have affidavits from several persons, among them a clerk who sold her morphine frequently at Asbury Park, and also one of her intimate friends in New York city. The motion for a new trial will be argued when Harris is brought before Recorder Smyth for sentence.

SHOT A FELLOW-FARMER.

Jersey Mountaineers Excited Over a Series of Sensational Events.

The village of White House was thrown into a tumult yesterday by the report that Henry Waldron, a farmer living three miles from the village, had shot and killed a burglar who was attempting to force an entrance into his house between 11 and 12 Monday night. A PRESS reporter went to White House and found the villagers clustered around the stove in Wooden's Hotel excitedly discussing the affair. A drive of three miles through snow drifts from three to six feet deep brought the PRESS man to Waldron's, a little two-story frame house where the tragedy occurred.

The story in farmer Waldron's own words is as follows.

About 11:30 Monday night he was awakened by hearing a noise as though someone was fumbling at the kitchen door. He sleeps on the first floor in the next room to that occupied by his wife and daughter. Thinking the noise was made by the women, he did not get up until he heard the key of the back door fall on the floor. Hastily jumping up, the farmer seized his trusty double-barrelled shot gun and went through his wife's room to the kitchen, at the same time calling to the wife.

With the noise inside and the passing of a shadow across the window shade, the would-be breakers jumped back in the corner of the stoop where Waldron could hear them talking. "Kick that dog"—said one. "No"—replied the other.—"That won't do; he would make too much noise." Waldron pulled aside the curtain, and stood to one side of the window, where he could see out. In a moment one of the men made a break and jumped from the stoop to the ground. He was big and tall, and as he came into view the farmer blazed away at him.

The man fell in the snow with a groan, while his companion after returning the farmer's fire with a pistol got safely away.

According to Waldron's statement the second man was tall and thin.

The wounded man after lying in the snow for several minutes dragged himself again to the stoop and fell heavily against the door, moaning for help.

This Waldron refused to give him, and allowed the man to remain in the same position until daylight.

In defense of his conduct, Waldron says that he did not dare open the door because he did not know how many men were around the house.

When daylight came, the farmer opened the door and helped the wounded man into the house.

On being questioned, the sufferer refused to give his name or say anything about his companion in crime.

As the man was suffering frightfully, Waldron sent for Dr. John Apgar of New Germantown, and the officers of the law constable "Tag" Apgar and justice Wm. Craig of the same place.

Dr. Apgar was the first to respond, and on seeing the man recognized him as Phillip M. Hartrum, a young farmer from the Rockaway river district about three miles away towards Mountainville.

An examination of the wounded man showed that the full charge of shot had entered his groin a little to the left side, tearing the flesh and making a ragged hole as large as a man's hand.

Although Hartrum is a man of splendid physique, still the terrible wound and lying exposed as he did the whole night to the cold will cost him his life. Dr. Apgar said that he could not possibly live.

When the justice and constable arrived, Hartrum was questioned, and said that he went to Waldron's house for help; that he had been driving towards home with two horses and a wood sled and had been entangled in the snow drifts.

To bear this out, his sled and horses were found not more than two hundred yards from the house, with the horses nearly frozen to death.

Hartrum was removed to his home near New Germantown, after Waldron had made a complaint against him.

Justice C. B. Messler of White House, a little weazened old man with long gray side whiskers, told the reporter that he had seen Hartrum early Monday evening. Hartrum had gone to his office to pay a bill and was feeling bad because of a suit about to be brought against him. The bar-tender in Wooden's hotel at White House says that Hartrum left there about 8:30 in the evening and was intoxicated at the time. One of the loungers about the hotel had to go out and attend to the horses for him. Uncle Henry Dorland went part of the way with Hartrum, leaving him at the school-house, about one mile this side of where the shooting took place, and going the rest of the way on foot. Dorland says that he left Hartrum between 9 and 10 o'clock. Now just here is a period of two hours in which Hartrum with two horses and a light wood sled went less than a mile. What was he doing these two hours? The only solution to the mystery is that offered by one of the loungers in the hotel yesterday noon. It is surmised that Hartrum did not begin to feel the effects of his libations until after Dorland left him at the school-house. He then, perhaps, fell asleep, and while he was in this condition the horses plunged into the snow drifts, upsetting the sled and throwing Hartrum out. The shock may not have awakened him, but after a time the cold may, and seeing his predicament he may have started for the nearest house, which happened to be Waldron's. Then occurred the shooting. Hartrum told the officers that no one was with him but Dorland, and he got out at the school-house.

Waldron is equally as positive that there were two men. There are several strange features about the affair, one being that Hartrum would make no explanation when taken into Waldron's house; another the bullet hole in the window pane directly over where the charge of shot shattered the lower part of the sash.

If Hartrum did go to Waldron's for the purpose of robbery, he selected the wrong place, as indications show that Waldron is a very poor man, the house being tumble-down and the furniture of the meanest kind. In White House few believe that "Phil" Hartrum went there for the purpose of robbery, they claiming that he went there for help and that the shooting was most inhuman. Whether the shooting was just or not, the fact of leaving the wounded man outdoors on such a night, with the thermometer 16 below zero, was brutal and ill-becoming a human being to say the least.

All of the inhabitants of that section have been aroused for several days over the number of burglaries committed, and in every household arms were kept loaded to repel robbers.

Two of the recent robberies were carried out with a boldness which stamps the perpetrators as professionals. Indications go to prove that two at least of the robberies were accomplished by New York crooks well able to cover their tracks.

Abraham Messler lives a mile and a half out of Germantown, and is a man of known wealth. Although quite an old man, he lives alone in a small house, and when the robbers knocked at his door and asked permission to warm themselves, Mr. Messler promptly threw back the locks and bolts, and gave them admittance. Three men sprang into the room, and one sternly told Mr. Messler to deliver up at once all money and valuables he had in the house. He replied that there was none, whereupon one of the trio took some rope from his pocket, and, assisted by the other two, firmly bound and gagged the venerable gentleman. They searched his pockets, but found nothing. Then, thrusting the bound man into a corner, the burglars searched the house, and were rewarded by finding in the garret a kettle full of gold coin.

When the men returned to the kitchen Mr. Messler was fainting with pain and stiff with cold. He pleaded so earnestly for relief that they loosened the rope somewhat; but before leaving threatened the captive with death if he went out of his house that night. It was not until the next morning, therefore, that the neighbors heard of this outrage. All the men wore masks, so that Mr. Messler was unable to give any clue to their identity.

While the family of J. Runkle Fisher slept quietly this same night in their home in New Germantown, burglars, who are believed to be the same men who treated Mr. Messler so cruelly, entered the house by a rear window and made a tour of the dwelling. They took many articles of value and money amounting to $200.

LONDON CHRONICLES COUNSELOR COX'S SUCCESS.

The First Decree Under the New American Copyright Act.

(From The London Times.)

The first decrees entered under the new copyright act by which English publishers are enabled to obtain copyrights in the United States, have just been entered in the United States Circuit court for the district of New Jersey. The suits in which these decrees were made were instituted by Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, Her Majesty's printers, against the New York Recorder company, and the American Lithographic company, and had relation to a copyright in an engraving entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy". Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, who, as proprietors of the "Woodbury company", publish engravings and works of art of all descriptions, employed Charles J. Tompkins, an English engraver, to reproduce, in pure mezzotint, the painting by James Sant, R. A., entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy". This engraving was duly copyrighted in the United States. Shortly after the first artist's proofs appeared in the American market, the engraving was copied by the defendants, whereupon the plaintiffs immediately instructed their representatives, Messrs. E. and J. B. Young and Co., of Cooper Union, N. Y., to institute suits.

Rowland Cox, an eminent member of the legal profession in New York, was retained to conduct the case, and W. Hugh Spottiswoode went over to represent the firm of Eyre & Spottiswoode. The statement of complaint was based upon the allegation that the engraving had been used in the manufacture of the chromo-lithograph made and sold by the defendants, which fact was supported by numerous coincidences which were pointed out. A preliminary injunction was granted by his honor, judge Lacombe, based upon an inspection of the engraving and the chromos and expert testimony. The final decrees now entered recognize the rights of the complainants and provide for perpetual injunctions restraining the sale of the chromo-lithographs.

The painting after which this engraving was made was in the Royal Academy exhibition of 1891. The infringement complained of consisted of a lithographic reproduction issued as an "Art Supplement" to the New York Recorder of Feb. 28, 1892, under the title of "A Noble Friend".

The result of this litigation will be satisfactory to all who are interested in British art.

DR. CARROLL ON THE CENSUS.

Its Religious Aspect Presented—The Presbyterian Union Listens to a Paper from Plainfield's Expert.

As was stated in these columns yesterday, Dr. H. K. Carroll of this city was the principal speaker on "The Religious Aspect of the 'Last Census'" before the Presbyterian Union in New York Monday night. Dr. Carroll was appointed by Robert P. Porter to collect the statistics of all the religious bodies of the United States for the census of 1890. By the time it is completed it will have occupied nearly five years, requiring the service of a force of from eight to twelve clerks, and costing more than any private purse could well spare. Charles E. Buell, of North Plainfield, has been chief clerk of the department, and to his experience and direction is due the success of the new departure, in a great degree.

After explaining the aim of the census of three years ago and the method of securing the statistics, Dr. Carroll said in part:

"The first impression conveyed by the long list of separate denominations is that we have a variety in our religion. Our citizens are free to choose a residence in any one of the fifty States and Territories, and to move from one to another as often as they have a mind to. There is even a wider range for choice and change in religion. One may be a Pagan, a Jew or a Christian, or each in turn. If he is a Pagan he may worship in the numerous temples devoted to Buddha; if a Jew, he may be of the orthodox or reformed variety; if a Christian, he may select any one of 125 or 130 different kinds or join every one of them in turn. He may be six kinds of an Adventist, seven kinds of a Catholic, twelve kinds of a Mennonite, or Presbyterian; thirteen kinds of a Baptist; sixteen kinds of a Lutheran, or seventeen kinds of a Methodist. He may be a member of any one of 143 denominations, or of all in succession. If none of these suit him he still has a choice among 150 separate and independent congregations, which have no denominational name, creed, or connection. Any resident of the United States is perfectly free to make himself at home with any of these religious companies, and to stay with each as long or as short a time as he will. We sometimes speak as though there were not sufficient freedom of thought. Here are many phases of thought, and any man may pass without hindrance through them all.

"A closer scrutiny of the list, however, shows that many of these 143 denominations differ only in name. Without a single change in doctrine or polity, the seventeen Methodist bodies could be reduced to three or four; the twelve Presbyterian to three, the twelve Mennonite to two, and so on. The difference in many cases are only sectional or historical. The slavery question was the cause of not a few divisions, and matters of discipline were responsible for a large number. A further examination of the denominational list reveals the significant fact that of the 143 denominations, 75, or more than half, are very small, no one of them having more than 10,000 members. Thirty-two of the seventy-five have less than a thousand each. The denominations having as many as 25,000 and upward are forty in number. These forty denominations represent more than ninety-six per cent. of the aggregate of members.

"Among the denominations, the Roman Catholic stands first, as to communicants, having 6,228,354; the Methodist Episcopal second, with 2,240,425; the regular Baptist (colored) third, with 1,314,420; the regular Baptist (South) fourth, with 1,271,002; and the Methodist Episcopal (South) fifth, with 1,209,976.

"The grand total for all denominations is as follows: Organizations, 163,787; church edifices, 139,832, with a seating capacity of 42,682,049; halls, school-houses and private houses occupied as places of worship, 23,453; value of church property (including only church edifices and their sites and furniture), $680,758,756; communicants or members 20,488,797. Of the total of communicants considerably more than one-third are found in the five States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Massachusetts, in the order named.

"Comparing the census returns of 1890 with such statistics as can be got from denominational sources, I find that in the decade the Protestant Episcopal church has a net gain of 165,000 members, or 48 per cent; the Congregational of 128,000, or 33 per cent; the regular Baptists, North, South and colored, of 868,000, or 37 per cent: the Lutherans, all branches, of 487,000, or 68 per cent; the Presbyterians, all branches, of 365,000, or 39 per cent; the Methodist Episcopal, of 522,000, or 30 per cent; the Methodist Episcopal South, of 488,000, or 57 per cent. These denominations represented in 1890 an aggregate of 10,216,000 communicants, against 7,202,000 in 1880, showing a net gain in the ten years of 3,014,000, or nearly 42 per cent. As the growth of the population of the country in the same period was less than 25 per cent, these churches have gained 17 per cent in excess of the increase of the population."

After Dr. Carroll's address, Scott Foster, who presided, called upon Dr. H. M. Field, of The Evangelist; Dr. John Hall and Dr. G. W. F. Birch, for brief speeches. Refreshments were then served.

NEW YORK BAR ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting at Albany—The Opening Addresses.

ALBANY, Jan. 18.—The opening meeting of the State Bar Association was held in the Assembly Chamber last night.

The most distinguished audience that ever graced the chamber was present, among them being Gov. Flower, the Judges of the Court of Appeals, members of the Legislature and a large number of prominent members of the State Bar.

Alton B. Parker of Kingston, Justice of the Supreme Court, made an address on "A Phase of Law Reform." Justice Parker pointed out one of the causes for the continual tinkering of the codes and suggested a way to restrict this evil to the minimum.

In his experience on the Bench he has seen how many lawyers who are beaten in the courts by the law rather than the facts go to the Legislature seeking to amendments to the codes remedies they fail to get in the provisions as they stand. Closer watch upon this class of legislation was urged by the learned Judge, and the Bar Association's Committee on Law Reform was pricked up to discharge its duty more effectually in this regard.

The address was closely listened to. After a few musical selections Hon. David J. Brewer was introduced, and he delivered a masterly address, taking for his subject "Permanence of Tenure of Judicial Office and Its Relation to the Perils of Popular Government."

James C. Carter, F. R. Coudert, Wm. B. Hornblower, Leslie W. Russell, and W. Bourke Cockran are among those who are to discuss the judiciary article of the Constitution, continuing, apparently, the discussion that article was given by the Constitution Commission of 1890.

Mr. Carter and Mr. Coudert are to speak upon the Court of Appeals, and the best methods for preventing that last resort of litigants from becoming clogged up, as it has often been since its reorganization in 1872.

Mr. Russell, Mr. F. R. Gilbert, and Mr. Hornblower will pay their respects to the Supreme Court, and Mr. Cockran and Mr. Bartlett will speak on the general provisions of the judiciary article. These papers will be read at the business meeting to-day in the Albany Common Council Chamber.

Won't Let The Whale Sink.

A great many persons have learned to swim with cork or inflated air-bags, or pieces of wood under their arms to keep them from sinking, but the fishermen of eastern Siberia know a trick of the same sort which they practice on a large scale. When a whale appears in the vicinity of their coasts a small fleet of canoes is sent out to surround him, and at a signal twenty or thirty harpoons are hurled into him at once. Attached to the harpoon lines are reindeer-skins blown full of air, so that when the whale attempts to dive and escape, he is speedily buoyed up to the surface. Then the natives are ready for him with another shower of spears, and he is soon dispatched and towed to the shore.

TYRE THEN AND NOW.

Memories of a Horseback Journey Through Palestine.

A Morning Ride Along the Coast of the Mediterranean—The Seat of Hiram, Friend of David and Solomon—Spurious Antiques.

[Special Letter.]

You may remember that our last trip was from Beirut to Sidon. We must not leave Sidon without visiting the magnificent groves of orange and lemon orchards for which this place is famous. Our ride in the early morning amid the heavy fragrance of the blossoms will not soon be forgotten. A young Syrian from Mr. Ford's mission school accompanied us as guide. We met a native woman carrying a wealth of splendid roses. Our guide secured a beautiful bud for each of us for our buttonholes. Leaving the rare old city of Sidon, with its wonderful memories, our route lay along the coast. We were to make Tyre by night. Our road was very difficult, most of the way over stones, part of the time along the beach, where we enjoyed a gallop now and then. Wild flowers abounded in great variety and beauty. We clambered over rocky summits and along the edge of steep precipices, down which we looked upon the deep blue water rolling in among the rocks. We forded four rivers, which were sometimes up to the horses' bellies—the Senik, the Zaherani, the Adassije, the Akbije and the Karamije or Litany.

The latter is, next to the Jordan, the longest river in Palestine, rising far up in the Lebanon mountains. At Abul-Aswad we lunched by the side of a picturesque ruin, the single arch of a stone bridge of Roman times. These Roman ruins are very frequent in Palestine; many of them are still serviceable, though dilapidated. The old Roman roads are still seen cut into the solid rock over the mountains. In sight of our luncheon ground, about three miles away, perched on the slope of a hill, we could see the village of Sarafaud, the old Sarepta of Scripture, celebrated as the residence of the widow whom the prophet Elijah visited and whose barrel of meal and cruse of oil so wonderfully held out. Beyond Sarepta, on the shore at Adlun, we discovered large square holes cut in the rocks at a great height. These are ancient Phœnician caves, used doubtless for burial purposes. After fording the Litany, whose rushing waters nearly swept down Filippo with our pots and kettles, we had a splendid beach before us, and made a fine run until we reached the historic city of Tyre, jutting out into the sea. The grave group of turbaned Moslems who sat smoking their narghilyehs at the entrance of the city looked up with amazement as we came dashing along. A fine-faced young Syrian, who spoke excellent English, met us and volunteered to show us the city. We were at first shy of his services, knowing that such "services" usually meant an extortionate demand for "backsheesh."

He was a splendid fellow in appearance, elegantly though simply dressed, with amiable face and excellent manners. He proved himself a true gentleman. Under his guidance, after giving over the horses to Abdur, we surveyed the ancient city. Can it be possible that we are really in Tyre—on the spot made memorable in so much remarkable history? The city juts out into the sea. Anciently seaward was an island connected with the mainland by a bridge. Alexander filled up the space and united the island with the mainland. Here was the manufacture of the ancient purple from the munex shells washed up by the sea. Here was the seat of "Hiram, king of Tyre," the friend of David and Solomon, who sent the great cedar logs for the temple down by sea to Joppa. Extending several miles along the shore and, perhaps, two miles inland, with her ships covering the Mediterranean, her merchant princes renowned throughout the Orient, her colonies at Cadiz, Carthage and other points rivaling the mother city, ancient Tyre was, indeed, a splendid center of Phœnician culture.

In the height of her prosperity the prophet's "woe" was uttered against her. Ezekiel's description of the glory of the city is very striking: "O thou that dwellest at the entry of the sea, which art the merchant of the peoples unto many isles—thy borders are in the heart of the seas; thy builders have perfected thy beauty; they have made all thy planks of fir trees from Senir; they have taken cedars from Lebanon to make a mast for thee. Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars; they have made thy benches of ivory inlaid in box wood from the isles of Kittim. Of fine linen with broidered work from Egypt was thy sail, that it might be to thee for an ensign; blue and purple from the isles of Elishah was thine awning." All her glory was to fade—kings were to come up against her, to spoil her merchandise and break down her walls. She was to become a bare rock on which fishermen would spread their nets. Wonderfully has the prophesy been fulfilled. Nebuchadnezzar with his chariots and horses overthrew her. Alexander with his conquering might mastered her. Her glorious commerce declined. And now as we walked by the sea there could be seen in the water covered with seaweed many splendid granite columns, sometimes groups of fifteen, here and there single ones, relics of her former magnificence. I picked up delicate bits of mosaic where the sea had undermined what had been the floors of ancient houses.

I watched a fisherman casting his net and afterwards spreading it upon the rock. "There," said our Tyrian friend, "you see for yourself the fulfillment of prophecy, the fisherman spreading his net upon the rock on which Tyre stood." Further inland are the ruins of the great church of St. John, where were placed the remains of Frederic Barbarossa and of the great Origen. In the midst of dirt and filth lay several splendid columns and pilasters of red granite. About three miles inland among wild, rocky hills is a single gray sarcophagus hollowed out so as just to admit a body. It rests upon a rude pedestal of upright unhewn stones. This is called by the natives "Kabr Hiram," or the tomb of Hiram. Another monument of great antiquity is the celebrated reservoir south of Tyre, called Ras-el-Ain, "the head of the spring." This is the spot to which medieval tradition attached the visit of Christ to Tyre. He rested on a large rock and sent Peter and John to bring him some water thence, which He drank, and blessed the beautiful spot whence it came.

Walking among the prostrate columns of the seashore sunset overtook us. Rarely is it given to mortals to behold a more gorgeous sight than that which greeted our eyes in the trailing glories of the declining sun, as earth, sea and sky were bathed in the purple radiance of this glorious evening hour. Accompanying us on our walk was a clergyman from London and a Tyrian merchant. The latter spoke French very well. He assured me that he was coming to the world's fair at Chicago and was going to bring with him many "antiques" from Syria.

We were quartered at the private residence of a Greek named Thomas. We found that our guide had prepared a splendid dinner for us. After dinner came in several vendors of coins and trinkets. Tourists are the very bread of many of these people. There is said to be a factory of "antiques" here in Tyre to supply the market, and so skillful are the imitations that it is difficult for any except an expert to detect the fraud.

In some cases rich treasure has been found as at Sidon a few years ago. This excited the natives to a high pitch, so that many betook themselves to digging in hopes of making a similar find. Many spend all their time, using all their magical incantation to discover if possible the hiding place of the gold which will suddenly enrich them. Many coins of the time of Alexander, one of the later Roman period, may be purchased for from ten to fifty cents apiece.

At six o'clock the next morning, after a sound sleep on the floor in the "house of Thomas," we were in the saddle and off for a forty-mile ride to Mount Carmel over a rocky road. The first half of the road was exceedingly difficult. We made two remarkable climbs—one at Ras-el-Abjud and the other at Ras-en-Nakura. The Arabic word "Ras" signifies headland. These two headlands were rocky promontories of limestone rising ruggedly and steep about a thousand feet above the sea. The first is called the ladder of Tyre. Here you can see the Roman road cut in the rock. Over this road traveled the Roman armies when they took the coast route. Passing over Ras-en-Nakura a wonderful panorama lay before us—the entire stretch of the coast, with Mount Carmel standing out boldly in the distance, and the city of Accho or Acre, with its gleaming white minarets, midway. We lunched by the side of a little stream by the village of El Bassa. Here we had our first real quarrel with Abdur, the Arab. He refused to feed the horses—said he had no barley. He swore all the Arabic oaths in his repertory but finally produced the grain and sullenly fed the animals. The mukarl, or horseman, must be watched or he will starve the horses to put the money in his pocket. At two o'clock in the afternoon we reached Acre, with its moats and bastions, reminders of the wonderful history of this city in the wars of the Crusades and the Syrian campaign of Napoleon. No city on the coast has had such a long line of sieges and surrenders. The afternoon was beautiful and the lovely green outside the city presented a picturesque sight with its turbaned and white-robed Moslems.

AMOS W. PATTEN.

Legal Lore.

John Jones recently passed his examination and is now a member of the New York bar. His strong card is in getting the truth out of witnesses. The following is a sample of his system of cross-examination.

"Are you a married man?"

"No sir; I am a bachelor."

"Will you please tell this court and jury how long you have been a bachelor, and what were the circumstances that induced you to become one?"—Texas Siftings.

Fatal Defect in His Character.

"Yes, sir," said the tough with the battered hat, wiping his nose with the back of his hand. "I wanst had the chance to nab a clean $25,000 from an express comp'ny. I could 'a' took it an' got away, too. An' I didn't do it."

"Wot ailed you, Bill?" asked the hard citizen with the red comforter round his neck. "Wy didn't you swipe it an' light out?"

"I hadn't the moral courage, Jake; I hadn't the moral courage!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Reversible Overcoat.

Gus De Smith—I say, Jones, your overcoat looks shabby. Why don't you get a new one?

Jones—Mose Schaumburg has shut down on my credit.

"Take it to a tailor and have it turned."

DEATHS FROM FREEZING

Many Have Perished in the Extreme Cold.

GREAT SUFFERING IN CANADA.

The Weather There Is Unprecedentedly Severe—Many Rivers Ice Packed—A Big Snow Storm in the Southern States—Fears of a Water Famine at Several Points.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Intensely cold weather is general throughout the Middle, Northern, Northwestern States, Canada and Manitoba, and it has been attended by much loss of life. Seldom, if ever, have so many fatalities by freezing been recorded within twenty-four hours as are shown to-day. And there is no immediate prospect of a rise in the temperature. Reports received from over one hundred sections of the country tell most incredible tales of suffering amid snow and ice with the thermometer ranging from 5 to 50 degrees below zero.

At Nanticoke, Pa., seven men went fishing on a lake near that place on Tuesday. As ice had not formed they embarked in frail canoes, carrying with them only light lunches. During the night the temperature suddenly fell to zero, and the lake was converted into an icy expanse. As the men did not return rescuing parties set out in search of them.

To-day, as a result of their efforts, the report comes that all the fishermen perished in the frigidity of the night, nearly every one having been found frozen stiff in their canoes.

They had become ice-locked about half a mile from shore, and, benumbed with cold, were unable to escape and were slowly frozen to death.

Two men, who had started to walk to land before the ice was strong enough to bear their weight, broke through and were drowned.

Three tramps who sought shelter under a shed at Princess Ann, Md., last night, were found there this morning frozen stiff in their tattered garments. Their names have not been learned.

From Hanes Valley, Pa., an unproductive region, remote from Huntington, comes a terrible story of destitution in the family of Benjamin Lear.

Two months ago Lear, who is an indolent, improvident fellow, abandoned his family, consisting of a wife and two children, the elder of whom was but 19 months old. His wife, a young woman of weak intellect, was unable to provide for the children, nor did she bring their starving condition to the attention of the proper authorities.

Tuesday the elder child died of starvation, and in its dreadful sufferings for food it had bitten deeply into the flesh on its hands and arms.

Yesterday the baby, 6 months old, also died, and when a neighbor who called examined the body it was learned that the baby, in its desperation for nourishment, had sucked the blood from its finger tips. The children's bodies were frozen stiff when discovered.

VERY COLD IN EUROPE.

Rivers Frozen Up—Many Deaths From Exposure.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Despatches from the Continent state that the cold has not abated. The Rhine is frozen from Germesheim to Bingen. The Main and Moselle are partially frozen. The Neckar is frozen from source to mouth.

The supply of fresh vegetables in Berlin was cut off yesterday. Several deaths of wayfarers near Thorn is reported.

Many deaths from exposure have occurred in all parts of France. Deputy Descaus was snowbound while traveling by rail near Amiens. The locomotive left the train to get assistance. The carriages were unheated and Deputy Descaus froze to death.

The steamships overdue at Swedish ports from London and Hull have arrived. At Ritofjord the passengers were obliged to leave the steamers, walk over miles of ice to Langedrieg, and proceed thence on sledges to Gothenburg.

Still Icebound at City Island.

CITY ISLAND, Jan. 19.—The Sound still presents the same appearance—one solid mass of ice as far as can be seen from this station. The schooners off Captain's Island and Sands' Point have not been able to make any progress. Several tugs have left bound westward to make an attempt to tow some of the icebound vessels to this harbor.

Ohio River Frozen Solidly.

BELLAIRE, O., Jan. 19.—For the first time in 13 years the thermometer at this point made a descent to 18 below zero, and the Ohio river is frozen over so solidly that heavy teams are crossing on the ice. Should a heavy rain start the ice and snow into motion, great danger is feared for the steamboats in the harbor.

Threatened With a Water Famine.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 19.—A water famine is threatened here. There is but little water in the two reservoirs and the schools are closed. There is not enough water to supply boilers of heating apparatus. A water famine is also imminent at Ballston. Notice has been issued warning people not to waste water.

Missing Gunners Safe.

EGG HARBOR, N. J., Jan. 19.—Horace Cavaleer and Elias Conover, of Port Republic, who were reported frozen while out in their yacht on a gunning trip have turned up all right. They were fast in the ice with their yacht for two weeks at the mouth of Mott's Creek, in Crassy Bay.

Water Famine Feared in Vermont.

BARRE, Vt., Jan. 19.—The severe cold weather may cause a water famine in this section unless there is a thaw or rain soon. The river is now almost solid ice. Water is low in the reservoir of the Barre Water company, and polishing mills have been asked to be saving of water.

Tramp Steamer Ashore.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Jan. 19.—A tramp steamer is aground on the outer end of Cape May Point Shoal. Life-saving crews are making efforts to board her through openings in the heavy ice. She is in a dangerous position.

Couldn't Make Port at Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The steamer Alfred Dumois, from Gibara with fruit, just arrived here, was bound to Philadelphia, but owing to heavy ice at the Delaware, was obliged to bear up for this port.

BUSINESS STOPPED IN ATLANTA.

The Snow Storm Causes Many Residents to Take a Holiday.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 19.—Not in 30 years or more has Atlanta had such days as these. The city woke yesterday to find two inches of snow on the ground, and snow still falling rapidly. By 10 o'clock it was so heavy that all the electric car lines were compelled to suspend operations. Shortly afterwards the other lines stopped, and a holiday spirit seized the entire city.

Business was practically suspended. Everybody indulged in snowballing, and everybody who could improvise a sleigh of any kind took a hand in that sport so unusual here.

The figures of the oldest inhabitant show that not since 1855 has Atlanta known such a snow storm. It still continues.

Realizing that the unusual weather meant suffering to many of Atlanta's poor President J. G. Oglesby, of the Commercial Club, issued a call for a citizens' meeting to take action.

Last night the Chamber of Commerce was crowded with representative men, and in a few minutes over $5,000 was subscribed in money, and many contributions of coal, wood, etc., were made.

Steps were at once taken to relieve all cases of suffering.

NIAGARA'S ICE GORGE.

It Makes a Sudden Move and Considerable Damage Is Done.

LEWISTON, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The great ice jam on the lower Niagara River made another move last night.

On this side the ice moved down 100 feet and again packed. Considerable damage was done in a few minutes.

William Waggoner's stairway from the hotel to the dock was carried away. Not one of the boathouses is left.

Collard's storehouse on the Niagara Navigation company's dock is crushed. Other damage is reported down the river on the Queenstown side.

The storehouse on the wharf which had already withstood one siege was carried away by the ice and wrecked in the Willows 100 feet away.

SUFFERING IN CANADA.

The Continuous Cold Weather Causing Great Distress—Many Frozen to Death.

QUEBEC, Jan. 19.—Never within the memory of man has Canada suffered so continuously from intense cold weather as during the last month. There has only been one break in the intense cold for the last four weeks and that was for two days.

For 26 days with the exception just made, the thermometer has been down below zero and for the most of the time it has registered from five to twenty degrees below.

The suffering among the poor in all parts of the country is great. Numbers of people have been frozen to death some, including a man at Levis, in their beds.

Many of the streams are frozen solid to the bottom of their beds.

Water Scarce at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 19.—If the present cold weather continues very much longer St. Louis will be threatened with a water famine equal to that which caused so much suffering and inconvenience in 1884, when the supply of water in the reservoirs was for some hours completely exhausted.

Snowballing in Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 19.—Snow began falling here at 10 o'clock a. m. and continued steadily three hours. The ground is covered to a depth of an inch and a half. The streets are full of snowballers. Nothing like it has been known in Charleston for forty years.

HIS HEAD ALMOST TORN OFF.

Horrible Scene at the Execution of McEwan at Glasgow.

GLASGOW, Jan. 19.—A horrible scene occurred at the execution of William McEwan for the murder of a woman at West Pollokshiels. McEwan, after committing the crime, had attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat. It was thought he would die from the effect of the wound, but the doctors succeeded in saving him for the gallows, although his neck was left in a very weak condition.

When he was brought out for execution the mark of the self-inflicted wound could plainly be seen.

He walked without apparent fear to the gallows and the rope was adjusted. When the bolt was drawn an awful spectacle was witnessed, which caused even the experienced prison officials to turn pale. The man's head was nearly torn off, and blood gushed out over his body and the gallows.

Death was instantaneous.

Much indignation is expressed against the authorities for not having taken precautions against such an occurrence.

Charged With Murder.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Jan. 19.—Lewis M. Bryan, aged 33 years, is under arrest, charged with the murder of Farmer Jacob Detwiler, whose dead body was found near his home on Dec. 9. Bryan does not bear a good reputation. He has been suspected of the murder, but until yesterday the authorities had not sufficient evidence to warrant his arrest. He was committed for a hearing on Jan. 26.

Denounces Thompson's Government.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—La Patrie, the leading French Liberal paper of this city, denounces Sir John Thompson's government, which it charges with attempting to suppress the French Canadian element.

Cadet James Acquitted.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19.—Naval Cadet Leland F. James, second class, and appointed from South Carolina, has been acquitted after trial of the charge of hazing. Cadet Fellows is still on trial.

DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Dempsey's Case May Go to the Jury To-day.

TESTIMONY OF THE K. OF L. LEADER.

He Denies in Positive Terms the Stories of Gallagher and Davidson—Nearly Fainted on the Stand—Why He Kept Spies in the Homestead Mill.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 19.—The case against District Master Workman Hugh Dempsey, who is charged with poisoning non-union workmen at Homestead, will likely go to the jury this afternoon.

The defense yesterday examined a large number of witnesses to prove that sickness in the mill was not unusual. Many workmen testified that previous to the strike they had suffered from illness the symptoms of which were similar to those which killed some of the non-union men.

At the afternoon session of court, after several important witnesses had been examined, the defendant, Hugh F. Dempsey, was called. He said:

"I am District Master Workman of D. A. No. 3, K. of L. The K. of L. had nothing to do with the Homestead strike; the Amalgamated Association had charge of that. I first saw Gallagher in my office; he was brought there by Beatty; Beatty said they were men who were to go to Homestead, get work and report to me how things were running in the mill; nothing was said about putting powder in food; did not employ them for that purpose.

"I told them that I had four men in the mill at the time, but that I wanted more reports so I could by statistics show that the Carnegie company was not succeeding with non-union men. Gallagher would come down two or three times a week.

"I promised them compensation, but told them to get work in the mill so that the company would have to pay them; never gave Gallagher any powder; did not say I wanted to give these men any thing to weaken them."

Mr. Dempsey denied in toto the story told by Gallagher and Davidson about the arrangements to dose the non-union men at Homestead.

Much stir was created in the court room during Mr. Dempsey's cross-examination by his great agitation. He became much exhausted, and fears were entertained that he would faint. This produced a somewhat unfavorable impression. When asked why he had hired men to spy for him in the Homestead mill, he replied:

"Because I got a telegram from New York asking me to learn the condition of affairs in the mill, as they were trying to arrange a settlement with Andrew Carnegie."

As the case now stands, it seems to hinge on a question of truth between Dempsey and Gallagher and Davidson.

THE KHEDIVE BACKS DOWN.

He Will Not Act Against England's Consent Before Changing Ministers.

CAIRO, Jan. 19.—The flurry in Egyptian political affairs has ended in the complete withdrawal of the Khedive from the position taken by him heretofore, unless some untoward event occurs, Great Britain will have all to say as to who shall fill the Egyptian Cabinet offices.

Tuesday the Khedive was handed an ultimatum from the British government demanding the dismissal of the newly appointed Ministry within twenty-four hours.

Upon the expiration of that time Lord Cromer, British Minister, went to the Abdin Palace and demanded the decision of the Khedive.

The Khedive, who had a long conference with Nubar Pasha and Riaz Pasha, expressed regret that his selection of a Ministry had not proved to the liking of Great Britain, and pointed out that Fakhri Pasha, the newly appointed president of the council, had, at his request, resigned his position.

The Khedive offered to appoint in his stead Riaz Pasha, who was formerly at the head of the Egyptian Ministry, and who is known to be friendly to British interests.

Lord Cromer assented, and secured from the Khedive an understanding that hereafter he would make no alteration in the Ministry without consulting Great Britain.

THE READING COMBINATION.

Special Committee of the House Makes Its Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The unanimous report of the special committee of the House which investigated the Reading anthracite coal combination was submitted to the House by Representative Coombs, of Brooklyn, chairman of the sub-committee.

It recommends as a means of protecting independent coal operators against discrimination on the part of the coal producing and transportation companies that the Interstate Commerce law be amended to meet the effect of the Gresham and Counselman decisions, and that the long and short haul clause be made applicable to railroads which form connecting lines.

The committee is not prepared to give an opinion as to the liability of the roads investigated to punishment under the provisions of the Anti-Trust law, but feel justified in saying that the facts disclosed merit the full consideration of law officers of the government.

THE MEVS CASE.

Hayti Will Probably Make Reparation and Apology.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Jan. 19.—There will probably be an amicable settlement of the case of Frederick Mevs, the American merchant, who was thrown into prison on a trumped up charge that he was a smuggler.

Mr. Mevs was kept in prison 20 days, and then released. The United States government made a demand for reparation and apology.

Judging from the developments of the past few days, Hayti has changed front, and is ready to comply with these demands.

This is no doubt due to the return of the United States cruiser Atlanta, and United States Minister Durham, who arrived here from San Domingo yesterday.

One of the Haytien generals was killed in the fight at l'Arbre de Beau.

DISCOVERED IN CUBA.

Insane Millionaire Beckwith Found—To be Brought Back to Litchfield.

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 19.—Arthur Beckwith, aged 45, of Harlem, N. Y., millionaire, who escaped from Buell's sanitarium at Litchfield on Oct. 10, has been found in Cuba.

A private despatch says he will be brought back to Litchfield. Beckwith is the man who lost his reason through a shock received by being thrown out in a runaway in Harlem several weeks ago.

Since his escape his friends have spent thousands of dollars searching for him.

Charges Against Brooklyn Firemen.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Mayor Boody has received from the Tariff Association of the New York Fire Underwriters a letter formulating the charges made by them against the Brooklyn Fire Department. In brief the charges allege gross inefficiency and neglect of duty on the part of the Fire Department. Mayor Boody said that he would at once take steps toward investigation of the charges.

It will be remembered that President and Mrs. Cleveland spent their honeymoon at Deer Park.

Illinois Senate Favors Sunday Opening.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 19.—The Illinois Senate has placed itself on record in favor of opening the World's Fair on Sundays by passing a resolution by a vote of 29 to 19 requesting the Illinois delegation in Congress to use their influence toward securing a modification of the Sunday closing clause.

THE DEAD EX-PRESIDENT

Messages of Condolence From Many High in Authority.

SIMPLE FUNERAL RITES TO-MORROW

Governor McKinley and the Ohio Legislature Will Attend in a Body—Mr. Cleveland to be Present—President Harrison Cannot Go, But Several Cabinet Members Will be in Attendance.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 19.—The entire city is in mourning and flags are at half mast, testifying to the regard in which ex-President Hayes was held. The entire arrangements for the funeral have not yet been decided upon. The arrangements have been placed temporarily in the hands of Col. H. S. Buckland of this city.

The funeral services will be very simple, at the mansion on Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The services will be similar in nature to those on the occasion of the funeral of Mrs. Hayes.

Rev. J. N. Bashford, President of Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, will conduct the services and it is probable that the local G. A. R. may take part.

A large number of telegrams are pouring in upon the members of the bereaved family. Among them are messages of condolence from the President, Secretary Foster and also from the living members of the Hayes Cabinet during his administration and the State officers of Ohio. The members of the Hayes Cabinet who sent messages are Wm. M. Evarts, John Sherman, Alexander Ramsey, Nathan Goff, R. W. Thompson, D. M. Key and Carl Schurz.

Gov. McKinley has ordered the Sixteenth Regiment, one troop of cavalry and one battery to proceed to Fremont to act as a military escort at the funeral. The State Legislature will adjourn and attend in a body and all the State officers will be present.

A special train will also bring the Cleveland Grays. Many of the members of Gen. Hayes' old regiment, the Twenty-second Ohio, are expected to be present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Coming so soon after the sudden death of Gen. Butler, and the sad ending of Senator Kenna, the demise of ex-President Hayes created something of a shock to people in official life here, and many incidents are recalled of the last visit of the ex-President to Washington in September during the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Flags are flying at half-mast to-day on all public buildings in Washington. President Harrison received the news of his predecessor's death with considerable surprise and great grief.

The Senate and House adjourned immediately after assembling, out of respect.

The Executive Order.

At a special meeting of the Cabinet the following Executive order was drafted and adopted:

To the people of the United States:

The death of Rutherford B. Hayes, who was president of the United States from March 4, 1877, to March 4, 1881, at his home in Fremont, Ohio, is an event the announcement of which will be received with very general and very sincere sorrow.

His public service extended over many years and over a wide range of official duty. He was a patriotic citizen, a lover of the flag and of our free institutions, an industrious and conscientious civil officer, a soldier of dauntless courage, a loyal comrade and friend, a sympathetic and helpful neighbor and the honored head of a Christian home. He has steadily grown in the public esteem and the impartial historian will not fail to recognize the conscientiousness, the manliness, and the courage that so strongly characterized his whole public career.

As an expression of the public sorrow, it is ordered that the Executive Mansion and the several executive departments at Washington be draped in mourning and the flags thereon placed at half staff for a period of 30 days, and that on the day of the funeral all public business in the departments be suspended, and that suitable military and naval honors under the orders of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy be rendered on that day.

BENJ. HARRISON.

The President expressed his regret that he would not be able to attend the funeral in person, but expressed a wish that he should be represented by some of his official associates. It was thereupon determined that Secretary Charles Foster, of the Treasury, Secretary Rusk, Secretary Noble, and Postmaster-General Wanamaker should proceed to Fremont as the representatives of the President.

HIS ASSOCIATIONS IN CLEVELAND.

Business and Social Affairs Made Him a Familiar Figure There.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 19.—The late ex-President Hayes was a familiar figure in Cleveland, coming to town very frequently to visit his son, Webb. C. Hayes, who is treasurer of the National Carbon Company, and who lives in this city.

He was simple and unostentatious in his habits, and it seemed strange that the genial old gentleman who passed unnoticed in the street save by acquaintances, and who might easily have been taken for some well-to-do farmer, had ruled the greatest nation on earth for four years.

His visits to Cleveland were often of a business nature. He was a member of the Garfield Monument Committee, a member of the Western Reserve Historical Society, of the Loyal Legion, and other associations. He was in Cleveland Saturday when attacked by the disease which resulted in his death.

Gen. Hayes' last public appearance in this city was at the banquet of the Kenyon Alumni Association at the Stillman, on the evening of Dec. 26.

He presided at the banquet and was elected president of the association. He made quite a long speech and was in fine health and spirits.

Republican Caucus Postponed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Republican Senate caucus called to meet at Senator Sherman's house has been indefinitely postponed, for the reason that the mental features of such a caucus would not be proper at a time marked by such a sad event as the death of ex-President Hayes, and particularly in Senator Sherman's house.

Mr. Cleveland to be at the Funeral.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—President-elect Cleveland left this morning at 10:30 o'clock on the Central railroad to attend the funeral of ex-President Hayes.

"40 ORANGE ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y., February 11, 1890.

"I have used ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS for some years for myself and family, and, as far as able, for the many sufferers who come to us for assistance, and have found them a genuine relief for most of the aches and pains which flesh is heir to. I have used ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS for all kind of lameness and acute pain, and, by frequent experiments, find that they can control many cases not noticed in your circulars.

"The above is the only testimonial I have ever given in favor of any plaster, and if my name has been used to recommend any other it is without my authority or sanction."

MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

Albert Has a Sharp Mother-in-Law.

Mrs. Edward C. Wilson, who had her husband locked up again yesterday for abusing her, and whose son Albert was accused of non-support of his family, staunchly defends the son, and says that he is the victim of too much mother-in-law. She explains that the young man has six in the family, including his wife's mother and her 14-year-old boy. It is alleged that the mother-in-law made trouble because she found that Albert did not bring home his whole week's wages. A policeman visited the house and found that there was plenty to eat, and that Albert was a much better provider than the mother-in-law represented.

Killed a "Mad" Dog with a Fence Picket.

Canine detective Frisbie says he killed a mad dog this morning, thereby saving the lives of the entire populace. He first saw the dog at the corner of Second street and Park avenue. It was snapping at the sleighs on the road, and he followed it about till he caught up to it on Fourth street. There he tried to capture it, but it tried to bite a woman and he laid it out stiff and dead with a picket which he wrenched off a convenient fence. He says he will ship the carcass to New York to Dr. Gibier for examination in the Pasteur Institute.

A HOME WEDDING.

Justice Nash's Daughter Becomes Mrs. Leland.

The marriage of Miss H. Virginia Nash, daughter of Justice Vincent Nash, and Clarence H. Leland, at 22 Prospect avenue, last evening at 8, was one of the happiest of home weddings this city ever saw. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends and a room full of presents.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Kennedy Newell. Stephenson, the caterer, served a fine supper, and O'Reilly led the music to which all danced till morning. Mr. and Mrs. Leland left to-day for a visit to his old home at Worcester, Mass., but they will make their permanent residence here, where the groom is connected with the Pond Machine Tool company.

He'll Keep Sober in Plainfield To-day.

"Yellow Wood" and "Black Horse", are two members of a tribe of Sioux Indians with Dr. Carver's Scout Company which appears here at Music Hall, this evening. Last week they went on a regular white man's "tear", in New York city. After "Black Horse" had tried to scalp his wife and thrown a butcher knife at the landlord of the hotel with whom he was stopping, he was interviewed by a burly policeman. Of course "Black Horse" suffered from the effects of the interview, and at the present writing needs no temperance lectures to keep him sober. He reverences a policeman, for he believes that he is a soldier, and therefore, under the protection of the "Great Father" at Washington. He cannot speak a word of English, but the interpreter says that after he returned home he used some very choice Sioux language as to the effects of fire water and what would become of the rest of the tribe if they imbibed it in a civilized country.

Harris Says He Still Hopes.

In answer to a note sent yesterday by a reporter to Carlyle W. Harris in his cell in the Tombs, asking if he wished to make any statement, he replied:

"Nothing new to say. I am innocent, and still brave, I hope."

But Harris has little reason to hope. Lawyer Howe said yesterday that he could do nothing until Monday, when he would ask Recorder Smyth to grant a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence. He said that the affidavits to support the request were being made.

Mrs. Harris spent nearly an hour with her son yesterday.

This Should be Remedied.

The people of East Third street are very much vexed over the way that the street crossing is left at the corner of East Third and Church streets. The road has been cut down and it leaves a flag stone on each side compelling a high step to get up to the sidewalk. Lately the snow has been packed and frozen so that it is impossible to get down without falling, and pedestrians have to take to the road.

Incendiary Fire at Stirling.

An incendiary fire occurred at Stirling Tuesday night, when an unoccupied house belonging to Wm. Oliver was set on fire by some evil-disposed person. The house was situated in the centre of the little town, and endangered houses in the close proximity, but the citizens formed a brigade and by the use of buckets of water and snow the fire was prevented from spreading. Many of the citizens were frost bitten in the zero weather. The loss is about $2,000, partly insured.

Capt. Hand Makes the Children Happy.

On Monday afternoon Capt. Hand took the entire family of the Children's Home out for a sleigh ride. After driving for an hour or two he carried the party to his own house and treated them to a generous supper of hot chocolate, oranges, nuts and cakes. The children played games till 8, when Capt. Hand drove the happy party back home. All the boys and girls will vote every time for Capt. Hand.

TAX-PAYER TO THE FORE.

He Objects to the City Clerk Being Relieved of His Duty at the Expense of the People.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I observe that there is an increased tendency to enlarge taxation in our city. No doubt this will continue so long as a certain ring runs and controls most of the offices of our city. There are a set of men that calculate to get their living out of the public. They hold their private meetings and make up their slate, and then pull together for the election of their ticket. Officers have held their offices since the birth of the city, whether capable and honest or not. Every now and then they demand an increase of their salary, and they combine their influence to get it done. The city clerk asks for an assistant, at a salary of $600 a year. This may be necessary, until we can have a man appointed capable to do the work correctly. What is the use of having men appointed that are not capable of doing this business alone? We have men capable outside the old ring, and who would be glad to do it without the idea of salary. These old officers are not capable of making a better living than they are getting out of the city. If so, let them do it and make room for other men as deserving as they that would be perfectly satisfied with former salaries. The collector, assessor, police officers and others have been increased. Why should they be? What could they do to get their living easier? They well know they could not, or they would not be logrolling for the office long before our elections. Take these offices from these men, and bankruptcy would follow many of them, and they know it. The treasurer now asks for an increase. Could he make his living so easy in any other way? If so, let him give way to some other that would be satisfied to live on an equality with the common people. TAX-PAYER.

Farewell Reception at Plainfield.

(The Sabbath Recorder.)

The Missionary Secretary spent a recent Sabbath and Sunday at Plainfield, N. J., for the purpose of speaking to the people Sabbath-day, attending a monthly meeting of the Tract Board on First-day, and a final conference with Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Davis before their return to China. On First-day night an informal farewell reception was given to the missionaries, in the church, which proved to be a very interesting and inspiring meeting. Besides appropriate singing, including "God be with you till we meet again," the exercises were as follows: reading of Acts 1:1-14; prayer by deacon J. D. Spicer; opening remarks by the missionary secretary; paper by Mrs. Davis; remarks by pastor A. H. Lewis, D. E. Titsworth, superintendent of the Sabbath-school, Frank Clawson, president of the Endeavor society, and by Mr. Davis; prayer by pastor Lewis, earnestly commending the missionaries and their work to the protection and guidance of Heaven; all closing with hearty handshaking with Mr. and Mrs. Davis, and the fervent good-bye and God-speed you. It was an occasion to be remembered, one whose spiritual and helpful influences will long abide. We deeply regret that arrangements for the meeting were not made in time to have invited the New Market friends to come and share in the evening's privilege and blessing.

Jersey Central Improvements.

Considerable interest is been evinced in the proposed change of ferry route for the fast through trains on the Central. The Philadelphia and Reading company has two new double-decked propeller ferry boats in course of construction at Wilmington, Del. They are to be run from Communipaw ferry to the Battery and make direct connections upon the upper deck with the elevated railway. There will be nothing to prevent passengers on the ordinary trains from Plainfield, Westfield, Fanwood and other towns upon the main line and its branches from making use of the same facilities, and time can be saved by all who desire to visit upper New York, as the ferry trip will be but little longer than the present one to the foot of Liberty street, and the direct connection with all rapid transit lines will be a great saving of time and trouble.

The Downfall of Local Base-Ball.

(Elizabeth Journal.)

In reviewing the work of last season it is pertinent to note these facts concerning the Central New Jersey League teams. The Plainfield Crescents won the pennant after a hard struggle and are now about to disband. They were pushed hard by the West Ends who were able to pay their base-ball expenses only by the aid of private capital. And the Westfield team drained the pockets of its backers so that there will be no W. A. C. team in the field this year. The other club, the Y. M. C. L. A., of this city, ended near the bottom of the list but their expenses were kept within the limit of the treasury and they are the only club which will have a team in the field during the approaching season.

(Elizabeth Journal.)

Gov. Werts is a Democrat, but the doctrines he has enunciated in his address are not the doctrines of such Democrats as this State has known in recent years. They are doctrines that command the hearty support of good citizens of all parties. If Gov. Werts shall, by the moral support of the people of New Jersey, be able to carry out his policy as clearly and unmistakably outlined in his address, New Jersey will be glad that Gov. Werts was elected.

Fosgate says that it is true that he promised to withhold his certificate of approval of the construction of the Crescent League club-house till a new stone was substituted for the "hoodoo" tombstone in the front wall, and adds that he kept faith with the boys and has never given his certificate. The owner and builder have made final settlement without his sanction.

THE RECORD OF A LIFE.

Story of Mr. Blaine's Career Told in Brief Form.

Leading Events in the Political Experience of One of the Greatest Men in Public Life—A Summary Worth Preserving.

The New York Commercial-Advertiser has compiled the following memoranda of the leading events in Mr. Blaine's remarkable career:

1833—James G. Blaine was born in West Brownsville, Washington county, Pa., January 31.

1847—Graduated from Washington college, in his native county, with honors.

1852—Instructor in literature and science in the Pennsylvania institution for the blind in Philadelphia.

1854—Removed to Augusta, Me., and became editor and half proprietor of the Kennebec Journal.

1856—Elected a delegate to the first republican national convention, which nominated Gen. Fremont for the presidency.

1858—Elected to the state legislature, serving four successive terms in that body, two of which as its speaker.

1862—Elected to congress, where in one branch or the other he served for eighteen years.

1865—Began to take a prominent part in the work of reconstructing the confederate states.

1867—Opposed that section of the reconstruction bill placing the south under military government, and was finally successful in defeating the clause. He also delivered a powerful speech against the doctrine of paying off the public debt in greenbacks.

1869—Chosen speaker of the house of representatives, and was reelected speaker by the next two congresses.

1874—The democrats having gained control of the house, Mr. Blaine became the leader of the minority.

1876—The most prominent candidate for the presidential nomination. On June 11, the Sunday before the convention, was prostrated by the heat when entering his church. At the convention he only lacked twenty-eight votes of a majority necessary to nominate him, but was defeated by the consolidation of his opponents. Was appointed to the United States senate to fill unexpired term caused by resignation of Senator Morrill.

1878—Advocated the establishment of a steamship line to Brazil and urged a subsidy to be given to insure its success.

1880—Again a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination. When Garfield was elected he was offered and accepted the state portfolio.

1881—Retired from the cabinet December 19, after inaugurating several measures which were calculated to accrue to the benefit of the United States.

1882—Began to write his historical work, entitled "Twenty Years of Congress," on which he labored four years.

1884—Nominated for the presidency, but was defeated at the polls and retired to his home in Augusta and continued writing his book.

1888—Took an active part in the Maine campaign, delivering a series of speeches upon the fisheries question.

1888—Went to Europe in poor health and had an attack of illness while in Florence. Sent two letters from Europe saying he would not be a candidate under any circumstances. He returned in the fall and delivered several speeches in favor of Gen. Harrison's candidacy.

1889—Appointed secretary of state and began to interest himself immediately in the Behring sea and fisheries question with Great Britain and other international affairs.

1890—Formulated his reciprocity ideas which were incorporated in the tariff act this year and which led to commercial treaties with several countries.

1892—Resigned as secretary of state in June and spent the summer at Bar Harbor. In October he made a speech at Ophir farm on his way to Washington, where he has since remained.

Only Food Enough for a Year.

The surplus food supply of the world would last, looking at the question from the purely human point of view, a little over a year, supposing vegetable supplies were cut off and domestic and food animals had to be fed on stored produce. Men and beasts would exhaust this in about twelve months, man, of course, slaughtering live stock for food all the time, and so decreasing the consumption of vegetable produce by animals. This estimate does not include fishing or hunting, and only applies to civilized communities.

An Adventurous Career.

Capt. Robert A. Annett, an American master mariner, now resident in Liverpool, has been shipwrecked eight times in ten years. He lived like Robinson Crusoe on Morant Cays, an island in mid-ocean, for several months; was a member of the crew of the yacht Maria, which sailed in November, 1887, to search for Pirate Morgan's treasures, and which was wrecked after eight months, of a romantic cruise; and during the Buenos Ayres insurrection was taken prisoner by the insurgents and condemned to death.

An Expanding Waist.

An observant student of human nature has noticed that when a man considers himself possessed of more than ordinary ability he frequently lets his hair grow long; whereas a woman who thinks the same of herself and wants to be the savior of her sisters cuts her hair short. Will some genius kindly offer an explanation?

The Kansas Kind.

A Newton (Kan.) man recently made a bad speculation. His gun was stolen, and when the thief was captured and the gun recovered he agreed not to appear against the prisoner on his paying him $15. He was prosecuted for compounding a felony, and his fine and costs amounted to $48.50.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

A Sad Story of Almost Unparalleled Suffering.

Speaks Now in the Name of Truth and Justice.

A Sage of Eighty-three Years Gives Eloquent and Timely Testimony.

A most interesting thing.

The following letter in regard to it explains itself.

Deputy United States Marshal S. R. Thorne has been a prominent and important figure in American affairs, and gained a world wide celebrity by his noted arrest of Lewis Baker, the murderer of William Pool, at the Canary Islands in 1855.

The noted deputy marshal is a veteran now, but his letter shows all his old-time energy.

"In the Christian Leader I read a letter from Rev. C. D. B. Meacham, pastor of the Baptist church of Townshend, Vt., stating the wonderful cure received by him by taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"I fully indorse all the reverend gentleman says about the efficacy of the Nervura.

"Also, I learn of the testimony of R. S. Shorter, Esq., who lives at 391 Broadway, Newburg, N. Y., a man of 75 years, who was restored to health by the same remarkable medicine.

"I now have to add my knowledge of experience with Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I have been an invalid and laid up with the gout and rheumatism for the last thirty years; confined to the bed for months at a time, in the most excruciating pains and have taken all kinds of prescriptions for relief, but with very little effect.

"I thought I would try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and am now on the fourth bottle. The last four weeks I am decidedly better and am improving very fast. Indeed I am a new man to what I was years ago, though now in my 83d year.

"It has relieved me from trembling and nervous prostration when no other medicine has. This is no theory or imagination, but a fact that experienc justifies.

"This medicine has been to me worth more than all the gold dug out in California, and does so much good that it should be known throughout the world.

"I do not know Dr. Greene and have never had any communication from him. This statement is in the way of truth and justice.

S. R. THORNE,
Chapin Home, E 66th st., N. Y. city."

No expression of ours will add weight to the strong and convincing words of this well-known venerable gentleman. His words alone should and will influence every ailing person who reads them to make use of this great and valuable remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. A medicine like this, which is sure to make those who use it strong and well again, does, indeed, seem, as Mr. Thorne says, worth more than gold. The remedy is purely vegetable and harmless and is the prescription and discovery of Dr. Greene of 35 W. 14th street, New York, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, who can be consulted by all free of charge, personally or by letter.

BLAINE'S RESIDENCES.

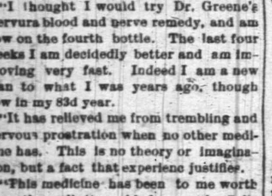
Did He Tempt Providence in Purchasing the Seward Mansion?

From Washington Boarding House and Furnished Rooms to Palatial Mansions—Where "Twenty Years of Congress" Was Written.

[COPYRIGHT, 1893.]

Washington is a city of reminiscences as well as a center of events. The memory of other days seems always to linger in the air. The very stones in the streets here have a history and every house a romance.

Just now the dwellings where the Blaine family have found abiding places during the past thirty years have a peculiar interest. They are like illustrations of the family history, commencing humbly and modestly, and developing comfort, elegance and even magnificence, as prosperity beamed upon the rising and successful statesman.



Blaine's Birthplace at West Brownsville, Pa.

It was in 1863 that Mr. Blaine first took his seat as a representative in congress, and his first home was in a boarding house in Ninth street, between E and F streets.

It was known as the Garnett house, and, of course, it had a history. It was the property of Dr. Garnett, who sacrificed a large and lucrative practice in Washington to become surgeon general of the confederate army. The house was seized by the federal government, but was restored to the family at the close of the war.

In the early days of his congressional career Mr. Blaine, like his colleagues, made his home in Washington only during the sessions of congress. Each year therefore found him in a new locality. At his second coming rooms in a house on F street, adjoining the federal building, were taken. Senator Fessenden, of Maine, was a neighbor in this house, which has recently been demolished.

Home of Bar Harbor.

The next abiding place was No. 1310 F street, in a house adjoining the Merrick residence, and which he shared with Lot Morrill. F street at that time was not the business thoroughfare that it now is, and the house and locality were both regarded as desirable.

In 1869 Mr. Blaine was elected speaker of the Forty-first congress. Naturally his social obligations were enlarged, and the family sought a home in which they could maintain in a becoming manner the dignity of his new position. A house in Fifteenth street, No. 821, was purchased and their style of living in the new residence gave unmistakable indications of the favor of dame fortune.

No. 821 Fifteenth street was one of a row of houses which had been recently erected, and that were regarded as architectural triumphs. Gen. Van Vliet occupied one of them and later Gen. Sherman another. Fernando Wood had a fine residence at the corner of I street in the near vicinity.

Home at Bar Harbor.

The ten years that the Blaines lived in Fifteenth street were rich in interest. The family circle was unbroken, and the shadows that of late years have hung over them were not even specks upon the horizon. It was not until they had definitely decided to remove from there that the specter of trouble peeped in at the door.

The Sunday prior to the republican convention at Cincinnati, as Mr. Blaine was returning with Mrs. Blaine from service at church, he received a sunstroke. He was borne to his home in an unconscious condition, and it was feared that he never again would see the light of day. The greatest excitement prevailed in Washington and throughout the country. Hourly bulletins were hung on the iron railing in front of the house in Fifteenth street, that the crowd of anxious inquirers might be duly informed of his condition. At last the danger point was passed and Mr. Blaine was restored to usefulness, although he has never known perfect health since that almost fatal day.

Blaine's Home at Augusta, Me.

The home of the Blaine family was still in Fifteenth street when Mr. Blaine was tendered the portfolio of the state department by President Garfield. They had, however, in process of construction a fine mansion on Dupont circle, the ultra-fashionable quarter of the city.

It was no doubt with a view to state entertainments that the Blaines planned the more pretentious dwelling, but once again was exemplified the old proverb that "Man proposes and God disposes." Garfield's knell had sounded, and Blaine was a private citizen when its doors opened to receive them.

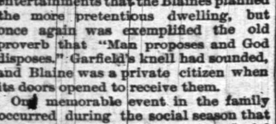
One memorable event in the family occurred during the social season that the Blaines resided in their palatial home. The eldest daughter of the house, Alice Stanwood Blaine, was married to Col. John F. Coppinger, of the United States army.

Col. Coppinger was a disciple of the church of Rome, and in deference to his religious faith an altar was erected in the drawing-room, and the marriage was solemnized according to the rites of the Roman Catholic church.

Washington's "elect" assembled to do honor to the occasion. President Arthur was the star guest, and after her parents was the first to salute the bride. Whatever their political differences, the chief magistrate and the deposed secretary of state seemed socially to be en rapport.

The Dupont circle home proved something of a disappointment apparently, for shortly after Mrs. Coppinger's marriage, the house was leased to L. Z. Leiter, the Chicago millionaire, and as the Leiter mansion it is best known to sightseers in Washington.

It would seem that Dupont circle still had charms for the family, however, for they selected as their next residence a house owned by Secretary Windom, located within a few doors of their own deserted home. It was here that the first chapters of "Twenty Years of Congress" were written.



The old Seward Mansion at Washington—Blaine's Home.

Mr. Blaine found the location too remote from the busy centers to be altogether pleasing. So another move was made, and Lafayette square was the spot next chosen. The house which this time received them adjoined Gen. Beale's, and here they remained until "Twenty Years of Congress" was completed. Washington people consider that season as one of the most interesting in the private life of Mr. Blaine. The house is now the property of Mrs. Scott-Townsend, daughter of the late Representative Scott, of Pennsylvania.

When called to the position of premier in the cabinet of President Harrison, Mr. Blaine established himself at the Hotel Normandie until he could select a residence which seemed to answer the requirements of the situation.

The house, No. 17 Madison place, known as the Seward mansion, was in point of location the most desirable place in the city. It was within easy distance of the white house and the department of state. Its old-fashioned architecture recalling the old colonial mansions may have weighed in its favor, too, and the fact that it was admirably situated to catch every sunbeam, possibly decided its purchase.

Blaine's House at Washington.

Superstitious people gravely shook their heads when it became known that the Blaines had purchased the place. Since the assassination of Mr. Seward there they asserted the house had had an evil name, and there were those who deemed it almost tempting Providence to cross the threshold. It had fallen into a state of absolute dilapidation from want of care, for it had been without an occupant for a long time.

Nothing daunted by the lugubrious tales the Blaines put an army of workmen into the old house, and it was speedily transformed from a threatening ruin to an abode of elegance and comfort, with a charm of quaintness unknown to the modern house. Old-fashioned furniture, in harmony with the colonial features, was brought from the home in Augusta, Me. Rare paintings, souvenirs of the late visit to Europe, were hung. Other decorations that had adorned their numerous Washington homes also found place, and when the last touch was given it would have been difficult to find a more attractive home throughout the land than the old Seward mansion had become.

The place had known many changes in its long existence. Once, when a boardinghouse, President Polk gave it prestige by residing there for several months while repairs were being made at the white house. Again it was used for government offices. When Secretary Seward made it his home it was the center of Washington's most brilliant society. Before its doors was enacted the tragedy of Gen. Sickles' life. It was there he shot Key, the betrayer of his wife.

Of all the clouds that have hovered about it none have been more somber than those that have descended on the Blaine family. Death's first victim in this circle was claimed within its walls, and the dread destroyer was insatiable for a second followed quickly in the footsteps of the first. Mrs. Coppinger and Walker Blaine died within a few weeks of each other in the old house. Wedding bells have once rung forth from there, when the daughter Margaret became Mrs. Damrosch, but they were muffled and soon followed by a third bereavement, the death of Emmons Blaine. Surely the last home of the Blaines in Washington has been a house of mourning.

WITH SIMPLE SERVICES

Ex-President Hayes Interred at Fremont To-Day.

IMPRESSIVE MILITARY DISPLAY.

Thousands of Visitors in Attendance, Including Many of the Highest Officials in the Land—Business Suspended in the City—No Eulogy Over the Body.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 20.—The citizens of this little city feel that the funeral today represents their personal loss as well as the sorrow of the nation, and have prepared to do honor to the dead patriot and statesman whose remains are lying in state in his own chamber in his homestead at Spiegel Grove.

There is no ostentation anywhere, but tokens of mourning are seen on every hand, simple and touching, as befits the memory of the departed.

The services this afternoon will be as simple as the life lived by the dead statesman. No words will be spoken above the bier save those of scripture and of prayer and simple hymns will complete the service. Gen. Hayes' wish was that no eulogy should be pronounced at either the house or cemetery, and it will be respected.

The principal display to-day will be by the military. The first city cavalry troop of Cleveland, of which Gen. Hayes' son, Webb, is a member, will be the guard of honor. It is considered the finest cavalry organization in the West and will make an impressive showing.

The Toledo Cadets, the crack infantry company of the Ohio National Guard, and the sixteenth regiment with battery D., of Toledo, will add to the quiet majesty of the funeral procession.

Gen. Hayes' old regiment, the 23d Ohio Volunteer Infantry, will not only be represented by Gov. McKinley, who enlisted as a private in it, but Ben Killam, of Cleveland, the secretary of the Regimental Association, and a delegation of the grizzled old veterans who loved Gen. Hayes like a father are here to-day to pay the tribute of their presence to his worth.

The finest decorations in the city are those upon the Birchard library, the gift of Gen. Hayes' uncle, Sardis Birchard, to the city of Fremont.

It is a beautiful brick and stone structure, and the crepe and bunting with which the citizens' committee has decorated it is a fine effect.

Houses, halls and public places have been placed at the disposal of the different committees. Preparations are also being made by which assignments to the different places can be made as desired.

The different lodges and the secret societies of the city will also be open all day to the visiting brothers and members of the same.

The Thompson Houston Carbon Company will take care of the Cleveland Cavalry troops and arrangements have been made providing for the other military organizations.

As the funeral hour the business part of the city will practically be dead, all of the business houses will be closed, and also the Post Office.

Secretaries Foster of the Treasury, Noble of the Interior, Rusk of Agriculture and Postmaster General Wanamaker, representing the President and Cabinet, arrived shortly after 10 o'clock.

President-elect Cleveland arrived early in the morning.

Action on Hayes' Death.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 20.—The Legislature has adopted resolutions deploring the death of President Hayes. Sympathy and condolence with the family are expressed and flags on public buildings are ordered at half-mast for thirty days.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The New York Legislature has taken action upon the death of ex-President Hayes by passing appropriate resolutions to be sent to the family of the deceased, and also to be entered upon the House Journal.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 20.—At noon the House adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock out of respect to ex-President Hayes.

DEFIES THE SUPREME COURT.

Gleason Will Resist by Force Attempts to Take the Mayor's Office.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 20.—Patrick Gleason defies the Supreme Court, and Justice Bartlett's decision, he says, is not worth the paper that it is written on.

He will, under the advice of United States District Attorney Jesse Johnson, of Brooklyn, resist by force, if necessary, any attempt to obtain possession of the office by Sanford or Claven.

Yesterday morning Justice Bartlett in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, handed down a decision in which he denied the application of Horatio S. Sanford for a writ of mandamus to compel Patrick J. Gleason to turn over to Sanford the books and papers and the office of Mayor of Long Island City.

In his decision Justice Barlett says that Mr. Gleason is not the Mayor of Long Island City by reason of holding over after the expiration of his term, nor can he be regarded as Mayor by reason of the certificate issued to him by City Clerk Burke, upon election returns which were manifestly incorrect as proven in the case of the people ex rel Sanford against Burke.

"On the other hand," the Justice says, "I am not satisfied that Mr. Sanford has become legally qualified to act as Mayor. The charter of this municipality is very explicit in regard to the method in which the vote should be ascertained and declared.

"The law requires that the City Clerk shall canvass the vote and issue a certificate to the candidate having the largest number of votes."

As City Clerk Burke has absconded and as there is a question as to the legality of Mr. Gleason holding the office, Michael F. Claven, President of the Board of Alderman, is designated by Justice Bartlett to act as Mayor pending the final settlement of the dispute.

AGENT JUNE'S BLUNDER

It Will Result in the Death of Two More People.

THE WRECK ON THE PENNSYLVANIA.

That Only One Was Killed Outright is Considered Almost Miraculous—Fourteen Are Hurt—General Alarm Sent Out for the Signal Agent.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 20.—By the double collision on the Pennsylvania railroad, west of the Hackensack River, near this city, last evening, one man was killed and 14 people injured, two fatally.

When the Newark local train which left the depot at 5 o'clock reached the coal chutes, some portion of the machinery broke, and Henry Martindale, the engineer, stopped to ascertain the trouble.

Closely following his train came the Chesapeake and Ohio express. Owing to some misunderstanding George June, the signal agent, signaled the express that the road was clear. A moment later the express struck the rear car of the Newark local, the engine running into it like a wedge.

The second car was broken in the middle and forced up in the shape of a "V," while the third car was partly wrecked. The second car was derailed and thrown almost on to the opposite track.

Although the Newark local train was crowded only one passenger was killed. He was John Blewett of 125 Bowery street, Newark. He was standing on the front platform of the rear car and was thrown between the bumpers and crushed.

The injured are:

Henry Martindale, engineer, Jersey City, leg broken and internally injured, will die.

Mrs. A. Decker, 109 Mechanic street, Newark, collar bone and two ribs broken, will probably die.

Mrs. Washington Stansbury, Newark, compound fracture of right leg.

George B. Estey, 92 Frelinghuysen street, Newark, leg broken.

Patrick J. McLean, 60 Condit street, Newark, ankle broken.

Moses Gininger, 48 Beaver street, Newark, head cut.

Charles P. Swain, 484 Mulberry street, Newark, cut on head and arm.

Leonard H. Bequa, 231 W. 26th street, New York, head cut.

F. K. Osborn, 433 Sumner street, Newark, leg broken.

William Philips, 21 New street, Newark, spine injured.

Woolf Schildkraut, 229 Broome street, New York, leg hurt.

Miss Henrietta Berger, 187 Prince street, Newark, arm broken.

Mrs. Ross Rentler, 79 Livingston street, Newark, head cut.

The injured were brought to this city, where ambulances and physicians had been summoned by the railroad officials. Their wounds were dressed at the depot, and, with the exception of Mrs. Stansbury and Engineer Martindale, all were sent to their homes.

Signal Agent June can not be found. The Jersey City police have sent out a general alarm for his arrest.

Just as the collision occurred another train arrived on the scene, bound from Newark to New York. It was running at full speed, and smashed into the wreckage. By a miracle this third train was not also wrecked.

TO APPEAL TO SATOLLI.

Efforts to be Made to Have Him Re-open the Famous Grant Case.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 20.—Dr. Burtsell, counsel for Wm. E. Grant, is making efforts to have the famous controversy between Mr. Grant and the Catholic Church heard by Mgr. Satolli, but his success depends entirely on whether the Roman Church has taken any action since a re-opening of the case was asked for by Dr. Burtsell.

Wm. E. Grant's secret marriage was performed at Dr. McGlynn's Church six years ago, it being claimed that his first marriage was not binding, because Grant, being at that time a Protestant, had never been baptized.

He is now under ban of excommunication, and the supreme ecclesiastical court at Rome gave an adverse decision some time ago.

A new trial is asked that new evidence may be offered.

A Bridgeport man high in Roman Catholic circles says unless the court at Rome has made progress with the case it will be given to Mgr. Satolli for settlement.

DE LESSEPS EULOGIZED

Charges Against Him Declared False by the Defense.

THE CASE DRAWING TO A CLOSE

M. Herz to be Arrested—England Sends Troops to Egypt—France Makes Protest Against Great Britain's Interference—Cholera in a Berlin Asylum—Other News from Abroad.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Public interest in the Panama trial is increasing as the case draws to an end. The consensus of opinion is that in view of the evidence presented by the prosecution conviction is certain.

Maitre Barboux opened the case for his clients. Men whose names are known all over the world jostled with "nobodies" in their efforts to secure points of vantage from which to listen to the proceedings.

Outlining the Defense.

Excitement was at a high pitch when, sternly dignified, the judges, headed by President Perivier, entered the court room and took their places on the bench. All eyes were next directed upon Maitre Barboux, whose face plainly showed that he fully realized the responsibility resting upon him.

In a few words in opening his address he complimented the court upon the fairness of its rulings in the case, and then dashed into an exposition of his line of defense. He argued volubly and at much length that it was not alone moral conditions that had led to the arrest and prosecutions of the accused. Political considerations, he declared, had much to do with the prosecution, and he emphatically insisted that the men he was defending should not be made scapegoats for the advantage of any party or faction.

A Tribute to De Lesseps.

M. Barboux eulogized M. Ferdinand de Lesseps as a man of the highest character. So keen was his sense of honor that after appearing before Magistrate Prinet at the opening of the inquiry he was overwhelmed. For two months he did not left his bed, and during that time had not uttered a word.

Had the great Frenchman appeared in court the whole audience would have risen to salute his fame.

Maitre Barboux gave full vent to his oratory in recounting the struggles of M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, and laid particular stress upon his statement regarding M. de Lesseps' contest with England over the Suez canal.

He proceeded to examine into the duties and responsibilities of the directors of the company, which, he declared, had been faithfully and correctly carried out by them.

He dealt with the charges against M. de Lesseps, and endeavored to show that they were unfounded.

When Maitre Barboux finished, Court adjourned until Tuesday next.

M. Barboux's speech was a masterpiece of oratory, and though his eloquence was fervid it never carried him beyond the point where it could be constructed as admitting in the slightest degree anything derogatory to the characters or methods of the men he was defending. The address made a great impression.

In the Chamber of Deputies M. Casimir-Perier, the President, announced that M. Balhaut, now under arrest, in connection with the Panama affair, had resigned his seat in the Chamber.

ENGLAND MOVES ON EGYPT.

France Enters Protest for the Independence of the Khedive.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Two companies of the South Wales Borderers have been ordered to start for Egypt on Monday. The companies will be up to full war strength.

This move on the part of the government has created much comment, as it was announced yesterday that the Khedive had accepted the resignation of the Minister objectionable to England, and that France had accepted the appointment of Riaz Pasha as a compromise.

Acting in conformity with instructions sent to him by the French Foreign Minister, M. De Velle, M. Waddington, the French Ambassador, sent a note to Lord Roseberry, the British Foreign Minister, in regard to the trouble in Egypt, in which it was stated that France could not remain indifferent to an act on the part of Great Britain that tended to infringe the independence of the Khedive.

—Everybody at Music Hall on the evening of Sept., 2, last year, was greatly pleased with John T. —The complications ensuing on the appearance of the real "Lord McKee", at Music Hall, next Monday evening, are many and curious. The supporting company is a very strong one, including Florrie West, a brilliant and dashing soubrette, Adelaide Randall, an excellent prima donna, Harry Kelly, a son of the star, and a clever young comedian, and others.

ALL SAINTS AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

To Change from a Mission to a Parish—The Church Property to Be Sold.

Writing under date of Jan. 14, Paul B. Tuzo, secretary of the board of trustees of All Saints' mission, Scotch Plains, issues the following notice:

"At an informal meeting of All Saints' mission held in the church, on Sunday last, the majority of those present declared themselves in favor of selling the church to the All Saints' parish of Scotch Plains. In accordance with this desire, the trustees called a meeting for Sunday, Jan. 22, immediately after the morning service, in the church, to authorize the trustees to sell the church as required by law.

"The trustees sincerely hope that every member of the mission will be present."

A parishioner says that this means only a transfer of the property from mission to parish. The question of thus changing the form of church government has long been agitated, but there has been much division over the matter, and some opposition still exists. The majority, however, favor the change.

Mishaps of a Sleighing Party.

A sleigh-load of ten left this city last evening for a trip to Rahway, by the way of Cranford; but while going from Fanwood to Westfield the driver of the sleigh ran into a cutter, breaking the shafts so that the cutter had to be tied to the back of the load and hauled to Westfield, where the gentleman and lady in the cutter took another sleigh to their home in Cranford. The driver of the load said for them to get the cutter fixed and he would settle the bill. The sleigh-load did not get to Rahway; they only got as far as Westfield, and so on back to Evona and then home.

A fresh liveryman in Westfield tried to induce the driver of the cutter to sue the driver of the load for $5,000 damages, and acted very ungentlemanly before the ladies.

A BABE'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Its Mother Rescues It from Suffocation.

Mrs. Philip Hapenny, of 46 East Fourth street, went down cellar after wood and coal this afternoon, leaving her baby playing on the floor of her front room on the second story.

When she went back, the room was filled with a smoke so dense she could not see, or breathe, and flames were crackling in the wood-box back of the stove.

She had the presence of mind and motherly instinct to grope about for the babe.

The infant was almost unconscious, and must have perished a moment later.

The mother dragged the suffocating child from the room, and then dashed a pail of water at the fire.

She gave the alarm, and the fire department was summoned by box 15.

When the firemen got there the fire was out. The wood-box and contents, and the half-burned wood-work of the mantel, were torn apart and dragged out of the house.

There was little damage to the furniture.

When the danger was all over, the mother became hysterical.

It is supposed that the child played about the stove, lighted a piece of paper at the hot fire, and threw it in the wood-box.

EXCITING RUNAWAY.

A Good Horse Badly Hurt, and a Driver Narrowly Escapes Being Trampled to Death.

Dr. J. T. Fritts had a horse badly injured in a runaway this morning. The physician was attending a patient on East Front street near Washington, and his horse was being exercised by his driver. In making a turn carelessly, the cutter was upset, and the horse dashed down the street. At Park avenue Yose's big truck was in the way, causing the animal to turn and collide with C. W. Tallman's grocery sleigh. This was overturned, and driver Frank Kesselring had a narrow escape from being trampled to death. The two horses were held by bystanders. The shafts of both sleighs were broken, and jagged ends of the shafts penetrated Dr. Fritts's horse on the flank, causing ugly wounds which bled profusely. The injured animal will be laid up for some time.

TERRIBLY FROZEN.

Andrew Mantz, a Mountaineer, Crippled for Life by the Cold.

Mrs. Jacob Voehl, of 65 Somerset street, is nursing her brother, Andrew Mantz, who had a narrow escape from death by freezing.

Mr. Mantz lived alone in the mountains. Last night when he went home he found that he had lost his keys and could not get in. Therefore he went into the barn and slept.

During the night the terrible cold froze his hands and feet, and he woke up suffering excruciating pain.

In the morning he was only able to crawl feebly about on his elbows and knees.

The sufferer was found by neighbors in his utterly helpless condition, and Dr. P. J. Zeglio was summoned. The unfortunate man was then removed to his sister's home, and all that medical skill can do is being done in an effort to save his hands and feet from amputation. It is feared, however, that he will have to lose them.

His hands are the most injured. They are absolutely dead from the wrists down, being as black as slate, and devoid of sensibility.

His feet are dead from instep to toes. His boots were frozen fast and had to be cut off.

It is a most pitiable plight, and the afflicted man has the sympathy of all for his terrible injuries.

Upon the arrival of the party the freedom of the Mansion House was extended them and soon those so inclined were indulging in the pleasures of the dance, inspired by excellent music furnished by Rogers and Conde. Later all partook of one of those excellent dinners such as only the proprietor and his esteemed wife are renowned for, and it was along in the small hours of the morning when the party reluctantly turned their faces homeward. To say it was one of the most enjoyable sleigh rides of the season is but echoing the sentiment of all interested, and it was the unanimous wish that there should be a repetition of the enjoyments of the evening at a near date. An invitation was extended Mayor Perry of Bound Brook to be present, but a previous engagement prevented his acceptance. As an imitator of the croupy infant, on the diabolical fish horn, Will Rider took the prize, and even "Uncle Dan" expended lots of wind through one of those noisy instruments. Fines were imposed by both the ex and present City Judges and cheerfully paid by the accused ones. The Plainfield contingent was chaperoned by a member of the famous "Big Six", Seymour G. Smith, and that from Westfield by his popular brother "Chet".

They Pitied Him.

Dimling was stopped by two footpads the other night.

One of them covered him with a revolver, and the other said:

"Turn over all your cash, and be quick about it."

"My dear fellows," said Dimling, in response to their urgent invitation, "I have no cash to turn over. I have just left a church fair."

The footpads first satisfied themselves of the truth of the unfortunate man's story, and then raised one dollar and twenty-five cents between them for his relief, regardless of the fact that business had not been good with them for some time.—William Henry Siviter, in Harper's Bazar.

A Hard One to Answer.

The long-haired caller in the editorial room was indignant.

"Poets are born, sir," he said to the eminent practical editor.

"Of course they are," responded the editor, suavely, "you didn't imagine I thought they were hatched, did you?"

"I mean, sir, they are born; born, sir, do you understand?"

"I think I do," and the editor rubbed his chin reflectively, "but why are they?"

That was the straw that fractured the spinal column of the camel and the goat stalked out of the den.—Detroit Free Press.

Mrs. Dorcas—Not in the least. If you make them too large you have only to soak them in water till they shrink to the proper size.—Judge.

UP GOES THE BUILDING.

THE Y. M. C. A. WILL WAIT NO LONGER.

So President Murray Announces at the 25th Anniversary—Interesting Features of the Celebration—Memorial Reunion, and Historical Reminiscences—Addresses, and Reception to Gen. Howard.

Tired of waiting for the Peace street project to be settled, the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association have determined to delay no longer the matter of constructing their new building; and in the spring, just as early as the weather permits, the work of laying the foundations will be begun.

This announcement was made by President W. D. Murray in his report at the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the association in the Crescent Avenue church last night.

Mr. Murray said that the association had for four years suffered greatly from the serious need of larger quarters. The sum of $37,000 had been raised by subscription, and a lot on East Front street at the head of Peace had been purchased which was perhaps larger than that owned by any other association, it being 120x250 feet. The delay in building had been because of the unsettled condition of the Peace street project. Early this week, however, the building committee had decided to begin the erection of the building as early in the spring as the weather would permit, irrespective of whether or not the Peace street project was to be accomplished. The necessary fund had not been fully completed, but he had no doubt the people would see that it did not languish and that the structure would be fully completed free from debt.

Mr. Murray's report was especially interesting for its funds of valuable information concerning the society's origin and growth.

He told how the association was the outgrowth of a conference held between two commuters, Alexander Gilbert, the present Mayor, and H. O. Newman, in the fall of 1867. One afternoon they discussed, on a train from New York, what could be done for the young men of Plainfield. The result of that talk was a conference meeting at Mr. Gilbert's house, where steps for organization were then taken. On Nov. 11, 1867, the first regular meeting was held, also in Mr. Gilbert's parlors, and a board of directors and staff of officers were there chosen. Mr. Gilbert was the first president, H. O. Newman recording secretary, Nelson Runyon corresponding secretary, and J. W. Jackson treasurer.

The association was first engaged in general religious and charitable work, looking after the wants of the poor, the sick, the afflicted; and, through committees appointed to supervise respective districts into which the city had been divided, affording bodily and spiritual relief to all. Acting in conjunction with the women of the churches, the association distributed tracts and gave pecuniary aid; it took a census; it raised a subscription of $600 for the yellow fever sufferers in the South; it conducted a parade of the Sunday-school children of Plainfield, with a picnic in what is now the public park; many other things that would seem peculiar to-day were then done by the society. For a long time the only courses of entertainment given in the city were under the auspices of the association. The work was general among all classes.

That it was a good work could easily be seen when one remembered the men who had been engaged in it. Such strong personages as Dr. John H. Vincent, now Bishop, had been its leaders.

In 1872 the association was incorporated by special enactment of the Legislature. In July, 1881, it called its first general secretary, and with his advent its aims assumed a more definite shape and it became more as now, a society for work for young men, by young men. Since then there had been three other secretaries, and four of the association's own members had entered the secretary field.

In October, 1882, an important factor was established, the Ladies' Auxiliary, which had since been at the head of the social activities of the organization, and largely instrumental in making the rooms attractive. For their untiring zeal in helping the men to do the men's work, Mr. Murray thanked them heartily.

It had been found that men and boys would not mix, so since 1882 a department especially for boys had been flourishing.

The association had as yet no badge nor symbol, but one was talked of. The style most likely to be adopted was the triangle, signifying the three-fold work of the organization, for the body, for the mind, and for the spirit.

Because of the cramped and limited quarters, the work for the body had been limited, but through health talks and light gymnastics the men had been taught somewhat how to care for their physical being. One year the association had had charge of the base-ball nine. Social gatherings had been fostered in doors and out. Receptions had been held for special classes, as for the firemen and the mechanics. Saturday night entertainments had been arranged for the multitude of young men on the streets who otherwise had no refuge save the saloons.

Though much restricted for lack of room, educational classes had been established with as high a total membership as 107, in the branches of mechanical drawing, stenography, English mathematics and singing. A series of free and well attended educational lectures had been given, on such subjects as "Infidelity", "Gambling", "Law", "Insurance", "Memory Training", "Banking" and "Preparation for Life". General debates also had been held.

The spiritual well-being of men had been carefully looked after. Gospel meetings for men had been and still were held Sunday afternoons with gratifying results. A splendid work in securing conversions had been done. Outpost meetings were held in the chapel at Washingtonville and the school-house at Mt. Pleasant. Workers' training classes for special Bible study not given in the Sunday-school and church had prepared many to be effective Christian workers in prayer-meetings and churches. Secretaries had gone forth from these classes to Red Bank, Jersey City, Philadelphia, and Minneapolis, to spread the influence of the classes. The association had conducted evangelistic Bible classes, with good results, holding the classes over the Sunday evening tea-table for boarding-house young men. For seven years the association had been represented at Moody's Bible school at Northfield, and the influence of that school was being felt at Plainfield. The association had been and was a great service to Plainfield in all the city's religious work. Commercial travelers' tickets were issued so that members on the road would have membership privileges and safeguards everywhere. College young men were similarly looked after. Situations were procured for men out of work. A list of boarding-houses was kept, and young men were provided with Christian homes.

Mr. Murray gave three reasons why the association had been so successful. First was because of its loyalty to the church, notable all through its history; second, because of the men of integrity and reliability who had stood by and supported it; third, because of the untiring energy and self-sacrificing devotion of the beloved secretary, John H. Manning; he was glad to acknowledge that to him the association owed so much.

Mr. Murray's report was made at the public gathering in the body of the church. This meeting was attended by about 300 people, and was opened with the singing of the stirring hymn, "Coronation". The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis then read from the 119th Psalm, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman offered prayer, invoking Divine guidance over the association, and asking that He strengthen, guide and prosper it.

The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, venerable, esteemed, beloved, spoke for the pastors of the city as the eldest among them and as the one who has occupied a Plainfield pulpit continuously during the life of the association. He referred good-naturedly to the fact that he was continually being put forth as the oldest pastor, and said that when he was a boy he used to wonder why the old men were always put to the front of the Fourth of July parades. He had found that they were veterans of the War of 1812 and of the Revolution. They were conspicuous not for themselves but as representing the great events of which they had been a part. He s'posed he himself was made prominent for similar reasons, but he feared that people would begin to say that he was not so young as he once was. Perhaps in years he was advancing, but he would keep his heart young, and in touch with the bright young men of the age, even as time grew apace.

Among the many good things that Dr. Yerkes said were the following:

"There are just two things I am thinking of now, and one is the high ideal work that this association has kept steadily before it because the men who have been in it have striven for the salvation of the souls of young men. There is nothing in this world of such value as a human soul. This association has not been a society, a club, in which the members have been banded together socially, exclusive of some individuals, but it has been a Christian organization.

"Then there is another thing this association has had in view; that, is the growth of men. When a young man is converted he will get strength only by growing. A little sapling that is planted in the soil gets strength by growing, and it grows through years. The life flows into it through summer's heat and summer's rain, and so strength comes to the young Christian only as it flows into him through the word of God."

Dr. Yerkes spoke with great warmth of feeling and display of sentiment, and his talk was greatly enjoyed. He held the association's work to be the setting up of the highest aspirations and aims for young men and helping them towards them. He referred to the great harmony with the churches, and the extraordinarily successful, competent and honorable men who had always been connected with the association.

President Murray introduced the one-armed soldier veteran, Maj.-Gen. O. O. Howard, as an old Association man. The General was received with hearty applause, and began by insisting that he was still young, as he had only recently entertained a young man friend of his who had reached the age of 93, and who was still hale and hearty. He said that he was glad to listen to the record of what the association had accomplished, but he was sorry it had not yet done as much as the Mauch Chunk, Pa., association, whose anniversary he had recently attended; they at Mauch Chunk had secured a building. He related how the young men had prayed for a building, and how in course of time an old lady was moved to advance a large sum to purchase one. He hoped that some good feminine friend of the association would do likewise (as, jokingly, of course, the men will not).

He spoke of the splendid achievements of the Young Men's Christian associations, of his visit to the founder of the associations, Geo. Williams, of London, and of the great work that is being done in Germany by a man, a converted infidel, who was once connected with his army corps. By far the larger part of his speech was taken up with his remarks on answers to prayer. He described very minutely his recent experience on the steamship Spee, which was so fully reported in the newspapers at the time. He certainly believed that God answered prayer; but God did the whole work only when man could not help himself. Man's extremity he held to be God's opportunity. In closing, he urged the association to keep on praying and working, and God would surely answer their prayers and reward their endeavors by bringing many souls out of the realm of darkness into the realm of light, and out of sorrow into joy.

Previous to the public celebration in the body of the church, a memorial banquet, provided by the Ladies' Nine, was held in the chapel. Here were gathered all of the ex-presidents except A. F. Campbell and Frank J. Miller, a large number of the charter members, and the board of trustees. Alexander Gilbert, the first president, sat at the head of the table, and he and Corydon Tyler now of New York, another former president, made speeches replete with entertaining reminiscences. D. E. Titsworth responded for the present board. It was a most delightful feature of the anniversary.

In the afternoon Gen. Howard reviewed the full-dress drill of the Leal Cadets in the Crescent rink and was given a reception by Mrs. L. N. Lovell at her home on Crescent avenue, Mrs. H. B. Newhall receiving with Mrs. Lovell. After the meeting in the church, Gen. Howard was given a reception at the residence of Major W. D. W. Miller, his old army friend, whose guest he was.

A collection amounting to $200 was taken up for the association, at the church.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

THE CHINESE ACT.

Declared Unconstitutional by a Federal Judge in a Case in Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 20.—Judge Nelson, of the United States Court, yesterday declared unconstitutional the Chinese Exclusion act in habeas corpus proceedings brought by Ah Yuk, a Chinaman, who has lived seven years in the United States.

The ground on which the law was declared unconstitutional is the provision for an imprisonment for 30 days and the returning to his native country of a Chinaman after no proceedings other than a hearing before a United States Commissioner.

Such a law is a violation of the fundamental right of every citizen of the United States to a trial by jury when accused of any crime.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the City Treasurer, and the payment of City moneys.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

The Treasurer of the City shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, execute a bond in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, to the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office, with such freehold security as the Common Council shall approve and direct, which bond shall be submitted to the Common Council, for its approval, and when so approved shall be deposited with the City Clerk for safe keeping.

Warrants on City Treasurer issued by the Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room, signed by the President and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Board of Directors and accepted by the City Treasurer, payable at the bank designated as the depository of funds for the maintenance of the Public Library and Reading Room, and warrants issued by the Board of Health, signed by the President and countersigned by the Secretary of said Board, and accepted by the City Treasurer, designating the depository where such warrant is payable, shall be treated as checks or drafts and paid when presented at the depository at which they are made payable.

Section 4. The Treasurer shall keep in a suitable book or books in such manner as directed by the Common Council, or its appropriate committee, a separate accounts of the several funds for which moneys shall be received or paid out by him, each under its proper head and title, so that the account of each of such funds shall show at all times the exact amount to the credit or debit of such fund.

The Treasurer shall also keep a detailed record of all assessments made or authorized to be made by the Common Council, setting forth the date and purpose of each assessment, the names of persons assessed, the amounts assessed against each, and the date of the payment of the same.

Section 5. Whenever the Common Council shall authorize money to be borrowed on the credit and in the name of the city in anticipation of the collection of taxes, the Treasurer shall prepare and sign a note for the amount so authorized to be borrowed, payable at such time as shall be fixed by the Common Council, which note shall likewise be signed by the Mayor, and, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall cause such note to be discounted at one of the designated depositories of city moneys, the net proceeds thereof shall be credited to the account of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield in such bank, and credited by the Treasurer to the fund for which the money was borrowed. At the maturity of the note so discounted, the Treasurer shall, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, pay the same by check or draft signed by the Treasurer and countersigned as aforesaid.

Section 6. The Treasurer shall render to the Common Council at each of its regular meetings a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him from the date of his last preceding statement; and at the last meeting in each year he shall render a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him during the current year, and he shall submit for inspection his books to the Mayor or Common Council or its appropriate Committee, or any City Officer the Common Council shall designate, whenever requested so to do.

Section 7. No claim or demand of any kind against the city shall be paid by the Treasurer unless first regularly allowed and ordered paid by the Common Council and a statement in writing to that effect, duly signed by the City Clerk, be filed with the Treasurer, excepting maturing obligations issued for money borrowed as provided in Section 5, and moneys due the Public Library and Reading Room on account of their quota of taxes collected, and moneys due the State and County for taxes, or school moneys directed by law to be paid by the City Treasurer. Upon receiving from the City Clerk said written statement of the claims or demands allowed and ordered paid by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall forthwith prepare checks or drafts in payment thereof, have them properly signed and countersigned and pay said claims or demands to the party entitled thereto in the manner herein provided.

Section 8. All checks or drafts shall be filled up by the City Treasurer, regularly numbered and a detailed marginal record of each kept by him.

The City Treasurer shall take from each claimant for all bills or claims ordered paid by the Common Council, at the time of the delivery of the check or draft, in payment thereof, a receipt on the margin of the check or draft book for such check or draft and also a receipt on each bill or claim so paid and for all other checks or drafts issued by him a proper receipt, and the said Treasurer shall file in regular order and safely preserve as vouchers all such bills or claims and receipts and he shall also file and safely preserve, subject to disposition by the Common Council, all checks or drafts that may become cancelled or spoiled and he shall also file and safely preserve all checks or drafts drawn by him when paid and returned to him by the bank paying the same.

Section 9. The two Ordinances respectively entitled "An Ordinance Relating to the Treasurer of the City", approved December 30, 1881, and "An Ordinance Providing for the issue of Warrants on the City Treasurer for all current claims against the City", approved June 4, 1873, are hereby repealed, but any Ordinances or parts of Ordinances repealed by either of said Ordinances shall not be revived by this repeal of said two Ordinances, and all Ordinances or parts of Ordinances, so far as they conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance, are hereby repealed.

THE THIRST THAT PAYS.

It Isn't the Thirst for Knowledge, According to This Story.

Howard Fielding Tries to Buy a Book in New York, and Passes Some Thousands of Saloons on the Way to the Nearest Store.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

This story has a moral, but not with my advice or consent. I am aware that stories which show the authors, the characters and the readers to be entirely without morals are de rigeur (as we say on the boulevard) in these days, and I would rather lose my self respect than foo1 away my time on manuscripts that are sure to come back. And yet I was not always thus. I was raised in a New England village where only one woman wore a low-cut dress, and she did not from any improper motive, but because the sharp edge of her collar bones would be always wearing out the goods. However, this is a digression.

I had very important business with a man who had apartments—no, let's be honest, he had a room up three flights, in the rear, swept every 29th of February, with hot and cold water in the kitchen and nobody to bring it up to a fellow if, by chance, he should want to use it; on a street which was very quiet, except for the evidences of negligence on the part of the street cleaning department, and these became very loud in hot weather. I was to meet him there at 8 o'clock, or, if he should be out, I was to wait till he came in, and he might be quite late. He was out when I arrived. Probably some hours of waiting were before me. I sat down to finish the evening paper. On the way uptown I had read everything except the society notes and other, more or less palatable, advertisements. I disposed of these in a few minutes, and time began to hang heavy on my hands.

Why, at such times, does Providence always deny us the consolation of good reading matter? These are the occasions when history could be got into us, or the principles of English grammar, or tariff statistics, or "The Light of Asia," by Sir Edwin Arnold, but we almost never get a chance to learn anything in these moments, when even a soap "ad." (in four unknown languages, including English as she is wrote for such purposes) would be a blessed relief. I looked around my friend's room for a book. He had none. I then read a railroad time table which was lying on the table. It contained a description of a vestibuled express train with a dining car attached. This was very fair fiction; the style was good, the plot was cleverly worked out, and the humor, to anybody who had ever ridden on the train, was delicious. But it was not long enough. I was soon at the mercy of my own thoughts. And, do you know, when a man has spent the best part of his life in such "apartments," and has afterwards escaped by the desperate hazard of matrimony, the thoughts which they bring back to him are cold and desolate enough to chill the marrow of a deep-sea devil fish. I fell into a desperate black trance in which I was conscious of nothing except the fear that I might wake and find that time had turned backward and the room was mine.

"Death's head and crossbones!" I exclaimed; "let me be sane when John returns. I will go out and buy a book."

The nearest avenue was all aglow. Every place of business appeared to be open, and 10,000 clerks were working twenty hours a day because it was the holiday season—for other people. There was a drug store on the corner and another place for the sale of liquor next door. Beyond that was Eddie Gillie's saloon, where Tom Nolan was shot in October. The place has been very popular since then, and on this evening it was doing a rushing business. The number is 975, but if you must visit the place, don't drink with a strange man. If you do, you will go to sleep in about five minutes, and afterward wake up on the street in a suit of summer underclothes kindly loaned to you by the stranger in exchange for what ever you may have had with you when you accepted his invitation.

In the window of No. 977 I saw some newspapers, and it seemed probable that books might be sold also, though the principal business in the outer shop was, apparently, the sale of cigars.

"Have you books inside?" I asked of the man behind the counter.

"Naw," said he; "dey ain't nuttin' goin' on. Tommy's makin' his book at de track dese days."

I perceived that this was one of the cigar stores which serve as the portals for gambling dens. The man who buys a twenty-five cent cigar on the way in usually cannot afford to borrow a light when he comes out. I went out into the street and passed 979, which is a dive, and 981, which is another dive. No. 983 is ex-Alderman Swagley's place, but the name over the door is McGilligan. This is not a bookstore. No. 985 is a candy store; No. 987 is a saloon; No. 989 is a real, genuine cigar store to the best of my knowledge and belief, though I should not be surprised to learn that Ali Baba rented the second floor and paid one hundred a week to the captain of the precinct. The next few doors that were open for business admitted the unwary to the Cimis hotel. There was once a news-stand and bookstall in a corner of the barroom, but I found that the proprietor had removed it and put in a free lunch counter. All his customers can eat, while comparatively few can read.

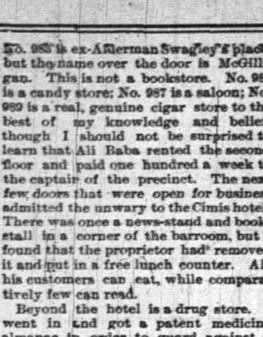
Beyond the hotel is a drug store. I went in and got a patent medicine almanac in order to guard against a total dearth of literature. Then came a dry goods store, followed by a wet goods store. No. 1003 is Reddy Gallagher's. He has a saloon and poolroom on the second floor, and above is a hot and glittering den where one has a large and liberal choice of gambling games. It's funny, too, that whichever one you choose, it's a hundred to one that it gets the better of you. Next door, uptown, is Levi Israelstein's pawnshop. His real name is Jotham P. Perkins, of Eastport, but he has changed it by application to the legislature because it interferes with his business.

Nobody in distress would put himself into business relations with a Yankee horse trader when by walking eight blocks he could get a loan from Solomon Isaacs. Above Israelstein's is Willig's bakery. I regret to say that the tracks in the mud of the pavement before Israelstein's door indicate that the pawn shop or out of it toward Gallagher's. Nobody wanted bread—or books. I approached a policeman who was standing at a corner, and respectfully removing my hat I asked if he could direct me to a book store.

"Dey uster be one on Fourt' avernoo, near T'irteent' street," said he.

"But, my dear sir," I replied, "that is more than two miles from here."

"What t' blazes," he rejoined; "'m I responsible for that? As I was sayin',



HE INTRUDES UPON THE POLICEMAN.

Mr. Gallagher, der bes' interests o' this town—"

I didn't hear the remainder. He was a twenty-four-carat, full-jeweled tough, and his raiment was more gorgeous than the leaves of autumn. A plain, ordinary man could put on a suit of clothes like that, and borrow money almost anywhere. And though his waistcoat alone was worth more money than any suit of clothes I ever wore, I knew its value was greatly enhanced by a retangular package in one of its pockets, consisting of United States notes, beginning with a thousand-dollar bill and sloping gently down to a one on the outside.

I turned from this glittering and successful gentleman, and strolled slowly down to "Fourt' avernoo and T'irteen'." street." Sure enough, I found the bookstore. The proprietor, an old man in the last stages of dilapidation, sat in the light of a single small jet, with his head in his hands.

"Glad to find you in," I said; "I've had a long search for a book store."

"I generally close the shop before this time," said he, "but I've been waiting in the hopes somebody might drop in."

I could not help contrasting his appearance with Gallagher's, and I came near asking him why he didn't get out of his business and sell something that people want. But I looked into his mild and honest eyes and couldn't bear to give him pain. Probably, I thought, he cannot get a license on account of his character. HOWARD FIELDING.

GIVEN TO THE PEOPLE.

A Splendid Institute to Aid Young Men and Women.

Philip D. Armour, the Famous Chicago Packer, Founds and Endows an Institute Similar to the Great Drexel School.

Chicago is to have an "Armour Institute." Before he left for Europe a few days ago the great packer gave Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, permission to let out the secret of what his new five-story building on Thirty-fifth street is to be used for.

From what Mr. Gunsaulus says it appears that Philip D. Armour has had the scheme in contemplation for some time. He will endow the institute with $1,400,000, which will net it $50,000 a year and the Armour mission $25,000. The plans have been carefully gone over. In the basement will be the electric plant and the forging and iron shops. On the first floor is a library sixty feet square and wood working and reception rooms. The chemical and physical laboratories, lecture rooms and electrical rooms are on the second floor. The third floor will have the mechanical drawing and architectural rooms. Millinery, dressmaking and cooking will occupy the fourth floor, and the fifth will have the gymnasium and technical museum. The building is practically fireproof. Marble is the prevailing material in the interior.

Speaking of this magnificent gift Pastor Gunsaulus had much to say in praise of Mr. Armour. He said:

"Mr. Armour has given a building worth $30,000 complete in the smallest detail, and in addition it is equipped with everything needed for the purposes to which it is to be devoted. The way in which the plan has been perfected is characteristic of Mr. Armour, so quiet and unpretentious. Mr. Armour is one of those men who prefer to see their good deeds take form beneath their own guiding hands rather than wait for their tardy perfection after death. It has all been so thoroughly considered and carefully planned and withal so unostentatiously, that few, if any, beyond his sons and the trustees knew anything of the plan, although for four or five years Mr. Armour has been steadily working upon it. In that time he has collected data upon, and carefully inquired into, the workings of all the philanthropic institutions both in this country and in Europe. From this mass of information he assimilated all that was useful, and as his plan grew and took form he entered into correspondence with such men as Drexel, Pratt and George W. Childs for the still further elaboration of the institute plan.

"Not the least of his motives has been the glory and honor of Chicago. It has been possible for P. D. Armour to amass a great fortune in this city, and he feels that he owes something to the city and county in which this was done. Perhaps the thing which makes Mr. Armour's gift seem the more gracious is that it forms such a startling contrast with the conduct of Jay Gould, who did no good thing with any part of his wealth."

This ample provision for educating the head, the heart and the hand cannot be otherwise than a great power for good. It will be the means of directly building up to efficiency thousands who otherwise could make but a poor start in the race for life. Its secondary influence will be even greater. Every one of its graduates will be a power for good in the community, a missionary among his fellows, and educating them by association to a higher plane of thought and action than would otherwise be possible to their natures, while the success thus attending the movement will infallibly stimulate others to like noble deeds in behalf of humanity. The monument which Philip D. Armour has raised in Chicago will be a bright and shining example. It will be one through which, when dead as, while living, he will be heard speaking in pleasant tones to others, telling them: "Go thou and do likewise."

The Gathmann Torpedogun.

The German government has purchased the first of the new torpedo guns invented by Mr. Louis Gathmann, a citizen of Chicago. It is to be regretted that the United States allowed a foreign power to secure control of this weapon, which, according to the highest military and naval authorities, is one of the wonders of the century. It is claimed for the gun that it may be used to arm merchant vessels to resist men-of-war and that it is capable of destroying any ironclad. The invention may be used on any large smooth-bore gun. When the torpedo is inserted in the gun the steering gear is moved toward the front of the charge. When the torpedo is discharged this assumes a position in the rear and directs the course of the missile as well as supplying the propelling power. The torpedo, though it strikes water, will not sink much below the surface, and may be propelled under water as well as in the air.

"How do you feel now?" asked a Texas lawyer of his client, a condemned murderer, who has just been reprieved.

"For years I have been almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms: shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, faintness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the U. S., but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Cabinet Makers Have the Slate Completed at Last.

IS JUDGE GRESHAM TO RESIGN?

The President's Proclamation Regarding Canada to Relate to Transhipment of Merchandise—Mr. Blaine's Condition Unchanged—A Compromise Quarantine Bill—Vote on Anti-Option Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—It is whispered about among Democrats that Mr. Cleveland has practically completed his Cabinet slate, and one by one men who have expected to get on the list are abandoning their hopes.

The only thing that holds the matter open at all is said to be some uncertainty as to the course of Mr. Dickinson. The slate is said to be made up contingent upon his acceptance of the State portfolio, and, if he accepts, the slate will be turned face down and allowed to remain so until March 4.

The understanding of the Michigan people is that he will accept, though he has not formally done so as yet. He is holding the matter open, as Carlisle did, with the prospect of a similar result.

Some time ago Mr. Cleveland concluded that he would not appoint a Southern man to the position of Attorney General, but there is excellent authority to-day for the statement that he has reconsidered this and has slated ex-Senator Eustis of Louisiana for the place.

Eustis was an anti-Cleveland man before the nomination and he and Cleveland were at outs, but the ex-Senator took an active part in the campaign and the two men are now on very friendly terms. If Eustis be appointed, the South will probably get either the Postoffice or the Agricultural Department also. Eustis is out of politics in Louisiana and is one of the Southern colony of New York.

It is expected that Wall of Wisconsin will be Secretary of War; Gray of Indiana, Secretary of Agriculture, and Blount of Georgia, Postmaster General. This pretty near fills the list with those who are already known to be slated.

IS GRESHAM TO HAVE A PLACE?

Rumor that He Will Resign and Enter the New Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The rumor sent out from here that Judge Walter Q. Gresham, of Indiana, is to resign his life position as a United States Circuit Judge to accept a place in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet appears to have been started by Indianians here.

Judge Gresham made a hasty and somewhat mysterious visit to Washington about a week ago, and from here went West.

There is but one precedent for a President taking into his Cabinet a former political opponent—Mr. Hayes' appointment of Postmaster-General Key, of Tennessee.

What place Judge Gresham is to fill in the new Cabinet, should the rumor prove well founded, has not been definitely determined by the gossips.

The position for which he would be supposed to be especially qualified—that of Attorney-General—is assigned by the same authority to ex-Senator James D. Eustis, of Louisiana, who has a permanent residence here, and whose family inherits much of the wealth of the late banker-philanthropist, W. W. Corcoran.

COMPROMISE QUARANTINE BILL.

Friends of the Immigration and Quarantine Measures Get Together.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The friends of the Immigration and Quarantine bills have effected a compromise, and the two bills will be united, and an effort made to-day to pass the bill.

Messrs. Raynor and Stump held a conference and fixed up the bill, and they sought out the New York men to see if they would agree to it. The majority of the New Yorkers were favorable, but Mr. Raynor held an interview with Congressman Cummings, and the latter positively refused to agree to any compromise.

"I intend to kill the National Quarantine bill," was Mr. Cummings' parting remark as he left Mr. Rayno.

The friends of the National Quarantine bill say that if the passage of their bill is prevented they will compel an extra session of Congress by filibustering against the annual appropriation bills, and cause failure of adoption at this session.

This can easily be done, for Congress has less than thirty more working days to live.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

Will Not Relate to Annexation of Canada, But to Transhipment of Merchandise.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—President Harrison will not, as reported, issue a proclamation or send a communication to Congress bearing upon the question of annexation to Canada.

His communication, which will go to the House early next week, will deal solely with the subject of transhipment of merchandise under consular seal from Canada through United States territory to Canada, and vice versa.

Friends of annexation have caused the report to be circulated that this is a move upon the part of the President in favor of annexation, but the President denies that it is intended to have any bearing upon the subject.

It will likely have the effect again, however, of agitating the subject, as it will be a blow to the Canadian Pacific railway.

BLAINE'S CONDITION UNCHANGED.

Dr. Johnston Says the Patient is as Strong as He Was Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Dr. Johnston entered the Blaine residence at 9:40 this morning. When the physician left the house he said:

"There is absolutely no change in Mr. Blaine's condition, and he is just as strong as he was yesterday."

Mrs. Hearst Will Not Marry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The statement sent out from Charleston, W. Va., that Senator Charles J. Faulkner of West Virginia, was engaged to be married to the widow of the late Senator Hearst is authoritatively denied here by Mrs. Hearst's friends.

Vote on Anti-Option Next Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A vote will not be taken on the Anti-Option bill until early next week, probably not before Tuesday.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

TO ASK FOR A NEW TRIAL.

Dempsey's Attorney Not Satisfied With the Verdict and Will Appeal.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 21.—L. K. Porter, attorney for Master Workman Dempsey, who was yesterday found guilty as indicted for causing poison to be administered to the non-union men in the Homestead mill, says the verdict is a false one, and that he will immediately move for a new trial.

On what grounds Mr. Porter refused to say, but it is understood that one of the points he will raise is that, contrary to the plain and positive instructions of the court, the jury found Dempsey guilty as indicted on four counts, when he should have been found guilty only on the first count.

Another and more sensational point will be raised, which, if proven, will be sufficient to set the verdict aside.

Capt. E. Y. Breck, of the prosecution, said he expected the verdict, as there had never been any doubt in his mind as to Dempsey's guilt, and he thought it had been shown to the jury plainly enough.

The maximum punishment for felonious assault and battery is seven years' imprisonment.

The announcement of the verdict did not cause much surprise because everybody had expected it, after the jury had asked the court certain questions.

Judge Stowe in charging the jury reviewed my carefully and impartially all points of the testimony brought out during the trial.

"It is for the jury," he said, "to determine whether poison was put into the coffee or tea, or the food in the mill.

"This question depends solely upon the testimony of Gallagher and Davidson. If they tell the truth, then the defendant was the originator and principal in the business and is responsible for the acts of Gallagher and Davidson or either, and accountable for whatever they did in pursuance of his instructions.

"Now, just here comes the great question so far as the defendant is concerned.

"Dempsey emphatically denies what Gallagher and Davidson have to say in regard to the purpose for which he employed them. Both are competent but interested witness. They are also competent, but suspicious and tainted witnesses.

"But the jury may, if they believe their testimony, convict from it alone."

The jury after being out until 1:10 p. m. came in for further instructions from the court. Foreman Guy wanted to know if the court had stricken out of the indictment the third and fourth counts and he was told that the court could not do this, but had instructed the jury to acquit on the counts which related to Dempsey assaulting persons unknown, for there was no competent evidence offered on these counts.

The judge told the jury that if they found the defendant guilty at all it must be on the first count, charging Dempsey with assaulting W. E. Griffiths with intent to commit murder.

It has not yet been decided whether the case of Beatty will be called next week or whether it will go over until after the trial of "Jack" Clifford for murder.

COLD AND HUNGER IN AUSTRIA.

Europe's Severe Weather Abating, But Much Suffering Among the Poor.

VIENNA, Jan. 21.—The cold gives signs of breaking up. The snow storms have ceased, but until the roads are opened it will be impossible to get anything to the people of snowed-in places, some of whom are famishing and suffering dreadfully from the cold.

The refugees for the homeless poor in Vienna, Buda-Pest, and other centres are besieged by shivering, starving men, women, and children.

Young widows, scantily clad, with little children crying bitterly, when told that the places were full have begged that their little ones might go inside long enough to get warm, expressing their willingness to stand outside in the snow. All have been taken in and cared for as long as possible.

SHE YEARNED FOR CONVENT LIFE.

Handsome Effie Aldrich, the Runaway, Captured at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Jan. 21.—Miss Effie Aldrich, of Monson, Mass., the young lady who disappeared from her home in Monson Thursday, was captured here as she alighted from a train. Miss Aldrich, who is 16 years old, and very handsome, is considered one of the belles of Monson, and her disappearance created a great sensation.

The only reason given for her sudden departure from home is that she wanted to enter a convent. She had expressed a wish to take this step, but was opposed by her mother.

When caught she refused to say where she was going, but consented to return to her home, and did so.

The Suicide of Mrs. Harris.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The autopsy upon the body of Mrs. Ida Harris, who committed suicide at the Hotel Marlborough Thursday evening, showed that her death was due to arsenical poison. Charles Harris, the husband of the dead woman, has arranged for the shipment of his wife's body to Cleveland, Ohio.

Defaulter Sinclair Arrested in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Charles C. Sinclair, formerly the cashier and bookkeeper of the Armour Packing company's branch house in New York, was arrested here last night for embezzling $30,000 from his employers last November. He consented to return to New York without requisition papers.

Two Dead of Their Injuries.

PERU, Ind., Jan. 21.—Henry Griffin, the engineer who was so severely scalded in the wreck here yesterday died at 7 o'clock last night. Of the 11 victims of the accident only two have died. Of the nine now in charge of the surgeons only two are considered in a serious condition.

ROULETTE IN A COLLEGE.

A Gambling Den Discovered in Columbia School of Mines.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—In the Columbia College School of Mines there has been established within the very walls of the building for the past two weeks a gambling den. Roulette was the popular game, and as many as three and sometimes four wheels were run at the same time.

The place was located in the corner of the basement of the School of Mines, and the wheels were run in a little nook protected from general view by the rear partition wall of the janitor's office.

The students who ran the wheels had a little the best of the odds, and many students have lost money who could not afford to.

The gambling might have gone along unnoticed for some time to come had it not been for a row over a game.

The news of the row reached the faculty, and the true cause was learned. Supt. Darling swooped down on the gamesters yesterday afternoon and caught several of them.

He took their names, and they are now waiting in fear and trembling to learn what the Dean will do about it.

LAST HONORS TO R. B. HAYES.

Buried With Simple Rites from His Late Home in Fremont.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 21.—The funeral of Rutherford B. Hayes yesterday was conducted with simple religious services and imposing civil and military honors. Mr. Cleveland and five Cabinet officers were present.

The honorary pallbearers, who sat near the door, were: Secretary Charles Foster, representing the President; Gov. McKinley, J. L. M. McCurry, representing the Slater and Peabody funds; Senator Calvin S. Brice, Major E. C. Dawes and Gen. Wager Swayne, representing the Loyal Legion; Gen. M. F. Force, of the Soldiers' Home; Sandusky; Congressman William C. Haynes, Col. H. C. Corbin, Gen. J. C. Breckinridge, Gen. George D. Ruggles, Gen. M. I. Luddington, Capt. Foraker, H. Bliss, of Gen. Schofield's staff; Capt. Howell, of the Navy; Commander Dickson and Commander Houston.

The services at the house did not last over 30 minutes.

The services at the cemetery were very brief, consisting of the regular Grand Army rites. A salute was fired after the coffin had been lowered into the grave.

KILLED A FELLOW INMATE.

Tragedy in the Insane Asylum of Lancaster County, Pa.

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 21.—The facts of a tragedy in the Lancaster County Insane Asylum have leaked out. About a week ago Harrison Rank, aged 53, of Akron, was admitted as the institution suffering from a mild form of insanity and about the same time William Turner, a big burly negro from Columbia, was taken there crazed by rum.

Turner was allowed to communicate with the other inmates. On Sunday night as far as can be learned, he assaulted Rank and beat him in a terrible manner.

He choked him nearly to death and then beat him with his fist and battered his head and body.

The victim was unconscious when found by ward attendants and died without having regained consciousness.

HIS MANY WIVES SURVIVE.

Inventor Winsor Had Been Divorced Six Times.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 21.—Joseph Winsor is dead, aged 84 years. Mr. Winsor was an inventor of considerable prominence. Among his inventions are the drop gates used at railroad crossings.

He was married seven times, and secured judicial decrees of separation from six of his wives.

The seventh, whom he married five years ago, made such demands upon him that he transferred his large estate to one John Morris, on condition that the latter supported him properly as long as he lived.

The seven wives survive Mr. Winsor.

NIAGARA ICE GORGE BREAKS.

Much Damage to Property and Still Other Buildings Are in Danger.

NIAGARA, Ont., Jan. 21.—The ice bridge which spans the river between this place and Youngstown broke and began to move yesterday afternoon.

It cracked all along both shores and then gradually floated down about two hundred yards, carrying with it the dock at Paradise Grove and doing considerable damage to other property.

The mass of ice has again gorged and formed a bridge. It is feared that when the ice moves again it will carry the Michigan Central depot and tracks and Malloy's dock with it.

SENATORS FEAR HERZ

His Arrest Creates a Feeling of Uneasiness.

THE BRIBERY OF THE DEPUTIES.

M. Andrieux Causes a Sensation by Refusing to Divulge the Name of the High Dignitary Whose Name is Cut Out from the List—Baron Reinach Tries to Poison Herz.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The sole topic of conversation in the Chamber lobbies and the cafes is the arrest of Cornelius Herz. The prospect of his return to France and the possibility that he will reveal the evidence which he holds against conspicuous politicians and financiers, have excited general apprehension.

Outside of Royalists and Socialist circles, the arrest is regarded with a feeling closely akin to panic. The gravest fears exist on account of the Senate, whose members are believed to be threatened more seriously than all others through Dr. Herz's return.

Everybody feels that the worst will come out as soon as Herz will come before the examing magistrate.

After Deputy Gerville-Reache had informed the Parliamentary Commission of Inquiry yesterday that he would introduce in the Chamber a bill forbidding recipients of Panama money to alienate their estates, M. Andrieux was called upon to throw more light upon the bribery of 104 Deputies, concerning whom he testified Dec. 22.

He said that he did not have the original of the photographed list which he had submitted to the Commission.

The name cut out of the list, he said, was that of a high political dignitary. He had promised on his honor not to reveal this name, and must persist in this refusal.

M. Andrieux refused also to give the names mentioned in M. Arton's notebook on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence against the men named, and that he did not wish to blacken reputations ruthlessly.

Reinach Tried to Poison Herz.

M. Andrieux said that Herz, after quarreling with Reinach, had sent to M. Constans, then Minister of the Interior, documents showing that Reinach had tried to poison him. Subsequently, however, Reinach and Herz had been reconciled.

The Commission decided to summon Deputies Laguerre Terrail-Mermeix and Clemenceau to appear before them.

Herz was arrested in England yesterday. The detectives assigned to make the arrest went secretly to [illegible] Hotel, Bournemouth and presently [illegible] at the hotel they at first stated that they had come down from London and proposed to stay a short time, and incidentally asked for Dr. Herz.

The reply was that Dr. Herz was too ill to be seen.

The detectives then made their errand known, and on the clerk requesting them to be allowed to announce their errand in advance, they insisted that they be shown to Herz's room at once.

The porter led the way to Dr. Herz's apartments, and knocked at the door. It was then midnight, and the indications were that all within were asleep. After a few minutes the door opened slightly and a female voice asked what was wanted.

The porter replied, with much apology, that "some gentlemen were there that wanted to see the Doctor, ma'am."

"But he is asleep and cannot be disturbed," answered the voice, which was that of Mrs. Herz.

"We are sorry, madam," put in one of the detectives, "but we must see Dr. Herz at once. We are officers of the law, and, although we wish to act with all proper consideration, we must perform our duty. Please to tell Dr. Herz to dress at once. In the meantime we will wait in the ante-room."

The detectives quietly opened the door, Mrs. Herz retiring to her husband's sleeping apartment. She came out in a few moments. Her face showed signs of grief and agitation, and she could hardly restrain tears as she said:

"Gentlemen, Dr. Herz is too ill to get up. You are welcome to go in and see for yourselves."

The detectives entered the sleeping room. Dr. Herz was in bed. He had just been propped up with pillows by his wife. His face looked pale and was wasted, his eyes were sunken and he bore every sign of being a very sick man.

"I know your business, gentlemen," he said in weak tones, as if it was difficult for him to talk. "You see my condition. I am willing to go with you if it is possible for me to be moved."

Herz, notwithstanding his illness, has made energetic preparations to contest the effort to extradite him to France.

He has retained Mr. Lewis, the well-known solicitor, and Sir Edward Clarke and Mr. Hill as counsel in the case. Some surprise is expressed that Herz should now prepare to contest extradition to the last point when, before arrest, he had professed his readiness to surrender.

PRINCIPAL CAMP'S YOUTH.

One of the foremost educators in America is Principal L. L. Camp of the Dwight school in New Haven, Conn., whose portrait is given above. His pupils are scattered east and west, and many of them occupy responsible positions in business and professional life, which they have won in no small measure because of their early instruction and training under him.

Prof. Camp taught first in Meriden, then as principal of the Hunting grammer school in New Britain, then as principal of the Norwalk Union and high school, Yale's well-known preparatory institution, and then under the elms of New Haven. He was one of the first principals to see the advantage and value of manual training in public schools and organized classes of boys who received instruction in the use of wood working tools in a room fitted up in the basement of the school. Prof. Camp is a most exemplary citizen, and as a man among men his views on matters of public interest have been always worthy of attention. He has represented one of the best sections of the city as alderman for several terms.

Prof. Camp is an active, progressive man, who has learned the secret of keeping young, in spite of advancing years, and he has probably given no more valuable advice in the nearly two score years he has labored in educational fields than is contained in the following letter, recently published in the papers of New Haven, where there is a great demand for the extraordinary remedy he refers to. He says in his letter, referring to the famous compound that was first prescribed by Dartmouth's famed physician:

"I have taken Paine's celery compound not because I was sick, but because I wanted to keep well, and can do it best by the use of this helper of nature."

The superintendent of schools of Naugatuck, Conn., Mr. William W. Abbott, a Yale graduate, had an experience which exemplifies the marvellous power of Paine's celery compound to restore those who are in the depths of disease and misery. He has written for publication the following statement under date of May 29:

"A year ago this spring a combination of circumstances conspired to undermine my health, and last fall the confinement in the school room and attention to discipline attacked what little health I had left, so that by Christmas I was physically a wreck. I had no ambition to do anything. I felt unable to move, and was truly miserable, and each day I thought that probably it would be the last that I should leave my bed. It was only by the exercise of the greatest will power that I could hold up my head. When I was so low I was advised to try Paine's celery compound, and did so. After taking one bottle I was uncertain whether I was really deriving benefit or not. After using the second bottle, however, I found that my health was certainly improved. I have now taken four bottles, and my restoration to strength and health is due entirely to the use of this medicine.

The best physicians unite in the statement that Paine's celery compound is of superior value for the weak and debilitated, the nervous, sleepless, and all who are run down. It makes people well, gives them new strength and new life. It is pure and harmless, and hence is used by hundreds of families for the children and the aged.

ANOTHER PENNSYLVANIA WRECK.

PATRICK GLEASON DESERTED.

The Police of Long Island City Go Over to Mr. Sanford.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 21.—The police have deserted Patrick J. Gleason, and Chief Woods told him that Mr. Sanford was Mayor and he would have to take his orders from that source.

Gleason had only one man in his office with him, and said that he would stick in spite of the fact that he was alone.

At ten o'clock the new county clerk took possession of the office, and an hour later Mr. Sanford arrived at the City Hall.

A JEWEL TO THE PAST SACHEM.

Senior Sagamore Carney Makes a Presentation for Miantonomah Tribe.

At the regular meeting of Miantonomah Tribe, 118, Improved Order of Red Men, a committee was appointed to purchase the necessary pharaphernalia to confer the Amplified Adoption degree. Those who have witnessed the Amplified, claim that it is something great.

At the same meeting Senior Sagamore John H. Carney in behalf of the officers and members and in his usual bright and witty manner in well-chosen remarks presented to Past Sachem Andrew J. Stiglitz a most magnicient solid gold Past Sachem's jewel.

Past Sachem Stiglitz was taken completely by surprise, and in acceptance could scarcely find words for utterance. Past Sachem Stiglitz has always been a faithful worker in Miantonomah Tribe, and the presentation of the jewel simply expresses the high esteem held for him by the Improved Order of Red Men. Popular Songs of the day were sung by brothren Odam and Holstein.

Miantonomah Tribe, 118, is in a flourishing condition, and is considered one of the best tribes in the State.

The Rev. Charles J. Kelly of Jersey City entertained a good-sized audience in T. A. B. hall Thursday evening, with his lecture on "Picturesque Ireland". The stereopticon illustrations were of delightful and romantic Irish scenery.

Sarah B., wife of the late Henry A. Merrill, died in Brooklyn yesterday, and will be buried in Hillside cemetery Monday. She resided on Seventh street, this city, some time ago, and her husband died there. Her body will be laid beside his.

It was a hard matter to tear one's self away from the tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Williams, 188 West Front street, last evening. The hours set were from 5 to 9, but it was nearer 11 before the last one bade a reluctant good-night. There was a good attendance, and as a social event the tea was a glowing event. Substantial refreshments were served. The affair was under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work society of the Trinity Reformed church.

Pleasant Event in the Suburbs.

The masquerade social given in Friendship Hall, New Market, Wednesday evening, was a grand success in every respect. The two popular young men who had it in charge, Chas. S. Day of New Market and Walter Apgar of Dunellen, spared no pains to make it something to be enjoyed by all, and their efforts were not in vain. There were about sixty persons present, and some of the costumes were very pretty. At 12 the musicians played a grand march, and the committee led the way down stairs to the office of Chas. S. Day, where refreshments were served in abundance. It is to be hoped this merry twain will continue the very pleasant socials they have been favoring the public with.

Among those present were Chas. S. Day, Walter Apgar, Walter G. Runyon, Wm. Milliken, Bert Pierce, G. Mantz, T. Mantz, F. A. Nelson, H. Rand, F. O. Nelson, Amos Giddis, J. VanMiddlesworth, Wm. Maltby, D. C. Fulton, C. W. Smalley, Misses Irene Day, E. Nelson, Mrs. Fulton, Miss Clark, Miss Pierce, Miss Boice, Miss Bumstead, Mrs. F. O. Nelson, Miss Helm, and many others.

BOTH MOVE UP.

The Plainfield Bowling Teams Still Tied, and a Peg Higher.

By last night's games in the Elizabeth Journal bowling tournament, both Plainfield teams gained in position, but are still tied. That tie will be broken by the cancelling of the Union County Roadsters games, that team having withdrawn. The Roadsters were beaten by the Young Men, and defeated the Crescents. Cancellation of these games will put the Crescents two games ahead.

The Crescents last night played a steady, even game. The score:

CRESCENTS.		ROSELLE.
VanEmburgh	139	Mulford	121

Roselle	150	311	499	663	791	953	1045	1194	1246	1402

The Young Men have the right idea of the true object of tournament games, which is to promote sociability. Last night they had 200 guests, and after the game treated them to a fine collation and good music; and general jollity prevailed.

The score:

By defeating the E. F. C. team Thursday night in a spirited contest, the Y. M. C. L. A. team increased its lead in the race for county championship honors and the Elizabeth Journal trophy. The defeat of the Field Club placed that team in third place.

BULLOCK ESCAPES.

Albert Hedden Had Him Where He Wanted Him, But He Squealed.

T. O. Bullock, who married Mrs. Lydia Ridgeway of this city when he had another wife living, and subsequently married Miss Saunders as soon as his first marriage was "outlawed"—and who consequently has three wives living at the present date—saw fit a few weeks ago to come to this city with detective Phil. Breen, formerly captain of Plainfield's police, and help himself to a carriage in Albert Hedden's stables on East Fourth street.

He claimed that the carriage was his, and that Mrs. Ridgeway had taken it away without any right. Mrs. Ridgeway had stored a carriage with Mr. Hedden, who is her brother-in-law, but it was a carriage Mr. Bullock had given her. The carriage Bullock and Breen took, however, was not the right one.

Of course Mr. Hedden at once took steps to bring Mr. Bullock to justice and recover the property, But Bullock weakened, gave the carriage back, paid all costs besides $1.50 a day for rent of carriage for three months, and thus escaped, much to Mr. Hedden's disappointment.

RECTOR JENNINGS'S CASE.

COPY.

Plainfield, N. J.,
Jan'y 6th, 1893.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D.

Dear Bishop:—

The Commission appointed by you on Dec. 9th, to enquire as to the truth of certain charges made against the character of the Rev. J. B. Jennings, begs leave to report—that they have held three meetings in Grace Church, Westfield,—have heard all the witnesses who were called to testify to the two charges of lying and drunkenness, which were brought against Mr. J.—have heard the statements made by Mr. J. B. Green, as representative of the Vestry, and by Mr. Jennings, and our decision is, the charges have not been sustained.

The Lesson of Butler's Death.

General Butler's death was due to overconfidence in his vitality. Thousands of others invite fatality and increased trouble from the same cause. The time to avert serious consequences from any physical defect is when evidence of waning power first appears. You can save your eyesight into old age by going to Collier's and having your eyes examined. It will save you years of trouble and eventual blindness.

'Twas a Cracked Head, Not Cracked Ice.

(Rahway Democrat.)

It is stated that Plainfield had a slight shock of an earthquake one day during the past week. It may be that that subterranean lake we have heard so much about was frozen over and the rumbling sound was the cracking of the ice.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jodas, M. D., No. 1536 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by I. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

FINE, DELICATE, NATURAL!

Such are the FLORAL POWDERS (or sachet powders) prepared at REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY. Even those persons who don't care for Handkerchief Essences strongly approve our Floral Powders, because of their truth to nature and their richness. Especially worth mention is Reynolds's Jacqueminot Rose, the best in all the world. It may sound boastful but it is a fact, nevertheless. Then come our Heliotrope, Jockey-Club, Violet, all very fine. These powders are sold by the ounce, and are much in demand for Holiday Fixings. By the way, we are showing the completest stock of Perfumery ever offered in Plainfield—fine quality, elegant styles, low prices.

PATRICK GLEASON DESERTED.

The Police of Long Island City Go Over to Mr. Sanford.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 21—The police have deserted Patrick J. Gleason, and Chief Woods told him that Mr. Sanford was Mayor and he would have to take his orders from that source.

Gleason had only one man in his office with him, and said that he would stick in spite of the fact that he was alone.

At ten o'clock the new county clerk took possession of the office, and an hour later Mr. Sanford arrived at the City Hall.

A JEWEL TO THE PAST SACHEM.

Senior Sagamore Carney Makes a Presentation for Miantonomah Tribe.

At the regular meeting of Miantonomah Tribe, 118, Improved Order of Red Men, a committee was appointed to purchase the necessary pharaphernalia to confer the Amplified Adoption degree. Those who have witnessed the Amplified, claim that it is something great.

At the same meeting Senior Sagamore John H. Carney in behalf of the officers and members and in his usual bright and witty manner in well-chosen remarks presented to Past Sachem Andrew J. Stiglitz a most magnicient solid gold Past Sachem's jewel.

Past Sachem Stiglitz was taken completely by surprise, and in acceptance could scarcely find words for utterance. Past Sachem Stiglitz has always been a faithful worker in Miantonomah Tribe, and the presentation of the jewel simply expresses the high esteem held for him by the Improved Order of Red Men. Popular Songs of the day were sung by brothren Odam and Holstein.

Miantonomah Tribe, 118, is in a flourishing condition, and is considered one of the best tribes in the State.

Sarah B., wife of the late Henry A. Merrill, died in Brooklyn yesterday, and will be buried in Hillside cemetery Monday. She resided on Seventh street, this city, some time ago, and her husband died there. Her body will be laid beside his.

It was a hard matter to tear one's self away from the tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Williams, 188 West Front street, last evening. The hours set were from 5 to 9, but it was nearer 11 before the last one bade a reluctant good-night. There was a good attendance, and as a social event the tea was a glowing event. Substantial refreshments were served. The affair was under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work society of the Trinity Reformed church.

Pleasant Event in the Suburbs.

The masquerade social given in Friendship Hall, New Market, Wednesday evening, was a grand success in every respect. The two popular young men who had it in charge, Chas. S. Day of New Market and Walter Apgar of Dunellen, spared no pains to make it something to be enjoyed by all, and their efforts were not in vain. There were about sixty persons present, and some of the costumes were very pretty. At 12 the musicians played a grand march, and the committee led the way down stairs to the office of Chas. S. Day, where refreshments were served in abundance. It is to be hoped this merry twain will continue the very pleasant socials they have been favoring the public with.

Among those present were Chas. S. Day, Walter Apgar, Walter G. Runyon, Wm. Milliken, Bert Pierce, G. Mantz, T. Mantz, F. A. Nelson, H. Rand, F. O. Nelson, Amos Giddis, J. VanMiddlesworth, Wm. Maltby, D. C. Fulton, C. W. Smalley, Misses Irene Day, E. Nelson, Mrs. Fulton, Miss Clark, Miss Pierce, Miss Boice, Miss Bumstead, Mrs. F. O. Nelson, Miss Helm, and many others.

BOTH MOVE UP.

The Plainfield Bowling Teams Still Tied, and a Peg Higher.

By last night's games in the Elizabeth Journal bowling tournament, both Plainfield teams gained in position, but are still tied. That tie will be broken by the cancelling of the Union County Roadsters games, that team having withdrawn. The Roadsters were beaten by the Young Men, and defeated the Crescents. Cancellation of these games will put the Crescents two games ahead.

The Crescents last night played a steady, even game. The score:

CRESCENTS.		ROSELLE.
VanEmburgh	139	Mulford	121
Wood	164	Greves	173

Roselle	150	311	499	663	791	952	1045	1194	1246	1402

The Young Men have the right idea of the true object of tournament games, which is to promote sociability. Last night they had 200 guests, and after the game treated them to a fine collation and good music; and general jollity prevailed.

The score:

C. Y. M. L.		PIONEERS.

By defeating the E. F. C. team Thursday night in a spirited contest, the Y. M. C. L. A. team increased its lead in the race for county championship honors and the Elizabeth Journal trophy. The defeat of the Field Club placed that team in third place.

BULLOCK ESCAPES.

Albert Hedden Had Him Where He Wanted Him, But He Squealed.

T. O. Bullock, who married Mrs. Lydia Ridgeway of this city when he had another wife living, and subsequently married Miss Saunders as soon as his first marriage was "outlawed"—and who consequently has three wives living at the present date—saw fit a few weeks ago to come to this city with detective Phil. Breen, formerly captain of Plainfield's police, and help himself to a carriage in Albert Hedden's stables on East Fourth street.

He claimed that the carriage was his, and that Mrs. Ridgeway had taken it away without any right. Mrs. Ridgeway had stored a carriage with Mr. Hedden, who is her brother-in-law, but it was a carriage Mr. Bullock had given her. The carriage Bullock and Breen took, however, was not the right one.

Of course Mr. Hedden at once took steps to bring Mr. Bullock to justice and recover the property. But Bullock weakened, gave the carriage back, paid all costs besides $1.50 a day for rent of carriage for three months, and thus escaped, much to Mr. Hedden's disappointment.

RECTOR JENNINGS'S CASE.

Official Report of the Bishop's Commission.

COPY.

Plainfield, N. J.,
Jan'y 6th, 1893.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D.

Dear Bishop:—

The Commission appointed by you on Dec. 8th, to enquire as to the truth of certain charges made against the character of the Rev. J. B. Jennings, begs leave to report—that they have held three meetings in Grace Church, Westfield,—have heard all the witnesses who were called to testify to the two charges of lying and drunkeness, which were brought against Mr. J.—have heard the statements made by Mr. J. B. Green, as representative of the Vestry, and by Mr. Jennings, and our decision is, the charges have not been sustained.

Pres. of the Commission,

The Lesson of Butler's Death.

General Butler's death was due to overconfidence in his vitality. Thousands of others invite fatality and increased trouble from the same cause. The time to avert serious consequences from any physical defect is when evidence of waning power first appears. You can save your eyesight into old age by going to Collier's and having your eyes examined. It will save you years of trouble and eventual blindness.

'Twas a Cracked Head, Not Cracked Ice.

(Rahway Democrat.)

It is stated that Plainfield had a slight shock of an earthquake one day during the past week. It may be that that subterranean lake we have heard so much about was frozen over and the rumbling sound was the cracking of the ice.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. R. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

FINE, DELICATE, NATURAL!

Such are the FLORAL POWDERS (or sachet powders) prepared at REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY. Even those persons who don't care for Handkerchief Essences strongly approve our Floral Powders, because of their truth to nature and their richness. Especially worth mention is Reynolds's Jacqueminot Rose, the best in all the world. It may sound boastful but it is a fact, nevertheless. Then come our Heliotrope, Jockey-Club, Violet, all very fine. These powders are sold by the ounce, and are much in demand for Holiday Fixings. By the way, we are showing the completest stock of Perfumery ever offered in Plainfield—fine quality, elegant styles, low prices.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

KEAN AGAIN IN A MUSS.

His Plainfield Water Company Once More Has Litigation on Its Hands.

The Union County Water company, of which John Kean, jr., is president, and which has laid nearly twelve miles of water mains from Netherwood to Elizabeth, running through and supplying water to the residents of Fanwood, Westfield, Cranford, Roselle, and Elizabeth, and which has expended more than $30,000, is again in trouble. Its officers were before Vice-Chancellor Pitney of Morristown Thursday and yesterday, in the Union county court-house at Elizabeth, to defend themselves against a suit brought by A. B. Bigelow and his brother, William D. Bigelow, who contest the right of the Union County Water company to hold the franchise or to operate it, claiming that they (the Bigelows) obtained the charter or franchise in 1870, and intended soon to operate it.

The Union County Water company, however, secured a franchise in 1890 and at once constructed a large artesian well at Netherwood, one mile east of Plainfield, from which they pumped water which is sent along the mains through the various towns to Elizabeth. Foster M. Voorhees is secretary, and Benjamin F. Ham is treasurer. The later was treasurer of the famous Credit Mobilier scheme.

The charter obtained by the Bigelows in 1870 was never put in operation, and nearly all the old stockholders, including the plaintiffs who apply for an injunction, are stockholders in the new company, which has made a good stroke in giving water to all the townships in the county, which several times has prevented the destruction, by fire, of some of the small villages along the line. Senator Schenck of New Brunswick is counsel for the plaintiffs, and R. V. Lindabury and Frank Bergen appear for the Water company.

SLURS ON THE "WINDY VILLAGE."

Somerville Again Throwing Mud at Her Superiors.

Under the caption "Revenge Is Sweet", the Harkinstown Democrat says: "The Crescent League is to be sold out by the West End sheriff. The Plainfield Press of last Saturday says that the creditors of the Crescent League are not satisfied with the arrangements made by the Club and have levied on the goods and chattels and will sell them at public auction. The ball grounds and most of the club's belongings being in Somerset county will necessitate their being sold by Sheriff Dilts, a West Ender of long standing. In fact Dilts is an 'old Leaguer'. And, by by the way, we wonder if at the sale the pennant which the Crescents won this year in the League will be disposed of. Who has ever seen this emblem of victory. After the last game the manager of the Crescent League sent a marked copy of the Press to Spaulding's with a request that the pennant be shipped to the 'Windy Village'. A reply came back that no pennant had been offered for the year 1892. So, after all, Plainfield was only chasing a phantom while putting up their hard earned dollar week by week, and how many times during the season did 'Hop Toad Hofford' and 'Tough Willie' laugh in their sleeves at the way they were pulling the Crescent's legs."

AN EX-FREEHOLDER'S SUIT.

Mr. Pierson Wants $60,000 Damages From the Central Railroad.

Ex-freeholder James T. Pierson, of Westfield, has begun a suit for damages against the Central Railroad company, asking for heavy damages. Mr. Pierson was badly hurt Sept. 16, 1892, at Chester in a wreck on the High Bridge branch of the Central.

The train while going at a high rate of speed, ran into a freight train, and the car in which Mr. Pierson was sitting was thrown with great violence from the track. He was hurt internally, and since the accident has been unable to attend to any business, and his physician says his case is incurable. It has cost the plaintiff up to date $1,000 for medical artendance, and he asks for $60,000 damages from the railroad company.

"McFee of Dublin."

For a long time it had been evident that if John T. Kelly could obtain a play which would give him full scope to his talents, he would take his place among the most prosperous of Irish comedians now starring in this country. Such a play he has at last found in "McFee of Dublin", which had its first presentation here last September and so pleased everybody that a return date was booked for next Monday evening. Mr. Kelly's performance in the title role is a masterpiece of comedy characterization, full of originality, replete with genuine humor, and altogether the best thing he has ever done. But Mr. Kelly does not (like some acters who might be named) desire to shine as a star in a bundle of sticks. He has surrounded himself with an excellent company, more than one member of which has previously enjoyed stellar distinction. An important part is given to Fiorrie West, that charming comedienne, the superiority of whose vocal and terpsichorean abilities is everywhere acknowledged. The fine voice and excellent method of Adelaide Randall, the widely known prima donna, enhance the enjoyment of music with which the play abounds. Harry Kelly is prominently cast, and justifies his reputation as an eccentric comedian, and, in fact, the company together is one of the best in its line now on the road.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite Railroad Station. 5-16-7

CARLYLE HARRIS HOPEFUL.

His Mother Speaks of Another Side of His Life.

Mrs. Harris, mother of the condemned murderer, since her departure from the city for New York, has been making strenuous efforts to save her son from the electric chair. She said yesterday:

"In the trial only one phase of my son's life was exhibited. If the public knew als true history more sympathy would be expressed for him. The noble side of my son's character, his many kindnesses to others, his secret good deeds will appear in print in a few days. It is not true that Carlyle is breaking down. He remains as calm and hopeful as ever, secure in the consciousness of his own innocence."

Harris himself says that he has just learned that his wife gave an overdose of morphine to a girl friend of hers while attending the Jackson School in Harlem. At a subsequent time, Carlyle stated, his wife gave her friend a second dose of morphine at Long Branch. The prisoner asserts that the evidence was not presented at the trial because he knew nothing of it. The girl did not offer it, because she feared the publicity, and also because she thought that it was not necessary. Harris also stated that he had other evidence showing that his wife was in the habit of taking morphine.

The remittitur of the Court of Appeals in the case of Carlyle W. Harris was received yesterday by clerk Carroll of the General Sessions. Harris will be arraigned before Recorder Smyth for resentence next Tuesday.

The Coming Great Carnival.

At the Crescent rink Tuesday night, will be witnessed one of the greatest spectacular events ever beheld in this section, the occasion being the production of the "Great Historical, Columbus Costume and Fancy Dress Roller Skating Carnival" which has been advertised far and wide the entire winter, looked forward to with much expectation and now is close at hand, as will be seen by the big advertisement occupying the first two columns of the first page in to-day's issue of THE PRESS.

The fact of it being produced under the auspices of the National Skate and Bicycle syndicate is a guarantee of the affair, as this concern has made a specialty of "Carnivals" on bicycles, and roller and ice skates, which they have given in all leading cities and summer resorts throughout the world. One of the principal features of the carnival will be the great number of prizes offered as an inducement for people to dress, which demonstrates the liberality of the syndicate. The list in the advertisement will show how to dress or "make-up" in order to secure one of the fifty prizes offered.

Tickets are now on sale at the North avenue pharmacy, opposite the station.

Dunellen's Polite Society.

The Dunellen Weekly Call tells of "A number of young people who took a sleigh ride to Fanwood last Friday evening and stopped at a well-known hostelry and ordered supper. The proprietor gave them his best room in which to wait until he might prepare the meal. While there assembled, the party passed several pleasant moments narrating some event or story that had happened on their journey.

"One of the young men present, on seeing a Maltese cat upon the sofa, took pussy in his arms, and, fondling it, asked the fair companion who had accompanied him whether she did not wish she was the cat for the time being.

"The cat seemed to object to this, but we cannot say whether through jealousy or the familiar manner of the gent, but to his great surprise,

"She quietly took her dainty paw
And cuffed the gent over the jaw.
"—Shakespeare, page 47."

Thinks the Crescents a Jolly Set.

The Elizabeth Journal, speaking of the efforts being made to rejuvenate the Crescent League, and of the prospects that by spring the League will be free from debt and on its feet again, says:

"This is a piece of good news which every true lover of sports will be glad to hear. The Crescent boys are a jolly nice lot of fellows and they are to be congratulated upon their good fortune in escaping the calamity which stared them in the face."

Plainfielders Go a-Sleighing.

In its Roselle notes the Elizabeth Journal of last evening says:

"A sleigh-ride party from Plainfield, which was arranged by Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Shepherd, arrived here early last evening and called on Mr. and Mrs. Strouthers, of First avenue. Refreshments were served, and a general good time was enjoyed by the visitors. The party left at a late hour and arrived home at 2 this morning."

Mrs. Harris's Sad Endeavor.

(Elizabeth Journal.)

Whatever may be thought of the verdict in the case of Carlyle W. Harris, who is under death sentence for poisoning his girl-wife, there can only be the deepest sympathy for the heart-broken mother who is now using her utmost endeavors in the apparently hopeless effort to save her wretched son. Mrs. Harris lives in Plainfield, but is now in New York city, lavishing her strength and her fortune in this sad endeavor.

—Patrick Donovan and Thomas Burns were prisoners before judge Coddington this morning on the charge of intoxication and fighting. Burns acknowledged his fault and paid a fine of $8. Donovan pleaded not guilty and will be tried Monday.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years with distressing pain over my eyes. I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured. Z. C. Warren, Rutland, Vt.

I suffered from a severe cold in my head for months and could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in its cure. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Samuel J. Harris, wholesale grocer, 119 Front street, New York.

Those Poor Shivering Motor Men.

Abner Bartlett, jr., a philanthropic and generous citizen of this city, offers to head with $10 a subscription list to provide comfort for the street railway motor men by building a shelter about them in whatever way will be the most practical and complete.

Mr. Bartlett's intentions are highly proper and not out of place, and show his considerate and liberal spirit, but THE PRESS believes that when the public reads the company's statement in regard to the matter—which THE PRESS is awaiting with patience—even Mr. Bartlett will be satisfied.

All may be sure it is from no thought of saving money that the company has not provided vestibule cars in Plainfield.

GLEASON TO BE OUSTED

Long Island's City Hall Will be Taken by Storm.

SANFORD'S MEN ANXIOUS TO FIGHT.

Police and Fire Departments Still on Gleason's Side—Chief Casey Removed—Prospect of a Lively Time Before the Trouble is Settled.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 21.—Claimant Sanford's followers are to storm the City Hall of Long Island City to-day and evict Mayor Gleason and his opponents by violence. Deputy Sheriff Henry W. Sharkey said last night that he would lead the attacking party. The men who will compose the mob are assembling at Sanford's headquarters.

It is said that the Sanford faction has hired 30 Pinkerton detectives, who will join in the threatened attack upon the City Hall to-day.

The peaceable citizens of the city feared that the bitter enmity between the Gleason and Sanford factions would break out into bloody street riots last night.

Many of Sanford's followers are hot-headed individuals.

Gleason is known as a man of great determination and combativeness. His friends are by no means weaklings. They say that they will not seek violence, but that if Sanford's adherents start a fight they will wipe up the principal streets of Long Island City with them.

Gleason still enjoys the support of the Police and Fire Departments. The Board of Aldermen held a short session at 8:30 o'clock last evening. Sanford's newly created City Clerk, Goldner, was present. He demanded the books and papers of the City Clerk's office from City Clerk Burke's assistant, John P. Hayes, who replied that he would not turn them over until he should have been ordered to do so by a court. The Board then adjourned until to-night.

Mr. Gleason yesterday issued warrants on the City Treasurer aggregating $1,500. City Treasurer Bleckwetn refused to honor them. Mandamus proceedings will be begun at once. The Mayor said last night: "Justice Bartlett's decision was in my favor, and I am still the only legal Mayor of this city."

Gleason yesterday removed Chief Casey of the Fire Department and appointed James Greer to succeed him. He removed Casey because he thought Casey was not attending to his duties properly.

THE JERSEY CITY ACCIDENT.

Responsibility For the Wreck Rests Between Signalmen June and Edwards.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The fixing of the responsibility for the accident on the Pennsylvania railroad, Thursday night, just outside of Jersey City, by which one life was lost and many injured, rests entirely on the word of two men, who tell different stories.

One thing has been settled beyond doubt. The signal, which engineer Farrell of the Chesapeake & Ohio express saw when he entered Signalman June's block, was a white light.

June admits that it was white and says he changed it from red to white as the express approached, but says that John Edwards, who was in the signal tower at the coal chutes, gave him the signal on his electric bell, "all clear." He then signalled the express to that effect."

Edwards denies that now, and says that he did not ring clear for the simple reason that he could see the stalled train.

Superintendent of Police Smith of Jersey City, has had several detectives looking into the matter and shadowing the railroad men. In not making any arrests at once on charges of manslaughter, he is acting under instructions from the District Attorney.

HAYTI'S REVOLT PUT DOWN.

President Hippolyte's Forces Successful—Sudden Death of His Son.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A special from Port au Prince, Hayti, says:

The government troops have been victorious in their mission according to advices just received here.

The forces under the command of the Minister of War have returned in triumph from L'Anse de Neau, where the uprising against the government of President Hippolyte has been entirely crushed. They captured a number of prisoners, who are now in jail in this city.

Additional excitement was caused when news was circulated that the eldest son of the President had died in the palace.

There was a rumor that he had been poisoned by enemies of the President, and this increased the uneasiness.

The residents of Port au Prince had already been worked up to a high tension. During the night friends of the exiles who are living in Kingston, Jamaica, had placarded the city with inflammatory posters, which created alarm.

SEVEN THOUGHT TO HAVE PERISHED

The Schooner Volant Towed Into San Francisco Bottom Up.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The hull of the schooner Volant was towed into port yesterday bottom up.

She was found near Point Gordo on the northern coast of California. The Volant left Eureka, Cal., for San Francisco recently, and had on board Capt. A. L. Peterson, First Mate Thompson and a crew of five men.

Nothing has been seen of them since and it is believed that they perished.

The Wisconsin Senatorship.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 21.—The Bragg men say the Senatorial battle is all but won for them. The adjournment last night has given opportunity for discussion by members with constituents and changes are looked for when the caucus meets Monday night. It is said Mitchell is not so confident, fearing a break among Knight men after the first ballot which will not be favorable to them.

City of Macon Floated and Proceeds.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—The steamer City of Macon, from Boston for Savannah, which was ashore yesterday on the east end of Squash Meadow, came off last evening all right and proceeded. Vessels could not reach her, and the extent of damage cannot be given until she reaches port.

The Montana Deadlock.

HELENA, Mont., Jan. 21.—The joint ballot for Senator showed no change. There is still no choice.

NEW YORK STATE'S FINANCES.

Comptroller Campbell Wants the Inheritance Tax Increased.

ALBANY, Jan. 21.—State Comptroller Campbell has transmitted to the Legislature his annual report for the past year. In it he says:

"There is now practically no State debt, and the State's finances are in a satisfactory and sound condition. The balance in the Treasury Oct. 1, 1891, was $7,548,731; receipts from all sources during the past fiscal year were $15,241,796; total, $22,771,547; the payments during the year were $19,323,494; the balance in the Treasury Sept. 30, 1892, was $3,449,053.

"The total capital of the several banks funds of [illegible] in cash and securities at the close of the fiscal year, valuing investments at par, was $9,159,135.

Referring to the county loans, he says: 'The loan commissioners do not seem to understand the responsibility of their duties, and great care should be exercised in the examination of all outstanding loans."

He suggests that the Inheritance Tax law be so amended that the rate be fixed at 1 per cent. upon estates over $10,000 and up to $100,000; 2 per cent on all sums over $100,000 up to $500,000; 3 per cent. upon sums in excess of $500,000 up $1,000,000, and 5 per cent. upon all sums in excess of $1,000,000. He says: "By adopting such a scale of rates the great accumulations of personal wealth would be required to contribute once in a generation in a substantial way to the expenses of the government, and would I believe, be most satisfactory to the great body of taxpayers of the State."

STABBED HER SON TO DEATH.

Mrs. Taggart Became Angered at a Question He Asked.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—In a sudden fit of ungovernable anger Mrs. Mary Taggart last night stabbed to death with a single knife thrust, her son Thomas Davis, a 17-year-old boy, by a former husband.

The Taggart family, consisting of John Taggart, Mrs. Taggart, their 7-year-old boy and young Davis, lived in the attic of a cheap lodging house at 310 North Ninth street.

Taggart did little towards providing for the family and the $4 a week earned by his stepson was the main support of the needy household.

When Thomas came home last evening he asked his mother why she was never ready to eat supper with him. The boy was seated at the table at the time and his question enraged the woman and she turned suddenly from the stove, where she was cooking buckwheat cakes, and thrust a knife into the breast of her son.

He died in a few minutes and an officer arrested Mrs. Taggart.

RACETRACK LEGISLATION.

More Racing and Less Betting Seems to Be the Object.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Mr. Guenther has introduced in the Assembly a bill increasing from thirty to forty-five the number of days on which races may be held under the Ives Pool law, such racing to be held between April 1 and Dec. 1 and providing that all pool selling shall be confined to tracks where the races take place and on the days when the races take place.

The Negligent Telegrapher Sentenced.

NORWICH, Conn., Jan. 21.—Charles J. Carroll, the negligent telegraph operator on the New London & Northern road, who wrecked two trains and caused the death of five men and four horses, was sentenced in the Superior Court to one year in jail and costs. If the costs are not paid his term of imprisonment will be about 16 months.

Smallpox in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 21.—Smallpox is reported to be on the increase in Brooklyn. Six patients have been moved to the hospital during the past two days.

Found Dead at Steelton, N. J.

STEELTON, N. J., Jan. 21.—The body of a well dressed man was found beside the Pennsylvania railroad track at Steelton yesterday. Letters and cards having on them the name of John H. Cole, Clearfield, Pa., were found on his clothing. It is thought that the man fell from an express train. The authorities of Clearfield have been notified.

The Child Drank Whiskey and Died.

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 21.—William D. Monahan, 4 years old, son of Richard Monahan, a saloon keeper of Locust street, died of alcoholic poisoning last night. The little fellow went behind his father's bar while no one was around, and, climbing on a chair, took down a bottle of whiskey and drank almost a pint.

Umbria to Start Back Jan. 28.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The Cunard people hope to start the Umbria back to England on Jan. 28. The work of repairing her broken shaft has been difficult. The contractors for the repairs say that such a job has never before been attempted in this country. The Umbria will carry no passengers on her return, but will be loaded with freight.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE

Legislation that Will be Attempted This Week.

THE SILVER REPEAL MEASURE.

Appropriation Bills Have Precedence in the House and Other Matters Must Give Way—Thought that Most of the Delayed Electoral Certificates Will be Presented by To-night.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The backward state of the annual appropriation bills has impressed itself upon Congress. The Senate is chargeable with the greater delay in this matter, not one of the bills having yet passed that body, although the House has sent over three which are ready for action.

It is the general expectation that the Anti-Option bill will come to a final vote before the middle of this week, and then the Appropriation committee will probably take the lead, beginning with the Fortifications or the Army Appropriation bill, and following with the others as rapidly as they can be reported.

There may be a suspension of the order in this respect long enough to allow debate and action upon the Cherokee Outlet bill, some of the Interstate Commerce bills, and one or two other measures, which the Committee on Order of Business may decide to call up, but none of these is likely to be of such a nature as to arouse party feeling.

That will probably manifest itself in the executive sessions during the week in connection with the McComas nomination, which was the unfinished business when the Senate closed its doors.

To-morrow, by notice already given, the Senate will listen to eulogies upon the late Senator Barbour, of Virginia.

The Silver Repeal bill is the unknown quantity in all calculations as to the business of the Senate and it may become the live issue at any time upon motion of a Senator to proceed to its consideration, but at this time no such purpose is openly expressed.

The probabilities are that the House during the coming week will also occupy itself largely with the delayed appropriation bills and will make an effort to catch up with the record of previous short sessions of Congress on these supply bills.

To-day is District day under the rules, but Mr. Holman intends to call up the Sundry Civil bill and to ask the District to give way. No calculation can be made as to the length of time it will take this bill, with all its numerous and varied items appealing to local interests, to pass the House.

It may go through almost as rapidly as the clerk can read its provisions or it may drag along for days. The appropriation for survey of public lands is regarded as especially insufficient by western members, but on this as on other items, a vigorous fight may not be made in the House as the bill has to pass the scrutiny of the Senate.

The Torrey Bankruptcy bill is the special order for to-morrow and Wednesday, but the order gives appropriation bills precedence, and therefore the Bankruptcy bill will have to yield the floor to appropriations, Mr. Blount purposing to call up the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill to-morrow unless the Sundry Civil bill is in the way.

The General Deficiency bill is last on the calendar and will be called up at the first opportunity, and the Military Academy bill is ready for report to the House at any time.

Of the other appropriation bills, the Legislative, Pension, Agriculture, Indian, Postoffice and Naval bills are still in the hands of sub-committees.

MESSENGERS WILL REPORT TO-DAY.

Believed That Most of the Missing Electoral Certificates Will be Filed by Night.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The missing certificates of the electoral colleges of several States which ought to have been delivered by special messenger into the hands of the President of the Senate before the fourth Monday in January, have not come to hand as yet to-day, but intimations have been received that most of them are on the way and may be expected by night.

Fourteen States have failed to comply with the law by sending on their electoral certificates by messenger, and many of those States which have complied with the law have done so in so slipshod a manner that if the late election had been in any way close the official ascertainment of the result under the constitution and the laws might have been made almost impossible and the whole government might have been thrown into chaos.

The failure of so many States to comply in a matter of such vital importance as the election of the President and Vice-President has called attention to the advisability of the passage of a general law to regulate the form of certificates to be issued in such cases.

YOUNG LUNING'S INSANITY.

The Millionaire Became Violent on His Yacht in Mid-Ocean.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The exact facts as to the sudden mental derangement of John Luning, son of the late San Francisco millionaire, and his subsequent removal from the yacht Alert, at Nice, to Paris, are as follows:

Luning began acting peculiarly when half across the Atlantic. He grew rapidly worse until his arrival at Nice, when his friends whom he was entertaining decided that for his own welfare they ought to place him under restraint.

They telegraphed to John Peters, formerly Luning's schoolmate in San Francisco, and now a student of art in Paris, the details concerning Luning's condition.

Peters, Frank Unger and Harry Gillig went to Nice and took Luning back to Paris.

They summoned to the hotel Dr Warren Bey, an American physician, and subsequently they called Dr. Charcot.

Upon the recommendation of both physicians Luning was removed to a private asylum. His friends then cabled to London for an English physician and he will bring Luning to London shortly.

A despatch from Paris says that Luning planned to marry in Paris a young woman from New York, who was there awaiting his arrival.

Another Sleighing Party Struck at a Grade Crossing.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 23.—At half past 11 last evening a sleighing party returning from Horseheads to this city was struck on a grade crossing a mile outside of the city limits by an express train on the D. L. & W. road.

Three young men were on the front seat of the sleigh and three young ladies on the rear seat. All were thrown a considerable distance alighting in the snow. One of the girls, Bertha Munson, was instantly killed and another, Vira Wheeler, so badly injured that recovery seems impossible.

The others escaped unhurt.

THE KEEPERS ACCUSED

Alleged Cruelty in the Middletown Insane Asylum.

BRUTAL TREATMENT OF JOHN ENNIS.

His Friends in Waterbury Say He Has Been Terribly Beaten and Maltreated—They Engage an Attorney to Push the Charges—Excitement Over the Matter.

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 23.—Friends of John Ennis of this city, an inmate of Middletown insane asylum, have engaged Attorney Hollihan to investigate serious charges against the keepers at that institution and institute proceedings against them for, as they allege, inhuman treatment. Two days ago three friends of Ennis went to the asylum to see him and found him in a pitiable condition. Ennis is only mildly insane and on many subjects talks intelligently.

It is alleged that the visitors found him black and blue from head to foot, his head cut in several places and with nothing but coarse and badly applied bandages about his wounds. His forehead showed where a heavy stick had made a gash a couple of inches in length directly over the eye. Several stitches closed the wound in a botched job.

Only the man's eyes and nose were visible, the rest of his head and face being covered with bandages. His legs and arms were swollen and his whole appearance miserable in the extreme. He told his friends that he had been terribly beaten and maltreated by the keepers, and that there were several others almost as bad.

He was about to show them the wounds on his legs when the keepers entered the room and sharply ordered him to stop.

He did so in short order and with every appearance of great fright. Ennis said that one morning recently he remained in bed a moment longer than the time when the keeper rushed into his room and beat him unmercifully with a club about two feet long, inflicting the wounds about his head. Complaints, he said, only brought on a repetition of the thrashing.

The men who visit the patient and tell the stories are reputable citizens and bear excellent reputations. The charges will be thoroughly investigated, and if they are found to be true will be vigorously pushed.

The keepers, when questioned regarding the charges, simply stated that Ennis was a very hard patient to deal with, and it was often found necessary to use force to control him.

The attendant who has charge of Ennis, however, denies that the patient has been punished as alleged, although he admitted that Ennis was often stubborn and difficult to subdue.

Ennis' friends claim that he is and always has been a very quiet and peaceable man, and not at all inclined to make trouble.

There is considerable excitement over the charges, and developments are eagerly awaited.

THURSTON HAS WITHDRAWN.

Paddock and Crounse Now to Fight for the Nebraska Senatorship.

OMAHA, Jan. 23.—The Bee prints to-day a letter from John M. Thurston, formally withdrawing from the Nebraska Senatorial contest.

Mr. Thurston states as his reason that the interests of his client, the Union Pacific Railroad company, demand his full attention, and he is therefore constrained to forego his ambition politically.

This move will have the effect of strengthening the position of Mr. Paddock, but it will not give him a clear track by any means. Gov. Crounse is coming forward more and more, and, next to Paddock, has the most strength on the Republican side.

The Kansas Senatorship.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 23.—The Senators here are busy trying to solve the Senatorial problem. The fight of Democrats and Republicans is to beat Judge John Martin. The majority of Populists, including Gov. Lewelling and his administration, are for Martin. One wing of the Populists and the great majority of the Democrats express a desire to beat him, but with whom is the question.

An Ohio Man's Big Appetite.

CANTON, O., Jan. 23.—Frank Renier entered Peffer's restaurant, South Akron, and ordered an oyster stew, which he ate. Then followed a chicken stew, a whole fried chicken, and a dozen fried oysters. Some one wagered that he could not eat a quart of raw oysters in five minutes. Renier let the quart slip down his throat in exactly four minutes. He is still at large.

Cardinal Gibbons in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Cardinal Gibbons preached in St. Matthew's Church yesterday to an overflowing congregation comprising most of the Diplomatic Corps and many other distinguished persons. After the services the Cardinal held a reception at the residence of Col. Jerome Bonaparte, and then returned to Baltimore.

The Embezzling Manager Arrested.

ROME, Jan. 23.—M. Cucinello, manager of the Bank of Naples, was arrested last night for the embezzlement of 2,000,000 lire. He was disguised as a priest when recognized by the police.

Portuguese Cabinet in Danger.

LISBON, Jan. 23.—The existence of the Portuguese Cabinet is believed to be endangered in view of the opposition of the Regenerators and Progressists to its financial schemes.

THE ALBANY LEGISLATURE.

Hard Work to be Commenced This Week—Gov. Flower's Appointments.

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—The standing committees of both Houses of the Legislature have not yet settled down to work and usually do not until the latter part of January. Nearly all of the committees have days set for meetings this week and a few hearings on unimportant bills have been arranged for.

The nominations for commissioners of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Railroad Commissioner and the others transmitted to the Senate last week by Gov. Flower, it is expected will be confirmed during the week.

Senator McClelland (Dem.) of Westchester, who opposed immediate confirmation at the time the nominations were sent in, said afterwards that he did so on general principles, as he thought all nominations should be referred to a committee before confirmation.

FEAR A GREAT FLOOD.

The Warm Weather Causes Apprehension Along the Monongahela.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 23.—The warmer weather and rain here and at up-river points furnishes good ground for the gravest anxiety among people with property interests in or along the rivers, particularly the Monongahela.

A pilot here from as far up as Morgantown, W. Va., states that the conditions for 70 miles are such that only the most gradual thawing weather would avert a great disaster. He says that what will be literally moving mountains of ice will come down with any considerable rise, getting a good start in weight and volume of ice with the opening of the big gorge at Morgantown, where the ice is from two to fifteen feet deep for miles.

Everyone here is apprehensive of a great flood when the thaw comes. Many merchants and others doing business along the river front have taken time by the forelock and have removed their goods from the cellars to the upper floors of their buildings.

AN UNBROKEN FIELD OF ICE.

Lake Erie Frozen as It Has Not Been for Many Years.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 23.—Not in the history of the present generation has Lake Erie been frozen as it is now. There is an unbroken field of ice from the Detroit River to Put-In-Bay.

Fishermen have driven 15 miles out from Monroe, and returned with the statement that the ice was solid all the way, and that it extended as far as they could see.

The entire Lake Erie archipelago is frozen up, and teams are crossing the mouth of the Detroit River.

Considerable uneasiness is felt because if the winter breaks up as it usually does there can scarcely fail to be a very serious flood.

HOTEL WRECKED BY BOMBS.

Another Dynamite Outrage in Rome—Anarchists Accused.

ROME, Jan. 23.—Dynamite bombs exploded almost simultaneously yesterday afternoon before the Hotel d'Angleterre and in the garden of the proprietor's house. The hotel was partly wrecked.

Every window and every piece of crockery, glassware and bric-a-brac in the hotel was smashed. The front wall was cracked in three places to the second floor, and at the door where the bomb exploded a large hole was torn.

Nobody was injured, although the hotel had more than 100 lodgers at the hour of the explosion. The people ran into the street without waiting to take money or jewelry.

Anarchists are believed to be responsible for the outrage.

KING HIS CHILD HOME

Last Act in the d'Heirry Elopement Case.

A CHASE ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

Where Teacher Morse, Who Ran Away with the Wife of the Assistant Attorney-General of Washington, Can Not be Found—Mrs. d'Heirry Tried to Kill Herself and Daughter When Morse Deserted Them in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A baptismal ceremony has rarely been performed under more distressing circumstances than one which the Rev. Mr. Miel, assistant to the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, officiated at the rectory of St. George's Protestant Episcopal church yesterday afternoon. The candidate was the pretty 7-year-old daughter of Paul d'Heirry, Assistant Attorney-General of the State of Washington, and formerly a colonel of militia. The veiled lady, who proved to be the mother of the child, was one of the witnesses, and it was at her request that the ceremony took place.

When the words were spoken which consecrated the little girl to God, the mother seized the child and all but smothered it with kisses.

Then, with a loving glance at her husband, and a caress for the child, Mrs. d'Heirry said: "Good-by, Paul; God bless you, Orta," and staggered out of the room.

When Attorney-General d'Heirry parted with his wife at the altar he saw her perhaps for the last time. Mrs. d'Heirry had been led into a course of action which the husband, fondly as he loved her, could not condone.

She had eloped with a man whom her husband had befriended, and had taken the child with her. Col. d'Heirry had followed them across the continent, and after months of search had discovered their whereabouts, got possession of his little child, and prepared to return to-day with it to his home in Seattle.

Col. d'Heirry, who is a distinguished Republican politician and lawyer in Washington State, was married in 1890. Five months later a baby girl was born to them. Shortly afterward d'Heirry built a beautiful residence in Seattle and presented it to his wife as birthday gift. Mrs. d'Heirry, who was musically inclined, induced her husband soon after they established themselves in their new home to employ Edward G. Morse to instruct her and her little daughter upon the piano and violin.

In November last Mrs. d'Heirry told her husband that she intended visiting relatives in the East and Col. d'Heirry gave her $400 to pay expenses of herself and little Orba, as well as tickets over the Northern Pacific railroad. He was ignorant at the time that his wife had disposed of the house he had presented to her and other property worth $10,000.

The day Mrs. d'Heirry left Seattle, Morse disappeared, and later a friend apprised d'Heirry of the fact that the music teacher and Mrs. d'Heirry had gone away together.

On discovering the elopement d'Heirry consulted a brother lawyer and they instituted a search for the wife and her companion. They followed the fugitives from city to city, and having enlisted the services of Supt. Byrnes and Inspector Williams, ascertained that on Dec. 15 there had appeared upon the register of the Everett house, this entry: "Morse and wife."

Investigation demonstrated that Morse, the woman and child had taken rooms, two days later, with a Mrs. De Sote, a French boarding house keeper in East Twenty-third street.

On calling there d'Heirry was informed that Morse had left there Jan. 15. He also ascertained that Morse had deserted his companion and had taken nearly all the money she had possessed. The landlady declared that one night after Morse had disappeared she found Mrs. d'Heirry and not him alone she supposed was Morse's wife sitting by side with little Orba, fast asleep in their room with the gas unlighted and turned on at full head. A few days afterward Morse reappeared. He was confronted by the Colonel at Mrs. De Sote's house. Before being threatened, Morse conducted the husband to the wife and daughter.

They went to a restaurant at Third avenue and Sixteenth street known as the Metropolitan, and in a room over it, discovered mother and daughter. The wife begged to be forgiven and besought the husband to spare her the child.

Col. d'Heirry would not listen to the suggestion and at last Mrs. d'Heirry said: "Come, it is better so. She will be better off with you."

The husband and wife parted. Col. d'Heirry went back to the East Twenty-third street boarding house, paid the bill which had contracted, and then took his daughter to the Hoffman house.

The Colonel agreed to have the baptism take place, at the wife's entreaty. He starts for home to-day

Morse's whereabouts is unknown. The police are searching for him.

"I have used ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS for some years for myself and family, and, as far as able, for the many suffers who come to us for assistance, and have found them a genuine relief for most of the aches and pains which flesh is heir to. I have used ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS for all kind of lameness and acute pain, and, by frequent experiments, find that they can control many cases not noticed in your circulars.

THE VILLAGE IN DANGER.

Scotch Plains' Need of Hydrant Service — A Plainfield Watchman Pulls Box 16 for a Distant Fire.

Fire at 12:20 Saturday night destroyed a barn owned by John Marsh at Scotch Plains. A cow and two horses perished in the flames. The loss was $2,000, fully insured.

The Scotch Plains and Fanwood fire departments turned out and did good work. The hot flames of the ruins were not extinguished till nearly 3 a. m.

The East Front street night watchman saw the glare, and pulled box 16. The firemen for that district took their apparatus out to Cole's hill and found the fire so far away that they returned and sounded the recall.

The burned barn stood in the heart of the village, which was in serious danger of wholesale conflagration.

The lesson of the fire should be heeded. It is that high-pressure hydrants such as those of the Plainfield water-service system are greatly needed.

FIRE IN BLIMM'S HOTEL.

Lucky Discovery and Extinguishment of an Early Morning Blaze.

Jacob Blimm and family had a narrow escape from burning to death in their beds at their hotel on Somerset street early this morning. At 5:50 Mrs Blimm chanced to awake and found the entire house full of dense black smoke. She aroused her husband, and they found that burning soot from the chimney had set fire to the fire-board and wood-work of the mantel in the sitting room. The blaze was spreading over the floor, and had made much headway. By sharp fighting the fire was extinguished without sending an alarm, Mr. Blimm being himself a veteran fireman.

The fire had burnt through the floor into the cellar. The loss of $50 is insured.

THEN THEY WENT COASTING.

After Deciding that Ambition and Education Caused More Misery than Did Ignorance and Superstition.

The Wetumpka Lyceum held its regular meeting in the Washingtonville school-house Friday night. In the absence of the president, Robert Clark, the vice-president, W. H. Rogers, took the chair.

After the regular order of business the entertainment committee reported the following programme: Reading by Miss Jessie Coddington; a magic lantern worked by Robert Clark, showing well-known characters of Washingtonville, whom the audience recognized at the first glance, causing much merriment; debate, "Resolved, that Ambition and Education have caused more misery than Ignorance and Superstition".

The leaders of the debate, Robert and Edward Clark, with their seconds, all went over the ground ably. The judges gave the decision in favor of the affirmative. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Four, Misses Maggie and Edith Miles, Jessie Coddington and Jennie Simpson. A spelling match was won by George Beeching.

A vote of thanks was given to the ladies for their kindness. The meeting then adjourned to go coasting on the hill.

THREATENS LIBEL SUITS.

Mr. Bullock Says His Wife No. 3 is Not Blanche Douglass.

Thomas O. Bullock, of New York and Succasunna, has threatened libel suits against THE PRESS and other newspapers for publishing the story that his wife is the notorious Blanche Douglass who was connected with the Malley brothers in the Jennie Cramer murder scandal in Connecticut.

The New York Herald, which first published the report, has since published interviews with Mr. Bullock and his last wife, in which both deny that she was Blanche Douglass, but that before her marriage she was Miss Gertrude Saunders, of Brooklyn, a daughter of the late Ezra B. Saunders, of the United States Army. Mr. Bullock called at the Dover Index office and requested the publication of an article in denial which his attorney would prepare, but that paper says it has not yet secured the article nor heard anything further about the matter.

Mr. Bullock claims to have a letter from Mr. Smith, counsel for wife No. 2, (Mrs. Ridgeway, of this city), in which he denies having said that the last wife is Blanche Douglass, and says he did not inspire the Herald report, and also one from Hobbs & Gifford, counsel for wife No. 1, offering simular denials. The Herald was imposed upon by its Morristown correspondent and after investigating the facts published the retraction noted above and found that the whole story was gotten up for the purpose of annoying Mr. and the present Mrs. Bullock.

SOME ARE DISSATISFIED.

Lack of Unanimity over the Church Change at Scotch Plains.

The sale of the All Saints' church property at Scotch Plains from mission to parish is to be proceeded with as announced in these columns last week. The trustees were authorized at yesterday's meeting to make the transfer.

A prominent member of the church said this morning that there was warm feeling against the methods employed in securing the change. He and others object to members of the new parish organization working, while still trustees of the old and flourishing mission, against the mission and in the interests of the parish. So they have withdrawn from the contest and are holding aloof. They feel that the church which as a mission was strong and prosperous is weakened by the change.

EVANGELIST MILLS WRITES.

Sweet Singer Greenwood Has Left Him—He Likes Elizabeth as Much as Plainfield.

The young men who ushered at the Mills revival in Elizabeth have organized what they term a Union Revival Ushers' Association, which last Friday night held a meeting bringing together about sixty of the men who were associated in the various lines of work in connection with the Mills meetings last winter, enabling them to renew their fellowship and to look back socially on the scenes and the pleasant experiences of those memorable services. There was an informality about the gathering that was delightful, and gave special opportunities for recalling incidents and impressions.

During the evening, a letter was read from Mr. Mills in which it will be noticed that he speaks of Elizabeth as a preferable place of residence just as he did of Plainfield.

The letter:

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Jan. 9.

MR. C. B. ORCUTT:

My Dear Brother—I am very glad to respond to your request and send a hearty greeting to my friends, the ushers and those associated with them. We have never been in any place in our lives where the people have more secured our confidence and affection than in your city. There is no place on earth I would rather have for my permanent abode (always excepting mosquitoes) than in your city of warm-hearted people. It is a great thing to be given anything to do for God and to be associated with those who esteem it a privilege to work for Him. One of the most delightful things in connection with our work is being brought into contact with men like yourselves, who are eager to be of service to the Master.

I have developed the Ushers' system since I was in Elizabeth to a great extent, as you will see by the copy of a little manual for ushers and assistants, which I have inclosed herewith.

My dear brother, Mr. Greenwood, left me in California for a time at least, and is now the very energetic and efficient secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at San Jose. The Baptist church of that city has, I think, extended him a call to be its pastor, and he has also received a call to be the assistant pastor of the most prominent church of that denomination in San Francisco. Whether he will come back to me after a while or not, I do not know. I have a very efficient substitute, John P. Hillis, who seems to win the hearts of people wherever we go.

With the hope that some day the Lord will direct our steps so that we may meet you again, and with earnest prayer for God's blessing upon you individually and in your associated work for the Master, I remain

Yours in His service,
B. FAY MILLS.

LOOKS LIKE AN ELOPEMENT.

Frank Wilson, a Plainfield Married Man Disappears With Jennie Beers of Elizabeth.

Frank Wilson, the manager of the Jockey club-house on Catherine street, Elizabeth, has disappeared, and it is alleged he has eloped with Jennie Beers, a gay young woman of Elizabeth, who recently spent thirty days in jail for reckless driving. She was unable to pay the $20 fine imposed, and had to go to prison. Jennie is good-looking and dresses well. Wilson is said to have been attentive to her, although he is a married man, and, it is alleged, has a wife living in Plainfield, from which place he went to Elizabeth to take charge of the club-house for his brother's widow. He disappeared on Tuesday, and has not been seen since. Miss Beers is likewise missing.

A woman who claimed to be Wilson's wife went to the club-house last week in search of him and vowed vengeance on Jennie Beers for enticing her husband away. The widow of the former proprietor of the Jockey club-house was in charge of the place this morning when a reporter called there, but she could give no information as to her brother-in-law's whereabouts, and said she did not want to have anything more to do with him.

"Caught" the Mumps from a Plainfield School Two Hundred Miles Away.

Ex-councilman William Thompson is quoted as saying that Dr. Probasco, his family physician, misled him by his remarks about mumps before the board of education. The doctor at that time said mumps was epidemic but not contagious. Mr. Thompson is said to take exception to the doctor's claim. On the strength of the doctor's word, he sent his children to school with which mumps patients were in communication. "They got the mumps, and it is believed that they contracted them from other children at the school; and that this would not have occurred but for his being mislead by the information referred to, the result of which has caused him considerable trouble." A singular feature of the Thompson case is that one of the mumps sufferers is a son at Harvard College. According to the contagion theory, the mumps must have been transmitted through the mail to the son at college from a letter at home.

The Messenger of Wilmington, N. C., contains a two-column article describing the new works of the Almont Chemical and Guano company, recently constructed by Messrs. Powers, Gibbs & Co., on the Northeast river, within the city limits of Wilmington. The head of the firm, E. J. Powers, has relatives and many warm friends in Plainfield, who will learn with pleasure of his continued prosperity. The city of Wilmington has in Mr. Powers a man of large business capacity and push, as is evidenced by the wealth he has amassed during his comparatively brief career in that city. Mr. Powers and his family are looked up to with honor and esteem as leaders in the affairs of Wilmington. Such an upright and enterprising business man is a credit to any place.

A MOTHER'S APPEAL.

Mrs. Harris Pleads for Her Son and Insists that His Conviction of Murder Was Not Justified.

The mother of Carlyle Harris, Mrs. P. McCready Harris, has written a long letter to the newspapers in which she tries to show that her son was not guilty of the murder of his wife, Helen Potts Harris, and that therefore a new trial should be allowed. The letter is written with the approbation of her counsel who has hitherto forbidden such an appeal to the public.

The letter tells at considerable length of the boy's affection for his mother in early youth, and says that instead of being an actor for two years, as charged, he was for a time a member of a private theatrical club, where his talent attracted attention, which led to his engagement as a professional for one week, when he left the stage to please his mother. Then he became a steamship purser, but left that to study medicine.

The letter then tells of what Mrs. Harris saw of the attentions which Carlyle paid to Helen Potts at Ocean Grove in 1889, and of a visit the young lady paid to the Harris's home in January, 1890, when the affection of the young couple for each other was apparent, and Mrs. Harris begged the young woman not to marry the young man "for years to come".

Of the marriage she says that Miss Potts was a Methodist, but Carlyle had often said he would never be married by a preacher.

The keeping of a cafe at Asbury Park in 1890, she says, was to get money to complete his education. Here he let a club take part of his place and run a private bar. "Here was his great mistake", says the letter, for it led to his arrest for keeping a disorderly house. When released, she says, he went away under an assumed name, simply to escape the reporters.

Of the visit of the girl-wife to Mrs. Harris on the night before the poisoning the letter says:

Helen was radiantly happy, and the boy and girl were such evident lovers that when my second son returned from seeing them to the car I said: "I give up the fight; she's had a poor bringing up, but she loves Carl, and I must help her to be a good wife to him."

The next day the young woman was dead. The remainder of the letter is intended to show that the conduct of Carlyle was that of an innocent man—that only an innocent man could have acted as he did—and to explaining the reasons why the writer of the letter went to deliver a lecture instead of calling on the mother of the dead girl. She says that she felt "delicate" about calling on Mrs. Potts, and, moreover, had promised to lecture.

As for Carlyle, he "went immediately to the District Attorney" when the charge of murder was made in print, and asked him to investigate the case.

"He kept saying to me: 'I do n't need any lawyer; the District Attorney will send for you, mother; he is my lawyer.' The District Attorney has never asked me a single question or seemed to care to find out the truth", continues the letter.

Mrs. Harris says Carlyle was advised to run away, but he refused, saying: "I won't do it. I am innocent, and they'll find I am."

The letter concludes as follows:

We have new and important evidence to present on Monday next—affidavits which clearly prove that Helen Potts was addicted to the use of morphine. I demand another trial for my boy, and I ask every lawyer, every doctor, every clergyman, every man or woman who cares for justice to be administered, to demand this new trial. Write your letters immediately, that Recorder Smyth may know the opinion of the public.

Another Victim of Careless Track Walking.

The body of John J. O'Brien, an old resident of Somerville, was found frightfully mangled on a side track between the Bridge street crossing and the Jersey Central station at 9 Saturday evening. From the waist down the legs and body was cut to pieces, and necessitated being put in a box before it could be removed. O'Brien was seen on Bridge street about 8:30 the same evening, by two girls. The theory of the killing is that O'Brien went down to the crossing and seeing the approaching headlight of engine 41 with train due at Somerville at 8:41, stepped upon the side track to get out of the way. He did not see engine 165 waiting on the side track to take the train to Allentown, and in backing down it must have struck and killed him. The engineer of engine 165 examined his pilot but could find no traces of blood, thus proving that the engine went over him backward. County physician Louis T. Reed ordered an inquest, which will take place to-morrow. O'Brien leaves a large family. His age was 60.

THOSE POOR SUFFERING MOTORMEN

They Sit By the Stove an Hour and a Half Every Day, and Are Furnished Hot Coffee.

A PRESS reporter called on Supt. Passmore of the Street Railway company, this morning, and questioned him about the "suffering" motormen and the generous offer that had been made through these columns by Abner Bartlett, jr., to head a subscription list with $10 for the purpose of providing protection for them.

The newspaper man found the railway man, most courteous and ready to explain the company's position. He said: "Had it been considered best, you may be sure vestibuled cars would have been provided. The company is certainly financially able and willing to do so, and it must be well understood by everybody that the question of economy was of secondary consideration in constructing the Plainfield plant as everything provided was the best obtainable.

"Vestibuled cars while a protection to the motormen have, without doubt, been the primary cause of many accidents. They have fronts with glass windows that during a storm become blurred with snow, rain or sleet thereby obstructing the motorman's view and greatly increasing the possibility of accident. This has been proved beyond a doubt in other places; and to the fact that the cars of the Plainfield street railway have open fronts can be attributed the prevention of several casualties in this city. Again, where horses become frightened the open front is of great value, enabling motormen to stop, jump over the dash, and catching the horse perhaps prevent a serious run away. On more than one occasion the above has been done by our men in this city.

"Regarding our poor shivering motormen I can only say that I have yet to receive the first complaint from them. The running time from terminal to terminal is 16 minutes, with a wait at each end of 2 minutes, during which time the men are able to warm themselves beside the fire in the car. Thus of 11½ hours average working time, about 1½ hours (evenly distributed throughout the day) is spent beside the stove. During exceedingly severe weather hot coffee is furnished the men during the day. These facts would certainly show that the motormen of the Plainfield Street Railway company are not such awfully abused and suffering unfortunates as some would believe.

"Upon the employes, in a great measure, depends the responsibility, success and popularity of a road. Appreciating this, the officials of the Plainfield street railway have their employes, interest at heart, and are always ready to provide for their comfort, consistent with the public service and safety."

A YOUNG WOMAN'S PLUCK.

Everyone Who Saw This, Was Proud of the Girl's Bravery.

Saturday afternoon about 5 Miss Delia Voehl was driving along East Front street in company with Masters Edward Springer and Johnnie Carney. In front of White & VanArsdale's she was compelled to turn out to one side of the road, when suddenly the whiffle-tree broke. The horse gave a plunge and threw the trio to the ground. The two children were unharmed. The young lady was thrown on her back and pluckily held fast to the reins while she was dragged as far as Werner's clothing store, when the horse was stopped. All those who witnessed the scene were almost sure that she would be killed. But, judge of their surprise to see spring to her feet, run back, pick up the children, one in each arm, and carry them to the sidewalk. The only damage done was the broken whiffle-tree. Through the kindness of a gentleman the horse was taken to George Voehl's, and the young lady finished her journey on foot, thankful that she was able so to do.

Comrades March to His Grave.

The funeral of Edward Mau took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 in Saengerbund Hall, and 125 members of the Pond Tool Works Mutual Benefit association and the Gesang and Turn Verein marched in a body to the grave at Evergreen cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Robert Skinner, John Kelly and Jacob Conde of the Tool Works, and Henry Haurand, Rudolph Kersting and C. C. Koezel of the Gesang and Turn Verein. M. Heubner delivered the address and the Rev. H. H. F. Schneidreuseler conducted the services. There was music by the singing section of the Saengerbund.

Mysterious Midnight Shots.

Policemen Kiely and Giese explored Stiger's alley late Saturday night to find out why two pistol shots had been fired. They found a number of white and colored people carousing in a house. When they approached, the door was shut to and some one said "Let nobody in". They found a fellow named McCready with his arm around the neck of a woman known as "English Sal". On investigation, no arrest was made.

Reason in Religion.

The Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and other Christian Women will meet in the All Souls' church lecture room, next to the Park house, to-morrow afternoon at 3. The subject will be "Reason in Religion", with topics: 1—The true place of Reason in Religion. 2—Everyday religion, as taught by Jas. Freeman Clark. 3—"The National faith in modern literature." All women are cordially invited.

HORSES AND CATTLE BURNED.

Fire on the Historic Annan Estate Destroys Buildings Dating Back to 1745.

A granary containing seventy tons of hay and hundreds of bushels of grain on the dairy farm of Seller Brothers, at Liberty Corners, Somerset county, was destroyed by fire Friday, with nine cows and two horses. Forty cows and seven horses were rescued from an adjoining barn and stable, which was also destroyed. The damage is $10,000, one-half of which is covered by insurance.

The buildings dated from 1745. The historic farm-house, which out-dated the burned buildings, was saved. It contains valuable colonial furniture. The property was originally known as Annan Corners, and was owned by William Annan, a son of Lord Annandale, of Scotland. It comprised several thousand acres. When Lord Sterling marched through Jersey during the Revolutionary War he sent to his kinsman Annan, to buy 100 head of cattle. Annan refused to send the cattle, and the same night had his cattle, horses and other live stock driven to the patriot army at what is now called Washington Rock, and gave them to General Washington.

DEFENSE OF THE LAKES.

Formidable British "Revenue Cutters" Now in Commission.

Freight-Car Ferryboats That May Be Used for United States War Vessels—Strength and Adaptability of the Boats—Two Already Running.

[COPYRIGHT, 1893.]

Under the 1817 treaty the naval defense to be maintained on the great lakes is limited to one war vessel for Great Britain and one for the United States. Great Britain has never found it necessary to maintain her single warship owing to her ability at any time to run fifty or more gunboats into the lakes from the ocean by way of the Canadian canals.

The naval force of the United States on the lakes is now and has been for many years the single iron sidewheel steamer Michigan, which now rates 685 tons, and carries four howitzers. Now let us see what Great Britain has. There are the two gunboats Constance and Curlew, launched this year, and which have just gone into winter quarters. A third gunboat, the Petrel, launched on Owen sound during the month of November last, will not be commissioned before the opening of spring navigation. She is now at the yards of her builders, at Owen Sound, and will receive her battery during the present winter. The British will keep the Constance and Curlew in commission throughout the winter. Both ships will be ready for active service at any moment. The Petrel when commissioned will also remain continuously in service.

This is the first time in the history of Great Britain's control of Canada that three modern highly efficient gunboats have been deemed necessary for the protection of Canada's lake frontier. There was much secrecy surrounding the construction of the ships, and care was taken to avoid their inspection by outsiders. It would appear that Great Britain's policy is that of a general defense of the Canadian frontier and is the direct outcome of the growing annexation feeling, both in Canada and in the United States.

For military purposes England must hold Canada at all hazards. It gives her a dockyard at Esquimault, her only naval station on the eastern side of the Pacific, and it enables her to send troops to India and her other Asiatic possessions by the Canadian Pacific railroad through her own territory.

The armament of the Petrel is evidently meant for aggressive purposes. She will carry in her battery one 47-inch Maxim-Nordenfeldt rapid-fire supplemented by a battery of 6-pounder Maxim-Nordenfeldt guns. The 47-inch rifle throws a projectile weighing 45 pounds a distance of five miles at a rate of fire of 25 shots per minute. The 6-pounder Maxim-Nordenfeldt gun can throw 45 shots per minute and can pierce 4-inch steel plates at a range of 100 yards. The other boats have similar batteries. Thus, in the event of a war with the United States, cities like Chicago, Milwaukee and Cleveland would be at the mercy of Great Britain and we should be practically powerless. To oppose the immense British fleet which could be brought into the lakes the United States has the three revenue cutters, Johnson, Fessenden and Perry, and the very weak war vessel Michigan. The situation would indeed be very serious were it not for the happy thought of Mr. J. M. Ashley, Jr., the vice president of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railway, who conceived the plan of building gigantic ferryboats for his road, which boats can be converted into warships at twenty-four hours' notice. Two of them have already been launched. They are of great strength and carry twenty-four freight cars each from Kewaunee, Wis., to Frankfort, Mich., across Lake Michigan, a distance of sixty miles, without breaking bulk. This route is operated by several companies, including the Green Bay, Winona & St. Paul, the Grand Trunk, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the owners of the boats, the Toledo & Ann Arbor company. These companies are in very close relation with each other, and for traffic purposes it is practically one line.

There are a number of steamers in the British merchant service on the Atlantic and other seas that can be taken by that government for warlike purposes. The Inman liners, the City of Paris and the City of New York, came under the arrangement which was made when they were building. The United States government, so far as is known, has not yet contracted with the Toledo & Ann Arbor company to use the latter's boats in the remote contingency of hostilities, but the navy department sent naval officers to inspect them with a view to their being utilized in case of war. They were built at the yards of the Craig Shipbuilding company, of Toledo, O.

John Craig, the founder and present head of the Craig Shipbuilding company, was born in New York city in 1826. At the breaking out of the Rebellion he was engaged to rent a number of schooners and steamers from merchant men to gunboats. After carrying on business near Detroit he removed to Toledo and equipped his yards with an improved and complete plant for the construction of iron and steel vessels.

The firm has done much work for the government of the United States. Lieut. Godfrey L. Carden reports that any one of the boats can be converted in all respects into a harbor defense ram, and with a rapid-fire battery well protected by steel shields can justly be expected to silence any craft the British are able to send through the Welland or St. Lawrence river canals. The new vessels have a displacement of 2,550 tons; they are 267 feet in length, with a beam of 52 feet. They have three screws, one on each quarter and the third in the bow. The engines are what are known as the horizontal compound type which will develop a speed of fourteen knots per hour.

The adaptability of the new vessels for ramming purposes will be best understood when it is known that the hull construction is of oak up to two feet above the water line. At the water line there has been provided a belt of iron extending all around the vessel and having a uniform width of six feet throughout.

Extending aft from the bow for a distance of fifteen feet is a solid and massive backing of oak. A steel cord runs round the vessel nipping together the oak backing. Every few feet this steel cord is connected with steel ties running to the keel, a steel plate two feet wide and three-quarters of an inch thick strengthens the keelson. Twelve hundred tons of coal is the capacity of the coal bunkers, sufficient for sixty days' continuous steaming without recoaling. Gun ports can be marked off and cut through for the mounting of broadside rifles. The battery of these vessels—they are all called "Ann Arbor," numbered one, two and so on—can be made up by as heavy ordnance rifles as the navy department may desire. This cannot be said of other vessels on the lakes, as their decks are too light to bear the heavy guns. The naval authorities have long been of opinion that a few fast gunboats, armed with rapid fire guns, can play havoc with the lake shipping and the lake ports.

England's ability to send a large fleet into the lakes has been a matter of discussion and consideration in Washington for some years. The building of the boats described goes a long way toward the settlement of the problem of efficient defense on the part of the United States.

The new British revenue cutters, in the opinion of the United States naval experts, constitute a naval force, and it behooves the United States to be watchful.

Hon. J. M. Ashley, the president of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad, was a member of five congresses, from 1858 to 1868, was governor of Montana in 1869 and was also lieutenant governor of Ohio. It was his son J. M. Ashley, Jr., the vice president of the road, who planned the construction of the boats. It was a decidedly original and bold idea to build a vessel capable of carrying heavily-laden freight cars across the lakes in the stormiest weather, and to have the boat of such strength and character that she would be easily convertible into a warship. It was by no means an afterthought on the part of the junior Ashley. Long before the first boat was launched he stated that the Ann Arbor No. 1 could be used as a fighting vessel, and naval experts have confirmed Mr. Ashley's judgment. Thus, with this gentleman's forethought and patriotism, Uncle Sam may feel secure on the lake border, as with these car ferry boats the United States will have the nucleus of a suitable fleet of vessels, which, had they been intended exclusively for war purposes, could not have been better designed to resist any aggression on the part of Great Britain on the lakes.

THE USEFUL REINDEER.

It Furnishes Everything Needed in a Siberian Family.

Some Wealthy Owners Are Said to Have Herds of Ten Thousand Head—The Cruise of the Revenue Cutter "Bear."

The government revenue cutter Bear, which returned from a summer of cruising about in Alaskan waters, brings many stories of adventure and sport, but none more interesting than such as relates to the game and flesh supplies of the Aleuts, says the San Francisco Examiner. The Bear, after doing a round of inspection which included the seal islands, steamed 900 miles northward from St. Paul's island to St. Matthews, where it was said polar bears were very numerous. St. Matthews was found to be uninhabited except that one lone hunter was found who had been left there in the preceding summer with two companions to shoot bears, but as a showing for a year's labor had but one mangy bearskin, and had lost his fellow-hunters, who sailed away one day and never returned.

Part of the mission of the cutter Bear during the summer was to transport reindeer from Siberia to Alaska. The whale and walrus have grown so few and so shy since the use of improved machinery for capturing them that the Aleuts of Alaska, who depended upon those marine mammals for nearly everything in the way of food, clothing, fuel and general support, have many times been starved because they could not kill either whales or walrus.

Some philanthropist suggested that the American Esquimau might take kindly to reindeer if introduced, and eventually own them in such numbers as to insure a supply of food. The department of the interior became interested, and congress appropriated $15,000 for the experiment. The Bear made five trips between Port Clarence, on the American side, and the Siberian ports from which the reindeer were drawn. The tradition that Siberian herdsmen would not part with live reindeer, although willing to kill and sell them, was proved untrue. There was no difficulty in buying all the deer that could be spared, and during the summer 180 of the animals were carried by the Bear to Port Clarence, a fine harbor fifty miles south from Cape Prince of Wales, where a house was built for the keepers, two white men employed by the government, and a hut for four Siberian herders engaged to stay with the deer for a year.

In Siberia reindeer were seen in herds numbering as many as 5,000, and some owners are reputed to possess 10,000 deer. The strange beasts furnish everything needed in a Siberian family, and as the conditions in Alaska are suitable, it is believed that the Aleuts can be taught to properly care for reindeer. The deer secured for Alaska were caught by rounding up the herd, and compelling the beasts to pass between lines of natives, a dozen or more on each side, each of whom had a lasso. As the deer passed, the selected ones were roped and driven to the beach, from where they were carried hobbled in boats alongside the cutter, and hoisted to the deck by slinging them in hammocks.

The officers of the Bear had the rarest of sport with their guns at many points touched. In St. Lawrence bay a day's shooting of elder ducks brought to bag 104 of those splendid birds. In the middle of June last the Bear was jammed in heavy ice near St. Lawrence island, and was surrounded by walrus, which were sleeping, sunning and enjoying themselves by hundreds on the ice. The ungainly brutes were occasionally hunted and six in all were killed. It was found that they must be shot through the head to insure getting them. When hit anywhere else they always managed to flounder to open water and then immediately sink. By getting to windward of a drove of walrus and creeping over the ice they were readily approached. Then each hunter selected his mark and all fired at once. The native hunters sometimes kill a whole herd. A rifle shot does not seem to alarm them, and if the bullet hits the head the walrus sinks quietly to the ice. But if shot elsewhere it begins to flounder, and then every animal within sight makes for the water.

BISHOP BROOKS' DEATH

General Outpouring of Grief for the Great Divine.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD THURSDAY.

Bishop Potter of New York Will Probably Officiate—The Distinguished Clergyman's Death as Sudden as It Was Unexpected—His Career.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The death of Bishop Brooks, which came as a shock to his multitude of friends and admirers, has called forth expressions of deep personal sorrow from clergymen of all denominations and people in all walks of life, to whom the Bishop was an ideal man and preacher. So sudden came the announcement of his death that those who were nearest to him and who knew him best were completely dazed and unable to give full verbal expression to their sorrow.

At the meeting of Congregational ministers resolutions were passed as follows:

"The Congregational ministers of Boston and vicinity, assembled in their usual gathering, have heard with profound sorrow of the decease of Right Rev. Phillips Brooks, and desire to testify their sense of the great loss which has been experienced, not only by the community in which he held so nobly the offies of Bishop, but by the Church catholic, wherein he was so useful and so honored. But we desire to express their own high regard for one whom they had learned to love and admire for his distinguished abilities, his exemplary Christian character, his broad and generous spirit, and his untiring readiness in every good work. While reverently bowing before the unsearchable providences of God, they mourn with all otners the loss of such a man to the visible Church of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Joseph Cook, Rev. George A. Gordon and others present paid eloquent tributes to the dead preacher. At the meeting of Universalist Ministers these resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That in the death of this peerless preacher and great-hearted humanitarian philanthropist and reformer the Church of Christ sustains an unspeakable if not an irreparable loss.

"Resolved, That by the warmth of his sympathy and the breadth of his charity, he had won the hearts of liberal-minded men of all denominations of Christians, and that we looked confidently to him as the leader who, by his personal influence, his administrative wisdom and powerful personality, should secure a more cordial fellowship and co-operation among the many members of one church which is Christ's body."

The Baptist and Methodist Ministers also held meetings and appointed committes to prepare appropriate resolutions.

Up to last Thursday the Bishop was in the best of spirits. Thursday morning he contracted a slight cold, which, however, caused him no alarm. Dr. Beach, the family physician called during the day and gave him some medicine, advising him, more as a precautionary measure than anything else, to remain indoors until the trouble had disappeared.

Everything progressed well until Sunday when diphtheretical symptoms necessitated the calling in of Doctor Beach. The latter even then found no cause for serious alarm and left promising to call later in the night.

During Sunday evening he seemed to grow worse and as the evening wore on the nurse, Katie Hogan, who has been in the bishop's family over 25 years, and who was especially devoted to him, noticed that he was not so well as earlier in the day.

When Dr. Beach came at something after 11 o'clock the Bishop's disease had taken a very serious turn, and the attending physician becoming alarmed, sent for Dr. Fitz for consultation.

Shortly before midnight, while the doctors were both in attendance, the patient's mind began to wander, although he was still conscious. Looking up at his faithful and beloved servant, Katie Hogan, who had been in the family 25 years, the Bishop said:

"Katie, you can go. I shall not need you any more. I am going home."

These were the last words of the great divine.

After that he lay quietly, was apparently not suffering to any extent, but was not entirely unconscious.

His tremendous vitality seemed to be giving way to the influence of the disease as the night hours passed, and the two doctors in attendance could see that he was gradually weakening.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning he was barely alive, and stimulants had been administered to keep up his fast-ebbing strength.

At 6:30 it was decided to administer a hypodermic injection of brandy. The doctors raised his arm to insert the tube under it, but before the contents could be injected the Bishop was dead.

Phillips Brooks was long known as the best pulpit orator of the Low Church Episcopalians in America. He was born in Boston on Dec. 13, 1835, of an old New England family. He attended the Boston Latin School when a very young boy, and subsequently entered Harvard College. From that institution he graduated in 1855. For a short time, like many another bishop, he was an assistant teacher in the Latin school which he had attended when a boy.

After a brief experience in that position he decided to enter the ministry. In preparation for that he pursued a course of study at the Episcopal Divinity School of Alexandria, Va. He graduated there there in 1859.

He began first as rector of the Church of the Advent in Philadelphia, and subsequently went to the Church of the Holy Trinity in the same city. In 1869 he returned to Boston, to become rector of Trinity Church in Boston.

During his vacations he visited England. He preached in St. Boobolt's Church, and by invitation of Dean Stanley in the Chapel Royal at the Savoy, London. He also preached in Westminster Abbey, St. Margaret's Church, Westminster; St. Mark's Church, Kensington; Christ Church, Lancastergate; Temple Church and Christ Church.

He was listened to by thousands in England, his success there being fully as great as it was at home. While in England he received honorary degrees from both Oxford and Cambridge Universities.

Dr. Brooks was elected Bishop of Massachusetts to succeed Bishop Paddock, on April 30, 1891, being placed in nomination by Rev. Alexander H. Vinton.

He received 92 of the 154 clerical votes, and 71 of the 100 lay votes on the first ballot.

THE LINCOLN BANK FAILURE.

State Funds to the Amount of $212,000 Were Deposited With the Institution.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 23.—The failure of the Capital National bank seems to have been most complete. Bank Examiner Griffith and his assistants are making a searching investigation, but refuse to say anything.

Only a few weeks ago C. W. Mosher, president of the bank, swore that he was worth $500,000 over and above all liabilities, and R. C. Outcalt swore that he was $200,000 over and above his liabilities. Their oaths to this effect were taken when they went on State Treasurer Bartley's bonds.

The same oaths were taken last week when they presented their bank as a bank of deposit for State funds. Those who are familiar with the business interests of the city say that outside speculations by President Mosher and his associates are responsible for the failure.

Mosher was the penitentiary contractor and no doubt made big money. But he was also a lobbyist, and each session of the Legislature cost him a large sum of money. He was forced to engage in the financial schemes of politicians, in order to hold their influence, and in this way put too many irons in the fire.

As a result of the failure, chattel mortgages and deeds on their property have been filed by C. W. Mosher, president, and R. C. Outcalt, cashier of the bank. In every case the dates of these chattels is prior to Dec. 15.

Leading lawyers claim that Treasurer Bartley and his bondsmen are not liable for any State funds that may be lost by the failure, as the bank's bond was approved by the State Banking board, thus relieving them.

Retiring Treasurer Hill had $268,000 of State funds in the bank, which he turned over to his successor. Treasurer Bartley reduced this to $212,000 by small withdrawals.

The total deposits of the bank amount to $650,000. There are thousands of depositors, many being of limited means, who will lose from $50 to $200 each.

QUARANTINE BILL PASSED.

It Goes Through the House by a Vote of 138 Yeas to 26 Nays.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Quarantine bill was passed by the House on a vote counted by tellers, which stood 138 to 2.

Previously, in committee of the whole, the House adopted an amendment by Mr. Warner, (Dem., N. Y.,) extending the quarantine to land boundaries.

An amendment prohibiting interference with migration between States was rejected.

An amendment offered by Mr. Brosius, (Rep., Pa.,) giving the National quarantine supremacy in cases where it exists at the same place with State quarantine, was rejected.

An important amendment, which was voted down, was proposed by Mr. Covert, of New York, the object of which was to prevent the National Government from securing Fire Island as a quarantine station.

MR. PARTRIDGE'S NOMINATION.

Why Minister Scruggs Vacated His Position Is Not Known.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The nomination of Frank C. Partridge of Vermont to be Minister to Venezuela was the first intimation the public had that Minister Scruggs had vacated his mission to Caracas. Mr. Scruggs returned to the United States recently on leave of absence granted because of ill health.

Prior to Mr. Scruggs' departure from his post of duty the Mijares incident occurred, but it is scarcely thought any remnant of unpleasantness arising out of this much exaggerated affair can be in any way responsible for Minister Scruggs' disinclination to return to the post.

MORE TROOPS FOR EGYPT

The Situation Regarded as Alarming in London.

KHEDIVE AREAS IS DETERMINED.

The Natives Are in a Greatly Excited Condition, and Side With Their Ruler Against "Infidel Dictation"—Three Warships to be Sent to the Scene.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Egypt is the absorbing topic of conversation here. The situation is alarming. The Khedive is determined to try conclusions with Cromer, regardless of the consequences. At a special meeting of Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet to consider the situation, it was decided to increase the number of British troops in Egypt because recent occurrences threaten to disturb the peace of the country.

The reinforcements to be sent, it is given out, are not likely to exceed 1,000 troops and two warships for Alexandria and Port Said and one warship for Suez.

The Egyptian situation is assuming a gravity which for the time overwhelms in the public mind all other issues, including even Irish Home Rule.

Lord Roseberry has received telegraphic advices from Lord Cromer that the Khedive has intimated his intention to refer to the Turkish Sultan and to the treaty powers the action of England in causing the dismissal of the Fakhri Cabinet.

Other advices from Cairo state that the natives are in a more excited condition than at any time since the outbreak under Arabi Pasha.

While a considerable part of the moderate and intelligent natives support the British position, the multitude take sides with the Khedive and against what they call infidel dictation.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—A Cairo despatch says that the Sultan has telegraphed to the Khedive his congratulations on the attitude the Khedive assumed in respect to the formation of a Cabinet independent of English interference. The Sultan will send to the Khedive a gift of six horses.

CAIRO, Jan. 24.—Lord Cromer, the British representative in Egypt, in an interview, said: "There is no cause to apprehend a disturbance, but you are at liberty to say that if a disturbance should occur I guarantee it would be of short duration."

The Khedive denies any intention of dismissing British officials from the Egyptian service.

Ismail Pasha's son, chief of the Khedive's military household, has resigned, but his resignation has not been accepted.

LANGLEY DIVORCE SUIT.

Opening of the Case Against the Brooklyn Millionaire.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 24.—William H. Langley, one of Brooklyn's multimillionaires, appeared as defendant in a suit brought in the Supreme Court by Mrs. Langley for absolute divorce.

The Langleys moved in the most fashionable society on Brooklyn Heights.

When the case was called there was a big crowd in the court room, many of the spectators being well known society people from the Heights.

Mrs. Langley named no co-respondent in her complaint but swore that her husband at the United States hotel in this city met with a woman or women unknown to her on various occasions beginning on Dec. 1, 1888, and continuing down to March 29, 1892.

She therefore demands the custody of her children and reasonable provision for herself and them, besides reimbursement for the cost of action.

Two witnesses were examined, Detective Doscher, who had been employed by Mrs. Langley to watch her husband, and Arthur Wells, a bell boy at the United States hotel.

BISHOP BROOKS' FUNERAL.

It Will be Held Thursday at Noon, and Will be Public.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The standing committee of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts met last evening. The duties of the bishop now devolve upon this committee, which now becomes the ecclesiastical council, with full authority in clerical matters.

The committee decides that the funeral of the late Bishop Brooks should be held on Thursday, Jan. 26, in Trinity Church, Copely square, at noon and that it should be public.

It is possible that Bishop Potter of New York will officiate though that matter has not been decided. Mr. A. J. C. Snowden will have charge of the funeral arrangements and interment will be at Mount Auburn.

A committee consisting of George S. Converse, Rev. John S. Lindsay and Francis C. Foster was appointed to draft resolutions and will report Jan. 30 to the Standing Committee.

THE HAYTIAN REVOLUTION.

Believed that the Rebels Will Win in the End.

PANAMA, Jan. 24.—Mail advices received from Hayti fully confirm former reports as to the progress of the revolution. Hippolyte is making strong efforts to crush the revolutionists, and has met with partial success.

The revolution apparently was started prematurely, and the revolutionists had not completed their organization. The vast majority of the people sympathize openly with the revolutionists and most of the others assist them covertly.

The big commercial houses also are supporting the enemies of the present government, both on the island and abroad.

Hippolyte's partial triumph over the revolutionists is not regarded as indicative of the event of the uprising. When the revolutionary forces shall have been fully organized they will unite and probably will have the whole country behind them.

Letters from Port-au-Prince say that no attention should be paid to statements sent out by consuls as they are colored to suit the Government.

The discontent resulting from the poorness of the crops is said to be the immediate cause of the uprising.

Chinese Residents in Philadelphia Paying No Attention to the New Act.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—The Chinese residents of Philadelphia have paid little or no attention as yet to the provisions of the Exclusion act of Congress requiring Chinamen to prove their residence and register before the 5th day of May next.

Collector of Internal Revenue Brooks, when seen and asked whether the Chinese residents are giving any heed to the law, said: "Only four have come forward and been registered, and they didn't want to be known.

"Their reason for being registered was that they wanted to visit China and that they desired to return. They did not want to have any trouble when they came back. I don't see that we can do anything until after the 5th of May. They are given a year in which to register."

He is similarly charged as Hugh F. Dempsey and there are an equal number of counts in his indictment.

The commonwealth expects an easy time convicting Beatty, considering the verdict in the Dempsey trial.

JUSTICE LAMAR DEAD

He Expired Suddenly Last Evening at Macon, Ga.

SEIZED WITH A CONVULSION.

Death Came to Him After a Long Illness—He Had Gone South in Search of Health—Sketch of the Distinguished Southerner's Life.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 24.—The death of Justice Lamar here last evening was a terrible shock to the community. The death was sudden in the extreme, for, although he has been ailing for some time, Justice Lamar appeared to be gradually gaining in health.

He came from Washington to Macon about a month ago, and has been visiting at the residence of Mr. W. H. Virgin, of Vineville, a suburb of Macon.

Yesterday afternoon at about 3 o'clock Justice Lamar took his overcoat, intending to go to the city, but was met at the door by a friend, Dr. Llewellyn, with whom he returned to the sitting room. At that time and during the afternoon he was in good spirits, and at dinner at 6:30 in the evening he seemed to have a good appetite.

Dr. Llewellyn left the house about 8 o'clock, and a few minutes later the Justice was seized with violent pains in the heart and died at the hour mentioned.

Bright's disease with angina pectoris was the direct cause of Judge Lamar's death and is given by the physician as being the chief complication in the case.

The attack was very severe while it lasted and the physician, Dr. A. H. Parker, who had been in attendance, arrived only a few minutes before death. At this time Justice Lamar was unconscious and beyond medical aid.

Restoratives were at once administered but were entirely without avail. He died with his head on Mr. Virgin's hands and apparently without pain, the spasm having passed off at that time.

Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar was born in Putnam county, Ga., Sept. 1, 1826, and after his father's death was taken to Oxford, Miss., where he received a part of his education. He graduated at Emory college, Georgia, in 1845; studied law in Macon, and was admitted to the bar in 1847.

In 1849 he returned to Oxford, Miss., and for a year held a professorship in the University of Mississippi.

He resigned and resumed the practice of law in Covington, Ga. He was elected to the Legislature in 1853, and in 1854 again returned to Mississippi and settled on his plantation in Lafayette, being shortly afterward elected to Congress as a Democrat.

He served from 1857 until 1860, when he resigned to take a seat in the Secession convention of his native State. He cast his fortunes with the "Lost Cause," and left the army with the rank of Colonel, after having shared in many engagements.

He was again a professor in the University of Mississippi, and again took a seat in the House of Representatives; was elected to the Senate March 5, 1877. March 5, 1885, President Cleveland appointed him Secretary of the Interior, and afterward elevated him to a seat on the Supreme Bench.

Mr. Lamar was perhaps as prominent a figure as any that has occupied a seat on the bench of that august body, but for months back he has been almost too ill to take more than a perfunctory interest in the proceedings.

His health has been failing for a long time and it was almost a defiance of nature that he took his seat on the usual decision day—Monday. He left Washington for the South about a month ago.

A Genuine Surprise on Her Octogenarian Birthday.

Last evening at the residence of Augustus Runyon, 4 Lafayette place, a most enjoyable gathering was held in commemoration of the eighieth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Henrietta Drake, formerly of this city, but now of Newark. This meeting of her friends and relatives was indeed a surprise, as Mrs. Drake was totally unaware that any expression of their love and well wishes was to be made until they appeared before her, when she was quite overcome.

The guests numbered nearly thirty, many from out of town. After doing justice to the delicious spread, all departed declaring that "mine host" was a jolly good fellow.

Now You Know How, Save Money.

Few realize the amount of money saved by black dyestuffs.

Anything, no matter how worn and rusty, can be colored over black, and in many instances the last wear is as good as the first. For home use the various black diamond dyes—fast black for wool, fast stocking black for cotton, and fast black for silk and feathers—are the most reliable. Simple directions in the package make the use so plain that even a child can color a good black with these dyes.

SLEIGH-RIDERS KILLED.

Shocking Grade-Crossing Accident in Passaic—Death of Two Women, Another Dying, and a Fourth and the Driver Badly Hurt—A Dangerous Crossing.

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 24—A shocking grade-crossing accident occurred a few minutes after midnight in this city, this morning, which resulted in the death of two women, the probably fatal injury of a third, and hurts of a serious character to another woman and a man the driver of a sleigh containing the four women. The horses were instantly killed.

The sleigh was crossing the Erie tracks at Monroe street when the Wells Fargo Express that passes through Passaic about midnight dashed into it. Mary Ryan was killed outright and Maggie Spillan died soon afterwards in the hospital. Mrs. Thomas O'Brien was so badly hurt that it was expected this morning that she would die during the day. The name of the other woman injured is not known. She was badly cut in several places. Friends removed her soon after the accident. The driver, John Moore, a colored man, had one leg cut off above the knee, and his condition is considered critical. The horses were ground to pieces under the engine. They were the property of a liveryman, Kehoe, by whom Moore was employed.

TWO MEN BADLY INJURED.

The Pennsylvania Owl Train in Collision with a Freight Near New Brunswick.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 24—The owl train on the Pennsylvania road, which was east-bound between Trenton and New Brunswick, this morning at about two o'clock, ran into a through freight-train at Dean's Station. Three freight-cars were destroyed. The tracks were badly blocked. The train left Philadelphia at midnight, and is expected to arrive in Jersey City about six hours late.

Two men who were riding in the caboose of the freight train were badly hurt. One of them, M. B. Lodge of Trenton, N. J., was taken to his home, but the other, whose name is unknown, was taken to the hospital in New Brunswick.

The cause of the collision is said to be the fog. The freight train was behind time, and the engineer of the express did not see the freight until it was too late to stop his engine.

A RAID THAT WAS NOT A RAID.

But the Police Hid in the Bushes and "Secured Evidence".

For months complaints have been made by residents of the neighborhood against a house on Leland avenue, back of Front street towards the mountains. The woman in charge of the place is the same one who has been reported as having escapades at Bound Brook, Dunellen and other places, making herself conspicious by fast driving and hilarious conduct in company with married men on the road. She is said to have surrounded herself with other females at the Leland avenue ranch, and stocked the place with drinks that inebriate. The habitues of the establishment, judging from the identification of the bicycles that have been stacked up in front of the house autumn nights and the horses that have been tied there during the winter, have been chiefly gay young sons of good families. The peace and quiet of the neighborhood have frequently been broken by the noise of revelry and carousing.

Not until last night did the police take any action in the matter. Then a number of them hid in the bushes surrounding the house prepared to make a raid on the premises. After the police had waited awhile, the frequenters of the resort began to arrive. The officers heard the noise of carousing, ribald laughter, and profane and vulgar language. All of this constituted disorderly conduct, and an entrance was to be effected when the alarm was taken, and the house was closed up and the lights were extinguished. The inmates probably slipped out a back way. The police therefore abandoned the raiding project, but they seized a horse that drove up and found two young bloods in the accompanying carriage.

One of the chaps in the carriage struck a match, held it up, and said "Here I am. Look at me. I'm not ashamed of myself."

No attempt at arrest was made, but the police said to-day that they had secured evidence and would arrest several persons within a day or two. They threaten to expose respectably connected young men and break up the establishment.

The house in question has a bad record. It was formerly occupied by a notorious gang that now flourishes in another house in the outskirts. The alleged "backer" of both ranches walks the streets of Plainfield every day and insults good women by leering at them from the street corners.

—The passenger train due here at 8:48 this morning ran off the track near Bound Brook because of the spreading of the rails. The road-bed was ploughed up a considerable distance, but the train was stopped before any serious damage was done. Everyone was well shaken up.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharged was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

BRIDE 60, GROOM 70.

But Their Hearts Are As Young as Perennial Summer, and the Cannon Saluted Their Wedding.

The Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks of Scotch Plains officiated Sunday afternoon at a very interesting wedding, when John Lambert, age 70, and Mrs. Mary E. Frazee, age 60, were united in marriage at the home of Levi Darby.

Monday evening about seventy-five of the wedded pair's friends repaired to the groom's residence, about two miles from Scotch Plains, and gave them an old-fashioned serenade. A small brass cannon placed beneath a window of the house belched forth in such loud tones that even the aged groom, who is reported to be hard of hearing, heard it, and, coming to the door, invited the callers inside, where they were right royally entertained. The "boys" say they were never treated in a better manner, and the bride and groom were pleased with the honor conferred. Mr. Lambert and bride are well known and highly esteemed and respected citizens of Fanwood township.

A THRIFTY INSTITUTION.

All the Villagers Working Zealously for the Scotch Plains Library.

At the annual meeting of the trustees of the Scotch Plains public library the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles L. Sykes; vice-president, John Robinson; recording secretary, William B. Noble; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, jr.; treasurer, Dr. Frank W. Westcott. D. P. Hall declined a renomination as president. David A. Sayre, the former corresponding secretary, tendered his resignation as trustee on account of his approaching removal to Brooklyn. The resignation was regretfully accepted. Mr. Sayre has proved himself a faithful trustee and valuable officer.

The total attendance from Jan. 1, 1892, to Dec 31, 1892, was reported by the librarian to have been 3,423, and the number of books loaned 1,331.

A donation of $50 from Warren Ackerman was reported.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall from the house committee reported the organization of a Junior Library association composed of young people, to work for the benefit of the library, and to devise means for extending its usefulness.

The meeting was a live one; the attendance of trustees was large, and great interest was manifested. The library starts upon its fifth year hopefully and proudly, the trustees feeling that it has conquered a place in the respect and regard of the community.

TRUE TO HIS CONSTITUENTS.

How Faithful Assemblyman Kyte Secured Legislation for His Home School's Benefit.

The trustees of the Scotch Plains public school-house have recently purchased a fine and expensive school globe and 94 books for the school library. This addition will make the total number of books constituting the public school library 545. The amount applicable to this purpose was $100, of which $50 was received from the State and $50 raised by subscription. Of the amount received from the State $40 was granted pursuant to Chap. XXXIV of the Laws of 1892. This act was drawn by district clerk Hall, and introduced into the Legislature by assemblyman Kyte, and designed for the relief of school districts which had not qualified for the annual appropriations granted by the State to school districts which raise $40 by subscriptions or entertainment for their school libraries. The law was a temporary one, but the Westfield Standard thinks it ought to be re-enacted this year for the benefit of live school districts.

Installed by Their Society Father.

The rooms of Plainfield council, 711, Royal Arcanum, were the scene of an enjoyable celebration last evening. Three new members were elected, and two applications received. District deputy Thomas Farlee of Bayonne installed the newly-elected officers and made an interesting address. He is the father of the Royal Arcanum in this State, having founded Bayonne council and spread the good work from there. The installation was followed by a collation and other pleasant features. The officers:

Regent—Fred. S. Green.
Vice-regent—Peter A. Emmons.
Sitting Past Regent—August Kleinecke.
Orator— Rae.
Secretary—H. A. Thorne.
Collector—H. S. Mason.
Treasurer—D. W. Littell.

A Sensible Sleigh Ride.

Members of the First Church of Christ enjoyed a sensible sort of sleigh ride and supper Saturday night. They went in loads to Westfield and return, and then visited the home of their pastor, the Rev. Benjamin W. Hand. There an oyster supper was provided, of which all partook, each paying for his share. The proceeds went into the church treasury.

The Two Chollies Tie.

In the match game on the Park club alleys last night Charles H. Lyman rolled 217, tieing Charles A. Reed's high score for the gold medal. This is the highest record in a match game; Mr. Reed's score was made at individual bowling.

ARRESTED FOR THE SHOOTING.

Farmer Waldron Put Under Bonds for His Inhuman Treatment of Philip Hartrum.

Constable John Ramsey of Flemington went to White House Saturday noon with a warrant for the arrest of farmer Henry Waldron who last Monday night shot by mistake Philip M. Hartrum who was rattling at Waldron's back door, as told in full in THE PRESS at the time. The warrant charged Waldron with atrocious assault and cruelty, and was made by Hartrum's mother. When Ramsey called at Waldron's house he found the old farmer ready to accompany him to Flemington. Waldron hitched up his own horse and sleigh and drove ahead of Ramsey, who followed close behind. At Flemington Waldron was arraigned before justice Apgar who after hearing his story held him in $1,000 bonds to await the action of the grand jury next April. Constable John Apgar signed the bail bond, taking Waldron's farm as security. Waldron then returned to White House, where he was seen by a PRESS reporter in L. P. Wooden's hotel adjoining the Jersey Central station. To the reporter Waldron told the identical story as on last Tuesday morning following the shooting. He says that he can prove that there were two men who attempted to get into his house and that he only shot after warning them away. The second man, who was tall and thin, returned his fire with a shot from a pop gun. On being asked if he had found the bullet inside the house, he replied that he had not looked for it. Of course Waldron's wife and daughter will swear to just what he tells them to, and in this way he can undoubtedly get clear. Waldron is very excitable when questioned about the affair and almost threatened THE PRESS reporter with harm for speaking to him. No one in White House believes that Phil Hartrum went to Waldron's house except for help. J. M. Hockinbury, a friend of Hartrum, said that he had positive knowledge of a quarrel which Waldron and Hartrum had about two months ago over repairing the roads at which time Waldron threatened Hartrum. Neither of the two men bears a very enviable reputation in the vicinity, Waldron being called surly and ill-disposed, while Hartrum was indicted some years ago for chicken stealing. The feeling in White House all seems to be in favor of Hartrum, and only because of Waldron's inhuman act in leaving his victim to die in the cold after shooting him. The case is very complicated, both sides telling vastly different stories, and it now only remains for the grand jury to clear up the mystery. It was rumored in White House that Waldron will be asked to leave the vicinity if the grand jury do not find a bill against him next April.

PLAINFIELDERS AND THE "L".

Prospects of Better Transit Facilities from the Jersey Central Ferry.

Those who live in Plainfield and journey much to New York will be interested in the rapid transit scheme now projected. The Manhattan Railway company, popularly known as the "L", has proposed not a new plan, but modifications and additions to the present one. Briefly stated, the new scheme is to plaster the city with elevated structures. It will be scarcely possible to go a block without bumping into an "L" post. The old lines will still be in use, but along them, at intervals, will be points of departure towards populous and growing portions of the city. The line of travel will be closely followed, of course, especially on the west side. Cross cuts will be devised at convenient places.

Of particular interest to Plainfielders is the scheme to utilize West street for an elevated structure. Anything which will render this thoroughfare less odious, less dangerous and less filthy will be hailed with delight by those who have to cross it on their way to and from New York. There will doubtless be many objections to the general plans of the "L" road, but there can be none with respect to the use of West street. That street can not be spoiled by a railroad structure, but it can be made very useful to Jersey passengers. An "L" road along this street will pass the Jersey Central, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and Erie ferry stations, thus affording facile transportation for the millions of passengers from this State. Then, if easy communication with the other "L" roads is established, it will be possible to get from anywhere in New Jersey to somewhere in New York without vexation of spirit, without discomfort, and loss of time and temper. That is the kind of transit that Jerseymen would like.

Plainfield Defeats Dunellen.

CAUGHT THE FOX ALIVE.

Joe Ryno Lights on a Silver Gray All Tuckered Out With Its Run.

A New York paper tells an interesting story about Joe Ryno's capture of a live fox, chronicled exclusively in THE PRESS last week. It says that when the Ryno family of Fanwood township go out with their dogs for a little hunt the foxes of that part of the State lie low.

It is said that a Ryno dog can smell a fox across two townships. The Rynos themselves say that this is idle gossip, but they admit that they have some very doggy dogs that know a thing or two and can tell the difference between fox and rabbit trails every time.

The Rynos, consisting of Joe, Henry, and Walter, and Aleck Frazer woke up last Friday morning and saw that it was going to be a good day for a fox hunt. They live about two miles from Fanwood station, in a country that furnishes some pretty good hunting.

Their last hunt, however, was the most exciting one they have ever had. It was about 9 o'clock in the forenoon when they put out their three dogs. The thermometer was not far from the zero point, and there was not enough snow on the ground to seriously delay the hunters.

Down in the old Ash Swamp one of the dogs smelled out a fox in a brush heap. The hunters were close behind, and they hurried up to get a shot. Joe Ryno, who was ahead, shouted to the rest of the party:

"Hi, there, boys, don't shoot! he's a silver gray, and a big fellow."

Silver grays are rare in that part of Jersey. An old hunter said the other day that he had only seen one of them before. The Rynos were so confident of their skill as hunters that they refrained from shooting this fox in the hope of catching him alive.

The fox ran for it, and the chase started out at a lively rate. The fox was fresh and so were the dogs. Behind the dogs came the Ryno boys on the run, with their eyes strained for a glimpse of the silver gray.

Of course, they did n't propose to chase along behind in the hope of overtaking him. They were trying to discover which way he would turn. This particular silver gray knew his business, and he made a sharp turn to the right toward some high ground.

When the Rynos discovered this they cut across country to head him off. They were too late, for the fox had passed them when they reached the high ground, and half a mile down the ridge they heard the dogs in full cry.

Again the fox made a wheel and once more the hunters tried to cut him off and failed. By this time the Rynos were regretting that they had not shot their game when they first raised it. Running through the thick undergrowth of a swamp is hard work and the Rynos were beginning to get tired.

The fox was holding his own and giving the dogs a run for their fun. Occasionally he stopped a moment, and then when the chorus of the dogs got dangerously near, away he would go with his heavy silver gray tail trailing out behind.

The Rynos caught several glimpses of him. Just as they were about ready to give up after a four hours' chase, Joe, who was ahead, saw a ball of reddish gray fur under a pile of brush. The dogs were coming toward it on the run.

It was the silver-gray, and he seemed to be completely used up. Joe Ryno ran forward, and, watching his opportunity, grabbed him by the back of the neck. The reason for the fox's fatigue was apparent when he lifted him up.

His tail, which was unusually heavy, was loaded down with snow, making too heavy a drag for him. The silver-gray struggled and snapped, but Joe held him so that he could not bite, and carried him back to the house.

It was a capture to be proud of, and after the neighbors had looked at him the Rynos took him to Fanwood and sold him to Jack Benner, who runs a roadhouse there. He is now cooped up in a small box with a chain around his neck. He is a genuine silver-gray, and very handsomely colored.

Benner has invited some of his neighbors who have dogs to join him in a hunt next Thursday, as told in yesterday's PRESS. He is going to take the fox out in the fields and give him a run for his life.

Half a dozen of the Fanwood sportsmen are going to loose their dogs. If the silver-gray can keep his tail free from snow and knows the country he will have a fair chance for his life.

Asbury Park Druggists Say Helen Potts Did n't Buy Morphine There.

Mrs. Harris's appeal as printed in yesterday's PRESS in behalf of her son Carlyle, who is a prisoner in the New York city prison convicted of murdering Mary Helen Potts, is regarded in Asbury Park as a last desperate attempt made by Mrs. Harris to create sympathy in behalf of her son.

Many of the statements made in the appeal are repudiated by those who knew Harris when he was in Asbury Park. Those who frequented the famous Neptune club, which was raided as a disorderly house in August, 1890, say they know that Harris was its proprietor and that liquor was sold there contrary to law. He contracted and paid all the bills and was the general manager of the place. The young man Oliver, who Mrs. Harris claims is a stable boy in the employ of Dr. Treverton, of Scranton, Mrs. Potts says is a reputable lawyer.

There is much speculation in Asbury Park as to the identity of the druggist who, as Harris and his lawyers claim, frequently sold morphine to Mary Helen Potts. A reporter visited H. S. Kinmouth, Robert B. Cusack, Oscar Grenelle and Thomas M. Stewart, who are all-year-round druggists in Asbury Park, and each of them denied that they had ever sold morphine to Miss Potts. They knew the girl well, as she was a general favorite in school and was often seen in society.

During the summer months there are several other drug stores in Asbury Park, but those who repudiate the morphine story say that if Miss Potts bought morphine at these places and used it the craving for the drug would have fastened itself upon her, and when these summer pharmacies closed for the season Helen would have gone to the all-year-round stores for it. Mrs. Potts denies emphatically that her daughter ever took morphine. She regards with contempt the story that new evidence will be produced by Harris's lawyers to show that Helen habitually used morphine.

Defeated Their Old Rivals.

There was much fun on Gesang alleys, last night, and a jolly supper was served afterwards. Dunellen sent up ten good bowlers, but the Germans got there in spite of them. The score:

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Constitutional Convention Bill Passes the Senate—Fair Commission Investigation.

ALBANY, Jan. 24.—Mr. O'Sullivan took the first step last night in the investigation of the management and expenditures of the World's Fair commission by introducing a resolution calling on the Comptroller for a full and itemized account of the amounts so far expended out of the World's Fair appropriation and the amounts still to be paid.

The World's Fair commission has announced its intention of asking for $300,000 in addition to the $500,000 it has already received.

The Assembly unanimously adopted Mr. O'Sullivan's resolution.

The Constitutional Convention bill was still further amended in the Senate so that all minority representation is abolished.

Any voter may vote for 32 delegates-at-large, but it is expected that each will be Republicans and half Democrats. The election is to be at the regular election next fall.

The other 128 delegates are to be elected by Senatorial districts, four in each district. The convention is to meet in Albany the next spring and sit during the summer. After amending the bill, the Senate passed it. The Assembly will receive it to-day.

NEW YORK'S FAIREST.

What Its Fair Daughters Have to Say.

Something Of Great Feminine Interest and Value.

Do Women Learn Anything From What They Read?

Our country has many thousands of fair daughters—women whose beauty and vivacity are marred only by being in almost continual ill health. They are not exactly sick, but they are certainly far from well. If they were in good health how attractive they would be!

Concerning this matter the remarks of the well-known Miss Pauline Kayser, who resides at 248 West 24th street New York City, are of immeasurable value to our lady readers.

"I was a sufferer," she told our representative, "from nervousness and weakness together with painful menstruation for eight years. I used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It acted like magic. Why do women suffer when this wonderful remedy will surely cure them? I think it is splendid."

Another lady, concerning whose case we have personal knowledge, Mrs. Amos V. Dell, of 235 Hancock avenue, Jersey City Heights, N. J., describes just exactly the feelings of thousands of other women.

"I was tired and weak all the time and hardly cared whether I lived or died. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now feel as if I had a new lease of life.

"This wonderful medicine has done me more good than anything else I have ever taken. Why, I had only taken one dose on going to bed and in the morning I woke up feeling like another woman; it seemed strange for me to know what it was to get up without feeling tired.

"I feel that I cannot praise Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy enough.

One lady called this wonderful medicine "The Woman's Friend," while a prominent nurse says, "It is the savior of us women." It certainly cures women of all their weakening complains and makes them strong, vigorous and healthy again. It is a purely vegetable remedy and can be purchased at druggists for $1. Physicians recommend it because it is the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th street, New York, the successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

Originals of Some of the Characters in the Great Book.

The Cincinnati Life of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe—Her Preparation for the Writing of America's Greatest Story—Underground Railroad.

[Special Cincinnati (O.) Letter.]

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe spent over a quarter of a century of her life in Cincinnati, coming here with the family when her father, Lyman Beecher, assumed charge of Lane Theological seminary, and remaining until, as the wife of Prof. Calvin E. Stowe, she accompanied him to Maine when he became president of Bowdoin college. The Beechers lived at that time on Walnut Hills, a suburb of the city, and that girlhood home of Harriet Beecher is now owned and occupied by Rev. Dr. Monfort, editor and proprietor of the Herald and Presbyter, a Presbyterian official organ. Here the girlhood and young womanhood of Harriet Beecher was spent in the pursuit of a happiness and usefulness, the product of the rich intellectual and busy Christian life that surrounded her. Her most intimate and loved friend was Eliza Tyler, the first wife of Prof. Stowe, whose early death brought a mutual sorrow and sympathy that kindled the love that made Prof. Stowe and Harriet Beecher man and wife.

While as Harriet Beecher she spent here some of the happiest years of her life, so it was here as a wife and mother that she passed through the fiery furnace of affliction, suffering, sickness, poverty and grief that enriched the luxuriance of her life's prime. Her associations were those of intellectual refinement, and in her daily life she walked in the midst of influences that quickened heart and mind. Among her intimate acquaintances were Archbishop Purcell, Dr. Drake, Hon. A. H. McGuffey, Mrs. Peters, afterward founder of the Philadelphia school of design; Mrs. Caroline Hentz and Salmon P. Chase, with all of whom she was associated in a literary society known as the Semicolon club, an aggregation of the brightest minds in the early history of Cincinnati.

MRS. STOWE, WHEN UNCLE TOM'S CABIN WAS WRITTEN.

Her first literary work was done as a contributor to the entertainments of this club, and the necessity of putting forth her best efforts in rivalry with the brilliant minds of the company did much in training her in that excellent and attractive style that gave such a charm to all she wrote. But it was only by the most indomitable energy and patience that she carried on her literary labors after marriage. She felt the claims of her family to be paramount to all else, and amid the distracting cares of a large household, an insufficient income, frequent maternity and heavy bereavements in the loss of children and other dear ones she managed to save but little time for writing.

All this time the subject of slavery was crowding itself more and more upon her mind. The materials for certain chapters of the future book lay ready in her mind, and were constantly being added to as the cloud around her, that finally burst into war, grew darker. Before her marriage, in company with a fellow teacher, she visited at a Kentucky estate answering closely to the description of Col. Shelby's in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The novel sight of negro slaves and their manner of life seemed to attract but little of her attention, and while others of the party laughed and enjoyed the pranks of the well-fed and well-cared-for negroes, she seemed absorbed with other thoughts. Years afterward, however, her companion recognised in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the reproduction of scene after scene of that almost forgotten visit.

After her marriage to Prof. Stowe they built a home near the Beecher homestead and in this house all her children were born. It was while living in this house that she gathered the materials and laid the foundation for her immortal book. For this work she could not have been more favorably situated. Cincinnati was on the border between the two civilizations and Mrs. Stowe's opportunity for studying both, each in relation to the other, was unsurpassed. The abolitionists and the slavery advocates were in constant strife and the clash of the conflict echoed through her daily life. The main thoroughfare of the "Underground Railroad" in the west was through Cincinnati, and the most active and influential men on both sides had their homes in the city—Chase, Birney and Coffin, of the first; Nevill, Longworth and Graham, of the second—one party engaged in assisting the slaves to escape, the other in combating this effort and in capturing them and returning them to their masters. From the many exciting incidents in this struggle she drew much material for her famous book, to which were added many personal experiences from visits to Kentucky, a slave state, where she saw the slaves at their best in the west; from reports of people who had traveled in the extreme south where slavery was at its worst, and from the narratives of escaped slaves. The house in which she then lived in this city still stands, though occupied by strangers to the life that once brightened it. In this house

LEVI AND CATHERINE COFFIN—"THE HALLIDAYS."

Mrs. Stowe once conducted a school for freed negroes.

Not only the incidents of the story, but several of the characters are taken from her Cincinnati experiences. The Simeon and Rachel Halliday of the story were Levi and Catherine Coffin, earnest and active Quaker abolitionists, the former for thirty years president of the underground railroad in the west, who according to the inscription on his monument in one of the Cincinnati cemeteries assisted ten thousand fugitive slaves to liberty. He was a native of North Carolina.

The character of John Van Tromp is drawn from the life of John Van Zandt, a Quaker born in Kentucky who moved to Ohio long before the war and settled on a farm north of Cincinnati near the present suburb of Glendale. He identified himself with the underground work and was more than once arrested for the part he took in assisting runaway slaves to get to Canada. In most of these trials he was defended by Salmon P. Chase.

The young girl who furnished the name of Eliza Harris to the character was a slave girl from Kentucky, the property of a man who lived a few miles from the Ohio river, opposite Ripley, O. Her master and mistress were kind to her and she had a comfortable home until financial embarrassment forced the master to sell his slaves. When Eliza learned that she and her only living child were to be separated she resolved to make her escape. Driven closely by her pursuers she took to the river, which at the time was full of floating ice, and made the passage as described in the story. She was almost benumbed from cold and exhausted when she reached the Ohio shore, and would have drowned on the border of liberty had not a man who watched her daring feet assisted her up the bank. The name of this man is lost, but she was taken to the home of Rev. John Rankin, a Presbyterian minister, whose descendants still live at Ripley, and cared for. Thence she was forwarded through Cincinnati to the house of Levi Coffin, then at Newport, Ind., just over the Ohio line, and from there was sent to Canada. The young girl who was rescued through the humanity of John Van Zandt was Eliza Buck, one of Mrs. Stowe's servants. She was a slave from Kentucky who had come into the state of Ohio by consent of her master to visit friends, an indulgence often granted to Kentucky slaves, hostages being held for her return. Under the laws of Ohio such slaves once across the river were free.

Eliza became a servant in the family of Mrs. Stowe and resolved not to return to Kentucky, a resolution in which she found much encouragement. But after some time word reached Prof. Stowe that the girl's master was in Cincinnati looking for her, her hostage having escaped. Though secure under the law, there were nevertheless unscrupulous justices ready to serve those who paid them, and the slaveholders knew them. Prof. Stowe determined to carry the girl to some place of greater safety until the inquiry for her was ended. At night he secured a horse and wagon, and in company with Henry Ward Beecher performed for Eliza the kind and perilous service attributed to the character of Senator Byrd.

Another character in the story is Richard Dillingham, a young Quaker from Morrow county, O., who came to Cincinnati to teach the negroes, and whose enthusiasm carried him to Nashville in behalf of a slave, where he was arrested and imprisoned and died before his release.

The only one of all the characters now living, so far as known, is the man who furnished the character of George Harris. This man is Lewis George Clark, now living at Oberlin, O. There has been dispute of his claim, but he steadfastly asserts he is the original. He too crossed the Ohio at Ripley and was assisted north into Clinton county, where he found refuge among the Quakers until he could be passed on to Canada.

CITIZENS IN PURSUIT

Excitement Over the Murder at Jeddo, Pa.

ATROCIOUS WORK OF HIGHWAYMEN.

They Held Up Joseph Matgas and Michael Shalensky and Put the Latter to Death, the Former Escaping After a Desperate Fight—The Whole County Aroused.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 25.—A posse of citizens is in pursuit of the murderers of Michael Shalensky. There is great excitement in this vicinity over the atrocious crime.

The murder was committed on the road between Jeddo and Freeland.

Joseph Matgas and Michael Shalensky started from Jeddo about 8 o'clock at night, intending to walk to Freeland. They had proceeded but a short distance when suddenly three men wearing masks jumped from the roadside and confronted them.

"Hold up your hands!" they cried.

Two pistols were pointed at their heads and Matgas complied. His companion did not move.

The order was repeated, and instantly he was knocked down by a blow with a sandbag.

The highwaymen then proceeded to go through his clothes, but failed to find anything.

This angered them, and repeatedly they brought the sandbag down upon his head. He implored his persecutors to spare his life, and they promised to do so if he would secure them a ransom.

Then Shalensky was permitted to regain his feet.

One of the highwaymen proposed that the feet of their victims should be tied while they were writing the order to their friends to furnish money for their release. Shalensky, who was a powerful man, rebelled and with a lunge succeeded in knocking one of his captors prostrate. A second and third man fell, and the men began to hope for liberty when five confederates of the gang sprang upon them from the wayside and in an instant the two men were overpowered.

The leader asked how much money they had in their possession. Shalensky replied that he had none. Matgas, however had $20 in gold. Their captors wanted more. Shalensky had no money and was asked to dictate a letter to his friends. He replied that it would be of no use as he had but few.

Although the robbers were masked they probably feared detection and they resolved to put the two men to death.

Matgas was held firmly by two of the band while three others bound Shalensky. During the operation Shalensky, however, made desperate efforts to escape, and one of Matgas' captors left him to assist in controlling Shalensky.

Seeing but one man left to hold him Matgas got away and reached the village of Highland.

The inhabitants were informed of his terrible experience and flight and 50 men started out to rescue Shalensky.

When they arrived at the spot the dead body of Shalensky was found but the murderers had fled.

Their tracks were followed for a mile in the snow, but when they struck the beaten road all trace was lost.

The whole country side was aroused. Five hundred men joined in the pursuit, but the brigands had escaped.

Matgas explained that the men who assaulted him and his companion spoke good English. This dispels the idea that foreigners have been engaged in the many outrages which have recently been committed on that road.

It is believed that the parties are part of an organized band who have been haunting the road for several months.

AT LEAST EIGHT GUILTY.

Decision of M. Franqueville in the Panama Examination.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—M. Franqueville has finished his examination of 18 persons connected with the Panama scandal. He has decided that Ferdinand de Lesseps, Charles de Lesseps, Henry Cottu, Marins Fontane, ex-Deputy Sans Leroy, ex-Deputy Gobron, M. Arton, and M. Blondin are culpable.

His decision as to the other ten is not yet known. Ex-Deputy Gobron is supposed to have received a Thierre check for 20,000 francs.

The specific charge against Arton is that that he bribed M. Sans Leroy. M. Blondin, as M. Baihaut's private secretary, handled the money that passed between the Panama people and the Minister of Public Works, besides having other compromising dealings with the canal company.

EFFECT OF MR. LAMAR'S DEATH.

Thought Likely That President Harrison Will Not Fill the Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—In high official circles it is thought doubtful whether the President will fill the vacancy caused by Justice Lamar's death. The matter of confirmation by the Senate stands in the way of satisfactorily filling the place.

The President would, no doubt, nominate Attorney-General Miller, his personal friend, but there is no secret made of the fact in Republican circles that Mr. Miller would be bitterly opposed, not only by Democrats, but also by many Republican Senators who have been offended at the President personally and his Attorney-General on account of patronage.

Should the President conclude to fill the vacancy it is altogether probable that he will do so by promoting a circuit judge from the South, one who has proven acceptable to Southern people and their interests and yet who is a Republican.

The matter will be determined within a fortnight.

When the United States Supreme Court met as usual yesterday a chair draped in mourning again told the story that between the adjournment of the court Monday evening and its re-assembling there had passed away one of its members.

The death of Justice Lamar was not startling to his associates, for they had realized when he left this city for the South, that in all probability he would not resume his seat on the bench; yet it was unexpected, and a shock to them, for the last news they had had from him was to the effect that he was improving and getting along quite nicely.

Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Blatchford, Brewer and Brown will leave this city to-night on the 10:40 train over the Richmond & Danville road for Macon, to attend the funeral, which takes place Friday.

FRIENDS DESERT GLEASON.

Acting Mayor Sanford Threatens His Opponent With Indictment.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 25.—Horatio S. Sanford, now acting as mayor of this city, said last night that he intended to have Hon. Patrick Jerome Gleason, also acting as mayor, indicted for the alleged theft of the books and papers belonging to the office.

As a counter movement, Mr. Gleason's friends said last night that they will procure the arrest of Sanford's private secretary, George R. Crowley, on the charge of having flourished a revolver in one Cushman's face during Mr. Crowley's recent alleged warlike demonstration in Miller's saloon.

Joseph Fiesel, chief clerk of the water department under Gleason, returned to duty under the Sanford administration yesterday, thus swelling the number of deserters from the Gleason cause.

Joseph McDonald, clerk to the board of assessors under Gleason rule, also went over to the enemy.

It remained for Commissioner of Public Works Henry W. Sharkey to make the master stroke of the day, which had the effect of shutting down Gleason's electric road and putting out his electric lights.

This left a good part of the city in darkness.

It is Commissioner Sharkey's opinion that Mr. Gleason's electric plant on the meadows between Hunter's Point and Blissville has been surreptiously obtaining a water supply from the city through a two-inch pipe which tapped one of the mains under the bridge across Jack creek on Jackson avenue.

He was unable to find a water metre anywhere along the line, and he shut the water off.

The men in the electric station were compelled, therefore, to put out their fires.

Shortly after shutting the water off Commissioner Sharkey caught an employe of the electric light concern named Owen McAlarney attempting to replenish the supply by means of a hose attached to a fire hydrant.

He was placed under arrest, but was released when the hose was removed.

TO IMPEACH GOV. CROUNSE.

Resolution to that Effect Introduced in the Nebraska House.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 25.—The House has taken official notice of the collapse of the Capital National bank. In this bank funds to the amount of $288,000 were deposited on approval of the bank bond by Gov. Crounse.

When the House was in running order, Barry, of Greeley, offered a resolution providing for the impeachment of Gov. Crounse.

The Attorney-General is ordered to present to the Supreme Court at the next session articles of impeachment, charging Gov. Crounse with wilful neglect of duty in not more closely looking into the matter of the bond; malfeasance in office, incompetency, and carelessness in the performance of his official duties. Under the rules, the resolution went over for one day.

CORNING, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The Keeley cure at Blossburg, Pa., has had two deaths within the past two weeks. Jas. Sloan, at one time a prominent builder of this city, died there yesterday. He was 63 years of age, and leaves a widow and 10 children.

Indiana House Favors Sunday Opening.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—The Indiana House of Representatives by a vote of 60 to 19 concurred in the Senate joint resolution declaring in favor of keeping open the World's Fair on Sunday.

FOR THREE NEW STATES.

Republican Senate Caucus Favors Admission of Oklahoma, Utah and New Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Republican caucus decided by a majority vote to take favorable action upon the admission of the Territories of Oklahoma, Utah and New Mexico, but left Arizona out in the cold.

The caucus developed into a contest between the extreme West and the East and appears to be a victory for the younger members of the Senate.

It is considered a victory, however, in name only, for the subsequent action of the caucus negatived the result of the caucus. It was agreed that the question of the admission should be made the order of business to follow the discussion of the Nicaragua canal.

After the present matter of the Cherokee Strip is disposed of, the Senate will take up the various Interstate Commerce bills that have been or will be reported and will then begin the discussion of the Nicaragua Canal bill.

In the meantime the appropriation bills, which have the right of way, will begin to make their appearance, and will command the attention of the Senators.

It will thus be seen that the chances for the discussion of the bills for the admission of these territories are very slim, and the Eastern Senators, who gave their assent to the caucus programme very reluctantly, have no hesitancy in saying that no action whatever will be taken during this session of Congress.

FUNERAL OF BISHOP BROOKS.

Bishop Potter, of New York, Will Conduct the Services.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—The funeral services over the remains of Bishop Phillips Brooks at Trinity Church to-morrow will be conducted by the Right Rev. Henry Codman Potter, Bishop of New York, assisted by Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island, and Rev. Dr. E. Winchester Donald, rector of Trinity Church.

While those who are directing the arrangements for the funeral realize the place that the late Bishop held in the hearts of the entire community within and outside the limits of his own Church, and realize as well that even roomy Trinity will be unable to hold probably thousands who would like to be admitted, they have found it necessary to govern their arrangements so as to accommodate the members of the Church in the diocese and kindred associations, so that when that is accomplished it is doubtful if there will be any seats left for the general public.

Arrangements have been made whereby the remains of the late Bishop Brooks will lie in state in the vestibule of Trinity Church from 8 to 11 a. m. to-morrow, previous to the funeral.

PLOTTING TO BURN A TOWN.

Negro Conspirators, One of Whom Has Confessed, Are Now in Jail.

FORTRESS MONROE, Va., Jan. 25.—Citizens of Hampton, Va., are excited over the discovery of a plot to burn the town. Some ten or a dozen colored men appear to have banded together to carry out this purpose last Friday night. One of the conspirators has turned State's evidence. These men were incensed because the Rev. Thomas H. Short, a colored minister who gained considerable notoriety by marrying Douglass Green, the New York broker, and Mrs. McCrea of Chicago, about three years ago, had a number of them indicted.

The plan of the incendiaries was to start the fire in the West End and thus draw off the Fire Department, but the man sent for that purpose was arrested before he could get at work. The matter has been kept quiet in order to secure the other conspirators, a half dozen of whom are now in jail.

BROTHER AND SISTER LOVED.

As They Could Not Marry They Determined to Die Together.

ATLANTA, Jan. 25.—Last night a young couple registered at the Metropolitan hotel as Umberto Plantine and Selesia Muggi.

They were shown into adjoining rooms. Five minutes later two pistol shots were heard from the girl's room.

The door was forced and the pair were found clasped in each others arms with blood oozing from wounds in their heads.

A letter lay on the table signed by both which explained that they loved each other; they were children of the same mother and the man had a wife.

Plantine was a well known artist.

Switchmen's Strike at Muncie Over.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 25.—The Lake Erie & Western yard switchmen's strike is over. The men have accepted their money and are leaving town. Chicago men were brought in and are working under police protection. The union factory men refused to go out as was expected, and the Union engineers, conductors and firemen will not indulge in a sympathy strike.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 25.—The Superior Court, following the lines laid down by the United States Supreme Court in the Chicago lake front case, has rendered a decision holding that the Southern Pacific company has no title to the water front of Oakland, 11 miles in extent. The case has been on trial since last August.

EIGHTY MINERS KILLED

The Accident in the Fortschritt Mine at Dux.

SCORES CRUSHED AND MAIMED.

The Explosion Occurred While the Shifts Were Changing—Heartrending Scenes at the Mouth of the Shaft—Women Attempt to Mob the Mine Officials.

VIENNA, Jan. 25.—The accident in the Fortschritt mine was far more serious than reports last night indicated. Despatches from Dux now say that 80 miners were killed and scores were injured.

The explosion occurred yesterday noon when the shifts were changing. A cage full of miners had been lowered half way down the shaft when the ground trembled and a rumbling report was heard and the cable attached to the cage gave such a lurch that the lower machinery broke.

A rush of air and dust from the pit's mouth, the sounds of crashing timbers and the cries of the men in the cage gave warning to the men above of the extent of the disaster.

Help was summoned, the machinery was repaired after a delay of half an hour and the cage was raised. Ten of the occupants had been killed instantly by the shock, ten had suffered fractures from which they cannot recover; five, who had broken limbs and internal injuries, will live.

They had been half suffocated by the gas rising in the shaft and said that no man could live below.

An hour later the superintendent of the mine and five miners from the night shift went down in the cage. They were unable to go more than a hundred yards from the shaft into the gallery, but there they found 14 dead bodies.

Of the 50 men who were waiting for the cage, 10 had been killed, and 40 had been partially crushed by falling timbers, or half suffocated by the foul air. A short distance from the shaft the superintendent found four bodies which had been crushed beyond recognition by a falling beam.

The bodies and the injured were taken to the top, where the whole mining settlement had gathered to watch the work of rescue.

The men who had been brought up from the bottom said that a few minutes after the explosions they heard cries and groans from the mouth of the gallery, about 200 yards from the shaft.

There was heavy timber work at this place, and they believed that the men in this gallery had been imprisoned by the falling beams. They believed that some 40 men had been at work there.

Shortly before the cage came down they said the cries ceased. Another rescue party went down at once and after three of them had been carried back to the shaft unconscious, penetrated to the entrance of the gallery.

The entrance was completely blocked by the wrecked woodwork. The rescue party could see several dead bodies on the other side of the timbers, but was unable to get at them and returned to the top empty handed.

It is believed that all the men in the gallery were suffocated or killed by the shock of the explosion.

When the extent of the disaster began to become evident, the women of the dead men's families attempted to mob the mine officials, accusing them of carelessness in the management of the mine and of indifference as to the fate of the husbands and brothers below.

The mine officials sent to Dux for police and three companies of soldiers are camped in the fields around the pit's mouth.

The miners' families watched all night despite the inclemency of the weather.

CHURCH INVADED BY STUDENTS.

Bellefonte Collegians Broke Up a Meeting and Otherwise Misbehaved.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Jan. 25.—About two dozen students from the State college went on a racket to Pine Grove Mills, several nights ago. After terrorizing half the town, they invaded the Methodist church, broke up a religious meeting in progress at the time, and sent the people home panic-stricken.

A suffocating powder was thrown around, and some of the worshippers had to be carried home because of the loss of consciousness.

None of the students were recognized. The trustees will endeavor to hunt down and punish the perpetrators.

Chamberlain on the Egyptian Discontent.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—In a speech at Birmingham Joseph Chamberlain attributed the Khedive's boldness in defying British authority to the impression created by the speeches of the Radicals, when they were in opposition, against the occupation of Egypt. It was rather curious that the present government, by tightening England's grasp on Egypt, should be proving to the world the necessity of a Unionist policy.

MAKES PEOPLE WELL.

Most Remarkable Remedy in the World.

One True Medicine for Lost Nervous Strength.

Cures Effected by Paine's Celery Compound.

What Scientific Research Accomplished.

Proved By Success Where All Else Has Failed.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system and that is the Paine's celery compound so generally prescribed by physicians. It is probably the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced. Prof. Edward E. Phelps,

M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, first prescribed what is now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, a positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism and kidney troubles. For the latter Paine's celery compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

Washington correspondents have recently given it a great deal of attention since the most wonderful cure effected in the case of Commodore Howell.

The medical journals of the country have given more space in the last few years to the many remarkable cases where the use of Paine's celery compound has made people well than to any other one subject.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The scaling ladders for the fire department arrived yesterday.

—Splendid new spring styles in "outings" are advertised at only 9 cents a yard by Edsall.

—There are but few seats left for Joe Jefferson's appearance at Music Hall, to-morrow evening.

—Tim McCarty, of West Front street, won a donkey at Grogan's, Westfield, Saturday, by raffle.

—The Eclipse quartette sang at the entertainment of the Jr. O. U. A. M., in the Stelle building last night.

—An entertainment will be given by friends of the W. C. T. U., for the benefit of that society, in the Union's rooms, to-morrow evening.

—A local philanthropist who has investigated says that the begging woman claiming to be from Scotch Plains is utterly unworthy, and advises people not to bestow alms on her.

—The shareholders in the New Jersey Building Loan and Investment company will make their first monthly payments to H. O. Newman, treasurer, at 42 Park avenue, this week Saturday.

—All are invited to the meeting in Vincent chapel this evening, at which Mrs. McGrew of New York, for ten years a missionary in India, will speak on "Woman's Mission Work in India".

—A Columbian bazar and tea will be held in Vincent chapel, Thursday evening, Feb. 23, and Friday afternoon and evening, Feb. 24, under the auspices of the missionary societies of the M. E. church.

—The manager of Music Hall was powerless to prevent any rise in the price of seats for to-morrow evening. Mr. Jefferson's manager would not consent to bring him here unless they had control of the sale.

—Moral Earthquakes was the subject of the Rev. C. E. Herring's talk before the local union of the Y. P. S. C. E. in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night. It was an able address, and enjoyed by a large attendance.

—Workmen are engaged bracing the rear end of the Pond Machine Tool company's shop with brick. The walls of the shop have lately been springing, and the electric cranes are not allowed to come within twenty yards of the end of the shop, until the walls are strengthened.

—Gospel meetings are in progress at the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Considerable interest is manifested. Last evening the Rev. R. D. Wynn of New York preached an able sermon. There have been many requests for prayer. This evening the Rev. W. D. Johnson of Westfield will preach. On the first Sunday in February pastor Warnick will baptize.

AGNES UNDER ARREST.

THE GIDDY BLONDE A CAPTIVE BEFORE THE COURT.

She Pleads Not Guilty to the Charge of Keeping a Disorderly House, and a Boon Companion Furnishes Bail—Hegira of the Suspected Ones—A Gay Young Bachelor to Appear To-Morrow.

The Plainfield police station was the centre of attraction for a large number of young bachelors and married men this morning, for Agnes Forsberg, whose house on Leland avenue is said to have been frequented by many gay young bloods of the city, was a prisoner, and revelations were promised by the police.

Agnes is a curly-haired blonde, of some attractiveness of feature. She was arrested last evening at her home, and spent the night in a cell at the station. A warrant was issued for both Agnes and her mother, Mrs. A. G. Forsberg, but the mother pleaded illness from nervous prostration and was permitted to stay in bed.

When court opened this morning Agnes sat in an arm chair before the bar, her head resting on her hand. Her fingers trembled visibly, and occasionally brushed a drop of moisture from her eye.

Agnes was attired in a dress of dark blue, with sweeping train, ornamented at the hem with a band of ruffled buff. The collar of her jaunty black sack was turned coquettishly up about her fair throat. Her eyes snapped from under curling lashes, and a dimple came and went in her cheek. Her small hat crowned the mass of golden curls that were bound about by a veil. She was gloveless.

Ex-judge W. R. Codington appeared as the young woman's counsel, and entered a plea of not guilty, reserving the right to find technical fault with the form of complaint. Neither he nor the city was ready for trial, so the case was adjourned for one week.

Judge W. A. Coddington fixed the amount of bail at $200, which ex-judge Codington objected to as excessive. He insisted that as the maximum penalty was $100 fine and sixty days' imprisonment not more than $100 should be asked. Sergeant Lynch made a valiant defense of the court's action and volunteered his opinion that double the amount of possible fine was the correct legal rate to set. W. R. asked him curtly who was judge, and the giant sergeant grew red in the face and said that court was adjourned and that anyone could be judge. Then he cleared the court room.

The feminine prisoner was left alone for a moment, silently weeping. Then generous-hearted Samuel Allen, moved by the woman's suffering, sidled up to her, and the two held a consultation concerning the likelihood of getting bail. Samuel's hair is inclined to carrotty auburn, like unto Agnes's, and the two together looked like a Sandy Hook light-house shining through a fog.

As the result of the confab, Samuel made his exit in search of a bondsman. Presently one was found. He was Wm. B. Smith, a good-looking and well-dressed young man who is interested in the outfitting concern which is said to have furnished the Forsberg house. He is the same man whom the Bound Brook papers chronicled as being in Agnes's company when she caused disorder at the Bound Brook Columbian celebration. Both of them were then reported as being arrested and censured for reckless driving and fast conduct.

The bondsman met the prisoner in a corridor of the jail. They shook hands warmly, and held a whispered conversation. Then Smith turned to sergeant Lynch and said "All right". Together they went before judge Coddington, who had been summoned. The judge read the bail bond to them, and they affixed their signatures.

While Agnes was writing here, Smith turned away, walked up to sergeant Lynch, and said "It's a ——— shame!" "What's that?"—said the policeman. "It comes high,"—replied Smith—"but we must have it."

"Well,"—said the bondsman, turning to Agnes—"you don't want to stay here any longer: do you?"

"No"—was the response, and they went out together. In the area-way, Agnes said something to "Will", as she affectionately called him, and he slipped over to the North avenue railway station and got hackman McCormick to bring around a horse and sleigh. Agnes waited meanwhile in the stuffy little court room.

When the sleigh arrived, "Will" and Agnes nestled down together on the back seat. Agnes cast a reprpachful look at the gruff sergeant standing in the doorway, while "Will" tucked the fur robes about them. Then they were driven off, bits of white string fluttering from the harness where it was tied together.

Captain Grant came up at this moment, and commented: "Not many men would go her bail". Sergeant Lynch said: "I should n't wonder if she came up quietly before the judge this afternoon and had her case disposed of. She said this morning that there was no use fighting, as she had no defense to make."

The complaint against her is mildly drawn, and the disorder charged against her house is not so serious as it might be, as of the more ugly of the stories there is no definite proof.

To-morrow morning at 9 is the hour set for the hearing of the first of the young men to be judicially examined by judge Coddington in connection with the Forsberg ranch. He is alleged to have been violently abusive of the police, the night of the raid that was not a raid, reported exclusively in these columns yesterday.

THE PRESS has had considerable difficulty in compiling a complete list of the frequenters of the resort, who are liable to be summoned before the court to tell what they know about the place. Even after years of experience in newspaper work, the reporters are surprised and shocked at the identity of the habitues, many of whom have highly respectable connections and are in good standing in the community. They will suffer much if exposed. Already some of them have taken alarm, and are making themselves scarce. The flight of the suspected to parts unknown threatens to be a wholesale exodus.

Developments are fast ripening.

The next victim may be the man who personally takes supplies of provisions, etc., to the house, and who is well known about town.

THE GAMES WILL STAND.

Decision Concerning the Roadsters' Contests in the Bowling Tourney.

The executive board of the Elizabeth Journal bowling tournament met Monday night to consider the resignation from the league of the Union County Roadsters. The resignation was read and accepted without debate.

The next business for consideration made necessary by the resignation was the scheduled games played and unplayed of the U. C. R.'s.

To bring the matter before the meeting Mr. Whelan moved that the games already rolled with the U. C. R.'s be allowed to stand. This motion was seconded by Mr. Trainor.

Mr. Shreve argued that this action would not be fair to the teams that have not rolled the U. C. R. team, as it would give those that had won from the Roadsters an advantage when the averages were made up. Mr. Whelan answered that the games had been rolled in good faith, and that it would be unjust to deprive any team of a standing which it had made in good faith. He said further that if his team had lost he would vote just the same to let the games stand as it would be taking an unprecedented step if games were thrown out.

Mr. McConnell then said that a gentleman had come to him and asked him to make a statement to the league. This gentleman, he said, was ready and willing to form a team which would be satisfied to accept the Roadsters' average and to bowl the rest of their scheduled games on condition that the league permit several men who have bowled in the league with some of the present teams to join the new team.

The speaker explained that it was not his proposition, but that he had promised to bring the matter to the attention of the executive committee for one who was not a member of that organization.

As the plan had in view the enrollment of bowlers who are at present league contestants the proposition was not favorably received and its consideration was deferred.

Mr. Shreve then offered as an amendment to Mr. Whelan's motion that the clubs which have not rolled with the U. C. R.'s, namely, the Alcyones, Arthur Kulls, Field Club and Pioneers, be allowed to claim each one forfeited game. Mr. Whelan accepted the amendment, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

The corrected record, to date, with forfeited games inserted, will therefore be:

	Won	Lost	Percent.
Y. M. C. L. A.	7	0	1.000
Arthur Kull Asso'tion	6	2	.750
Elizabeth Field Club	5	2	.714
Alcyone Boat Club	5	3	.625
Crescent League	2	5	.286
Roselle Casino	2	5	.286
C. Y. M. L.	2	5	.286
Pioneer Bowling Club	2	5	.286

THEY'LL SAVE YOUR FAVORITE.

A Very Good Plan of "Reservation" Adopted by the Public Library.

Hereafter when desired the Public Library will reserve books which are out when asked for. To get a book reserved for you, ask for a "reservation card", for which you pay two cents, to cover the cost of printing and postage. Then fill up the blanks with the author, title, etc., of the book you want, and address the card. When this book is returned, it is placed directly with the "reserves", and your postal card application is then mailed. The date to which your book will be kept for you, which will be included as part of the time that you are allowed to keep it out, is shown on the card, and you must of course either call or send by that time, otherwise the book will be charged to the next applicant. This plan, it is hoped, will prove itself as satisfactory here as it has done in other places. As will be seen, it is quite fair, for all will have the same opportunity, and it will usually succeed in getting the books to the people who really care for them most.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

MISS BULKLEY DELIVERS HER VALEDICTORY,

And the Board of Education Makes a Financial Statement of Receipts, Expenditure, Assets and Indebtedness—A Lengthy Report of What Has Been Accomplished.

Copies of the following public documents were not supplied to THE PRESS until last evening, though "owing to the courtesy of the board of education" copies were furnished to another paper hours before. There was no reason, nor justice to the people, in such an exhibition of favoritism. The board should not permit itself to be influenced by the personal spite of any one member. Here are the belated reports, in which every guardian, parent and tax-payer has deep interest:

ANNUAL REPORT OF MISS J. E. BULKLEY, CITY SUPERINTENDENT AND SUPERVISING PRINCIPAL OF SCHOOLS, CITY OF PLAINFIELD, TO THE HON. A. B. POLAND, STATE SUPERINTENDENT, FOR THE SCHOOL YEAR, ENDING AUGUST 31, 1892.

To the Hon. A. B. Poland, State Superintendent:

One of our constant and serious problems is the accommodation of our rapidly increasing school population.

An addition of four rooms to the Bryant School, opened at the holidays, was at once occupied by divisions of overcrowded primary classes.

A trained kindergartner, graduate of Mme. Kraus Boelte's school, was placed in charge of the youngest class in a suitably furnished room, and we were thus brought one step nearer our ideal in the earliest training or toward the time when each school, with a room suitably furnished, shall have children of three or four years of age, under wise and skillful direction, developing naturally through utilized work and play to trained habits of observation and self-activity and with acquired facility for the work of the primary.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The next problem will be the accommodation of the High School. It is gradually enlarging its scope and members. Its science work is under the direction of a specialist, and the language classes are crowded to the present limits of room.

The interest in higher education is increasing yearly. Of the nineteen graduates of this year all of the eight boys and some girls expect to enter upon the academic or scientific course of some college, and of the thirty or more coming seniors, most of the girls and boys have already chosen their college and have taken their preliminary examinations. Amherst College has this year been added to the long list of colleges receiving our graduates by certificate. One interesting feature has been the voluntary interest in self-improvement. Debates, senate sessions, papers and other literary efforts, public and private, were some of the means of self-training. Two lectures by Prof. Frederick Starr, of the Museum of Natural History, one on "Early Language", another on the "Daily Life of the Chinese", and a course of lectures on American authors, Holmes, Lowell, Hawthorne, and Emerson, were given by Leon H. Vincent, under the direction of the High School and netted a handsome sum for an addition to our library. The Alumni association, now numbering over three hundred, has this year formed a permanent organization.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Arithmetic—

All home work is memory work and to secure more intelligent, independent and thoughtful work in Arithmetic has been the aim of the teacher in her direct work with the class. Mental training in grasping the conditions of a problem is made as prominent as skill and accuracy in getting results.

Geography—

More comprehensive plans in Geography include the natural conditions, their relations and their modifying effects. The librarian of our public library has noticed the increasing interest, as pupils with note books gathered material from all available sources for the topics thus developed.

History—

Graphic illustrations have been made a prominent feature of U. S. History, and varieties of methods have been used to impress causes and relations of events.

Language—

Language has formed a part of every lesson, although receiving attention in daily, special lessons. Free, oral expression by the pupils should be made more prominent to correspond with the training in the written form.

Penmanship—

The experiment was tried this year of omitting regular lessons in penmanship for the first half year in the grammar grades. Since pen and ink is used in the first year in the primary, and those in the higher primary grades write as well as formerly in the grammar classes, this will eventually do away with the necessity of training in penmanship in the grammar grades, and permit the use of the time in other directions.

Science—

The classes have made a marked advance in their study of Plainfield fauna, flora and minerals, grouping and classifying, with a study of their most marked characteristics, their observation of birds, trees, plants, moths and butterflies, in some classes keeping a daily record of changes noted. Simple experiments, with such apparatus as each pupil could command at his home, have also been given in each room by a specialist with review by the teacher, in illustration of the laws of natural science, thus enlarging and enriching the grammar course.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

In no department have we more skillful teachers nor has there been more marked advance in methods and general intelligence of the pupils.

The results also show that there are dangers in modern methods.

From the extreme of the old memory training in number, we are in danger of neglecting memory. Objects and illustrations are but a means to grasp number and its relations and careful drill and memory work should fasten results. Some of the most interesting sectional teachers' meetings of the year have been in the primary, in which the inventive genius of the teacher has illustrated skill in developing interest or power in fastening facts with classes or well developed plans and theories have been explained in papers by the teachers.

General results—

The result of such skillful training in the primary has been, that individual promotions have been frequent through the year in primary and grammar grades, the work has been advanced beyond the course in classes which, have even permitted the three years' work of a grammar grade to be finished in two by a large section of the class.

The growing special needs of each department has resulted in the formation of sectional teachers' meetings, in which the aim has been to join special study of the philosophy of pedagogy with practice. General meetings have also been held and the teachers have had special pleasure in discussions and lectures. The "Aims of Early Educators", by Miss Tefft, a graduate of the Pestalozzi-Froebel-Verein of Berlin, was joined with chatty reminiscences of her own experiences in German schools. A lecture on "General Principles of Education" was also given by Dr. J. W. Dickinson, secretary of Massachusetts board of education. Last year we were indebted to two members of our board of education for lectures to teachers, one from Mr. Geo. H. Babcock on "Principles of Ventilation", another on "Memory Training" by the Rev. Dr. Hurlbut. Three graduates from the High School form the training class and these have a course of two years with training in psychology, pedagogical principles and methods.

Flag Days—

Instead of permitting the constant wear of our flags we have this year named certain flag days with a national or local significance. The educational effect has been felt in the school and even in the community, in the many inquiries as to the occasion, and the morning lesson of patriotism in the school has been enforced.

The Library—

An important factor in any school is the use of the library. Our training in literature in the primaries through the use of periodicals has resulted in an added interest in standard authors. The books of the library have been divided among the schools according to their grades; new books were purchased with the proceeds of concerts, added to the State appropriation, and each primary school was furnished with standard authors and books of reference; the grammar grades have books of travel and historical reading with more advanced standard authors, and these are used in class in a reading period or taken home for preparation for the oral or written book review; selections are memorized, after some analysis of thought and style, and a store of material is prepared for the four years' critical study of literature in the High School.

Drawing—

Drawing has been taught on a more comprehensive plan than before, and beside connecting geometrical forms with moulding in clay, paper cutting and pasting, there has been design from study of nature with drawing from the object and original design in colors. Geometric drawing, historic ornament, drawing from casts, mechanical and free hand, have formed part of the well developed plan.

Looking back over eleven years of supervision we find complete revolution in methods and finish in primary work, a development in grammar work with a better philosophic basis, and a general culture and expansion in the High School.

Moral training has resulted in a more law-abiding, self-controlled, self-respecting tone of public opinion, and a healthy interest in athletics shows that the physical has not been neglected.

"We have not attained but strive toward our ideal."

One proof of the value of the school to neighboring cities is the fact that tuition for members out of the district, filling only vacant places in our class-rooms, has been for the year 1891-'92, $2,189.60, while the tuition eleven years ago, 1880-'81, was $287.60.

The best conditions for successful school work exist in Plainfield in a cultured, faithful, efficient corps of teachers, and in a Board of Education, intelligent, independent of favoritism or political influence, who recognise as motive forces in their direction, only the highest good of the school and of the community.

JULIA E. BULKLEY,
City Superintendent and Supervising Principal of Plainfield Public Schools.

SPOILING FOR A FIGHT.

Plainfield Chosen as the Scene for a Possible Pugilistic Contest.

A sport claiming to be the middleweight champion of Pennsylvania is in town with his trainer spoiling for a fight. He offers to put up $500 against an equal amount. Last night it was expected that he would meet a well-known Plainfield boxer in a barn in the outskirts of Netherwood, but there was a hitch in the arrangements. The police are on the watch, and the sport and his cronies may get locked up. Several toughs say they are willing to smash the "champion's" head for less money than he offers. He would better leave town.

A Game, a Supper, and a Dance.

The C. Y. M. L. of this city are preparing to give a rousing reception to the Y. M. C. L. A. of Elizabeth to-night. The guests will include friends as well as members of the Elizabeth association. A league game will be rolled between the two bowling teams, and a collation and dancing will follow. The visitors will reach here on the 7:34 train.

—The Columbian carnival at the rink last night was poorly attended. Only 20 skaters were in costume. The prize winners are yet to be announced.

Looking Forward.

"The bride's responses were almost inaudible. I don't believe even the minister heard them."

"Poor thing! I suppose she wanted to be able to claim that she had never been married if it doesn't turn out well."—Truth.

Mrs. Grumpy—Can't, eh? Perhaps I haven't kept the secret that the engagement ring that you gave me was plated.—Boston Globe.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

Read and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.00.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years with distressing pain over my eyes, I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured. T. C. Warren, Rutland, Vt.

I suffered from a severe cold in my head for months and could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in his case. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Samuel J. Harris, wholesale grocer, 119 Front street, New York.

NOT AFTER ANNEXATION

All the Talk About Canada's Burning Desire Misleading.

SIR CHARLES H. TUPPER'S VIEWS.

The Minister of Marine Says that Only Those Who Do Not Know the Dominion Talk of Annexation—The Fishery Treaties—Emigration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Charles H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the Canadian government, arrived at the Hotel Brunswick yesterday, and leaves to-day on the Majestic for Europe. Mr. Tupper is the agent from Canada for the British government to the Behring Straits Sealing Arbitration commission, which meets in Paris on Feb. 26 next. Speaking on the topic of annexation last night, Mr. Tupper said:

"It is a great surprise to me and to most Canadians to note the stir that some of the New York newspapers make about the annexation of Canada to the United States. This talk of the great desire of Canadians for annexation is entirely misrepresented.

"Canada does not want annexation. We want to be good neighbors, and that is all. No one in favor of annexation could be elected on that platform to even the smallest office in Canada. The party now in power in Canada is kept in because of the distrust that the opposition might have even slight thoughts toward annexation.

"There is no fear that Canada will be forced into annexation, for we are as self-contained and contented as any nation in the world. Canada is most prosperous; comfort reigns in all the provinces, and no policy of the United States can change our political feelings. Our prosperity is increasing yearly and we are ever so much ahead of where we were ten years ago. The United States cannot crush or control Canada any more than England could crush or control the United States. Only those who do not know Canada talk of annexation. A trip through the Provinces would speedily convince them of the folly they utter.

"As to the fishery treaties, I can only say that since the modus vivendi was established in 1888, there has been no friction between Canada and the United States on the subject. Of course there have been a lot of unfounded newspaper stories, but there was no basis for them. Canada has, however, had some differences with the Newfoundland government, because the government gave the United States fishermen privileges that were denied to their Canadian brethren. These, however, are being settled now, and there virtually exists a modus vivendi between Newfoundland and Canada.

"I think that eventually the virgin wheat lands of Canada must draw the emigration that the United States is now getting, for it seems to me that the American lands will carry all they can hold. We shall soon send our grain over in the shape of beef, and thus make a double gain.

"As our population increases the grain grown will be fed to the cattle we shall raise, and we will, with our great railroad and steamer facilities, be most formidable competitors to the present leading meat supply sources of the world."

BAYARD, LAMONT, CARLISLE.

Stated that These Three Will Surely be in the New Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—One very positive assertion was made last night by a Democratic leader who enjoys confidential relations with Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Stevenson.

"I know," he declared emphatically, "that Thomas F. Bayard will again be Secretary of State. Mr. Cleveland had hoped to persuade Mr. Whitney to accept the place, but has given it up.

"Senator Carlisle has all along been fixed for Secretary of the Treasury, but until yesterday it had not been positively determined whether Col. Lamont would be Secretary of the Navy, Postmaster-General, or Secretary of War.

"Mr. Cleveland desires him in the Cabinet as an adviser more than anything else, and so to the War Department he will go unless plans are changed."

WEDDED WITH GREAT POMP.

The Marriage of Archduchess Margaret and Duke Albrecht.

VIENNA, Jan. 25.—The marriage of Archduchess Margaret Sophie and Duke of Wurtemburg was solemnized yesterday in the Church of the Holfrath. Cardinal Gruscha, Archbishop of Vienna, presided.

The wedding was one of great brilliancy, being attended by Emperor Francis Joseph, several Archdukes and Archduchesses, the King and Queen of Wurtemberg and other members of the royal family of Wurtemberg.

After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom kissed the hands of the Emperor and the King and Queen of Wurtemburg.

Suicide of a Prominent Lawrence Man.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 25.—Charles R. Stanley, a prominent citizen and member of the lager beer brewing firm of Stanley & Co., committed suicide yesterday afternoon at his elegant home on Jackson Terrace. It is supposed that despondency over continued ill health led to the deed.

WOMAN OF FASHION.

Prevailing Styles for Very Young Maidens.

The Empire Looks Well on Them—Some Youthful Dance Gowns—House Dresses and How to Make Them Up—Charming Blouse Effects.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

The empire is very accommodating in some respects, although it has been so loudly denounced by society. So many women objected to it, because it hid effectually the beautiful figure they had been so carefully developing for some seasons. It was a shame to conceal the strength of the limb, the long waist line, the square shoulder and straight form under one of those high-waisted, full, baby things, that allowed no one to discover what the form beneath really looked like. And because women rebelled so, there was a sort of compromise effected, and the 1830 styles were brought forward, and the empire was rarely made for the street, but reserved for evening wear and for young maidens. For it suits the maidens particularly well when they reach the awkward age and while they pass through it. The high waist is then the very thing that will best suggest the softness and grace that seem properly, in poetic fancy, to characterize budding womanhood, but which are so often entirely lacking. The fullness of the high waist and the straightness of the gown hanging there from all help to soften the harsh lines there may be about the girl's figure.

So a young girl looks but little different from a full-fledged belle as she enters the crowded parlor of an evening, save that the adorning of her gown is quieter and not so abundant; that the material of the gown is simpler, and that she generally appears in but one color instead of in bright and brilliant combination.

At a New Year's eve gathering of young lads and lasses I saw some very pretty gowns. They looked fresh and natural, and I liked to watch them as they formed the quick figures of the Scotch reel.

One girl wore a white dress, with a silver thread forming big squares over it. She had a feather ruche at the edge of her skirt, and a yoke formed by a double row of the feather trimming; then a high ribbon belt tied in two big bows on the side, one falling below the other.

Then there was a pretty dark-eyed girl, whose hair fell about her neck in natural ringlets. Her dress was cut rather low, so that the ringlets had plenty of room to fall over her shoulder. The silk dress of princess cut was a pale-gray shade, and over it fell a gauze slip, with a pretty silvery sheen, embroidered with tiny blue flowers. Pale-blue ribbons, brought from under the arms up into a point both front and back, formed a corselet, headed by a big rosette, from which floated long blue streamers. A niche finished this dress also. There was a small ruffle about the neck, falling at the shoulders over a little deeper ruffle, termed a sleeve

JUDGE GROSSCUP.

The Accomplished Successor of Judge Blodgett, of Chicago.

Mr. Peter S. Grosscup, who has just been appointed judge of the United States circuit court for the northern district of Illinois, was born forty years ago in Ashland, O. His ancestors on both sides were in America long before the revolutionary war. On his father's side his great-grandfather, Paul Grosscup, was prominent in the province and state of Pennsylvania. Paul Grosscup held a commission from King George as a magistrate and served many years both in the provincial and state assemblies. He sat in the constitutional convention in Philadelphia in 1792, his colleague on that occasion being Abraham Lincoln, uncle of the late president. The family came originally from Holland. Mr. Grosscup's maternal grandfather held a commission under Washington and his grandfather was a soldier in the war of 1812. His father and mother came to Ohio as children and are still living, having celebrated their golden wedding last spring.

Mr. Grosscup gets his Christian name, Peter Stenger, from his relatives, the Philadelphia Stengers, one of whom was for many years a member of congress and secretary of the commonwealth and another of whom is a prominent lawyer of Philadelphia, the partner of Gov. Pattison until his recent election. After graduating as valedictorian of his class in Wittenburg college Mr. Grosscup read law in the office of Judge Thomas, of Boston, and then settled down to practice in his native town, forming a law partnership with the late Judge Osborn. He soon developed a special talent for the trial of causes and became a favorite jury and political orator. His method was that of close logic and pointedness, infused with fire and imagination. He entered into politics and found himself when not quite 28 years old the candidate of his party for congress. The year, however, was democratic, and Mr. Grosscup remained with his practice. Two years later a gerrymander threw him into the same district with Maj. McKinley, who as yet had made no mark in congress. The democratic majority rose upward of 2,000, but the young republicans overcame it, electing their candidate by 1,800 majority, a triumph that gave him his first political prestige. Mr. Grosscup was in the front from the time of making the nominating speech in the convention to the election, and ever since has been a special friend to the Buckeye governor. Four years later the state was again gerrymandered, this time by the republicans. Mr. Grosscup got into a republican district, but the counties were strangers to each other and a spirited contest followed, which resulted in his defeat. Determining to leave politics alone, he came to Chicago in February, 1883, and entered into partnership with the late Leonard Swett. During the time of that partnership and since he has taken part in many important trials, among them being the Ker and Mackin cases and the Hoke case at Peoria. These were his only criminal cases. He was chiefly engaged in chancery cases and in argument before the state and United States supreme courts. Many of these cases involved large sums of money, and some, such as the university and Douglas and the Storey will cases, and more recently the Crawford, the Webster and Kean cases, are well known.

Mr. Grosscup married the daughter of the late A. A. Taylor, the owner of the extensive flouring mills at Toledo, Mount Vernon, Londonville and other places in Ohio.

THE HAYTIAN BUILDING.

How the Negro Republic Will Be Represented at the World's Fair.

The republic of Hayti is not very large nor very important among the nations, but as far as the world's fair is concerned it has set an example to many of its big sisters. Very early in the history of the exposition Hayti appropriated $25,000 to assist in its proper representation, and a good slice of the appropriation has been expended in the erection of a special building, which stands almost in front of Germany's big brick structure at Jackson park, in a very desirable location. It is a low, square building, surmounted by a dome, and surrounded on three sides by an ornamental pillared verandah. The coat of arms of the republic is carved over the entrance, with the inscription: "Republique Haytienne, 1492—1804—1893." The date 1804 is that from which Hayti's independence is reckoned.

MONT BLANC OBSERVATORY.

Enormous Obstacles to Be Overcome in Its Erection.

Prof. Janssen, of Paris, is the life of the project to build an observatory upon the summit of Mont Blanc, at the highest point of land in Europe, at an altitude of 15,750 feet above the level of the sea. He has just made to the Academie des Sciences in Paris a report of the work's progress during the past season, giving hope that the next year may witness the completion of the observatory.

It will be understood easily, says the Illustrated American, that the obstacles to be overcome are enormous. The enterprise began with an attempt to ascertain the depth of the covering of ice and snow. Shafts were sunk and tunnels were driven into the face of the slope, but notwithstanding the great depth to which the workmen penetrated the rock was not reached. Only ice was encountered. The idea of laying the foundations of the observatory upon the rock was accordingly abandoned, and it will be erected upon the ice. The objection to this is the belief that the ice moves at a slow rate and that the observatory will be carried with it. Then the question of how to get building material to the summit had to be solved. There is no royal road up Mont Blanc, although with favorable conditions the ascension has been made in a day. The celebrated Chamounix guides were enlisted in the enterprise, and they have carried the beams and planks up the mountain at the rate of three francs, or at less than sixty cents, a kilogramme. This charge may seem high, but it is not so when the labor, to say nothing of the actual danger, is considered. One large plank or beam made a load. More than 1,300 loads have been carried up so far. The first stage was to the Grands Mulets, at an altitude of 10,000 feet. This is the hut in which it is customary to pass the night after having climbed up from Chamounix, and from which the ascent to the summit is made on the following day. Readers of "Tartarin on the Alps" will remember that it was here that the hero learned of the real danger before him, and shuddered at the ghastly relics of past disasters. Practically, all the material for the building has been carried to this point; one-half being stored here until next season, and the remainder having been deposited under a cliff at the very summit. The erection of the building will be a comparatively simple operation. It was first put together at Meudon, near Paris, and every piece marked. It is proposed to make the cupola of aluminum instead of steel, as originally intended, in order to save the cost and labor of carrying the greater weight of the latter metal up the mountain.

A Question of Legs.

"You ought to run all mamma's errands without grumbling," said papa. "Little boys ought to be better than spiders, and yet spiders are just as patient as possible."

"Yes, sir," was the answer; "and perhaps if I had as many legs as a spider I'd be patienter."—Harper's Young People.

He Didn't See.

Innocent—I don't see how you keep the stage in place.

Manager—And why not?

Innocent—It has wings, hasn't it?

Manager—Of course; but—

Innocent—And flies?

Manager—Ye-er-um. Come off.—Detroit Free Press.

A Small Dividend.

Brown—Yes; they thought I was poisoned, and the doctor came with his stomach pump—

Jones—Did he get anything out of you?

Brown—Yes; five dollars.—Puck.

He Told the Truth.

Merchant (to applicant)—You say you have had experience? Well, were you ever in one place as long as six months?

Boy—Yes, sir. I used to be a messenger boy.—Brooklyn Life.

The Way of the World.

Tom—I got a check to-day for my article on the evils of betting.

Lucy—What are you going to do with the money?

Tom—Play the races to-morrow.—Judge.

Warned.

"Be careful," whispered the clock as it ticked away on the marble mantel.

But he did not heed. His arm was around her waist, and—"Be careful," she whispered.

But he knew that her mother was deaf and that her father was away at the club, so his cheek stole near to hers.

"Be careful," said his good genius, "the first thing you know, young man you'll be married."

Then he desisted.—N. Y. Herald.

THE ELECTION OF MARTIN

Mrs. Lease Renounces Populism in Consequence.

ITS EFFECT ON THE U. S. SENATE.

Democrats Say Their Party Is Now Assured of Control After March 4—Fruitless Efforts to Elect Senators in Many Western States.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Lease and Mrs. Diggs, who have been prominent in the councils of the Populist party, who took an active part in the campaign, and whose work is recognized as having been a potent factor in the Populist success, are furious over the election of Martin as Senator. They thought a stalwart Populist ought to have been elected.

"You can say for me," said Mrs. Lease to a reporter this morning, "that the election of Judge Martin is a death blow to the Populist party in Kansas. I renounce my allegiance to it."

Mrs. Diggs said:

"When the Populist party elected Judge Martin as Senator it committed suicide. From its ashes, however, will arise a new party not to be dominated by political tricksters, which will carry out the will of the people."

TOPEKA, KAN., Jan. 26.—When the Legislature met in joint session with the Republican members of both House and Senate declined to answer to their names as the roll was called.

Ninety-one persons responded to their names, eight more than a quorum. Eleven of these were members of the Populist House, and had got their seats through contest proceedings.

The result of the vote as finally announced was: Martin, 85; Coburn, 4; Hanna, 1; Snyder, 1; Close, 1.

President Daniels announced that as Judge John Martin had received a majority of the votes he had been duly elected United States Senator. Before this was done Senator Baker (Rep.) demanded that the Republicans have a right to vote.

The President ruled that the vote having been announced no further votes could be received.

The Populist joint session at once dissolved, and Senator Baker offered a resolution which set forth that 10 persons who voted in the joint session had no legal right to a seat, and calling upon members to meet and elect a Senator.

Speaker Douglas was promptly elected Chairman of the Republican joint session after the resolutions were adopted.

An ineffectual ballot was then taken, the vote being: Ady, 77; no quorum being present an adjournment was taken.

The Republicans claim that Martin's election is illegal, inasmuch as it was participated in by a House whose organization they allege to be unconstitutional. That question, however, will have to be settled by the United States Senate when Mr. Martin appears with his credentials.

DEMOCRATS ARE JUBILANT.

They Believe that Martin's Election Gives Them the U. S. Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—There is general rejoicing among Democrats at the Capitol over the news announcing the election of Judge Martin to the Senate from Kansas.

The fact that Judge Martin is a Democrat and received a majority of the votes of the Legislature which has been recognized by the Governor, assures the Judge of the certificate, which will give him a prima facie right to the seat of Senator Perkins.

Democratic Congressmen congratulate themselves that their party is now practically assured of the control of the Senate after March 4 next.

THE NEBRASKA CONTEST.

Senator Paddock's Friends Not Confident of Success.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 26.—There is little change in the Senatorial situation save there is a cold feeling between Senator Paddock and John M. Thurston.

Thurston's friends say that their man was forced to withdraw because Senator Paddock used his Senatorial influence with the Union Pacific of which road Mr. Thurston is general solicitor.

The result is that Paddock's friends are not as sanguine of success as they were, for Thurston's men are up in arms at what they deem an unfair advantage taken of their chief.

The failure of the Capital National Bank and the involving of several State officers therein is causing the Senatorial struggle to retire to the rear.

The Fight in Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 26.—The latest vote on the Senatorial question does not bring the problem any nearer solution than it was before the vote was cast. The Democrats seem to be veiling their intentions by giving complimentary votes. The ultimate choice will probably be Judge Corn or W. H. Holliday, unless the Populists unite upon one of their number and insist upon holding out for him.

Montana's Senatorial Deadlock.

HELENA, Mont., Jan. 26.—Only 64 of the 71 members of the Legislature responded to their names in the joint session. Several pairs were announced. The vote stood: Sanders, 30; Clark, 21; Dixon, 11; Collins, 2.

No Change in the Voting in Washington.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 26.—The two ballots taken for United States Senator resulted in no change.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

SANFORD VS. GLEASON.

Latest Developments in the Muddle at Long Island City.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 26.—The people of Long Island City are still enjoying the blessings of a dual government. The fact that Sanford, who declares himself Mayor, holds the public buildings, but no public records, and Gleason, who likewise calls himself Mayor, holds the records but no public building, does not seem to affect the temper of the residents of that singular municipality.

The only people who are at all anxious now are the men who held office under Gleason. The police force is also on the anxious seat, and hardly know whom to obey.

Sanford played a trump card yesterday and one which caused consternation among the Gleasonites.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of Gleason, Patrick J. Harrigan, William Hewitt, and Bernard Foy, of the Water department; Philip Coffey, William Fitzgibbons, Andrew Schmutzer, Preston Woods, and Thomas A. Larkin, of the Board of Education, and Daniel J. Devinney.

Grand larceny in the second degree was charged for removing public records from the safe of the City Hall.

Fox was the first man arrested. He was arraigned before Mayor Sanford, and after an examination was released in $3,000 bail. While he was being examined a search was made for Gleason, with the result of finding that he was in New York city.

When Fox had been released Sanford and District-Attorney Fleming had a consultation, after which orders were sent to the police to hold the warrants until further orders.

As a result when Gleason returned to Long Island City he was not molested.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Yesterday Benjamin W. Downing, Patrick J. Gleason's lawyer, applied to Judge Barnard for an injunction restraining Mayor Sanford, of Long Island City, from performing the duties of the office of mayor. Judge Barnard denied the motion.

A REVOLUTION IMMINENT.

San Dominicans Excited Over the Concessions to Americans.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The British steamer Marcia, chartered by the United States and Brazil Mail Steamship company is here with genuine war news from St. Thomas. Gen. Luperoro, ex-President of San Domingo, who resides at St. Thomas, has prepared a manifesto protesting against the concessions recently given Americans by Westerndorff & Co., the Amsterdam, Holland, bankers.

The latter firm a month ago transferred the rights to collect the customs revenues of San Domingo to a syndicate of Americans.

Charles W. Wells of No. 36 Wall street; John W. Taylor of Newark, N. J., and Williard Brown of No. 750 St. Nicholas avenue, were named in the syndicate and have since gone to San Domingo to take possession of the new enterprise. The names of James G. Blaine, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Matt Quay and D. Ogden Mills were also mentioned in the list of those interested in the syndicate.

The transfer of the privilege of collecting the duties, which are mostly on tobacco—and the latter export amounts to about 574,000 pounds yearly—fell like a thunderbolt upon the Dominicans, who, fearing that the accession of American interests would imperil their independence, have called upon the ex-President to issue a manifesto.

This the latter did the day the Marcia left St. Thomas.

The manifesto calls upon the natives of San Domingo, numbering 16,000, to prevent the Americans from acquiring the privilege.

The friends of Luperoro say that a revolution will result if the American syndicate tries to enforce the provisions of the concession.

JAMES SMITH SENATOR.

Governor Werts Refuses to Curtail Mayor Wanser's Power.

TRENTON, Jan. 26.—The New Jersey Legislature in joint session at noon yesterday formally declared James Smith, jr., of Essex, Senator to represent New Jersey in the Congress of the United States for six years from March 4, 1893.

The practical settling of the matter by the caucus last week robbed the event of all interest and the meeting was devoid of all excitement. At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Smith held a reception in the Governor's public room and received the congratulations of the Legislature and the public.

Judge Werts has refused to sign the bill taking from Mayor Wanser the power to appoint the Corporation Counsel and Attorney of Jersey City.

Policy Shops Flourish in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26.—The News prints two pages showing the extent of policy playing in Baltimore. "Baltimore enjoys the unenviable distinction," says the News, "of being perhaps the greatest hotbed of policy playing in the United States. It has, in fact, become a part of the political machinery by which Baltimore is governed. The sellers of lottery policies flourish without, practically, let or hindrance."

Assistant Wahipley to Resign.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—When Treasurer Nebeker returns to Washington from Indiana, James W. Wheipley, the Assistant Treasurer of the United States, will resign his position. Mr. Wheipley will become first vice-president of the American Security & Trust Co., of this city.

Yellow Fever at Guayaquil.

PANAMA, via Galveston, Jan. 26.—Yellow fever has broken out at Guayaquil, Ecuador. All ships from Guayaquil for this port have been quarantined and have not been allowed to unload their mails or cargo.

HORACE N. CONGAR.

Ill for a Long Time—He Had Held Many Positions of Trust.

NEWARK, Jan. 26.—The death of Horace N. Congar, which was announced yesterday, had been expected for months, as he was sick with creeping paralysis.

He was born in this city on July 25, 1817, and conducted the Newark Mercury, which he and Daniel Porter purchased in 1851, for 10 years in the interest of the Abolitionist party.

The first Republican meeting in this State was held in Mr. Congar's dining-room.

Mr. Congar held many positions of trust, being appointed Consul to Hong Kong by President Lincoln shortly after the latter's election, and acted as Assistant Secretary of State under President Andrew Johnson, which position he held until March, 1866, when he was appointed Secretary of State of New Jersey by Gov. Marcus L. Ward.

On June 19, 1874, President Grant appointed Mr. Congar Consul to Prague, the capital of Bohemia, and in the fall of 1876, Mr. Congar returned to this city and again connected himself with the Mutual Bonds as adjustor. His last political work was done in 1878 when Potts ran for Governor. His last political position was that of a member of the commission to prepare and suggest amendments to the New Jersey Constitution, to which office he was appointed by Gov. Ludlow on March 25, 1881.

COMMANDER JOHNSON DISGRACED.

Dismissed from the Navy as Per Court Martial Verdict.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Commander Henry L. Johnson has been dismissed from the navy. An official letter from Secretary Tracy is on its way to Johnsbury, Vt., where the ex-officer resides, informing him of his disgrace.

Commander Johnson was tried before a general court martial at the Mare Island Navy Yard in December last on three charges, the principal one of which was, in official language: "Through negligence, suffering a vessel of the navy to be run upon a rock and hazarded."

The vessel was the Mohican, which Johnson commanded, and the grounding took place off the Alaskan coast.

The court found him guilty of the three charges preferred, and sentenced him to dismissal. Secretary Tracy approved the findings, and this action was approved by the President.

MR. BLAINE'S CONDITION.

The Ex-Secretary a Mere Skeleton of His Former Self.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—It is said at Mr. Blaine's house this morning that he passed a very good night.

Mr. Blaine is so wasted that he weighs now only 100 pounds. He will be 63 next week, and has always doubted his ability to ride over that climacteric, which is the ninth age of man, each measured by a period of seven years.

The anatomists tell us that the human frame is made over every seven years. In woman the grand climacteric occurs at the end of seven of these terms—that is, when she is 49; in man, at the end of nine, or at the age of 63. Mr. Blaine's friends feel much solicitude on this point.

A TRAMP ON A CHIMNEY.

Mistaken for a Chicken Hawk and Accordingly Shot.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26.—Noah Dallis, of Penn Yan, N. Y., who is visiting J. L. Spangler near Cambridge, mistook for a chicken hawk an old tramp who was warming himself by straddling a chimney on the roof of Mr. Dallis' host's house.

He blazed at the mark, which was outlined against a leaden sky, and bespattered the tramp's face with shot. The tramp will lose one, probably both eyes.

Mr. Lamar's Successor.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The statement is made in official circles and with a degree of authority, that President Harrison has concluded to make a nomination to fill the vacancy created by Justice Lamar's death. He prefers to name either Judge Parder or Judge McEnery, of Louisiana, but if he concludes that a Republican cannot be confirmed he will likely nominate Judge Jackson, of Tennessee, a Democrat.

The Missing Returns.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—State Secretary Foster has reached no decision with reference to the question whether he shall send a special messenger to bring to Washington a duplicate copy of the electoral returns of each of the four States that have failed to send by messenger a duplicate of the official statement already sent by mail. These States are Indiana, Montana, Wisconsin and Oregon.

THE ROYAL MARRIAGE

Berlin Gaily Decorated for the Occasion.

FESTIVITIES ON A GRAND SCALE.

The Mine Horror at Dux—One Hundred and Thirty Now Known to be Dead—Italy Makes Threats Against Brazil—Other Foreign News.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—The whole city is decorated with flags in celebration of the wedding of Princess Margaret, youngest sister of the Emperor, and Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse. The fronts of the large buildings in Unter den Linden and in the Friedrichstrasse for half a mile north and south are half hidden with enormous strips of Prussian colors.

The civil ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by Count von Wedel, of the Royal household, in the hall of the Empress Frederick's palace.

The bride and bridegroom were taken to the schloss through cheering crowds, which had lined the route since 10 o'clock in the morning.

At the schloss all the royal personages gathered in the Chinese cabinet to see the Empress Augusta Victoria place the bridal crown upon the Princess Margaret's head.

Prince Frederick then led his bride to the chapel, where the religious ceremony was performed.

The wedding banquet was served in the White Hall. After it the royal guests took places under the canopy of the throne and the others ranged themselves to the right and left in a semi-circle, in order of rank.

Twelve Ministers of State, bearing wax candles, then began the "fackeltanz."

They invited the bridal couple to dance and escorted them round the room. The bride then invited the emperor to dance and the bridegroom invited the Empress. After the two couples had made the circuit of the room, twelve pages took the torches, handed them to others, and the ceremony was continued by the royal guests until it was merged into a general dance.

Prince Frederick Charles and his bride will pass the first part of their honeymoon in Potsdam.

The marriage of Princess Margarethe and Prince Frederick Charles in a measure takes away from the Empress Frederick her last daughter, though it is said that the Princess has invariably declared that she would live and die an old maid before she would marry a man who would take her from her mother.

It is believed that their parting will be only nominal, and that the Empress Frederick will live much of the time at the Castle of Pappenheim, which has been given to Prince Frederick by his elder brother, the Landgrave of Hesse.

The bridegroom, who is a lieutenant in Queen Victoria's Prussian Dragoon Guards, has a salary of only $850 yearly, but the Landgrave of Hesse, who is enormously wealthy, will see that he is well provided for financially. Princess Margarethe receives a handsome dowry from her mother and a very substantial wedding gift from Emperor William.

His Majesty has a habit of giving nicknames to members of his family, and the application bestowed by him upon Princess Margaret is "Laughing Goose Blossom," which suits the frank, pleasant countenance and sweet disposition of the Princess.

Princess Margarbethe is thoroughly English in all her tastes and habits, and she speaks the language without a trace of German accent, writes it perfectly, and is a great reader of English books.

She has always been in the habit of going with the Empress Frederick to the Anglican Church, both at Berlin and at Hamburg. The Princess, without being beautiful, is decidedly pretty. She has a bright and attractive face and is altogether charming.

Prince Frederick of Hesse is a son of the late Landgrave Frederick and the heir of his brother, the Landgrave Alexander, who is in a very infirm state of health and blind since birth.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Emperor William has conferred the decoration of the Order of the Black Eagle of Prussia upon the Czarewitch, who came to Berlin as the representative of the Czar to attend the marriage of the Princess Margaret of Prussia and Prince Frederick of Hesse.

130 MINERS WERE KILLED.

All Hope of Rescuing the Men in the Fortschritt Mine Abandoned.

DUX, Bohemia, Jan. 26.—Hope of rescuing alive the men who were entombed by the explosion of firedamp in the Fortschritt mine has been abandoned.

An investigation of the list of employes reveals the fact that one hundred and thirty men lost their lives in that disaster, as it is generally conceded that those who were not killed by the explosion must have been suffocated by the afterdamp.

The mine is being cleared of the wreckage as rapidly as possible, but the work is necessarily slow.

Every effort will be made to recover the bodies of the dead.

ITALY THREATENS BRAZIL.

ROME, Jan. 26.—Sig. Tugini, the Italian Minister to Brazil, has been instructed to repeat the demand to the Brazilian government for satisfaction for the outrages committed last summer upon Italian sailors and residents at Santos, during a riot which occurred there.

A MINISTER'S DAUGHTER.

Pleasant Part of Rev. Mr. Higgins' Duty.

Beloved Pastor of a Congregational Church.

Charles A. Wurr, One of the Best Known Men of New Haven.

Rev. Dr. L. H. Higgins is the beloved pastor of the Congregational church at Hanover, Conn.

He and his family are among the most respected people in New London county, and his daughter is one of the many accomplished young women in the town where her father preaches. He is one of the most earnest and straightforward of the many brilliant pastors in the denomination that includes such a large number of Yale's best graduates in that State, and his good judgment is shown in temporal as well as religious matters, and when in September last he came out with the frank and flat-footed statement that follows, there was no doubt in the minds of those who were sick in Enfield what course to pursue. Said Mr. Higgins:

"I regard it as a pleasant part of my pastoral duty to recommend Paine's celery compound wherever there are physical needs. My wife and daughter, in fact there are four of us, have been using Paine's celery compound for several weeks with beneficial results. General prostration, the result of grip and malaria, seem to have been the cause of weakness. My daughter has taken the compound for malarial troubles and general prostration with very satisfactory results. We can't keep house without it."

It is such words as these from thousands of grateful people that more than anything else have spread the fame of the of the great remedy first prescribed by Dartmouth's noble professor, Dr. Phelps,—a remedy that makes well those who suffer from the various ills that result from impaired nerves and impure blood.

Charles A. Wurr is one of the best known young men of New Haven, where he holds a responsible position with B. Shoninger & Co., the organ and piano manufacturers. As a result of overwork, Mr. Wurr's health gave out, and, to use his own words, his "blood became impure, and erysipelas broke out. I consulted a good physician in this city, who prescribed for me a certain salve, but this drove the poison back into my blood about six times.

"I then thought it was time to be a doctor myself, and bought a bottle of Paine's celery compound. Before I had used it up I felt a change for the better. I took it just at the time that my face was in a fearful condition, and felt better 36 hours after using the same, and in a few days' time I was as well as ever."

AGNES FINED $75.

THE GIRL PLEADS NON VULT AND IS SENTENCED.

Judge Coddington Says He Means the Case to Be an Example—Such Houses Not to Be Tolerated in This Community.

Agnes Forsberg was surrendered by her bondsman to the court at noon today. On the advice of her counsel, Wm. R. Codington, she retracted her former plea of not guilty, and pleaded non vult. Sentence was deferred till 1:45. At that hour the prisoner, who had sat all the time in the court room without any luncheon, stood before the bar.

Ex-judge Codington made a stirring plea for leniency, asking that justice be tempered with mercy.

Judge Coddington exhaustively considered the case, and said that while he gave the prisoner the benefit of every point made in her favor he nevertheless was bound to defend public morals and suppress such houses as she acknowledged keeping.

He sentenced her to pay a fine of $75 or go to jail for 30 days.

Agnes sighed heavily during the ordeal of the judge's rebuke and sentence. She was very pale but haughty. Her nervousness seemed to have vanished.

She wore the same jaunty costume as on the day of her arrest, save for the hat, which was of black velvet, yellow ribbon and ostrich plumes. Her hands were neatly encased in new kid gloves. Her curly hair was tastefully arranged, and her flowing bang newly trimmed in a graceful curve.

A number of those interested freely expressed themselves as feeling that the fine was too heavy, but the court was given to understand that it would be paid.

Mr. Smith gave vent to his sorrow at having gone on the woman's bond. He said "I'm through doing for other people." He asked THE PRESS to say for him: "I went on the bond at the solicitation of five prominent Front street merchants, to shield them; their names I would not mention if I went to State prison." It is not necessary for him to mention their names. THE PRESS has them on the list.

It is understood that Agnes's fine will be made up by contributions from frequenters of the resort. They are anxious to have the matter hushed up

Agnes's mother is now to be arrested—probably this afternoon.

Judge Coddidgton warned Agnes that if ever she appeared before him again, for a similar offense, 'twould go hard with her.

Other articles in this issue concerning the Forsberg case were written before these developments.

JUDGE CODDINGTON MORALIZES.

Good Advice to a Youthful Prisoner, and Admonition to Young Men at Large.

Mary Staats, a young women with a straight-cut bang, appeared in court this morning in company with a "ladifren", to testify against William Stuart, whom she had had arrested for personal abuse.

Mary unblushingly quoted considerable foul language which Willie had used towards her, and Willie admitted part of it.

For a young man 20 years of age Stuart was about as ignorant and stupid as could be conceived. He did not know the nature of an oath, and so would not swear to what he said.

Judge Coddington announced that he had no doubt of the lad's guilt, but as the offense was his first and as the police gave him a fair reputation the court suspended sentence, taking occasion, however, to warn the prisoner that another arrest would bring heavy punishment.

The judge gave Stuart a sharp reprimand and said that the sort of offense with which he was charged, was too prevalent. Young men should be taught that it was not right or decent to insult young women or use foul language to them. He warned Stuart not to repeat his offense, and advised him to get out of idleness and into work.

THE PAROLED PRISONER.

He Didn't Appear, and the Police Are Hopping Mad.

Police captain Grant was greatly annoyed this morning because —— did not appear in the city court. —— was accused of having used profane and indecent language to officer Grant and his men, the night of the Leland avenue house "raid". Last night, says chief Grant, he told —— that he was under arrest on a warrant which had been made out for ——'s abuse of the police, which constituted disorderly conduct. He paroled —— to appear in court at 9 in the morning. Up to 10 o'clock —— did not appear. Judge Coddington told policeman McCue where he thought he could find the delinquent, but after a search that officer returned without him. Capt. Grant and Sergeant Lynch both said that they would show no further leniency towards the accused. They had saved him from the disgrace of spending the night in a cell, and trusted to his honor as a man. Now in return for his ingratitude they would lock him up whenever they could lay hands on him.

IN THE COURTS AT LAST.

The Peace Street Project Certiorrared by an Assessed Property-Holder.

Jacob Miles has secured through his counsel R. V. Lindabury a writ of certiorari from the Supreme Court in the matter of extending Peace street into North Plainfield.

This means that that august body is to review the entire proceedings in the matter and decide whether or not the work of the commissioners was just and proper.

Mr. Miles's assessment was $1,600. He claims that the township at large should share the burden, instead of having it shouldered by the property-holders directly benefited.

The legal proceedings will greatly delay the much needed public improvement.

AGNES AND HER BONDSMAN.

Prospects That the Girl Will Be Surrendered to the Court.

Constable Mattox reported to judge Coddington this morning that Wm. B. Smith was anxious to be relieved from the responsibility of vouching for the appearance in court of Agnes Forsberg, for whom he became bondsman yesterday on the charge of maintaining a disorderly house. The court said that Smith must bring the woman into court to surrender her. Chief Grant stated that he did n't believe Smith was good for the $200 bond. "In that case"—said the court—"we'll make him suffer."

What They Are Good For.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the best medicine known.

First—They are purely vegetable, in fact a medicated food.

Second—The same dose always produces the same effect—other purgatives require increased doses and finally cease acting.

Third—They purify the blood.

Fourth—They invigorate the digestion and cleanse the stomach and bowels.

Fifth—They stimulate the liver and carry off vitiated bile and other depraved secretions.

The first two or three doses tell the story. The skin becomes clear, the eye bright, the mind active, digestion is restored, costiveness cured, the animal vigor is recruited and all decay arrested.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

HARRIS IN COURT.

MORE TIME IS GRANTED.

Sentence on Him Not Yet Pronounced, and Motion for a New Trial to Be Made on Monday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—At 11:30 o'clock this morning, in the Court of General Sessions, Part I., Carlyle W. Harris, the murderer, was called to the bar before Recorder Symth to be sentenced to death.

He was not sentenced, however. Mr. Howe said he wanted time in which to make a motion for a new trial.

The Court gave him until Monday next, when the motion will be heard.

Never before in the history of the Court of General Sessions has there been seen in Part I. such a crowd as that which gathered there this morning.

Interest in the sentencing of Carlyle Harris, the murderer of his wife, Helen Potts, at the Comstock School, was the cause of the gathering.

Besides this card there were other things to interest the crowd. Dr. Robert Buchanan, indicted for the same offence for which Harris was to be sentenced to death, was to be brought up to face the bar. It was said, and it was understood that a date for the commencement of his trial would be set.

Mrs. Harris, pale and hysterical, came into court at 10:05 o'clock.

At 11:20 o'clock Mr. Nicoll moved that sentence be passed. Mr. Howe then asked for time, and it happened as has been told.

Harris was there. He showed no signs of nervousness.

ROYAL GOOD FELLOWS.

That's What the Elizabethan Young Men Proclaim Their Defeated But Happy Rivals and Hosts.

The bowling team of the Catholic Lyceum of this city fought valiantly that night, but were unable to worst the stalwart adversaries the Young Men of Elizabeth. After the game they showed their visitors how to take defeat gracefully. A fine collotion was provided, and there was dancing and other social gaiety. It was a night of rare good frolic. The score:

CAUGHT AT LAST.

The Son of a Respected Father, Charged With Burglary and Murder.

Charles Smith, about 22 years of age, a son of Henry Smith, an esteemed citizen of Somerville, was arrested late last night at his father's home by deputy sheriff Strong, of Freehold, charged with burglarizing a store in Clarksburg, last October, in company with two others, at which time the owner of the store was shot and badly wounded.

All three of the men escaped at the time of the burglary, but suspicion rested on Smith. Last week the evidence against him was brought before the Monmouth county grand jury, and they found an indictment against him. A search was made for Smith but he could not be found.

It was known that his father resided in Somerville and yesterday deputy sheriff Strong, in company with two constables, went there. They, together with officers Crow and Vanaman, surrounded Smith's house late last night and captured him. He made no resistance. He was lodged in jail and taken to Freehold this morning.

Henry Smith, the boy's father, is a respectable old gentleman and this blow falls crushingly upon him.

Seems to Be a Lack of Harmony at Home, Dear Journal.

The Elizabeth Journal says:

The hardest worked editors in New Jersey are the Plainfield editors. They are splendid fellows, everyone of them, and they get up good, newsy papers. But they do have such unspeakable and incalculable and illimitable trouble in keeping each other straight.

And the same day its neighbor the Herald remarks:

FULL OF CONTRADICTIONS.

Of all the newspapers published in this State, there is one issued not a hundred miles from this city, which takes the whole bakery for swallowing and contradicting its overwhelming stock of lying and damaging articles which it daily dishes up for its readers. But then the publisher has always followed up Barnum's saying that the public likes to be humbugged.

NEW JERSEY LAWMAKERS.

Interesting Peep Into the New Legislative Manual—What They Say For Themselves.

In the dress of maroon and red which so well became its predecessors, the Legislative Manual for 1893 has made its appearance in Trenton. Like them, it is full of important political information and other entertaining things, and it is three pages bigger than its immediate predecessor, containing 437 to the other's 434. The publisher, T. F. Fitzgerald, a veteran newspaper man, would be offended if anyone should suggest that in making the increase he but followed a practice of recent Legislatures. The general tone of the book is far from being one of levity, and that is good evidence of the innocence of his intent. So sternly business-like is it that it has not a word of kindly advice for the fledgling lawmakers nor of requiem for the "turned-down", those unfortunates who fell into the traditional political pot while the political soup was boiling.

A nice book it is, and there is nothing nicer in it than the picture of Governor Werts. There is another picture besides that of the Governor, and there is a map of the State. There are Assemblymen and Senators who call the map a picture, and maybe they are right. The other picture alluded to is one of the State Capitol. Mr. Fitzgerald is an open-hearted man, and he has not a secret of his own except one—namely, his object in putting this picture of the Statehouse in his book year after year. Nothing could induce him to tell that, but through the experience and shrewd guessing of an old legislator what is probably the cause is now to be made known. This veteran Assemblyman's opinion is entitled to consideration and respect in the premises for reasons which it would not do to make known. He solemnly averred that the tea served in the Trenton hotels is so strong as to wrestle with the memory and down it in two falls out of three, therefore the picture is put in as a guide, he said, to prevent inexperienced members from going into the post office or some private house to do their legislating, when the spirit moved them.

The ornamentation done by other hands consists of the biographies of the Governor, Senators and Assemblymen. It is on this part of the book that the reader is tempted to shed a tear for the vanquished—those who were defeated in caucus, or polling-booth, or simply turned down. And if he has any more tears after that one has dropped, he will be sure to dampen some of the biographies with them. They will do no good then, for they will not fall on the driest of the collection, but the thought of the tender green thing that produced this or that one will force them to flow. Many of them are the biographies of men of one or more sessions' standing, and they have already been commented on in these columns. When their writers were soft and inexperienced they wrote them and sent them to Mr. Fitzgerald to be published. Many let their pride guide their pens into tracing sentences that read boastfully, and every time one of these looks at his own handiwork he is reminded of his feelings on that sad occasion when he first stepped on a hoop.

The chirp of some of this year's fledglings has the same boastful ring in it, and so it will be while the State of New Jersey and Tom Fitzgerald go hand in hand through the rolling years. Not a few are pithy and terse as benefits the book, and some are so short and barren of statements as to give out a suspicion of modesty.

Everything in the book is in proper order, and naturally the first biography is that of Governor Werts. Added honors evidently do not make the Governor proud, for it is the same biography which he was using before the election. The only thing added to it is a statement for the benefit of these who do not read the newspapers, that he defeated John Kean, jr., in an election held in 1892.

The book says that Congressman John T. Dunn, from this district, was only seven years old when he left Tipperary for the purpose of becoming a Congressman. He made the attempt last fall and a Bayonne man named Chamberlain tried to stop him but could n't.

Endless Attractions at This Resort.

That popular amusement resort on Twenty-Third street, the Eden Musee, is brilliantly illuminated both on the front and in the interior by a new and elaborate system of electric wires. The improvement adds to the beauties of the exhibits. Frequent additions are being made to the great collection of waxworks, and timely subjects are quickly reproduced by the skillful artists of the establishment. The stage entertainment was never so attractive and extensive as at the present time. Guibal has introduced several original and surpassing feats in magic. The mind-reading manifestations continue to mystify astonished audiences. The closest scrutiny fails to explain the secret of the startling phenomena. The Royal Gypsy Band of Danko Gabor is a musical organization of rare excellence, and its daily concerts are thoroughly enjoyed by lovers of good music. The solos of the Princess Dolgorouky have created a sensation in musical circles. Ando and Omne, the clever team of Japanese performers, are bringing out additional feats with pleasing regularity. The Eden Musee is open from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m., and affords inexpensive and delightful entertainment. The buffet in the winter garden is under the management of C. Ehringer.

The proprietors of Salvation Oil will pay a large reward if any certificate published by them is not found genuine.

The American Catarrh Cure

Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1338 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

A MOST WORTHY ORDER.

Interesting History of the Odd Ladies, Whose Pioneer New Jersey Lodge Is that of Plainfield.

Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, Independent Order of Odd Ladies, is preparing for a notable celebration and public installation of officers. The order is a most worthy one, but comparatively not understood, and just at this time the following official sketch from the Advocate is appropriate and interesting.

This society, composed wholly of ladies, owes it origin and existence to Mrs. Prudence M. Irvin, now deceased, but formerly a resident of East Boston, Mass. One evening in July, 1844, she attended a public installation of Maverick Lodge of Odd Fellows, and was so impressed with the magnitude of the work being accomplished by the male portion of the community, that she devised the means of woman exerting herself for the good of her sex; hence the creation of the United Order of Independent Odd Ladies. She procured the names of five ladies, and in July, 1845, instituted Amity Lodge, No. 1, of East Boston, as the parent of Odd Ladyship. It was considered singular for woman to assert her rights forty-three years ago, and it was of slow growth. In the early history of this order a disastrous fire destroyed the records and much of the property, which retarded the progress, yet to-day with the advancement of the times and the merits and benefits this society is found upon trial to contain, it has grown and is still growing rapidly. Women are coming to the front and realizing what is for their benefit. Almost the first question asked is, "What are the objects of this order and how does it benefit woman?" We can answer, It elevates woman. It shows and practices humanity to woman by doing as we would like to be done by, and the fraternity is exhibited so strongly that we cling to each other through prosperity and adversity. In sickness or sorrow we need friends and we cannot have too many, then it is that Odd Ladyship proves itself a help and a blessing. For our families it is a protection, as we care for the orphan children of a sister after her decease. All lodges pledge themselves to take care of their sick. After a subordinate lodge has been instituted one year they provide in their by-laws that a certain amount of weekly benefits shall be paid for a certain number of weeks in the year; the average amount now paid three dollars a week for six weeks in each year for sickness. Each lodge has a relief committee appointed for each day in the week to visit a sick sister and see that she is duly reported to the lodge and looked after. Should a sister need watchers each lodge may or has established a fund called "Watchers' fund", where if a sister pays the small sum of twenty-five cents each year, she can have a competent nurse furnished from this fund to watch with her and take care of her nights. Then we have a Relief fund, where any sister belonging to this order may join to secure aid to those she may leave behind. All sisters under fifty years of age may join by paying one dollar and ten cents; the assessment at a death, the sum of sixty cents. Any sister joining over that age the assessment is one dollar at a death, and same fee to join, an assessment being taken from the bank whenever possible. These assessments thus far have been very light, as the Odd Ladies seem to be exceedingly healthy. At the death of a member of, this fund the money is paid to the beneficiary within two days, and often within twenty-four hours after proof of death, which helps those left behind to have ready money for all expense occurring, something no other order does; and these sisters are not required to have a medical examination to join this fund, as in most other orders. Another question asked is, "What does it cost to join the Odd Ladies?" Each lodge has its own regular fee. Any white lady of Protestant faith, of good moral character, good health, and respectable standing in society may join by applying and giving two references; the average cost is three or four dollars to join, then there are quarterly dues. After a person has been a member four weeks she can have the second and third degrees for an additional dollar, and for the sum of four or five dollars become a full fledged Odd Lady. Then we have our Government, which ranks with Odd Ladyship as the Grand Lodge does with Odd Fellows; this is composed of Past Ladies from the subordinate lodges. This body was organized Oct. 12, 1846, and has now fifteen past lady governesses. This body makes the laws which govern the whole order, and is a large plant of thrifty growth. We still have another plant to our already stocked garden. The supreme board organized in 1850, and is composed of past lady governesses of Government. To this body is referred all matters not settled by Government whose decision in all cases is final. The Order of Odd Ladies have an established headquarters at No. 5 Allston place, Boston, Mass., where any information regarding this order not already published can be secured; also the society editresses of this little society paper, Sister E. S. Lawrence, 5 Wentworth street, Mattapan, and sister M. E. Small, 43 Creighton street, North Cambridge, Mass., who would be glad to receive any and all communications and enquiries for publication, and so enlighten those who are laboring in the dark as to the aims and objects of Odd Ladyship. We number over two thousand members, and have thirty lodges, all of which are in a flourishing condition, paying a large sum each year for benefits, four of which are out of the State of Massachusetts. This order is incorporated and acting under the laws of this State and fulfils all it promises, our motto being "Love, Union and Charity".

An Interrupted Sleigh Ride.

Fred S. Dunn and a companion were out driving on West Front street, Dunellen, Tuesday night. Near Will Milliken's house the horse shied at some coasters and upset the cutter, the occupants out. Mr. Dunn held fast to the lines till they broke, and then the horse scooted for home. His Plainfield friends were much alarmed to find the sleigh brought back empty. When Mr. Dunn returned by train he found the horse safe and sound in its stable. Nothing had been broken or damaged.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the common council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the council to adopt the same.

F. W. RUNYON, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., January 18, 1893.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the City Treasurer, and the payment of City moneys.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The Treasurer of the City shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, execute a bond in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, to the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office, with such freehold security as the Common Council shall approve and direct, which bond shall be submitted to the Common Council for its approval, and when so approved shall be deposited with the City Clerk for safe keeping.

Section 2. The Treasurer shall receive all moneys belonging to or in any way appertaining to the city, unless otherwise provided by law, and shall forthwith deposit the same in such bank or banks as the Common Council shall from time to time designate as the depositories of the city moneys, in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield".

Section 3. No moneys deposited in any depository of city moneys in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield shall be drawn therefrom or paid thereout for any purpose whatever in any other manner than by a check or draft upon a bank designated as such depository, signed by the City Treasurer and countersigned by the Mayor or the acting Mayor and the President of the Common Council or the President pro tem or in the absence of the Mayor or President of the Common Council, by the Chairman of the Finance Committee of said Common Council, except as hereinafter provided. Warrants on City Treasurer issued by the Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room, signed by the President, and countersigned by the Treasurer of said Board of Directors and accepted by the City Treasurer, payable at the bank designated as the depository of funds for the maintenance of the Public Library and Reading Room, and warrants issued by the Board of Health, signed by the President and countersigned by the Secretary of said Board, and accepted by the City Treasurer, designating the depository where such warrant is payable, shall be treated as checks or drafts and paid when presented at the depository at which they are made payable.

Section 4. The Treasurer shall keep in a suitable book or books in such manner as directed by the Common Council, or its appropriate committee, separate accounts of the several funds for which moneys shall be received or paid out by him, each under its proper head and title, so that the account of each of such funds shall show at all times the exact amount to the credit or debit of such fund.

The Treasurer shall also keep a detailed record of all assessments made or authorized to be made by the Common Council, setting forth the date and purpose of each assessment, the names of persons assessed, the amounts assessed against each, and the date of the payment of the same.

Section 5. Whenever the Common Council shall authorize money to be borrowed on the credit and in the name of the city in anticipation of the collection of taxes, the Treasurer shall prepare and sign a note for the amount so authorized to be borrowed, payable at such time as shall be fixed by the Common Council, which note shall likewise be signed by the Mayor, and, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall cause such note to be discounted at one of the designated depositories of city moneys, the net proceeds thereof shall be credited to the account of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield in such bank, and credited by the Treasurer to the fund for which the money was borrowed. At the maturity of the note so discounted, the Treasurer shall, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, pay the same by check or draft signed by the Treasurer and countersigned as aforesaid.

Section 6. The Treasurer shall render to the Common Council at each of its regular meetings a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him from the date of his last preceding statement; and at the last meeting in each year he shall render a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him during the current year, and he shall submit for inspection his books to the Mayor or Common Council or its appropriate Committee, or any City Officer the Common Council shall designate, whenever requested so to do.

Section 7. No claim or demand of any kind against the city shall be paid by the Treasurer unless first regularly allowed and ordered paid by the Common Council and a statement in writing to that effect, duly signed by the City Clerk, be filed with the Treasurer, excepting maturing obligations issued for money borrowed as provided in Section 5, and moneys due the Public Library and Reading Room on account of their portion of taxes collected, and moneys due the State and County for taxes, or school moneys directed by law to be paid by the City Treasurer. Upon receiving from the City Clerk said written statement of the claims or demands allowed and ordered paid by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall forthwith prepare checks or drafts in payment thereof, have them properly signed and countersigned and pay said claims or demands to the party entitled thereto, in the manner herein provided.

Section 8. All checks or drafts shall be filled up by the City Treasurer, regularly numbered, and a detailed margined record of each kept by him.

The City Treasurer shall take from each claimant for all bills or claims ordered paid by the Common Council, at the time of the delivery of the check or draft, in payment thereof, a receipt on the margin of the check or draft book for such check or draft and also a receipt on each bill or claim so paid and for all other checks or drafts issued by him a proper receipt, and the said Treasurer shall file in regular order and safely preserve as vouchers all such bills or claims and receipts and he shall also file and safely preserve, subject to disposition by the Common Council, all checks or drafts that may become cancelled or spoiled, and he shall also file and safely preserve all checks or drafts drawn by him when paid and returned to him by the bank paying the same.

Section 9. The two Ordinances respectively entitled "An Ordinance Relating to the Treasurer of the City", approved December 28, 1881, and "An Ordinance Providing for the issue of Warrants on the City Treasurer for all current claims against the City", approved June 4, 1873, are hereby repealed, but any Ordinances or parts of Ordinances repealed by either of said Ordinances shall not be revived by this repeal of said two Ordinances, and all Ordinances or parts of Ordinances, so far as they conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance, are hereby repealed.

WHAT HAPPENED TO HIM.

Something Peculiar to Say the Least.

An Event Which Has Puzzled the Doctors Not a Little.

The Occurrence Has Created a Great Deal of Comment.

The following remarkable account we have from the man's own lips.

Mr. Amos R. Darter is well known in Indianapolis, Ind., living at 225 West Chesapeake st. He says:

"Ten years ago a pain came in my left foot and went all over me. I had such severe pain in my head that I could get no rest day or night. I called a doctor; he said I had rheumatism, but he could not relieve me.

"Then I went to taking patent medicines and bought everything I would see advertised for rheumatism, but all failed to give me any relief. Then I called in the doctors; had five good ones treat me, but all failed to relieve me. I was taken down and suffered intense pain. My flesh got so sore that I could not bear my clothes to touch me. My left side got numb from my foot to my head. I would feel a tingling in my side; in a second I would fall prostrated.

"I could not sleep night or day only when under the influence of morphine. I could not walk one square without resting. I would have to set my cane out first and step with my right foot and then drag the left foot up.

"I gave up all hopes of getting well and quit taking any medicine except morphine.

"I would roll all night in bed and get up as tired in the morning as if I had worked all night.

"At last I found a cure in Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. The first two bottles drove the pain all out of my head. I took six bottles more. Now I can walk and I am free from pain. I thank God that I found this wonderful remedy. If anyone will call at my home I will tell all about my cure."

We venture the prediction that no sufferer from pain, whether of the head or elsewhere in the system, who reads about this remarkable cure, will delay getting this wonderful medicine from the drug store. It certainly cures rheumatism, headache, backache, in fact all kinds of pains. Mr. Darter's marvelous cure by it after many doctors failed even to afford relief, is proof of this, and he may be seen or written to about the cure.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and is recommended by the doctors as the best remedy to take. It is, in fact, the prescription and discovery of a physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York, the noted specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

If you are suffering pain or ache or feel badly, use this remedy at once. It will cure you.

A CHARMING WOMAN.

The Talented Wife of America's Sleeping-Car Magnate.

Early Years of Mrs. George M. Pullman's Life—Her Interesting Family—Devoted to Charitable Work of Every Description.

Mrs. Pullman, although fond of society, is much given to domestic life, and spends most of her time with her husband and children either in their Chicago home or their palatial "home on wheels." The latter is a magnificent railroad car built for their special use, furnished in the most elaborate manner; every detail which could possibly conform to comfort being supplied, and the whole outfit so admirably constructed that a transfer from one line to another can be had without the slightest inconvenience to the occupants.

The early years of Mrs. Pullman's life, says the Ladies' Home Journal, were spent in Illinois, and her education was completed at the Episcopal convent in San Francisco, where she also lived two years during the war. In her youth she was considered very handsome, being of lithe, supple figure, with small, well-poised head, regular features, dark eyes and hair, and a fine, delicate complexion which she still retains.

It was in 1867 that Harriet Sanger, daughter of J. Y. Sanger, of Ottawa, Ill., united her fate with the celebrated George M. Pullman, who, though now his wealth is estimated roughly at forty millions, was then simply in rather comfortable circumstances.

She has been, and has lived, abroad with her daughters for several years, but finds Chicago more pleasant than any city she has visited. Her home is on the northeast corner of Prairie avenue and Eighteenth street, and is a massive brown-stone edifice, surrounded by beautiful grounds and shaded by tall trees. The spacious library to the left of the great hall contains handsomely carved book-cases in which rare volumes rest, and on these cases busts of favorite authors, valuable vases and appropriate pictures of much value are tastefully arranged.

This room also opens into a side hall which leads to the carriage entrance, and near which are two fountains lighted with electricity and decked with ferns. To the left of the entrance is the music room, an immense, oblong, space finished in white and gold, and furnished with the most beautiful musical instruments. This room faces Lake Michigan, the merry splash of the waves from which can be plainly heard. Between this room and the hall is the drawing-room, which is completely finished in daintily painted canvassed walls and ceiling, and furnished with the most luxurious pieces of furniture, as well as having several great pedestals on which rest celebrated masterpieces in fine marble.

Mrs. Pullman is well supplied with every luxury that life can give, and is the happy mother of two beautiful daughters, Florence, a tall, graceful and dignified brunette about twenty-two years old, and Harriet, a bright, vivacious belle about twenty. Both daughters were educated in New York and Paris, and made their appearance in society two years ago. Beside the two daughters, Mrs. Pullman is possessed of twin sons, George M., Jr., and Sanger, sixteen years old, of whom both Mr. Pullman and herself are justly proud.

The daughters, as well as the mother, are continually engaged in charitable work. Mrs. Pullman is vice president of the Hospital for Women and Children, and is a member of the executive board of both the Old Ladies' Home and Women's Hospital. Florence has lately furnished a large ward in St. Luke's hospital, which is popularly known as the "Florence ward." Harriet is the leading spirit in one of the most practical works in Chicago, known as the Wildwood club, an organization composed of the most prominent women in the city, formed for the purpose of building and equipping a house and grounds where self-supporting women and girls may go and take a needed rest, free from restraint and intrusion, at a very meager cost.

Time has dealt kindly with Mrs. Pullman, who, though middle-aged now, looks young and strong, and her health, which has been poor, is almost entirely recovered, so much so that she attends to her many duties with as much alacrity as her daughters. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pullman are devotedly attached to their children, and find no joys so sweet as those of home life.

How Le Mars Was Named.

Le Mars, Ia., was christened in a curious way. The completion of a railroad to that point in the wilderness gave birth to the town, and the few inhabitants succeeded in having a post office established there. When the question of naming it came up the men very chivalrously decided to call it by the given name of one of the young ladies of the community. But which one? That could not be agreed upon, and it was finally decided to take the initial letter of the names of the six most popular. Their names were Lily, Evelyn, Mande, Annie, Ruth and Susan

ARTIFICIAL ICEMAKING.

A World's Fair Building Devoted to the Industry.

An Exhibit Which Will Be a Novelty to Most of the Persons Attending the Exposition—Modern Refrigeration Machines.

The magnitude of the world's fair is such that a building larger in size and more striking in architecture than most of those in which western expositions have been held is nearly half done without anyone, excepting those directly interested in its construction, knowing of its existence. As the foundation was laid and walls began to arise the employes around the fair manifested an uncertain curiosity as to what it was to be. They asked one or two people, but getting no positive reply the subject was dropped. If they thought at all about it afterward it was to the effect that it must be a part of the dairy exhibit, to which it was adjacent, and this is the first description which has appeared in the Chicago press in regard to the icemaking and cold storage pavilion.

The exhibit which will be given in the pavilion will be a novelty to most of the people attending the fair. Within it from eighty to ninety tons of ice will be made by the most approved processes every day. Three distinct systems, all of which have been found to work successfully in the business of making ice, will be in operation side by side. The harvesting of the ice after it has been made will be clearly shown and the utility of cold storage for the preservation of fresh meat particularly will be exhibited. The entire plan of cold storage will be in actual operation and in such a way that the visitors can fully comprehend this somewhat mysterious subject. All the different systems of cold storage will also find a place in the building.

It is the plaint of the company which is building the pavilion that ice machines and refrigerating apparatus were not originally given a place commensurate with their importance; and, more, it is said that the conditions regarding the exhibit were so peculiar that it was impracticable to show the making of ice as a regular exhibit at the fair.

A "concession" for the erection of a building was bought and paid for and then the plans for the structure now under way were made. They were for a building 130x255 feet, five stories in height, and with four imposing towers 100 feet high for observatories, reached by elevators. The central tower is 191 feet high, and will serve as a smokestack as well as doing duty as an architectural ornament. It is claimed to be one of the most artistic smokestacks ever erected.

The main doorway of the pavilion will be very ornamental and the entire work on the first story will be in symphony. Owing to the necessity of cold storage there will be no windows in the upper stories between the first and fifth. To make up for this wide stretch of plain staff the upper story will be profusely decorated.

The space allotted for the pavilion was 150x300 feet and lay due west of the Administration building, between that building and Stony Island avenue, the west line of the grounds. Architecturally it will be of the Romanesque order.

The machinery of the pavilion will be located in the room into which the main entrance opens. It will consist of five engines, no two of which are alike, with dynamos, air-pumps, and all the other motive power required in icemaking and cold storage. The boiler room is immediately in the rear of the engine room. The boilers will have 600 horse power.

Above the boiler room will be a fireproof story in which will be located ammonia condensers and water-purifying apparatus. The ice storage house will be 100x130 feet in size, two stories high and will be to the left of the boiler house and engine room. In this room every facility will be given the visitor to see the actual manufacture of ice under all processes.

On the right of the engine room is a space 100x180 feet, four stories high, all of which with the stories above the engines and tank rooms will be used for general cold storage. This department alone contains 700,000 cubic feet of space, which will be divided into various rooms. Each room will have its own temperature, and an automatic contrivance for controlling the temperature will be on exhibition.

Proper air spaces have been secured by two or three coatings of staff in parts where it was necessary that outside heat should have no effect.

The icemaking pavilion is being constructed on a scale that will rival some of the public exhibits on the grounds.

Women Work on Railways.

The rather surprising news comes from St. Petersburg that women may be employed upon the state railways in future in the proportion of twenty per cent. The nature of the work which they are to do is not specified, and probably it will be largely clerical, but there is no reason why they should not take their share of signaling, and the telegraphic system alone offers a big field for them. But, apart from any consideration of details, the concession is a remarkable one for Russia, and an encouraging sign of the times.

SENATOR GIBSON.

He Was Considered the Most Erudite of Southern Statesmen.

Randall Lee Gibson, senator from Louisiana, who died recently, enjoyed the distinction of being the most erudite of southern senators.

He was born September 10, 1833, at Spring Hill, near Versailles, Woodford county, Ky. He was carefully educated, and was graduated with high honors as long ago as the administration of President Pierce. The senator studied law in the Tulane university of Louisiana. In 1855 he declined the secretaryship of legation to Spain. He enlisted as a private soldier in the confederate army, though the son of a rich sugar planter. At the close of the struggle he had risen to the rank of general. The story of his achievements in warfare reads like a romance. In the defeat of Hood at Nashville he successfully covered the retreat, and in Canby's campaign against Mobile Gibson was detached with 3,500 men to Spanish Fort, where he held the national forces at bay for two weeks and then withdrew his entire command under cover of darkness, treading a pathway only eighteen inches wide through a marsh. He lost his fortune during the war, but made it up practicing law at New Orleans. He died a rich man. His wife is a highly educated woman. Much of her schooling was received at Heidelburg and Paris. She was a famous Creole beauty of New Orleans and comes of one of the best families in the country. Mr. Gibson was elected to the Forty-third congress, but was denied admission. He was a member of the house of representatives at Washington in the Forty-fourth and three succeeding congresses. His term as United States senator began March 4, 1883, and would have expired March 4, 1895. He was president of the board of the Tulane university and manager of the $1,500,000 with which that school is endowed.

KING SKATER DONOGHUE

Scores of Records Smashed in the Stamford Race.

PHENOMENAL TIME FOR 100 MILES.

The Newburg Boy Made the Distance in 7 Hours, 11 Minutes, 38 1-5 Seconds, Nearly Four and a Half Hours Ahead of the Best Previous Record.

STAMFORD, Conn., Jan. 27.—The match on Cove Pond, near Stamford, between Joe Donaghue, of Newburgh, A. S. Franklyn, of New York, and John Eunis, of Connecticut, was for pure sport only, but it resolved itself into the greatest sensation in the annals of skating. Prior to the start a few enthusiasts entertained a lurking suspicion that the contest would develop some features of unusual interest, but the results completely dwarfed the most exaggerated anticipations.

Not only were records broken, but they were shattered in such a manner as to completely revolutionize all previous statistics concerning the maximum speed to be attained on ice in skating for distance.

Joe Donoghue started on the journey with the leisurely gait to be expected from a skater who meant to finish 100 miles at one clip.

Without hurrying his space-devouring stroke, he was treading on the world's records after 15 miles.

At the end of the first hour Donoghue was ahead of any figures ever accomplished on runners, and he did not leave a solitary world's record standing from that time. He established a complete set of world's records for 84 consecutive miles, and seven additional ones for the hour periods. His plucky opponents also cut in at 50 miles and left the old figures in the shade.

The sweeping annihilation of such long-established figures and theories was to some extent accounted for by the splendid facilities. The course was an elliptical one, measuring exactly half a mile, allowing the usual 18-inch margin at the pole.

It had long, straight stretches, with easy curves at the ends, and did not exhibit a flaw of any significance. It had been scraped free of snow and preserved from trespass by the ingenious provision of an inner and outer track for the accommodation of officials and onlookers on skates.

The start was made at 8:15 a. m. Donoghue dropped at once into his long swinging glide, with his body bent forward level with his hips, and his hands clasped behind his back.

At 2:28 Donoghue had made 20 miles in 1 h. 13 m. 8 s. The best previous record for the distance was 1 h. 14 m. 7 1-5 s. At that time Donoghue was 1 1-2 miles ahead of Franklyn and 2 miles ahead of Ennis.

Donoghue made 25 miles in 1 h. 31 m. 29 s., which was 1 minute and 59 2-5 seconds ahead of the record.

At 40 miles Donoghue's time was 2 h. 34 m. 46 s. This was 25 minutes and 21 seconds ahead of the record.

At 50 miles his time was 3 h. 15 m. 59 2-5 s. This lacked less than 3 minutes of being an hour better than the record, which was 4 h. 13 m. 36 s.

Donoghue's time on 75 miles was 5 hours, 19 minutes, 16 4-5 seconds. Franklyn was second, 7 1-2 miles behind, and Ennis was third, 12 miles back of Donoghue.

At 2:35 Donoghue ended 90 miles in 6:25:57 3-5. His stroke was about 19 feet. His time averaged a trifle less than 4 minutes.

On his 92d mile Donoghue was tripped by a boy who tried to cross the ice. His fall was a bad one. He split his lip and bruised his knees. He started along slowly for two laps, and then recovered partially. He made 95 miles in 6 hours, 51 minutes, 7 1-5 seconds.

Donoghue broke the 7-hour record by going 97 miles and 22 yards.

He won in a dash, the time being 7:11: 38 1-5. This breaks the world's record, and Donoghue broke every record above 16 miles.

When he had finished Franklyn had gone 90 1-8 miles, and Ennis 85.

SOLON OFFICERS ARRESTED.

Charged by Rev. Mr. Covert With Conspiracy to Defraud.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 27.—Rev. William R. Covert, the late Attorney in fact of the order of Solon, has begun criminal proceedings against the most prominent officers of that organization.

He has entered suit before Alderman McPike against Abraham Israel and R. H. Jackson, Solicitors of Solon; R. J. Godfrey, ex-Supreme Treasurer; A. S. Munderf, ex-Supreme Secretary; J. L. Strikley and W. J. Coyle, both prominent members. The specific charge is conspiracy to defraud.

The accused were arrested yesterday and gave bail in the sum of $300 each for a hearing.

These are the first of a series of prosecutions threatened by Rev. Covert, immediately after his release from St. Francis hospital, where he was confined as insane.

He also says he will sue certain persons for conspiracy to get him out of the way by having him committed to the hospital as insane, when he was in possession of his right mind.

THE BROOKS' OBSEQUIES.

With Impressive Services the Bishop Consigned to the Tomb.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—Rev. Arthur Brooks, of New York, brother of the late Bishop, has been made executor of the latter's estate.

Bishop Potter, of New York, will, it is stated, occupy the pulpit of Trinity next Sunday, and preach a sermon on the death of Bishop Brooks.

The churches of the diocese are removing the Christmas decorations and replacing them with mourning.

Accompanied by evidences of public grief such as have not been manifested in this community before for a generation at least, the remains of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks were consigned to their last resting place in St. Auburn Cemetery. The interior of Trinity was packed with the funeral attendants who had been ushered to their places by the same force of marshals which officiated at Bishop Brook's confirmation less than two years ago. At 12 o'clock the church services began. Organist J. C. D. Parker opened with a voluntary, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

The enormous congregation rose, as the vestry doors opened and the procession headed by five bishops entered. These were followed by the diocese committee and the casket borne upon the shoulders of eight Harvard students.

Then came the honorary pall-bearers. The body was placed in front of the chancel, and Bishop Potter read the Episcopal burial service. No eulogy was pronounced.

When the casket was borne out of the church at the close of the interior services it was placed on a draped catafalque in front of the west vestibule steps. Rev. E. W. Donald, rector of Trinity, offered a short, impressive prayer, closing with the Lord's prayer, during which every head was bowed. Tears rolled down the cheeks of strong men, and the only sound besides the murmur of hushed voices joining in the prayer, was an occasional sob.

Then the casket was placed in the hearse and the solemn pageant moved over Cambridge bridge to Mt. Auburn cemetery. While the Trinity service was in progress an overflow service was held in the First Baptist church, Commonwealth avenue. The church was filled with all classes and conditions of people.

At the close of the burial service there was a surging of the crowd toward the lot and there was scarcely anyone present who did not bear away with him some memento in shape of a flower or a bit of green that had lain by the grave of their beloved bishop.

GLEASON WILL SURRENDER.

But He Intends to Make Sanford Prove His Title to the Mayoralty.

LONG ISLAND CITY, Jan. 27.—Ex-Mayor P. J. Gleason announces that he will surrender to his successor, Horatio S. Sanford, all of the city documents, records and books. Gleason also says that he will recognize Mr. Sanford as mayor.

This sudden change on the part of Gleason has been caused by the decision of Justice Barnard, of the Supreme Court, who declined to issue an injunction restraining Sanford from acting as mayor of the city.

The next move that will be made by Gleason will be to oust his successor through quo warranto proceedings. He says that Mr. Sanford will have to prove his title to the office.

SAYS HE IS FOREPAUGH'S FATHER.

An Aged Canadian to Contest the Late Showman's Will.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—Amable Lupeau, an aged French Canadian, living here, claims to be the father of the late Adam Forepaugh, the famous circus proprietor.

Lupeau claims to have recently sent his youngest son to New York to contest Forepaugh's will, and that he has received word that the prospects of success are growing encouraging.

Lupeau claims that Adam, when a boy, ran away with a circus and assumed the name of Forepaugh.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED.

The Steamship Donati Given Up—She Carried 38 Men.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—All hope for the safety of the steamship Donati, which left this port on Dec. 10, for Lisbon, has been abandoned.

The insurance companies in London are charging 80 guineas premium. The Donati carried a full cargo of 60,000 bushels of wheat, a small portion of which was in sacks.

E. J. Williams was the master of the vessel and she carried 38 men.

A Heavy Cut in Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill for the fiscal year year 1894, as reported to the House yesterday by Representative Dockerty, makes an aggregate appropriation of $21,677,998, being $223,134 less than the amount carried by the bill for current fiscal year, and $947,617 less than the estimates. The bill specifically provides for 10,616 salaries, being 116 less than than the number provided for in the law for the current year. The compensation to members of Congress is increased by $80,000, owing to the larger number of members in the next House.

NEW YORK CITY ELECTIONS.

The House Special Committee to Investigate Makes Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The House special committee, of which Ashbel P. Fitch is chairman, has concluded its report upon the supervision and administration of the Federal election laws in New York city.

The report states that testimony was promptly given by the U. S. Marshal and his assistant, but the Chief Supervisor of Elections refused any obedience to their summons.

The committee expresses the opinion "that all of the Federal Election laws have entirely failed to produce any good results in the direction of purity of elections, and have been productive of such serious and dangerous results that they ought at once to be repealed."

Concerning John I. Davenport, the report says:

"He holds his office by a tenure which makes him practically independent of any criticism or danger of removal. He not only holds this office of Chief Supervisor of Elections, but he has also had himself appointed a United States Commissioner, so that he can sit as an examining magistrate.

"With the power of the Government behind him, and with the money of the Government to use, he has managed for years a detective bureau, by which he has sought to get proof of the crimes, which, he has claimed, existed in New York city.

"When, in the first capacity as a detective, he had obtained such proof as he wished to use, he then, in his second capacity as a public prosecutor, issued the warrants for the arrest of the alleged criminals.

"Then, in his capacity as a United States Commissioner, he has heard his own charges against the prisoners, which he presented to himself as judge, by himself as prosecuting attorney, and has decided himself upon their guilt or innocence.

The committee asserts its whole examination failed to show a conviction for illegal voting in New York city in the federal courts under these laws, and since the present District Attorney came into office.

As a result of many thousand arrests only three men have been indicted for false registration, and one of these was acquitted. A witness sent by the Treasury Department before the committee estimated the expense for this year at $1,000,000, but the committee believes the amount will doubtless be much more.

The committee presents to the House a bill providing for the repeal of the laws with a favorable recommendation for its passage.

M'KINNIE'S DAMAGING TESTIMONY.

It Creates a Sensation at the Trial of Poisoner Beatty.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 27.—The Commonwealth in the case of Robert F. Beatty, who is charged with administering poison to the non-union men at Homestead, sprung a sensation by producing a witness, Charles McKinnie, whose evidence was damaging in the extreme.

McKinnie is a cook on the river. His evidence came in the nature of a surprise to the defense.

When District Attorney Burleigh called the name of Charles McKinnie, the defendant, Robert F. Beatty, turned quickly in his chair. His face was flushed, and his hands trembled. As the witness gave his testimony in a clear voice and practically sealed the fate of Beatty, the latter did not for a moment remove his eyes from him.

Perspiration trickled down his forehead, and he sat like one transfixed. It was plain that Beattty had not counted on the prosecution getting hold of McKinnie.

The latter told how Beatty had approached him with a proposition to go to Homestead and dose the men with proton oil, and how witness declined to have anything to do with the scheme.

An effort was made by Mr. Brennan to confuse McKinnie, but without success.

The testimony seemed to make an impression upon all in the court room, and the tipstaves experienced no little difficulty in maintaining order.

THE ROME BANK SCANDAL.

Accusations Against Many Prominent Men—Other Failures Looked for.

ROME, Jan. 27.—A number of prominent men, including ex-Ministers, deputies and journalists, are openly charged with having received money from the Banca Romana for years.

It is said that some newspapers received a subsidy of 60,000 lire annually. The judicial inquiry is said to have shown that the Banca Romana supplied the Ministry with a large amount of money in the last election.

The failure of the Banca Romana will, it is expected, cause the collapse of several other institutions, notably the Banca Industriale.

Signor Tanlongo, governor of the Banca Romana, refuses to answer questions at present, but promises to reveal everything to the judges.

Signor Cucinello, manager of the Bank of Naples, cynically tells interrogators that they will find everything in his strong box.

Experts have been unable, after three days' continuous efforts, to force this box or to discover the secret of its lock.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO STEAL

A Bookkeeper's Scheme to Negotiate an $80,000 Check.

THE CHIEF SWINDLER NOW IN JAIL.

A Clever Attempt to Rob the Royal Insurance Company, of New York, at Albany Frustrated—The Accomplice Who Presented the Check Escapes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A man understood to be James Woodward, who is a bookkeeper in the Royal Insurance company, at No. 50 Wall street, is under arrest on the charge of attempting to secure money on a forged check for $80,000.

According to a telegram received yesterday by Manager Edward F. Beddall of the Royal Insurance company, a forged check for $80,000, apparently signed by the Royal company, was presented to the cashier of the Kenmore hotel in Albany, and an advance had been asked upon it.

The check was drawn upon the Merchants' National Bank of this city and purported to be signed by Mr. E. F. Beddall, Manager of the Royal Insurance company, No. 50 Wall street, and countersigned by William J. Stevenson, cashier, and Osgood Welch, Director of the company.

The man explained that he had just arrived from New York, and wished to deposit the check as security for an advance.

The check appeared all right, and had the amount been a small one would probably have been accepted. The sum called for, however, was so unusually large that suspicion was aroused.

A messenger was at once sent to the Albany office of the Royal Insurance company to make inquiry.

He quickly returned with the information that the check must be a forgery. Attention was then turned to the young man who had presented the forgery, but he had disappeared.

The proprietor of the hotel then telegraphed a report of the occurrence to Manager Beddall. The latter received the message at his office. He summoned all the officials in the building and repeated it to them. After a consultation was held they decided that it was forged.

He said he believed the guilty person was one of the bookkeepers in the office, who had been speculating lately, and whose actions had attracted attention. Mr. Beddall asked that the suspected bookkeeper be sent for.

When he appeared he was accused of the crime and told of the news which had been received from Albany. The man became frightened, and, according to Manager Beddall, broke down and made full confession.

Then the police were called in, and the accused bookkeeper placed under arrest.

HUNTING FOR THE BANDITS.

The Coal Region Highwaymen Being Tracked Into Their Mountain Refuge.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 27.—A posse of citizens and officers are still hunting for the highwaymen who robbed and murdered Joseph Shalensky, the Jeddo colliery miner, on Tuesday night. A trail of blood was followed one mile into the mountains.

The mountains in that vicinity are very rugged, openings between the rocks are innumerable, and many of these lead to caves which honeycomb the mountain sides.

A reward has been subscribed. Scouts are covering the highways day and night, and with the first gunshot signal hundreds of citizens stand ready to aid in the effort to exterminate the band.

A showing of the case will be set forth in a protest to the United States Senate. They hope to be able to keep Martin out and permit Senator Perkins to hold over two years.

The plea of self-defense was made in Morrello's behalf, but was of no avail. The jury, after five hours' deliberation, last night brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree against Morello.

AS TRUE AS GOSPEL.

Rev. Dr. Peck of New York Vouches for It.

William H. Robinson Sleeps So Soundly That He Snores.

Sick Thirty-Five Years; Took Paine's Celery Compound and Is Well.

Newspaper men say people don't read sermons.

And some don't.

And this isn't a sermon.

But how many readers of THE PRESS are there who cannot draw an honest lesson from the following statement made by Mr. William H. Robinson of Worcester?

The statement is so remarkable, that being asked to do so, Mr. Robinson gives, as he says, "a few names of prominent men who will verify my statements:

"George W. Harlow, watchmaker.

"Charles K. Pevey, dentist.

"Mr. Harlow and Dr. Pevey have known me intimately for more than 20 years.

"Rev. J. O. Peck, D. D., (who is my brother-in-law), 150 5th ave., New York city.

"Rev. George E. Fisher, (a relative), North Amherst, Mass.

"And I think I may take the liberty of referring to Rev. Dr. C. M. Lamson of St. Johnsbury, Vt., who was my pastor for many years in Worcester."

It seems that Mr. Robinson, who is 66 years old, had suffered since boyhood with the complaint known as salt rheum, and about 12 years ago began to have rheumatism, and was soon entirely disabled. Two years ago, to make bad matters worse, he had a severe attack of grip, and the humor spread all over his body, so that he was "in torment all the time." He was treated by an eminent specialist.

W. H. ROBINSON.

Let Mr. Robinson tell the rest:

"After four months my physician told me he was beat and had been to New York for consultation with some eminent men in that line, and would take new hold and try a new treatment.

"Then I told him I would take Paine's celery compound, and began to use it according to directions, with the exception that I have always taken it clear, without water, as it was not unpleasant to me. In three weeks I began to see a little improvement, and in three months my skin was almost as clear as an infant's, and though I have occasionally a spot, it is so trifling I don't mind it.

"After 35 years of torture, with hardly a good, solid night's rest, and the annoyance of drugging and the nastiness of daily anointing, I think I may have a few years in comparative peace and quiet I sleep like a child in perfect health, in fact so soundly that I am told that I snore occasionally, but I think they can stand that better than I could the wakeful nights, which were making me a wreck in every way. At this time my blood circulates so finely that I am always warm; I am heavier than ever in my life; my flesh is hard, and I think I am a well man, for I hardly ever have a twinge even of rheumatism.

"I am glad to take Paine's celery compound to my friends, and I firmly believe it has made a 'new man of me.' This is a very common expression; but any doubter is referred to my folks or a very extensive acquaintance in Worcester, where I have been 23 years.

"I am grateful beyond expression."

A Protest from Yale Law School.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 27.—The students of the law school at Yale are the first members of the university to enter a protest against the undergraduate principle which it has been proposed to introduce in athletic contests. A meeting was called yesterday of both classes in this department and about 150 students were present. A committee was appointed to enter a formal protest against the men in the law school being frozen out from trying for positions on the 'varsity teams this spring.

Riley Not an International Issue.

Riley's mother filed a claim for $25,000 damages, but Mr. Wharton, Assistant Secretary of State, replied that the facts of the case were not of a character to warrant diplomatic intervention.

ANOTHER DELIGHTFUL CONCERT.

The Second of Plainfield's Philharmonics a Great Success.

The second of the series of concerts by the New York Philharmonic club was held at the Casino last night and was enjoyed by a large audience. The soloists were Miss Marion Weed, mezzo soprano, Xaver Scharwenka, piano, and Eugene Weiner, flute.

Miss Weed's songs, with the orchestral accompaniment, were enthusiastically received. Her selections were well adapted to her rich, full voice and artistic method.

Mr. Scharwenka was not heard to advantage in his first selections, for while his wonderful execution was apparent, his great power was in a measure lost trying to make something out of a piano that, probably owing to the acoustic properties of the stage, sounded thin and deficient in tone.

The quartets, written by himself, in which he played, was far more pleasing, especially the second movement, as the deficiencies of the piano were not so apparent.

Mr. Weiner's flute playing delighted all the lovers of that instrument.

As to the Philharmonic club itself the entire excellence of the performers renders special praise almost superfluous.

Mr. Johannes Miersch's delightful playing and perfect method cannot receive too much praise, while Mr. Paul Miersch's 'cello is too well-known and appreciated to need special mention.

Great credit is due Mr. Newman for bringing this most perfect music to Plainfield, and we can only say, let us have more.

Coffey—McVey.

Yesterday afternoon at 3 took place the wedding of Miss Mamie McVey to John Coffey. The marriage took place in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church at East Millstone. The church was well filled to witness the occasion, and a goodly number of the friends of the contracting parties were present. The bride and groom then left for Washington, D. C. After their return they will reside on West Third street, this city.

I suffered from a severe cold in my head for months and could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in its cure. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Samuel J. Lewis, wholesale grocer, 119 Front street, New York.

FORGERY AND SUICIDE.

SHOCKING END OF PETER HERLICH'S CAREER.

To Fast Living Is Attributed His Downfall—He Forged Notes and Cashed Them at Plainfield Banks—Arrested, With Prison Staring Him in the Face, He Puts a Bullet Into His Brain.

For a few paltry dollars Peter Herlich, of Dunellen, last fall bartered away his happiness, and this morning he tried to sacrifice his life for reasons best known to himself, but believed to be remorse and fear of imprisonment.

Herlich has had for several years a tailoring establishment next to Taylor's Hotel in Dunellen, and is reported to have done a fair business among the young men of that borough, and also with many Plainfielders, all of whom liked him for his good-fellowship and social qualities. On two occasions not long ago, the tailor's shop was broken into and robbed of considerable clothing. These and other losses combined to reduce Herlich's financial standing, and according to his townsmen he has been "hard up for money" recently.

Three months ago, Herlich found himself in such straits that he issued forged notes and had them cashed in Plainfield. On the First National bank he forged the name of Charles S. Day; and on the City National the names of C. T. Rogers and Wm. Westphal. Yesterday his crime was discovered, and cashier Gardner of the City National bank had him arrested. He furnished bail in the sum of $2 000.

Shortly after 8 this morning Herlich sent his assistant, Martin Boyle, for a revolver, telling him to borrow or buy one before he returned. He told the boy that that the cat was acting queerly, and he thought he would better kill it before the animal gave him any trouble.

Boyle tried to purchase a weapon, but could not find any in town such as he wanted. He finally borrowed one from Paul Kratzel, and took it to Herlich, who after critically examining it thought it would serve the purpose for which he desired it.

At 8:30 the people who live in the flat over the store heard three pistol shots fired in quick succession. When investigation of the cause for shooting was made Herlich was found unconscious in his store. By his side lay a smoking revolver with three empty cartridge chambers. One of the bullets fired therefrom was imbedded in Herlich's head, another had grazed his forehead, making a long bloody furrow, while another ball had sped harmlessly by the head and imbedded itself in the ceiling.

Herlich was sitting in a chair when he fired the shots. The first, aimed at his temple at close range, blasted a great hole in the side of his head, and sent a bullet plunging into the centre of his brain. The almost nerveless hand worked the trigger twice again, but the aim was untrue, and none but the first bullet fired caused serious injury.

Dr. Brakely, the well-known Dunellen physician, was found in his drug store not far from Herlich's place, and he went at once to the wounded man. Dr. Gaston and Dr. Chauncey M. Field of this city arrived not long afterwards.

Plainfield's celebrated surgeon saw at once that it was almost impossible to save the man's life, but determined to accept the only chance that remained.

Immediately on his arrival, a surgical operation was begun for the purpose of finding where the ball was. One half of the scalp was removed, the broken bits of bone were taken out, and a clear opening made into the skull. The ball was located by Dr. Field, who could feel it with the tip end of his finger. To Doctors Brakely and Gaston he said, however, that it would be impossible at the present time to reach the bullet and remove it with any probe known to surgery. His belief was that the best thing to do at the present time was to leave the ball where it was. No attempt was made, therefore, to remove it, but instead the physicians bent all their energies toward dressing the wound, and treating it so skillfully that the torn flesh and shattered skull would not cause immediate death.

The chances of Herlich's recovery are slight. Few men have lived with a heavy piece of lead in the centre of the brain, and although the wounded man is of strong physical build, the shock to his system and the great loss of blood will probably result fatally soon.

Herlich is married and has a child. He had not slept home of late, however, but in the store. His associates say he had been leading a fast life of late. The cost of his excess, combined with his losses by burglary, drove him to desperation.

He was a popular member of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

At 4:15 telephonic message from Dunellen stated that Herlich was still alive.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Gershom Frazee, familiarly known as "Gep: 49er", was removed to the hospital to-day. He is very low.

I. D. TenEyck, of Madison, N. J., visited his friends in this city, yesterday; they are always glad to see him.

Xaver Scharwenka, who made such a favorable impression by his piano playing at the Philharmonic club concert last evening, has two promising pupils under his personal supervision in his Conservatory of Music in New York, in Miss Lavinia L. French and Miss Mabel Mexson, both successful teachers in this community.

Mrs. E. W. Dower, who a short time ago fractured her hip by a fall in her room at her residence on Elm street, was removed to Muhlenberg hospital yesterday afternoon. The same kind ladies who have been caring for her, arranged for the transfer. Dr. Ailis also was in attendance. She was placed on a water bed, and stood the journey well. As soon as she improves sufficiently, she will be placed on the King's Daughters' bed. A. D. Donavan contributed his services and made the transfer in his wagon.

EVERYONE LAUGHED AND WEPT.

Notable Production of "Rip Van Winkle" Before a Plainfield Audience.

The reception accorded to Joseph Jefferson and his company in Music Hall last evening amounted to an ovation. Never, in all its wonderful career, has Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle been given more surpassing production or appeared before a more enthusiastic audience. The house was one of the largest in the history of Music hall. Before the doors were opened, the sign "Standing Room Only" had to be displayed. Mr. Jefferson himself purchased the last four seats left in the house, on his arrival in Plainfield, to give to some of his Plainfield friends.

As stated in these columns yesterday, Mr. Jefferson took occasion to visit his warm personal friend, Mrs. Virginia B. Hart, of Broadway, in the afternoon. He and his company arrived in their luxurious private car, the Nimrod, which by the way was the name of the vessel in which many years ago Mr. Jefferson embarked on his Australian tour.

Jefferson is an accomplished writer and artist as well as actor, a gentleman of rare culture and delightful personality. His manner of travel and living, his associations, his daily life, stood yesterday in marked contrast to the methods of the minor theatrical troupes, whose members are so often jaded and worried and without knowledge of where they are to lay their heads. Jefferson and his company reached Plainfield in high spirits, and joked gaily and rallied one another in rare good humor. The great actor and some of his associates charmed THE PRESS staff with a genial visit to their sanctum. Young Joe the son chaffed young Joe the father as to when dinner would be ready, and Edwin Varrey tried to get son Joe turned over to the chief of police for his hilarity. They were all a merry crew.

The play in the evening moved the throng of people from laughter to tears and back again. Jefferson was as inimitable as ever, and sunshine and tears mingled and dissolved one another like the changes of an April sky. Edwin Varrey, esteemed member of the Plainfield Phillips family, gave renewed evidence of his high-class ability; and he and Joseph Warren, both old-time players and long with Jefferson, made a wonderful pair in the scheming scene between Derrick and Cockels in Act 4 Baby Parker and Nanon Fowler made a most cunning and lovable Little Meenie and Little Hendrick; and Miss Rosa Rand was an incomparable Gretchen.

Jefferson was repeatedly called before the curtain, and cheers mingled with the tremendous hand-clapping.

Such a treat was greatly appreciated by the people. It is a foretaste of the coming theatrical attractions at Music Hall.

MORE HOSE, THE VILLAGE NEEDS.

Lack of It Hampered the Department at Last Night's Fire.

The lumber yard of C. A. Smith at Fanwood was damaged by fire last night to the extent of $1,000. The destruction of the office building was the main damage. The loss is fully insured.

The fire broke out at 7:15. The Scotch Plains and Fanwood departments both worked hard for two hours. They were greatly hampered by the shortness of hose. The citizens and township committee have been shortsighted in permitting such a lack of hose to continue. The tax-payers should turn out to the committee meeting in Excelsior hall to-morrow evening and urge an appropriation for hose sufficient to meet all needs. It is a shame that so efficient a department should be so crippled. For the protection of property more hose should be procured immediately.

THOSE HORSES ARE NOT TOPERS.

The Worthless Fellows Who Abused Them Will Suffer if the Honest Firemen Catch Them.

The fire department officials are greatly incensed at the statement that the engine horses have been fed strong liquor. The drivers and all in authority are fully exonerated from blame in the matter. They love their horses too well to abuse them. The two who are alleged to have been guilty of giving intoxicating drink to the animals are irresponsible persons who have no connection with the department and who will be unceremoniously ejected if ever caught in any engine-house again. It would unfit the horses for duty, and make them unmanageable, were they plied with liquor. A careful watch will be kept over them, and loafers will not be able to reach and tamper with them.

Agnes's Fine Is Paid.

Agnes Forsberg remained a prisoner at the police station till 12 last night, when chief Grant received a message from judge Coddington stating that her fine of $75 had been paid and that she should be released. Thereupon she was discharged from custody. The fine was made up by contributions of the men interested in hushing the matter up.

And How to Get Rid of Them.

No hing more annoying than chapped hands. And the more you wash the worse they chap! Soap cleans, but soap chaps. CITIZENS, AROUSE!

SHALL WASTE OF PUBLIC FUNDS BE PERMITTED!

Tax-Payers Should Bestir Themselves and Protest Against This High-Handed Proceeding—A Trespass on Private Rights; an Injustice to All the People.

The tax-payers of Plainfield have just cause for complaint against the Board of Education in the purchase of the costly property at West Sixth street and Madison avenue for public school purposes.

The price paid is said to be $13,500, which is spoken of as "a great bargain" by the toadies of the Board of Education. The Board through their mouth-organ say: "What will the toney neighbors say to this?"

The purchase of the property was made through E. L. Finch, Treasurer of the Board, who is said to have been used by Messrs. Babcock and Huribut of the Board.

Charles D. Wadsworth owned the property. He claims that Mr. Finch told him it was for a friend of his, and tried to lessen the price on that account. He assured him that a fine building was to be erected, and it was understood that this meant an elegant private residence.

Mr. Wadsworth would not have parted with the property had he known the object. Already, Mr. Finch the purchaser has transferred it to the Board of Education, and a new High School building is planned to be erected on the land.

THE PRESS knew about the purchase of the Wadsworth property, but when the matter was investigated Mr. Wadsworth said that Mr. Finch had told him it was for a friend, and as a private transfer it was requested that no mention be made of it. The Board, however, consummated its project, and then gleefully heralded it through its personal organ.

The lot is encumbered by buildings which will have to be removed. If a new High School is needed, land more desirable for school purposes could have been obtained for far less money. Available sites are numerous. The sum paid is excessive for such a purpose. Less valuable land should have been secured, and the difference in price applied to the outstanding indebtedness of the other schools.

But this needless waste of money is not the only evil of the scheme. The establishment of a school in that locality will be a public nuisance and an injury to the fashionable residence section. The playground will back up to the private grounds of fine homes.

The Board of Education has overreached itself. The citizens should bestir themselves and hold a public meeting to denounce the action of the Board, and the conveyance of the property should be set aside as obtained through misleading assurance and deceit.

Let influential citizens take hold of this matter immediately, probe it to the bottom, fix the responsibility, expose the whole thing, and by their emphatic protest and vigorous opposition prevent this waste of public funds and this trespass on the dignity and rights of a decent neighborhood. A public school is not wanted there, and it would be a shame to force it with its hurtful influence on real estate upon the people who have spent fortunes in making the locality what it is. Extravagance in school sites should not be tolerated. Let the people act at once against shameful scheming.

THE PRESS speaks thus emphatically because it believes that a wrong is being committed, and because of its devotion to the public interests. Individual rights should not be sacrificed, and the tax-payers' purse should not suffer, through any personal ambition of any member of the Board elected to serve the public, nor to gratify any whim of such as think it a cause for pride to make public institutions the most costly in the State.

THE COURTS MAY ACT.

Here's an Indignant Citizen of the Outraged Neighborhood Who Shows Fight on the Tax-Paying Principle.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Courier of last night is anxious to know what the "Tony" neighbors think of the purchase of the Wadsworth property for school purposes. The "Tony" neighbors of course have their grievance, but it is for the tax-payers of this city to say if they are willing to stand by and see a deal made by which a piece of property that has been in the market for some time is marketed to the city at a price said to be $13,000, which is considered a "great bargain". This may be so. The price may be low enough, when it is taken into consideration the fact that the grounds contain greenhouses, the stable a billiard-room, and that there is a good house on the property; but, can the tax-payers of this city afford to pay for these luxuries when a much larger plot of ground within one and one-half block of the Wadsworth property and nearer the centre of the city can be purchased for less than one-half the price paid? Not as a "Tony" neighbor, but as an ordinary everyday tax-payer, I object; and I think that when the matter comes up in court, as it undoubtedly will, that the objection will be sustained.

BULL-FINCH.

SLASHED AT THE SERGEANT.

Bad Man Mitchell Draws a Razor on Mr. Lynch.

The toughest-looking customer who has ever appeared before the present city judge was John Mitchell, the solitary prisoner at the bar this morning.

Policeman Lynch was the aggrieved accuser of Mitchell. The big sergeant knew the prisoner's record and gave him a bad name. Yesterday, said Mr. Lynch, there were a dozen worthless tramps annoying people in the neighborhood of the Richmond street railroad bridge. Special officer Hope found them insolent and unmanageable, and sent for help. When sergeant Lynch was seen approaching they ran, but the clutches of the giant policeman fastened themselves on Mitchell, who promptly showed fight, kicked and struck the sergeant, and drew a razor with the ugly threat that he would carve the big man to pieces.

After a sharp struggle, the fellow was overpowered, and four men and a hack were utilized in conveying him to the police station. This morning the sergeant said to him: "You're fond of cutting people up; tried to stab Phil Breen with a pair of scissors when he was jail warden: did n't you?" Mitchell said that in the Breen incident he had acted only in self defense after Breen had knocked him down. Then the sergeant asked why he had kicked him and barked his shins yesterday. Mitchell said he was drunk, and did n't know what he was doing. The sergeant said he had been so badly abused that it would have served Mitchell right to get a severe clubbing. The razor was exhibited with which the attempted cutting was done.

Judge Coddington sent the tough to jail for 30 days.

Mitchell was a small man, but very wiry. His stiff black hair and mustache were tangled, and stuck out in all directions. His face and hands were so grimy that he would have passed for a dark-skinned Anarchistic foreigner. He said he was a Rahway machinist, out of work, and without a home.

LITTLE TIPPET.

The Story of This Greatest of All Comedies, Which is to be Given at Music Hall.

"Little Tippet", to be played in this city next Friday evening, by the New York company, is an adaptation by Harry and Edward Paulton (themselves the authors of several noted theatrical successes) from the French of Alexander Bisson, one of the most successful of living writers of farce and comedy. French plays are apt to be risque, but the Gallic dramatists are wonderfully clever in the contriving of dramatic situations. In this case the adapters have removed everything objectionably suggestive and produced a play that will pass the gauntlet of the most exacting Anglican test. The intricate French complication of situation is there, but the story is absolutely clean, with not a line to offend American taste.

The characters of the play are Tippet and Newton, partners in business; Mrs. Tippet and Mrs. Newton; Everard Dunker, the rich uncle and doting guardian of Mrs. Tippet; George Gibbs, the butler of the Tippets, and his wife Geranium, who is the nurse; Little Tippet and Little Gibbs, two infants.

Tippet and Newton have both been divorced from an adventuress known as Georgina Brown. Tippet has been estranged from his second wife and at the opening of the play has just returned from a year's stay in Europe and become reconciled with her in a meeting at his office. During his absence a son has been born, but he is left in ignorance of that fact, his wife wishing to spring the surprise on him when he reaches home. About this time Newton received a letter from Georgina Brown's lawyer stating that he is the father of a son born after their divorce, and it is intimated that the infant is on the way to him and his delivery can only be stopped by the payment of an exorbitant bribe. Newton gets out the dilemma by altering the letter and addressing it to Tippet. When, therefore, a nurse appears at the office with a baby and the exclamation, "Here he is", Tippet and Newton assume that the youngster is the son of Georgina. As a matter of fact, it is the son of Tippet by his second wife. On the other hand, Mrs. Tippet number two, Uncle Dunker and the Gibbses know nothing of the suppositious child of Georgina Brown, but the audience is the master of the true situation on both sides.

On this foundation is built an intricate play of cross purposes that cannot be adequately explained in a few words, but it comes so thick and fast there is scarcely time between laughs to take breath. To still further complicate matters the Gibbs infant gets mixed up in the confusion and is kidnaped by Newton instead of the Tippet baby, which he supposes is Georgina Brown's offspring. Of course everything comes out all right in the final scene, when the fact is disclosed that Georgiana Brown had no baby and that the letter from her lawyer was merely a blackmailing scheme.

Death was peaceful. It followed a sudden relapse, after a quiet night.

NOT WHISTLING FOR FUN.

Mrs. Shaw is Out for the Ducats and Finds India a Poor Stand.

Mrs. Alice Shaw, the beautiful young widow, formerly of this city, who has whistled her way through Europe, is at present in Calcutta. In recent letters to Plainfield friends she intimates that the unvarying prosperity which has attended her flute-like warblings is converted into something akin to disaster in India. The native and English residents alike enjoy her strange method of music, but they are not willing to pay for it. Money is not less essential to our whistling widow than to the proverbial mare. Mrs. Shaw is on the concert platform for dollars, or, with present exactness, for rupees. But although the papers approve her sibillant melodies audiences refuse to pay for them. Mrs. Shaw objects to the heat, to the constant shining of the sun, to the fact that she has to carry, as she naively says, all her own bedding and a retinue of servants, and on tho whole she doesn't like India. So she is going to break her contracts and return to London. It was in England that her chief successes were earned.

Mrs. Shaw is a protege of our own Sorosis, but, like the natives of Rudyard Kipling's country, the sisters of our intellectual club refused to pay for the entertainment she provided at their monthly luncheons. Hence, although the fair whistler was very beautiful and very musical, she could not support her twins on the compliments of feminine philosophers. Leaving the twins behind, she desperately set sail for England, where the Prince of Wales smiled on her, fashionable folks employed her at ten guineas an evening, and she discovered that whistling to raise the wind was not such an unprofitable task as Sorosis had declared it to be. Of all the American geniuses who have visited London Mrs. Shaw was the most prosperous and fashionable.

By request of the Prince of Wales she whistled before the Shah of Persia, promptly reducing that sovereign to such a state of infatuation that he, it is stated, at once offered the lovely widow an enviable position as chief lady of his seraglio. Without losing her head over this compliment from royalty, la belle siffleuse replied in her merry way that the matter could not be done unless his Oriental Majesty would consent to legally become the stepfather of her twins. This was a contingency that the Shah had not foreseen. He esteemed the widow, but did not wish to increase his already large household by a ready-made family. So he returned alone to the East, and the pretty, witty widow instead of becoming a power in Persia, remained in London, true to the twins, to whistling, and to the virtue of American character.

THE COMBINATION LEGAL

Judge Metzger's Decision Gives Every Point to Reading.

SUPREME COURT TO BE INVOKED

Mathias Arnot's suit to Test the Right of the Roads to Consolidate Results in Another Overthrow—President McLeod Pleased.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Jan. 27.—The first judicial decision in the Philadelphia & Reading consolidation case was rendered last evening by Judge Metzger, of the Lycoming County courts.

The opinion of the court is a voluminous document, covering all the great mass of testimony, and deciding every point in favor of the defendants.

It will be remembered that Mathias Arnot, of Elmira, brought suit to test the legality of the combine, his case being entered in the courts here about a year ago.

Gen. W. W. Hart was appointed Master and he took a great deal of testimony. The case was decided by him in favor of the defendants, and the exceptions thereto were argued before Judge Metzger on Dec. 30.

The decision just rendered will be followed by an appeal to the Supreme Court.

President McLeod Well Pleased.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—President McLeod, in speaking of the decision, said to-day: "This is distinctly a triumph for the Philadelphia & Reading railroad company. It means millions of dollars annually to the commerce of this port.

"With the geographical conditions and the natural interests that surround them the Lehigh Valley & Reading systems properly belong together, and the union of their interests is to the advantage of both and at the same time obtains for the Lehigh and Schuylkill valleys that which they lacked before the consolidation, affording the vast interests along the line of the Reading a direct outlet to the West and Northwest, through the great lakes, bringing the commerce of Buffalo at our doors here and establishing an intercourse of trade that cannot fail to expand rapidly the commercial and manufacturing interests of Philadelphia.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT OPENED.

Governor-General Stanley's Reference to the United States Canal Tolls.

OTTAWA, Ont. Jan. 27.—Governor-General Lord Stanley opened the third session of the seventh Dominion Parliament last evening. His speech referred to trade, revenue, immigration, the Alaska and Passamaquoddy bay boundary lines, fisheries, wrecking, reciprocity and Newfoundland. He then said:

"It is to be regretted that the government of the United States was unable to accept the suggestions made by any government on the subject of canal tolls, and that the President should have thought it necessary to impose exceptional tolls on Canadians using the Sault Ste. Marie canal, which has so long been free to the people of both countries.

"My government, while ready to consider in a friendly spirit any proposals which may be made by the government of the United States, has caused efforts to be made to hasten the completion of the Canadian canal works, which will soon afford to the commerce of the Dominion a highway within our own country."

Suits Against Many Trolley Roads.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 27.—Notices have been sent to many of the leading street railways in the country, now operated by the overhead single trolley electric system, of suits for infringement of patent rights. The claim is based on a patent granted to W. T. Sherman, of Lowell, now dead, in 1878, which, it is asserted, covers every device for connecting the car with the overhead wire, and has never been improved upon, save by a little spring that has been added by the Thomson-Houston people.

MITCHELL NAMED FOR SENATOR.

The Wisconsin Contest at an End—Ballots in Other States.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 27.—Gen. Edward S. Bragg has been defeated in his fight for a seat in the United States Senate by Col. John L. Mitchell.

Col. John H. Knight, who from the beginning of the struggle has had from 16 to 20 followers, yesterday released his little band from obligation to him, having evidently decided that his own cause was hopeless, and enough of them went to Mitchell to give him the victory.

The first ballot in the caucus settled the matter.

Wyoming Populists Vote for Mrs. Bartlett.

CHEYENNE, Jan. 27.—The feature in the Senatorial balloting was the complimentary vote received by Mrs. Mary T Bartlett, who is the first woman who ever received a vote in a State Legislature for United States Senator. The five Populists cast their votes for her. Senator Warren received 13 votes. The next highest vote was polled by A. I. New, Democrat, who received 11. The remainder were scattered as much as at any previous ballot.

The Washington Senate Deadlock.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 27.—On the 31st ballot taken for United States Senator Allen lost one vote, which went to Dunbar, a new nominee. Otherwise there was no change from the ballots taken on previous days. The 32d ballot resulted the same as the 31st.

No Change in the Situation in Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Jan. 27.—There were but three members of the Legislature absent from the joint session yesterday. The vote stood: Sanders, 32; Clark, 28; Dixon, 11; Collins, 2. It is evident that all the candidates have settled down for a siege.

The North Dakota Contest.

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 27.—Only one ballot was taken for United States Senator with no choice. Benton received no votes; the Democrats and Populists voting for Walter Muir. Nothing of an exciting nature occurred during the balloting.

The Fight in Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 27.—The joint ballot of the Legislature yesterday did not result much differently from previous ones. Paddock received 32 votes; Powers, 34; Majors, 10; the rest scattering.

Panama Inquiry, American End.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Democratic majority of the Committee on Rules have decided to report back the Fellows resolution for an investigation of the Panama Railroad and Canal matter, with an amendment limiting the inquiry to the effect of the recent operations on American commerce and providing for an examination of the traffic agreements made between the Pacific Mail Steamship company and the Trans-Continental railroads and their bearing upon the Steamship Subsidy act.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

How Christmas Was Celebrated by Our Grandfathers.

Interesting Reminiscences of an Old Washingtonian—When Small Presents Were the Rule and Not, as Now, the Exception.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"Christmas in the national capital fifty years ago," says my venerable friend Capt. Nicholson, "was very different from the modern celebrations of the holy day. In the first place, people were nearer to each other because they lived farther apart, that is to say, they were nearer and closer in friendship, because their residences were not glued and plastered together as they are in the crowded city to-day.

"When I was a boy," continued my friend, "Washington was truly a city of magnificent distances—like hamlets or neighborhoods located in the vicinity of good water from spring or pump and between them through the wild growth of brush, tree and vine meandered a single wagon track. Even Seventh, F and other leading streets were but sparsely built up. There were less than a dozen churches here in all and they were usually in pairs, like the public schools, each denomination having one in the eastern section and one in the western—St. Peter's and St. Matthew's, Catholic; Christ and St. John's, Episcopal; First and Second Baptist; First and Second Presbyterian; Foundry, Ebenezer (Fourth street) and Wesley, Methodist. The only Lutheran church then was the Concordia.

"Nowadays children spread a number of plates, for Santa Claus to fill with candies and other good things. In my young days the hanging up of the Christmas stocking was well-nigh universal, and in many families it was not only the children's hosiery which on Christmas morning was found filled hanging at the mantel, but the stockings of our parents kept them company. As to what there was put in them: Well, toys were in less variety and less elaborate than now, and for that matter so were cakes and pies, candies, etc. The girl children came in for the dolly and the boy for the wooden horse or tin horn, and in the stockings were usually placed an apple, some raisins, nuts and candies, with the doll or horse on top. But all did not fare thus, for in the case of those who did not behave well, or who showed an ugly disposition, their stockings would show on Christmas morning a switch, which they were taught had been placed there by 'Bell Snickle,' as Santa Claus or Kris Kringle was then called, the children all firmly believing that 'Bell Snickle' was a real person, and their parents would take the hint, and the reformation of the youthful delinquent was often accomplished.

"But there is an improvement in one custom, which I am glad to note. The people of the modern generation have learned to celebrate Christmas without that insidious intoxicant, egg-nog. When I was a boy every family had a big bowl of egg-nog, and the youngest as well as the oldest partook of the attractive decoction. In these latter days the temperance advocates have taught the people that they can celebrate Christmas and all other holidays without beclouding their faculties with alcoholic poison. Aside from the egg-nogg habit, our programme for enjoyment was similar to the programme of to-day. The night before Christmas, after witnessing the cake and pie baking, the children were sent to bed. Such pies! None of your bought mince meat then. Every family made its own mince meat, and, for that matter, excepting the toys, nuts and raisins, Christmas things were manufactured at home. Early in the morning a merry jingle of the fire bells, with the firing of the old flint-lock guns and pistols and crackers (for we had them then, but in more limited supply), awoke us. As soon as half dressed we had our stockings and were discussing the contents. Then we gorged our youthful stomachs with the biggest and best breakfast of the year, played until noon, and again ate and ate until no more dinner could be stored away. Then we played all the afternoon and ate candies until supper time, when we again ate good things until we could hold no more. I would give ten costly brick houses to-day for the appetite of a boy on Christmas day.

"Christmas holidays were of twenty-four hours' duration, sometimes thirty-six. The government employes were sometimes allowed to leave an hour or two earlier on the 24th and were expected back on the 26th. Even on New Year's day the clerks worked up to noon and then called on the president. So it was with the school children as to holidays. But it was noticeable that the most unhealthy day in the year was December 26, for but few teachers could make a respectable showing. Headaches and pains from overeating kept most of the pupils at home.

"The colored oystermen suffered at the hands of the boys in those days, especially about Christmas times. You are doubtless aware of the fact that the police did not amount to much and the poor colored man, slave or free, could not give testimony against a white person, little or big. Well, the oysterman about Christmas would cheerfully answer the call of a crowd of boys, and, thinking they had chipped in their 'fips' and 'levys,' would measure out a pint or quart as might be called. As each one of the crowd gulped down his two or three mouthfuls he would suddenly remember an errand, or that it was time to be in and run off, and when the cup was empty it would be handed back and the young scapegrace would take to his heels. When, however, the oysterman would chase the boy and the latter be in danger of being caught the bucket would be attacked and rather than lose all he would give up the chase. If, however, he still continued the pursuit some little fellow would overturn the bucket. I upset a bucket, kicked it over once, and when I saw how hard the man took it I was out, and afterward we never lost a chance of persuading our parents to buy from him. So you see, there were some bad boys in those days, and I was one of them. We were little cowards, too, to impose upon helpless slaves who dared not strike us, and who could not prosecute us. However, according to the customs of the times, I guess we were not worse than the average boys of the present and rising generation. In the days of Ramesis, Joseph, Pharaoh and Confucius, I presume boys were boys, just the same.

"This city has changed, in fifty years, more than the customs have changed. When I was a boy there was plenty of fresh air out of doors. To-day the houses are so close together, the yards are so small, the streets so concreted and glaring that the whole town seems 'stuffy' to me. Fifty years ago Pennsylvania avenue was a dirt road with two rows of poplars in the middle from the capitol to Fifteenth street. There were in this distance two wooden bridges—one the well-known Tiber bridge at Second street, which was replaced by a brick and stone arch a few years before the war, and the other a wooden structure over the run between Ninth and Tenth streets. This run, which had its source at the springs in Franklin square, coursed down between Ninth and Tenth streets and emptied into the canal. It was about 1833 that the avenue was macademized, and for this work the district is indebted to a number of our German families who came here to work and settled down. The avenue was not concreted until 1877. I remember the event very well. The work was pushed along in order to have the smooth surface ready for the parade when President Hayes was inaugurated and for the ball given upon the avenue that night. It was a unique affair, and you may readily understand what an impression it made upon my mind as I gazed with my aged eyes upon the old dirt road of my boyhood translated into a floor for fairies and brownies to sport upon.

"I remember a church scene which will illustrate to you something of the kind of religion we had in those days. The Sabbath-school of a church in the upper part of the city had, during the preceding summer, held a picnic not a great distance from the church. It so happened that about noon Johnny K., one of the small boys, started home, and seeing a handsomely bound hymn book lying loose carried it home. When he returned, the owner of the book had been informed that Johnny was seen with the book and he was terribly put out, for besides its value—it being handsomely bound and his name appearing on it in gilt letters—it was prized as a gift. As soon as he saw Johnny he called out: 'Go straight home and fetch me the book you stole,' and Johnny left. When Johnny informed his mother what had happened she placed the book in her pocket and with Johnny appeared on the ground. Again the book was demanded, and Aunt Kitty, as she was called, refused to give it up, saying: 'You accused my boy of stealing the book, and you will get it when you apologize for it and not before, for my boy is no thief.' The old gentleman pleaded for its return, but, being a stiff-necked Christian, he obstinately refused to acknowledge his error, and the result was that Aunt Kitty returned to her home with the book. This incident made bad feeling, but finally the old gentleman, under the advice of the pastor, offered to apologize. This offer the old lady repelled, saying: 'No, sir; the accusation was made in the presence of a crowd, and an apology will only be accepted when made before a crowd equally large.'

"Thus the matter stood until the Sunday-school Christmas entertainment took place, when the church was filled in every nook and corner. The opening piece had been sung and the old lady having told the owner: 'Now is your chance,' he at once walked out upon the platform, made a little address on the use of hasty words and their evil results, closing by relating the incident and doing what he could to recall the words. Just as he closed the old lady called little Johnny, gave him the book, and he at once ran to the platform and placed it in the hands of the old gentleman. To say that the applause was deafening is drawing it mildly, and for a time the many friends of the parties felt more like rejoicing aloud than quietly sitting in their seats, for it was the end of what seemed at one time to be an irreconcilable quarrel."

SMITH D. FRY.

WATER A MINERAL.

A Bit of Information That Will Be News to Thousands.

If one were to ask his friends what mineral we are most familiar with, and is most commonly used for food, the answer would probably be most varied and amusing. Salt would, I fancy, first suggest itself to many, and to those whose training in physiology and hygiene has not been neglected, no doubt the claims of lime and iron and carbon, which, in one form or another, we use with food to build up bones and brawn, would be amply urged. But, after all, it is water, for water is a mineral—a fused mineral. You will find it described as such, along with quartz and topaz and the diamond, in Dana's "Mineralogy," or in other treatises on stones.

We usually think of minerals as solid things, such as metals and rocks and jewels and various chemical salts. But when we consider the matter a little, we see that all these things, if melted by strong heat, are minerals still; only they are now in a fluid instead of a solid state. The difference between these minerals and water is that water gets fluid at a lower temperature that they do, and, like quicksilver, stays melted at ordinary living heat. But in those old ice ages, which, one after another, have swept now over the northern hemisphere, bringing ruin and desolation, the natural and common condition of water was that of a solid—ice—as it largely is to-day out of doors in winter, when not kept fused by the stored-up heat of the soil and rocks, or melted by the sun.—Mineralogists' Monthly.

HOME PYROTECHNICS.

An Amusing and Cheap Experiment for an Evening's Frolic.

The brilliant display of fireworks shown in the accompanying cut from La Nature, can readily be produced by anyone having good lungs, a pipe, a candle and some flat strips of tin foil, such as is found wrapped about chocolate. Lead foil will not answer. Placing the candle upon an oil-cloth table-cover and blowing the flame upon the tin foil as shown in the cut, the tin immediately falls to the cloth in the form of incandescent globules, which execute a brilliant dance before they finally expire in the form of a whitish powder. There is no danger whatever in the experiment and the expense is trifling.

SOME QUEER THINGS.

THREE hundred millions of eggs are used every year in this country in making albumen paper, used in photography.

THE largest needle manufactory in the world is in Redditch, Worcestershire, England. Over 70,000,000 are made weekly.

THE costliest cigars ever exported from Havana were a quantity made expressly for the prince of Wales, and valued at $1.87 apiece in the factory.

A FENCE 500 miles long, of wire netting, separating the colonies of New South Wales and Queensland, is one of the wonders of Australia. It is designed to keep rabbits out.

SIR HENRY THOMPSON, of England, says that out of every ten patients which came under his knife, nine would never have done so had it not been for errors of eating and drinking.

STOCKINGS made from human hair are worn by Chinese fishermen as the best preventive of wet feet. They are drawn over ordinary cotton stockings, being too rough for putting near the skin.

IN 1635, when the entire Dutch nation was crazy upon the subject of tulips, a single bulb was sold for $1,200. At such prices it would pay better to raise tulips than to own the most valuable gold mine in the world.

THE French war office has issued regulations for the employment of bicyclists in the army. Provision is being made for between 6,000 and 7,000 wheelmen in case of war. They are to have double armament, carry cavalry carbine and thirty-six cartridges and a revolver with eighteen cartridges. They go as messengers chiefly.

HOW OAK IS DARKENED.

The Shade Now So Popular Is Produced by Ammoniacal Vapor.

Oak for decorative wood work is produced by fumigating the material with ammoniacal vapor, which effectively produces the dark coloring so much desired. In accomplishing this, the method consists in placing the material to be darkened in an approximately air-tight room in which no light enters; or for small work a packing box will suffice, the joints or cracks to be well pasted over with paper. In this room or receptacle for depositing the furniture or other articles is placed a flat porcelain or earthen vessel filled with ammonia, the vessel containing the liquid being, of course, set on the ground or floor, that the fumes or vapor may strike to advantage the articles to be darkened; if the apartment is large, two or more vessels containing aramonia may be employed and allowed to remain until the desired effect is secured. The ammonia does not touch the oak, but the gas that proceeds from it acts in a peculiar manner upon the tannic acid contained in oak, browning it so deeply that a shaving or two may actually be taken off without removing the color. The depth of shade depends upon the quantity of ammonia used and the duration of exposure.—Scientific American.

He Guessed at It.

The young professor of philology was doing a great deal of talking for a small man.

"Ah," he said, after a burst of eloquence; "there is nothing I love so much as the study of words."

"What sort of words?" asked another man who had, until now, had nothing to say.

"Oh, any kind of words—all words; language in general."

"Ugh," grunted the old man, "I guess on haven't got a wife."—Detroit Free

A Mother's Letter:—

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Last winter I did not think my little ones would have a mother long. I suffered terribly with female troubles.

"I could keep nothing on my stomach, and got so 'poor' my friends hardly knew me. I suffered with severe headaches, dizziness, faintness, backache, and 'the blues.'

"Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am now as fat as ever, and have no female troubles.

"If you use my letter I hope it may be the means of saving some other poor mother's life as it did mine."—Mrs. Ella Van Buren, Brazil, Ind.

THE DEAD STATESMAN

From All Quarters Come Eulogies to the Worth of James G. Blaine.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FUNERAL NEARLY COMPLETED.

In Accordance With the Wish of the Deceased, It Will be Unostentatious—The Services to be Held Monday at 11 a. m.—The Presbyterian Burial Ritual to be Used—How the ex-Secretary Died—His Struggles and Triumphs—Comments of the British Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The death of James G. Blaine has evoked expressions of sorrow and eulogium such as have been accorded to but few men. From every quarter of the country and from nearly every man in public life, have come messages of sympathy to the bereaved family, and testimonials of the esteem and regard in which the dead statesman was held.

Flags are at half mast everywhere. Congress, and every legislative body in the United States have taken action. In all cases adjournment was taken and in many a day was appointed on which to hear eulogies of the deceased.

All the leading social entertainments for to-day and Monday have been postponed out of respect to the memory of Mr. Blaine. President Harrison proclaimed the formal announcement of the death from the White House. It is the practice for such statements to be made through the State Department, but on this occasion the President requested that he be allowed to make it the other way.

A Simple Funeral.

The funeral will be as unostentatious as it is possible to make it.

Mr. Blaine had a great repugnance to public exhibitions of sorrow, and in accordance with his often expressed opinion, Mrs. Blaine is determined to have a private funeral.

She further requested that no official notice be taken of Mr. Blaine's death, which request was communicated to Secretary of State Foster in a note from Miss Hattie Blaine conveying the information of the sad event.

JAMES GILLESPIE BLAINE.

The Secretary, in conversation with Mrs. Blaine, pointed out that the custom of announcing the death of ex-members of the Cabinet would require official promulgation of the fact, but at her earnest solicitation it was eventually decided that no emblem of mourning additional to that displayed consequent upon the death of ex-President Hayes should be placed upon the building of the State Department.

The Ceremonies.

The funeral will take place Monday next, and the details of the services, so far as arranged, are as follows:

At 11 o'clock prayer will be offered by Rev. Tennis S. Hamlin, D. D., at the house. Only members of the family and their intimate friends will be present.

Immediately thereafter the body will be borne to the Church of the Covenant. Here also the services will be of the simplest character, consisting of the reading of the Presbyterian burial ritual and prayer by Dr. Hamlin.

There will be no music save that of the organ, which will be played by Mr. Walter Damrosch, the dead statesman's son-in-law.

Seats in the church will be reserved for the President, Vice-President, members of the Cabinet and their families, members of the Diplomatic Corps, and friends of the deceased.

These reservations will nearly exhaust the seating accommodations of the building.

From the church the cortege will move to Oak Hill cemetery where the interment will take place.

There will be 12 pallbearers selected from among Mr. Blaine's personal and official friends. None will be chosen because of their positions, but naturally the larger portion will be from the ranks of official life. They will be announced sometime to-day.

The Funeral Casket.

The undertaking establishment of Jos. Gawler has charge of the funeral arrangements and this morning directions were received by the firm as to the casket. This will be very similar to the one in which the remains of Mrs. Harrison were conveyed to their final resting place.

It will be plain and simple in appearance, devoid of any show or ostentation. It will have extension silver bar handles. The material used in the construction will be red cedar, which will be covered with black cloth, and on the inside the casket will be lined with full tufted white satin.

The solid silver plate on the top will contain the following inscription:

"JAMES G. BLAINE.
"Born January 31, 1830.
"Died January 27, 1893."

Death came without pain to Mr. Blaine at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The immediate cause of his death, as given by the physicians, was heart failure and sheer exhaustion. His long illness and the changes in his condition, however slight, have been chronicled too faithfully in these columns to need repetition. The disease with which he suffered was a chronic one of the kidneys.

He was conscious to the last. About his bedside at the time of dissolution were Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Damrosch, Miss Hattie Blaine, James G. Blaine, jr., his sister-in-law, Miss Abigail Dodge; the two physicians, Drs. Hyatt and Johnston, and the nurses.

Mr. Blaine uttered no "last words." His passing away, however, while silent, was conscious, and was marked by a final scene which gave proof of his faith in God and heaven.

The dying man's eyes seemed to be the only evidence of life remaining in the wasted frame. The power of speech was gone. The very shadow of death had cast its gray pallor upon the recumbent figure. But the eyes, staring with unnatural brilliance, turned from one to another of those about the room, and at last fixed themselves upon the countenance of his wife.

For a moment there was absolute silence. Then Mrs. Blaine, her eyes meeting the last, fixed gaze of her dying husband, leaned over the bedside and whispered the question:

"James, do you know where Walker, Emmons and Alice are?" There was immediate response. A new light flashed into the almost sightless eyes.

Slowly he raised his right arm.

It pointed to heaven, and the eyes gave the answer of his soul to the question of his wife. Thus, with hand outstretched to heaven, and with eyes fixed upon those of his wife, James G. Blaine passed away.

TRIBUTES OF RESPECT.

How Blaine Was Regarded by Cabinet Associates and Others of Prominence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The affection and esteem in which Mr. Blaine was held is clearly shown by the many tributes of regard paid him. Secretary of State Foster said:

"Others of his friends are more competent to speak of Mr. Blaine's services and genius in Congress, in politics and in literature. In diplomacy his chief characteristic was his exalted Americanism. He was a thorough believer in the Monroe doctrine and the reciprocity policy which distinguished the close of his public career was an outgrowth of his convictions respecting that doctrine.

"His diplomatic correspondence will rank among the best of his political productions. His reputation abroad will mainly rest upon his acts as Secretary of State, and it is not an exaggeration to say that in the past ten years at least he has been the best known American in foreign lands."

Secretary of the Treasury Foster: "I first met Mr. Blaine when he became a member of the Forty-Second Congress and during his six years' service as Speaker of the House of Representatives. At that time he was in full health and a magnificent specimen, both physically and mentally, of mature manhood.

"As Speaker, he was the absolute dictator of the proceedings of the House, enjoying more fully the respect and confidence of the members than perhaps any other Speaker, with, perhaps, the exception of Henry Clay, whose career Mr. Blaine's so much resembles.

"His fame is world-wide. His personal popularity and his hold upon the popular affection was not confined to his own party. His death will be sincerely mourned."

Attorney-General Miller: "It is customary to speak of one who, being elected to the Vice-Presidency, becomes President, as an accidental President. With reference to Mr. Blaine it may be truly said that his failure to be President was an accident. The desire of a vain old gentleman, by alliteration, to make a striking sentence defeated the worthy ambition of a lifetime, and in no small degree changed the direction of public affairs in the nation.

"Mr. Blaine, with the possible exception of Henry Clay, was the most brilliant statesman and political leader this country has ever produced.

"He was a born leader of men, and richly endowed by nature with all those qualities that make a great statesman."

Secretary Noble: "James G. Blaine died within three days of the 68d anniversary of his birthday, and little less than 30 years from the time he entered Congress on the first Monday in December, 1863.

"During this long and most eventful period he held the attention and commanded the respect of his countrymen to a most extraordinary degree—more, I think, than any other political leader save Lincoln and Clay.

"Blaine was an American. Thoroughly and invariably he loved our country and its institutions. His death will be greatly lamented and the whole nation will do his memory honor. His critics will not be in this country."

Secretary Elkins: "Mr. Blaine was a wonderful man and wonderfully gifted. He was one of the greatest statesmen and political leaders the country has produced and the most conspicuous leader of his time.

"His control over men, his power to draw them to him and command their unselfish support, was beyond that of any other party leader in the history of the country. His loss will be widely felt and mourned, but his life will be a continuing inspiration to his party.

"Of late years he was not only the central figure in American politics, but at all social gatherings and wherever he went. In or out of office he attracted more attention and excited more enthusiasm than any other citizen of the Republic.

"His 'Twenty years of Congress' will stand as an enduring monument and always mark him truly great. The strain upon him and the effort made when writing his great work, I think had much to do in breaking down his health. The production of such a great work in so short a time, so just and discriminating, so fair to contemporaries and to all, so thoroughly authentic and reliable, stands in the history of literature unparalelled.

"Without distinction of party his death will be mourned as a great loss to the country. Truly, a great man has passed away and a great light gone out."

Postmaster General Wanamaker said: "Pennsylvania may well be proud of her brilliant son—cleverer than Henry Clay and as eloquent as Daniel Webster. As an all-round statesman his name will always be cherished with the ten greatest Americans."

Secretary Rusk said: "I have no hesitation in saying that in many respects Mr. Blaine outranked any of his contemporaries, and none has wielded a greater influence in shaping the fortunes of the Republican party. One of the qualities I have always esteemed the most highly in James G. Blaine, was his sturdy, unswerving Americanism. He will always be one of the conspicuous figures in the political history of this country."

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28.—The intelligence of Hon. J. G. Blaine's death was received in official circles here with many expressions of regret.

The Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who frequently met Mr. Blaine during the reciprocity negotiations at Washington, said that he did not share in the belief prevalent on this side of the line that Mr. Blaine was unfriendly toward Canada.

From experience he had learned to regard Mr. Blaine as an advanced and liberal minded statesman, ever disposed to do justice to every country.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Hon. Chauncey M. Depew said: "The secrets of Blaine's lasting and unshakable hold upon his followers were his fidelity to them and the impression he succeeded in creating with every man he met of a personal interest in that man's individuality and fortunes, which made the man ever after feel toward him a tie of kinship and blood.

"He filled a great place, led a mighty and devoted army and left no successor.

"The only time that I was apparently against Mr. Blaine was during the last convention. I knew that he did not want the nomination, and would not accept it if it had been offered to him. Had he been nominated and elected he would not have lived to have been inaugurated. Subsequent events have therefore vindicated my action at the Minneapolis Convention."

Sorrow of the Diplomatic Corps.

The death of Mr. Blaine occasions great regret among the members of the Diplomatic Corps in the Capital, with nearly all of whom his relations were quite intimate.

Baron Fava, the Italian Minister, Dean of the Corps, said:

"Personally, the death of Mr. Blaine is a great affliction. He was in office as Secretary of State when I reached Washington nearly 13 years ago, and went with me to the President when I presented my credentials. Since then our relations have been very pleasant.

"The loss to the country of one of its greatest men I can appreciate, and I desire to express the sorrow, not only of myself, but of all my associates in the Diplomatic College, over the sad event which has so afflicted your country."

INCIDENTS OF BLAINE'S CAREER.

Resignation from the Cabinet—His Literary Aspirations—The Conkling Episode.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Regarding Mr. Blaine's resignation from President Harrison's Cabinet, concerning which there has been much discussion, an intimate friend says:

"At 12 o'clock of the day Mr. Blaine's resignation was given out he had no idea of resigning from the Cabinet. He had had a meeting on that day with the Canadian Commissioners on the Welland canal question. It was said afterwards that Mr. Blaine had resigned because he and John W. Foster got into a controversy in the presence of the Canadians. This is absolutely false.

"When Mr. Blaine reached home he found some one had marked a lot of interviews which had been telegraphed from Minneapolis and printed in several papers.

"They accused Mr. Blaine with betraying the President and with using his place in the Cabinet as a cover for a conspiracy to defeat the President and secure the nomination.

"Under the heat of indignation over these interviews, Mr. Blaine wrote his resignation, and he has since told his friends that there were never but two occasions of difference between himself and the President, and that they had been fully explained and satisfactorily settled."

The Conkling Episode.

Mr. Blaine's career in the House was marked by many exciting episodes. He first came into prominence through an angry altercation between himself and Roscoe Conkling, then a member of the House from Utica, N. Y.

It was in the war period, and Blaine made a bitter attack upon Conkling for having charged the Government with fees as a judge-advocate while drawing pay as a member of Congress. Conkling repelled the attack and indulged in some severe criticism of his opponent, who in reply spoke derisively of Conkling's "magnificent turkey gobbler strut."

The incident excited great public attention at the time, and helped to bring both actors in it into that prominence which they each enjoyed during the remainder of their lives.

Blaine's Literary Aspirations.

Immediately after his resignation from the Cabinet of the President last summer Mr. Blaine went to Bar Harbor where he might recuperate his health and at the same time mature those plans about which he had talked in a general way with his most intimate friends.

His tastes had always been of a literary character, and his ability in that direction is evidenced by the scholarly style and polished finish of his "Twenty Years of Congress."

It was his intention to have followed this up with a commentary on the political history of the country since the period covered by his first work, and to bring his work up to date.

It had also been arranged that he would write the introduction for a book Father Thomas Sherman intended to have published on the career of his father, Gen. Sherman.

TO PROSECUTE WIGGER.

Charges of Cahenslyism to be Made Against the Newark Bishop.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28.—Bishop Wigger is, according to a current report, to be tried on a charge of having done all in his power publicly to foster Cahenslyism in the diocese of Newark.

He has, according to the same report, already received a summons from Archbishop Satolli, with whom the accused Bishop has filed his first answer to the summons.

The present charges grow out of the charges made against Father Corrigan a short time ago.

Father Thomas M. Killeen, pastor of St. Mary's church at Bayonne, brings against Bishop Wigger, it is stated, the charge of having done all in his power to foster Cahenslyism in the diocese of Newark, and declares that he has acted entirely upon his own authority, without the consent of the Council in Baltimore, and contrary to its instructions.

Father Killeen says:

"The whole trouble arose in January, 1892, when Bishop Wigger completely abolished the little Church of St. Thomas in Bayonne, which I had built, after much labor, to facilitate the means of worship of my parishioners.

"Bishop Wigger took the keys of the church away from me under protest, and *compelled about 600 of my English-*speaking congregation to attend St. Henry's church, over which the Bishop had placed a German priest."

Mrs. Cleveland Will Attend the Funeral.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 28.—From a personal friend of Mr. Cleveland it is learned that the President-elect will attend the funeral. Mrs. Emmons Blaine, the daughter-in-law of the late ex-Secretary, has been a guest at the Lakewood hotel. She left for Washington this morning.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 28.—George Hillman, alias Morris, has been arrested in Philadelphia for the murder of Ella Ford, who lived with him on Locust street, this city. He was found hiding in a chimney. The Camden grand jury has found an indictment against him of murder in the first degree.

A Statue of Bishop Brooks.

THAT $50,000 CHECK.

Bookkeeper Nash is Held for the Forging and Young Stanley Tried to Cash It.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The young man who tried in vain to work off a forged but certified check for $50,000 at Albany on Wednesday returned to this city Thursday and landed in the hands of the police yesterday.

He had destroyed the check while walking from Albany to Troy over the frozen Hudson Wednesday night, and the knowledge of this made the officials of the Merchants' National bank breathe easier.

Having both the forger and his accomplice in custody, the police consented to make public their names which they have heretofore withheld.

The man who has confessed to forging the checks is George M. Nesbitt of West Thirty-eight street, an under bookkeeper who has been in the employ of the Royal Insurance company for 10 years. He is unmarried, 30 years old, and is a native of England.

The young man whom he sent with the forged check to the bank, where the cash was refused, but where the check was certified, is, according to Inspector McLaughlin, James Stanley. He is only 17 years old and lives with his father, who is an insurance broker in Washington street.

DIVORCE SEEKERS SWARMING.

Biggest Influx of Applicants South Dakota Has Ever Known.

MITCHELL, S. D., Jan. 28.—South Dakota in the next 90 days will witness the biggest influx of divorce applicants the State has ever known.

This will be due to the recent passage of the new amendment to the divorce law, requiring six months' residence instead of three, as formerly.

Under the constitution no law can take effect until 90 days after its passage, unless an emergency clause shall be added.

Telegrams are already pouring in upon the hotels engaging rooms, and lawyers say they are also being engaged by wire.

New York Board of Charities Reports.

ALBANY, Jan. 28.—The annual report of the New York State Board of Charities as transmitted to the Legislature shows that the total expenditures for charitable, correctional, and reformatory purposes in the State during the year ended Oct. 1, 1892, were $18,223,714, an increase of $623,052 over the previous year.

IS NOW WELL AS EVER

Thanks to Use of Paine's Celery Compound.

C. A. Delaney of Holyoke, Mass., Suffered From Extreme Nervousness and Could Not Sleep--He Took the Famous Remedy that Dartmouth College's Great Professor First Prescribed--Its Good and Lasting Effects Were Soon Seen.

Of all the thousands of unsolicited testimonials that have come from every state in the Union, from those who have been made well by the use of that great remedy which was first prescribed by Dartmouth's famous professor, E. E. Phelps, M. D., L. L. D., none teach a better lesson than those sent by men of affairs, who by overwork and worry have begun to suffer from sleeplessness and other forms of nervous exhaustion, and found health and renewed vitality in the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

It has been well said by a famous physician that this remedy is as superior to all ordinary sarsaparillas, tonics, nervines, as the diamond is to common glass. Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine. It is the prescription of one of the most eminent practitioners that medicine has had. It is the remedy that when work begins to be a little less facile, and one begins to sleep badly, and the thoughts of the day invest his dreams, and he rises unrefreshed, and finds that day after day his work grows more trying, and that perhaps with certain note symptoms, such as giddiness, dimness of sight, neuralgia of the face, he has entire nights of insomnia and growing difficulty in the use of his mental powers—it is the remedy that should be taken at once, and it will at once be of benefit.

Mrs. C. A. Delaney of Holyoke, Mass., writes regarding her husband, who is one of the best known business men in that city, and whose portrait is given above:

"Owing to a very severe attack of the grip, and also to business troubles, my husband was very much run down. He suffered from extreme nervousness so that he could not sleep, he had no appetite and quite severe attacks of neuralgia. I had read of Paine's celery compound, and I purchased a bottle. The good effects of the compound in my husband's case were soon seen; and after taking three bottles he was as well as ever. In any similar case we should certainly use it again. I shall surely recommend it at every opportunity I have. I have some friends who are taking it now on my recommendation, with the best of results."

HERLICH STILL LIVES.

How the Would-Be Suicide Operated His Forgeries.

Peter Herlich, the Dunellen tailor who shot himself in an effort to end his trouble and disgrace, was still alive this afternoon with a bullet in his brain. He was very low, however, and will probably die before another issue of this paper.

The reason for the attempted suicide was told only in these columns yesterday, in the exclusive information of his forgeries.

It transpires that Herlich's method was to buy a man's check and forge notes with the signature thus obtained.

He paid Mr. Westphal, of this city, $15 for a check, which he said he wanted to send away. Then he forged Westphal's name to a note, and got it cashed. When it came due he met it by another, and so continued his forgeries. He operated similarly with other men's names. The notes ranged in value from $40 to $280. Finally one of them went to protest. It was of those bearing Westphal's name. When confronted with proof of his guilt, Herlich admitted that he been practicing forgery, but said he was through and had about settled up everything. He pleaded so earnestly and gave such assurance of reform that he was saved from punishment with the warning to heed the lesson taught him.

Soon after this, other forged notes cropped up and went to protest, and his arrest and attempted suicide followed as told in yesterday's PRESS.

Dr. Field says he has seen worse cases recover, but that Herlich's chances are very slim.

ENLARGING THE NEW STATION.

The Central Railroad Company to Give Its Patrons More Conveniences.

The Central Railroad company is about to make some alterations at the new station at Elizabeth, which, when completed, will afford the passengers greater conveniences and accommodations. The report is that the buildings on both sides of the tracks will be enlarged. It is proposed to extend the end of the building on the south side from the present telegraph office towards Morris avenue, to make room for a smoking room. The telegraph office will be at the far end and the smoking room will be where the telegraph office now is.

Across the tracks the baggage room end will be extended, and a ladies' waiting room added.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Harry Yarnell, formerly of this city, was in town yesterday.

"The Message of Phillips Brooks" will be pastor Goodrich's theme to-morrow.

A tribute to Bishop Brooks will be given by T. Logan Murphy to-morrow.

Phillips Brooks will be memorialized by pastor Clark in All Souls' church to-morrow.

A little girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Ely, at their home on Westervelt avenue, Thursday.

Mrs. A. Hummer, of Annandale, is visiting her son, borough councilman L. A. Hummer, of 159 Somerset street.

Mrs. Walter E. Stewart will be "at home" to her friends Tuesdays, January 31 and February 7, from 3 to 6, at 66 West Seventh street.

The Misses Mattison of Somerset street have gone to Lakeville, Conn., to take part in a concert given under the direction of Carl Feininger.

At the Church of the Holy Cross, to-morrow morning, the Rev. T. Logan Murphy will discourse upon the late bishop Phillips Brooks.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O Gaskill, of 56 East Third street, was brightened Thursday morning by the coming of an 8-pound boy.

Justice Sperry of Grandview avenue has been confined to his room since Christmas-time, with a severe and painful illness, from which he is now slowly recovering.

The Rev. P. C. Bascom of Paterson, who has been successful in evangelistic labors, will begin a series of revival meetings in Park Place chapel next Tuesday evening at 8. Services will be held nightly.

Mrs. Palmer of Dunellen gave a dance last evening to friends from Elizabeth, Somerville, Bound Brook and Plainfield. The ubiquitous editor of the Dunellen Call, G. Elston Lowrie, was among the guests of honor.

The Odd Fellows of Plainfield are to hear a sermon on modern "David and Jonathan" at the Park Avenue Baptist church to-morrow evening. Queen City and Plainfield lodges will attend the service in a body.

Miss Dodd, of Bloomfield, whose charming ways and sweet smiles, have enslaved so many hearts of Plainfield's young men, has returned to her home after a very pleasant visit to the Misses Wood of Madison avenue.

The first of Charles E. Doane's articles, illustrated by himself, on "Carpentry for Boys", appears in the current number of Harper's Young People. It is only a talk to beginners and a lesson for the youngest and least experienced of his audience, but its conciseness and clearness promise so much that the succeeding papers will be awaited with impatience and perused with satisfaction.

—Mrs. F. A. VanName, who sells the ever-popular Wilcox & Gibbs sewing machine, has also taken the age cy for the Mme. McCabe sanative corsets.

A NEGRO BIGAMIST.

Tom Henderson Had Two Wives in Plainfield, and Fearing Arrest He Skipped.

Thomas Henderson, colored, who lived at 1 Prescott place, has, it is alleged, for the last six months lived with two wives. He has been married for about two years to his legal spouse. Last summer he went to Asbury Park to work in one of the hotels as a waiter. While there, he courted another colored damsel who was worth considerable money. Henderson schemed to get her money without marrying her, but was unsuccessful, and both went to Philadelphia and were married. Then they came to Plainfield, where Henderson kept both women. The Prescott place neighborhood was scandalized; and Henderson, fearing the law, has fled from town.

Rough on Rats.

It was in true wild-western style that the occupants of Vanderbeek's sporting goods store armed themselves with baseball bats and went on the warpath a night or two ago, just before closing the store.

A monstrous rat was the cause of the excitement; and if any of the college boys had been passing the store at the time, their college yell would surely have rushed to their tongue's end, thinking that they were on the campus watching an exciting game of polo.

His royal lowness was cornered, and showed real gameness in eluding "Andy", who was quite sure he had him foul. When the rodent was finally killed he was found to measure fifteen inches in length.

Washington's First Love.

It has become a proverb that "Love is blind". It was so even in the case of Washington when his heart pictured to him assurance of requited affection in his suit for the hand of Miss Phillipse. Love-blindness may not be curable, but blindness of sight may be averted by attention to the eyes when the first defect is indicated. For the slightest weakness of sight they go to Collier's and learn how further trouble may be prevented.

CHAPS

And How to Get Rid of Them.

Nothing more annoying than chapped hands. And the more you wash the worse they chap! Soap cleans, but soap chaps. Now by neutralizing the alkali of the soap by means of a harmless acid we may prevent chapping. That is the philosophy of REYNOLDS'S LEMON JUICE AND GLYCERINE, and by using it as directed, you can get rid of the chaps. Originated and made only at

CHEAP TO FINCH'S FRIEND

BUT "AS SWEET-BREADS TO A HOD CARRIER"

Is That Thirteen Thousand Dollar Site for a Public School—Not Five Schools Near It—Present Buildings With Room to Spare.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I was amused last night in reading my two papers—THE PRESS and the Courier—and the view each took of the outrageous scheme of the Board of Education. One shielded the Board and the other boldly spoke out for the people of Plainfield. Will you permit me to state a few facts that will be of interest to tax-payers?

To my certain knowledge there are but two children attending the High School within a radius of three blocks of the proposed new building site. From Arlington avenue to Liberty street, east and west of Central avenue, from Sixth to Ninth or Tenth streets south, there are not as many pupils for the High School as I have fingers on my right hand. The people of that locality patronize the private schools. What advantage will this new building be in point of location? None at all.

Under the new regime, the High School scholars must be in their seats at 8:20 a. m. The average child must assist at home in the morning; the average father cannot afford to pay car fare every day for his child, should the new electric road reach this aristocratic locality. The Board should have considered all this.

There are several good building sites on Fourth and Fifth streets, that could have been purchased for much less money. The Board of Education are too ambitious. They would better review the life of Julius Cæsar. The Irving school has always been an extravagant investment. It has never been one-half full of pupils. The Washington school has been relieved of the Catholic children by the Parochial school, and now it is about one-third filled.

It seems to me this extra room might be utilized in some way. The idea is no more preposterous than to pay $13,500 for a building site in one of the most aristocratic and expensive parts of the city.

For "Mr. Finch's friend", the property is very cheap, for a public school it is as sweet-breads to a hod carrier.

TAX-PAYER.

CALL THE MEETING NOW.

Delay Is Dangerous in a Matter of Such Vital Importance.

The indignation meeting which THE PRESS advocated yesterday in championing the rights of the people will doubtless materialize at an early date. Influential citizens are already acting in the matter, and every effort will be made to upset the Board of Education's scheme.

In referring to the proposed new school site, it was inadvertently stated as Sixth street and Madison avenue. Of course everyone knew that Central avenue was meant, that being the location of Mr. Wadsworth's home which was purchased of him by misrepresentation.

Action in fighting the costly and unjust scheme should not be deferred. The citizen's meeting should be held immediately, and the project nipped in the bud. Those who will undoubtedly be most deeply interested and active in putting a stop to the Board of Education's high-handed and outrageous action, are Mayor Gilbert, councilman Fisk, ex-councilmen Rowland Cox and Ernest Ackerman, James Clark, E. S. Hooley and other of the wealthiest and most representative men of the city.

BRIDGING THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

Work Begun at the Morris Avenue Crossing in Elizabeth.

Work was begun yesterday morning on the foundation which will support the great arch that will carry the Pennsylvania railroad tracks over the Central railroad and Morris avenue, and the work will be pushed as weather permits until its completion.

Laborers were also at work digging the excavations for the foundations at East Broad street, and in consequence the street was covered with sloppy mud, the crossing being almost impassable to pedestrains. Work on this foundation will also be pushed to an early completion.

The foundations which were laid between the Central tracks will not be disturbed until the two tracks have been elevated, and the work begun on the remaining two.

What They Are Good For.

BRANDETH'S PILLS are the best medicine known.

First—They are purely vegetable, in fact a medicated food.

Second—The same dose always produces the same effect—other purgatives require increased doses and finally cease acting.

Third—They purify the blood.

Fourth—They invigorate the digestion and cleanse the stomach and bowels.

Fifth—They stimulate the liver and carry off vitiated bile and other depraved secretions.

The first two or three doses tell the story. The skin becomes clear, the eye bright, the mind active, digestion is restored, costiveness cured, the animal vigor is recruited and all decay arrested.

BRANDETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

I suffered from a severe cold in my head for months and could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in its cure. I am free from my cold after using the Balm one week, and I believe it is the best remedy known. Samuel J. Harris, wholesale grocer, 119 Front street, New York.

JOHN KEAN, JR., OBJECTS.

Determined the Name of the Family Homestead Shall Not Be Desecrated.

Silas D. Drake, the boomer of Lorraine, has purchased a tract of land on the Springfield road, which he intends laying out as a park similar to Tuxedo. He calls it "Ursino". This has aroused ex-Congressman John Kean, jr., because the word "Ursino" appears on the coat-of-arms of the Kean family and also in the name of their homestead in Union township, about a mile from Mr. Drake's new park. Ursino in Revolutionary times used to be called Liberty Hall, and was the residence of the patriotic Governor Livingston.

Mr. Kean says the name is sacred to the family, and shall not be desecrated. He threatened to procure an injunction restraining the boomer of Lorraine from carrying out his intention. The latter says he won't be bluffed; that the only coat-of-arms he recognizes is the sweat of a man's brow. Mr. Kean sent his lawyer, R. V. Lindabury, yesterday to call on Drake and get him to abandon his project. Drake refused. Mr. Kean's attorney says that the courts will certainly be appealed to if Mr. Drake persists in calling his land speculation "Ursino". Mr. Drake has, in defiance of this threat, filed the map of the park and its name yesterday with the county clerk.

A Big Batch of Grumbles.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Since Pennsylvania and New Jersey have in weakness permitted monopoly, they ought to have courage enough to have a law to regulate the price of coal. We ought not to pay but $5.50 per ton in winter and $5 in summer. It is a great burden to those in moderate circumstances, and the poor. But first cannot you find office-holders whose judgment is not bought and sold like merchandise? When I was young, they were not bought. This winter ought to be a warning to all who have moderate means to keep provided for the winter. We need not have many poor if they did not spend in fine dressing and drink; for wages are good, and there is plenty of work. The overseer ought to see that the paupers keep no dogs that we help by tax; and the man's prophecy may come true that the seasons will return and we get the Arctic next winter. Let the poor save their money.

CATO.

So Does THE PRESS Sympathize With the Mother.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I read in your paper Mrs. Harris's letter of appeal to the public. Not knowing where to address a letter to Recorder Smyth, or to Mrs. Harris, I will write a line to you for him or Mrs. Harris. I read of the death of young Mrs. Harris, (or Helen Potts), at the time at happened; also the arrest, trial and conviction of Carlyle. As it was not proved (as I see) that she might not have taken an overdose, probably accidentally, how could they call it willful murder, when he was not near her to know how much she took. If his former life was not what it should have been, should he be condemned for what he seems innocent of? I truly sympathize with his mother, and hope she may succeed in proving his innocence and saving her son. At least, give them a chance.

PLAINFIELD SYMPATHIZER.

It's Always the Way.

A neat illustration of the value of advertising money wisely expended was given at the Portland Young Men's Christian Association meeting Sunday when General Secretary McDonald stated that he had some curiosity to know what method of advertising reached the most people. He had circulated thousands of little dodgers, giving notice of the meeting, and he asked those who had seen them and had been moved to come through that means to rise. The hall was packed as full as it could hold, and of the entire number about 15 arose. Then Mr. McDonald asked all who had read the notice in the newspapers and had been influenced by them to rise, and the men rose in a body.—Bangor (Me.,) Commercial.

Fits Plainfield's Case Exactly.

(Rahway Advocate.)

The Hon. George Kyte of Fanwood has introduced into the Legislature a bill which provides for the licensing of dogs. It gives the governing body of any city, town, borough or township power to fix upon a fee which the owner of every dog shall pay each year. The fee is to be collected the same as any other tax, and will be used in the payment of the general expenses of the municipality.

The Elizabeth Journal commenting on the bill very truly says:

"A dog is either valuable or worthless. If it is valuable the owner is willing—or ought to be—to pay a reasonable tax each year. If it is not worth the amount of tax demanded, then it ought to be killed. As a rule, it is said, the poorer and more shiftless a man is the more dogs he has around his premises, and they are, in nearly all cases, poor, vicious, mongrel curs that would be better dead than alive. There is an abundance of land in Union county excellently suited to sheep raising and pasture. But very few sheep are raised in Union county, because they are so liable to be worried and killed by worthless dogs. Much money might be made in Union county in sheep raising if it were not for dogs, and therefore any law that will tax the worthless specimens out of existence is a good law."

When to Stop Advertising.

The time to stop advertising is—

When you do not wish to make any more money;
When you wish to go out of business; or,
When you are dead.

If you are not averse to making a little more money, wish to continue in business, and are not actually under the ground as yet, you may stop advertising

When you are satisfied that "the future generation" has arrived, no more people will be born, and the world will come to an end when you do;
When everybody is convinced that you have better goods and lower prices than ever can be had elsewhere; or
When every man has become so much a creature of habit that he will certainly buy goods next year where he bought last year.

If you are not given to such optimistic beliefs, and must cast about for more convincing reasons to stop your advertising, you may find them

When you discover that other men who do not advertise are increasing their business over those who do;
When nobody else thinks "it pays to advertise", or,
When you would rather have your own way and fail, than to take advice and win.

We are not surprised that people will not take a new cough remedy, when they know the value of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENTS.

The New Edsall's Will Be a Plainfield "Macy's".

Seely Edsall, the enterprising and successful merchant, has leased three adjoining stores in the new Babcock block to be erected at the head of Madison avenue, and will establish a regular "Macy" business there. The dimensions of his place will be 60 feet front by 175 Of this depth 100 feet will be in the main building, the balance in an extension to be built expressly for him. In the new Edsall's one may find everything sought for on the ordinary metropolitan shopping tour. Tiresome trips to New York may then be avoided.

Van Emburgh & Son have leased the corner store in the block, 20x100 feet.

Creeley Beats Case at Live Pigeons.

About one hundred and fifty Somerset county sports stood around in the snow, yesterday afternoon, on the grounds of the Somerville gun club, to see a live pigeon match between Frank Creeley, a towerman in the employ of the Central railroad, and Abe Case, a Hunterdon country sport. The match was at fifty birds each for $100 a side.

Creeley took the lead at the start and was never headed to the end, winning by seven birds. He missed but two of his fifty birds, the other nine being lost by getting out of boundaries. The birds were very lively and considering the day the score was good.

Fully $500 changed hands on the result, and many a sore-headed Somerville sport was to be found last night. The match was the outcome of a great deal of bluster on both sides.

Frank Creeley is the man who just after New Year's won the big bull for J. W. Brokaw, a local groceryman, with one shot, and for which he is yet awaiting half of the proceeds. The score: F. Creeley, 39 killed, 11 missed; Abe Case, 32 killed, 18 missed.

COMMENTS FROM ABROAD.

James G. Blaine as Regarded by the London Press.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—All the morning dailies comment editorially upon Mr. Blaine's death.

The Daily Chronicle says:

"Few men have played so many parts. Most of them he played remarkably well. His manner was charming, but we cannot rank him with the great political leaders of his country."

The Daily Graphic says: "As a statesman Mr. Blaine has few claims on the notice of the historian. As a politician he had been the leading figure in America since Lincoln died. A succession of failures earned for him the reputation of a trickster and blusterer."

The Times says: "Although he never attained his ambition—the Presidency—yet, as a party organizer and a director of public policy, he had from time to time influence and authority greater than those of his titular chiefs.

"Mr. Blaine was never at pains to conceal his unfriendliness to England. That unfriendliness may have been real or it may have been simulated as a party trick. It was on the moral side that he most conspicuously failed. If he had been more gifted with generous instincts and capable of wider political aims, he would have had more chance of permanent success."

LIFE OF MR. BLAINE.

Brief Sketch of His Career from Early Manhood Until Death.

James Gillespie Blaine was born January 31, 1830, at the village of West Brownsville, Pennsylvania. He was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Lyon Blaine.

His ancestors had dwelt for years in the fertile region where he was born; they were among the hardy band of pioneers who settled the rich valley of the Cumberland, and their name and history are part of the local tradition of Western Pennsylvania. The family had honorable memories of the Revolution, for Colonel Ephraim Blaine, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was one of its heroes.

James Gillespie Blaine was born in a plain but ample dwelling, on the single street of West Brownsville, not far from the scene of the campaign which ended in Braddock's defeat by the Indians.

When young Blaine had completed at home his early studies in the elementary principles, he was sent to the home of a relative at Lancaster, Ohio. This relative was Thomas Ewing, then Secretary of the Treasury. James Blaine was eleven when he went to Lancaster, and he began at once to prepare himself for college, studying with his cousin, Thomas Ewing, Jr., now General Thomas Ewing, and once a member of Congress. The boys studied under especially advantageous conditions, for their tutor was William Lyon, brother of Lord Lyons, and uncle of the then British Minister at Washington. He seems to have been an early type of the visiting Englishman, and a highly fortunate type for those young students, for after two years of instruction from him, James Blaine, at the early age of thirteen, entered Washington College.

In October, a few months after graduation, young Blaine went to Kentucky to seek his fortune. He entered the Western Military Institute, a school for boys, established at Blue Lick Springs, Kentucky, but as a pronouncedly successful school it had fallen materially to him as a student, and was rather uncommonly successful, it would seem, to a calling which could not have been congenial.

It was at Blue Lick Springs that he met the admirable woman who became his wife. Miss Harriet Stanwood, a native of Maine, had been sent to be educated as a section for young ladies at Millersburg, Kentucky. This school was presided over by the wife of the principal of the Western Military Institute, and was 20 miles from Blue Lick Springs. No account remains of the wooing, but in little more than a year after his arrival in Kentucky he married Miss Stanwood, and soon afterward returned to Pennsylvania with her, where for a time he studied law.

Being in need of some more immediate remunerative occupation than the study of law, in 1854, for about the father of a boy of two, he answers the advertisement of Mr. William Chapin, Principal of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind, for a teacher. This excellent home and school for the blind still stands at the corner of Twenty-fifth and Race streets, in Philadelphia, and Mr. Chapin is still its admirable principal.

He left the institution after a few months and in compliance to the wish of Mrs. Blaine, moved to Augusta, Me., where she has since been. He at once entered journalism, purchasing, with Joseph Baker, the Kennebec Journal, and from his assumption of the duties of editor of this paper he exercised an important influence in his adopted State. The Journal was a weekly and an organ of the Whig party, and under Mr. Blaine's management the vigorous service for that expiring cause. In 1856, just after the first convention of the Republican party, he disposed of his interest in the Journal and took editorial charge of the Portland (Me.) Advertiser.

Almost from the day of his assuming editorial charge of the Kennebec Journal, at the early age of 25, Mr. Blaine sprang into a position of great influence in the politics and party of Maine. At 25 he was a leading power in the councils of the Republican party. Before he was 29 he was chosen Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican organization in Maine—a position he never relinquished and from which he practically shaped and directed every political campaign in the state, always leading his party to brilliant victory.

In 1858 he was elected to Congress.

An attempt to pursue his course step by step during the long term of his service in Congress would be wearisome. He spoke upon every important measure, and briefly discussed many petty laws about which none but sedulous readers of the Congressional Record will ever be perfectly informed.

Mr. Blaine had served six years in Congress and was still a young man, having only reached the age of thirty-nine, when he was chosen Speaker of the House by a highly complimentary vote, the ballot standing 87 for Mr. Michael C. Kerr, of Indiana, and 135 for Mr. Blaine.

Lot M. Morrill, for many years Senator from Maine, resigned in June, 1876, to accept the portfolio of the Treasury, and the Governor of Maine immediately appointed Mr. Blaine to fill the unexpired term.

The same month Blaine's name was presented to the National Republican Convention at Cincinnati as a candidate for the nomination for president. Col. Robert G. Ingersoll presenting the name of Mr. Blaine made reference to him as the "Plumed Knight" which clung to Mr. Blaine thereafter. As will be remembered, Mr. Blaine was defeated, the nomination going to Gov. Hayes of Ohio.

During the administration of President Hayes Mr. Blaine was an active leader in the Senate.

Mr. Blaine entered the next Republican National Convention held at Chicago in June, 1880. One fact which stood out the most remarkable was that he entered the race with the same number of supporters that he preserved so faithfully at the Cincinnati Convention.

The wearisome balloting is familiar to every reader, and it will be recalled that Mr. Blaine's friends stood steadfastly by their leader until the 35th ballot was reached, when they went over to Gen. Garfield, effecting the nomination on the 36th ballot.

Those who were engaged in the effort to nominate General Grant were scarcely more faithful. The dogged perseverance, which characterized the third term men and forbade them to assist in the nomination of another candidate, however hopeless the fortunes of their own, was not emulated by those who through 34 ballots cast their votes steadily for Mr. Blaine. When it became evident that the man of their choice would not become the nominee of the convention a spirit of moderation prevailed, and the vote of the Blaine delegation was cast almost entire for General Garfield. But for this act Garfield could not have been nominated.

Mr. Blaine entered heartily into the work of the campaign, and after the inauguration of Garfield entered the cabinet as Secretary of State which position he relinquished in December of the same year.

In the time it was impossible to accomplish anything of importance, but the chief of his large-minded plans was near fruition when he relinquished his place in the Cabinet. Scarcely four months passed before the President was shot down. During the three months that followed Blaine was in constant attendance upon his bedside.

When Congress met after President Garfield's death it cost about for a fit man to deliver a eulogy of Gen. Garfield, and its choice naturally fell to Blaine. It has been called one of the noblest performances of his life, and certainly he never spoke up so lofty and inspiring a theme.

After President Garfield's death Mr. Blaine went to Augusta, Me., but soon returned to Washington where he went to work carrying out a plan long cherished, the composition of a work which he called "Twenty Years in Congress."

He devoted himself assiduously to writing, and when two years after little more than two years' labor, to present to the public a thick volume as an earnest of his intention.

The story of the convention of 1884, which nominated Mr. Blaine on the first ballot, and his defeat at the polls by Grover Cleveland, is fresh in all minds.

From 1884 to '88, during the time of President Cleveland's administration, Mr. Blaine devoted himself entirely to his family. He spent a year in an extended tour abroad, not returning to America until after the nomination of Mr. Harrison.

He accepted the premiership of President Harrison's Cabinet, and continued in that position until the summer of 1892, when he retired, as is generally believed, at the solicitation of his wife, that his name might be presented to the convention at Minneapolis.

After President Harrison's renomination, Mr. Blaine took very little, if any, part in the campaign, because even then it was evident to all that his health was failing fast.

EARNED HIGH HONORS.

The Interesting Career of Missouri's New Chief Executive.

William J. Stone, the new governor of Missouri, is a Kentuckian by birth, having first seen the light of day in Madison county, in the blue grass state, on the 7th of May, 1847. In personal appearance he is a typical Kentuckian, tall and straight as an arrow, with a well formed head poised upon broad shoulders; his hair plentiful and as free from "kink" as an Indian's; a large, firm mouth partially concealed by a luxuriant mustache and a nose inclined to be aquiline. Although he was too young to be available for military duty during the war, he enlisted in a confederate cavalry company in 1863 and performed such duties as fell to the members of the organization, which was enlisted as a home guard. In 1863 he removed to Missouri, studied law and was admitted to practice in 1867. From 1872 to 1874 he was prosecuting attorney of Vernon county, and made an excellent record, but relinquished the position in order to devote himself to his more profitable private practice and to farming and stock raising, toward which he had a pronounced leaning.

GOV. W. J. STONE, OF MISSOURI.

In 1884 Col. Stone was selected to represent the Twelfth district of Missouri in congress, and was reelected in 1886 and 1888. In the house he proved himself to be an indefatigable worker and held positions on the various committees on public lands, reform in the civil service and on the labor troubles in Pennsylvania. He was industrious and vigilant in all matters coming before his committees, and his opinions as to the advisability of legislation concerning them carried great weight with his colleagues. He was particularly conspicuous by reason of his defense of the people against the encroachments of corporations and also took a prominent part in legislation designed to preserve the public domain for the benefit of actual settlers. He is eloquent in debate and when conscious of the rectitude of his position is as firm as adamantine rock.

TRAFFIC IN HEADS.

Picturesque Specimens Which Were Once Articles of Commerce.

In the gallery of the British museum which is devoted to ethnographical specimens there are four well-preserved Maori heads. The tattooing of the one to the extreme left is beautiful in design and perfectly executed; it is an excellent specimen of facial marking as practiced in New Zealand. It must have belonged to some chief of long pedigree, and was no doubt once an honored relic.

Another of these heads, the second from the right, is of a different character. Its owner was undoubtedly hastily tattooed and slain. Compare the ugly, shapeless scrawls upon the left cheek with the graceful markings on the nobler head. The pigment used must also have been very poor, and it was evidently applied in the most slovenly way. In many places the flesh has not retained the color; and the cuts caused by the tattooing instruments could not have been properly healed before the unlucky creature was done to death.

For a long time the Maoris made these heads a very profitable article of traffic with Europeans, but finally the enormity of this trade was made palpable to the lagging authorities, and in 1831 the governor at Sydney issued a proclamation which had the effect of suppressing this scandalous traffic in what was little less than human lives.

One may, by an easy sequence of events, as has been shown, trace the dust of Alexander till they find it stopping a bung hole; but surely the most fruitful imagination, unless assisted, as in this instance, by truth, could never have possibly conceived anything so grewsomely grotesque as the idea of the head of some illustrious New Zealand warrior of yore, who had in life rejoiced in some such awe-inspiring name as Matutaera Te Pukepuke Te Paine Tu Karato Te-a-Potatau Te Whereowhero Tawhias o-te-Ngatimaihuta, being, toward the middle century, hawked about the streets of Sydney in a dirty old colored handkerchief.

An Era of Unmarried Women.

Susan B. Anthony is of the opinion that we are on the verge of an era of unmarried women. Our civilization, she says, is changing. Daughters cannot be supported at home, and there is nothing there to busy them. The women used to spin and weave, make carpets and soap, but now all that is done for them in the factories. Young men do not make enough money to support their wives, and there is such a craze for dissipation among them that the women would rather go into a store for almost nothing than to marry.

LEOPOLD MORSE.

He Was One of the Few Jews Prominent in American Politics.

By the sudden death of Hon. Leopold Morse Boston lost one of her most honored citizens, a man of prominence in politics and business.

Mr. Morse came to this country from Bavaria, his native land, forty-one years ago. He was then 17 years old, and the only friend and relative he had in this country was a brother at Sandwich, N. H. In 1849 Leopold Morse came to Boston, procuring employment in the clothing store of Henry Hermann, who is now a New York exporter. He received as a weekly salary $5. His first venture for himself was at New Bedford, where, in company with his brother, he opened a clothing store, which a few years later they disposed of, and returning to Boston bought out Mr. Hermann and laid the foundation of a successful business career. By his industry Mr. Morse commenced to prosper and sent for his relatives in Bavaria, whom he materially aided. He attracted the attention of James N. Beebe, who, noticing his industry and perseverance, rendered him substantial assistance. He removed his business some years ago from North street to Milk street, and later to a commodious block on the corner of Washington and Brattle streets, which he built.

Mr. Morse early identified himself with the democratic party, and in 1868 and 1872 received the nomination for congress in the Fourth district, but was defeated both times by the late Samuel Hooper. In 1876 he was elected to congress by one thousand two hundred majority over Rufus S. Frost, of Chelsea, and in 1878 ran successfully against Martin Brimmer. He was reelected in 1880 and again in 1882. In 1884 he went from the Fifth district and in 1886 from the Third. His unbroken record of successes led to his being often mentioned for governor and mayor, but he declined to allow the use of his name on several occasions. He was the only Hebrew who has ever been elected to congress from New England, and one of the few from any part of the country. He was always an ardent advocate of civil service and tariff reform, and was a prominent figure in the tariff debates in congress. He was at one time interested in journalistic enterprises and was for several years president of the Boston Post Publishing Company.

ACCUSES THE MINISTER

Hawaii's Queen Makes Charges Against Stevens.

CAPT. WILTSE'S PART IN THE REVOLT

Claimed that by an Undue Display of Force He Compelled Queen Liliuokalani to Abdicate—Her Representatives Now on the Way to Washington to Demand Redress—Sentiment at the Capital Favorable to Annexation — Foreign Press Comment.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30. — Hawaii's revolution may prove a more serious affair to the United States than has been expected.

Liliuokalani insists that she yielded not to the revolutionists in Honolulu, but to the superior force of the United States, and she charges that the American Minister, John L. Stevens, "caused United States troops to be landed at Honolulu and declared he would support the new government."

These charges were made by the Queen in a proclamation which she issued after abdicating the throne.

Force is given to the Queen's protest by the haste with which United States Minister Stevens "recognized" the provisional government which the revolutionists had established, and the resentment of the Queen is probably due to the formal notice of recognition which the Minister issued.

On the ship which brought over the commissioners of the provisional government who are empowered to negotiate a treaty for annexation to the United States came representatives of the deposed Queen.

Their mission is to demand that the United States undo the alleged work of Minister Stevens in assisting in the dethronement of the Queen, and when the commissioners reach Washington they will probably be confronted by the representatives of the Queen with charges that undue influence was used against her.

Unofficial advices received regarding the part taken in the revolution by Capt. Wiltse, of the cruiser Boston, and the American marines have caused a big flurry among naval officers here.

The reports come from eye witnesses of the revolution, who forwarded them by the steamer Claudine, on which the commissioners reached San Francisco.

They indicate the possibility of international complications, which may prove as important as the problem of the annexation of Hawaii.

According to these reports, Capt. Wiltse had been in constant communication with the men of the annexation faction in Hawaii, and had given assurance that the whole strength of his ship's party could be relied upon to carry through the projects of establishing a provisional government in the interest of a union with the United States.

He landed his marines, these reports state, against the combined protests of the representatives of all the foreign powers residing in Honolulu, and surrounding the Queen's palace, made such a show of force that the Queen, upon being informed by Minister Stevens that the provisional government had been generally recognized, saw no alternative but to abdicate.

Before the Commissioners left for the East last night, Mr. Thurston said that if the United States would not agree to annex Hawaii, a similar proposition would be made to Great Britain.

Commissioner Carter said:

"The object of our visit to Washington is to have the United States take possession of the Hawaiian Islands; we want to join the Union. Not as a State, however, but under a Territorial district form of government.

"A government like that of the District of Columbia with the addition of a governor appointed by the President is preferable for many reasons. There is such a large number of Chinese and other cheap laborers on the islands who cannot be trusted to vote intelligently that if universal suffrage were declared, the whites, who represent almost the entire business interests of the country, would be at once ousted of power. An entire new system of government must be built up, and the only way is to have the United States take charge."

"If the United States Government should refuse to annex the island do you think that Great Britain would step in and take possession?" was asked.

"That question I cannot answer, but this I do know: The Queen is strongly in favor of British rule and if allowed would, I have no doubt, apply to Great Britain for protection. Why was the British Government the only one of the powers represented in Hohlulu that did not recognize the provisional government?"

The United States flagship Mohican, with Admiral Skerritt aboard, left Mare Island Navy Yard yesterday and proceeded direct to sea, on her way to Honolulu.

The Ranger is expected to leave the yard at any moment and the Adams will leave there to-morrow.

FAVORABLE TO ANNEXATION.

The Foreign Relations Committee Are a Unit on the Question.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Hawaiian revolution is the all-absorbing topic of discussion. In the face of the general protest stated to have been sent by the deposed Queen declaring that she yielded only to the superior force of the United States, and appealing to the United States to reverse its action and reinstate her in her authority, it was expected that the specially chartered steamer which brought the news of the revolution would also bring some despatch from Minister John L. Stevens or Consul-General Hy. W. Severance to the State Department.

If any such advices were brought they were apparently in telegraphic form or in such a shape as not to be suitable for publicity at the present time.

Secretary of State Foster, when seen this morning, asserted positively that he had received no further information.

It was also expected that the commander of the Boston would have transmitted to the Navy Department some detailed report of his vigorous action in landing his marines and practically taking control of the revolution.

Both Secretary Tracy and Assistant Secretary Soley, however, state that no such report has yet been received at the Navy Department.

The inference, accordingly, is that detailed reports from these officers are on their way by mail, and may be expected to arrive in Washington about the same time as the annexation committee on Friday next.

In the meantime, some of the members of the Committees on Foreign Relations, before whom the matter will eventually come, are expressing their sentiments with remarkable freedom.

Senator Morgan makes no secret of his desire to acquiesce in the request of the committee and annex the islands. More significant even than this, however, is the statement that Senator Sherman, the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, in the course of the executive session, spoke to the same purpose. Mr. Butler of South Carolina, who is also a member of the same committee, said this morning:

"Of course there can be no question of the great desirability of the Islands as a naval station. Unless they are purchased as were Alaska and Louisiana, it will be necessary for Congress to pass a regular act of annexation, as with the Republic of Texas. Hawaii would then be a territory, but not, I imagine with a regular territorial government."

Judge Shipman of Michigan, a prominent member of the Foreign Relations Committee, openly favors annexation. He said last night:

"As a naval station and point of commercial advantage in the Pacific, the Sandwich Islands are vital to us. We would need them in war and we need them in peace. Their possession would go far toward enabling us to control the situation of the world. Of course a contest with England could not be avoided, but that should not affect the matter one way or the other.

"This country will never amount to anything more than a second-class power as long as it whisks around a corner when it sees a foeman approaching. England takes whatever she wants, wherever it may be. I do not believe in a bullying policy, but America must know its rights and maintain them at all hazards."

Mr. Thurston, one of the gentlemen now en route from San Francisco is an American lawyer who has lived for some years at Honolulu. Annexation to the United States has been with him, as with the other Americans living there, a long-cherished scheme. He spent a part of last winter in Washington endeavoring to further the project. Not having any official designation, his efforts met with little success.

His proposition was that this Government, if it would not agree to annex the islands, should at least assume a protectorate over them and govern them as our Western Territories are now governed. His present visit to Washington will carry with it a prestige which he has not heretofore enjoyed, as he is now the duly appointed representative of the new Provisional Government. What success may follow his present efforts will, of course, be difficult at this time to say.

Mr. Mott Smith, the Hawaiian Minister, after receiving official notice of the overthrow of his Government, said that he thought the new Government could be maintained without a display of force by the United States. He believed, he said, that the people themselves would regulate matters, and that there would be no trouble. Mr. Smith believed a revolution inevitable, but he thought it would not come so soon.

COMMENT IN LONDON.

How the Press Regards the Move Toward Annexation.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Daily Graphic says of the Hawaii revolution:

"Beyond dispute there has been misgovernment in Hawaii, but, except the lurid stories published in San Francisco, nothing occurred to our knowledge to justify the Queen's deposition. The revolution seems to be purely the work of a section of immigrants numbering at the outside 1,000. The fact that the revolutionists were in so great a hurry to petition the United States for annexation wears an ugly look."

The Morning Post says:

"Annexation of Hawaii by the United States might be regarded as a counter move to fortifying Esquimalt. The bulk of Hawaiian trade being with the United States, we are not surprised that there should be a desire for closer union with that power."

The Daily Telegram says:

"The affair wears the aspect of a successful attempt by American intriguers to subject the existing order of things in favor, first of themselves, and next, of what is impossible, annexation. We could not allow the United States to annex the islands, even if the established policy at Washington permitted the idea to be entertained. This policy, however, will not permit it."

"The Daily News says:

"The overthrow of the Queen appears to be an American coup. Hawaii being the key of the whole group, the Americans, once they possess it, would not find difficulty in making themselves masters of the others.

"Europe, however, has necessities in the same quarter, Honolulu being the only coaling station on the mail route between San Francisco and Auckland."

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

MR. CARNEGIE TALKS

He is No Longer an Officer of the Company.

SIMPLY A SHAREHOLDER, HE SAYS

He Has Not the Power to Dictate to or Instruct the Officers, Nor Would He Make Them Bend to His Wishes if He Could—Warm Praise for Manager Frick.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 30.—Andrew Carnegie makes the following statement to the press in response to numerous calls from reporters for interviews:

"I did not come to Pittsburg to rake up, but to try to bury, the past, of which I know nothing. That is beyond recall; it should be banished as a horrible dream, and only the lessons that it leaves be laid to heart for the future. For 26 years our concerns have run with only one labor stoppage at one of its numerous works, and I trust and believe that even this record will be fully equaled in the 25 years to come.

"When employer and employed become antagonistic, each considering the other his enemy, it is a contest between twin brothers. There is no genuine victory possible for either, but defeat for both capital and labor.

"I have sold portions of my interest and am gradually selling more to such young men in our service as my partners find possessed of exceptional ability and desire to interest in the business. I am not an officer in the company, but only a shareholder. I have not power to instruct anybody connected with the Carnegie Steel company, limited. The officers are elected for a year, and no one can interfere with them. Even at the next election, if I desired to make a change, I could not find one shareholder out of the number interested that would not stand by and vote for the present officials. They will be unanimously elected.

"When I could not bring my associates in business to my views by reason I have never done so by force. As for instructing or controlling them, under the law, to do one thing or another, that is simply absurd. I could not do it if I would and I would not if I could."

Mr. Carnegie says that he expects to continue all his capital in the business at Pittsburg, and unless that business prospers he will have nothing.

He takes pride in the fact that the first charge upon every dollar of capital he possesses is still the payment of the highest wages to labor paid in any part of the world.

He warmly eulogizes his "friend," Mr. Frick, for the latter's ability, fairness and pluck, and says the people have yet to learn of his many virtues. He adds:

"Good workmen or able men who wish to do what is right and fair will come to appreciate Mr. Frick. Inefficient officers, or bad, unreasonable, violent workmen, he does not take to, and these will not thrive with him."

IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

Programme for the Week in Both Branches of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The most notable event of the week in Congress will probably be the disposition of the Anti-Option bill in the Senate. By agreement the final vote upon the bill will be taken at 2 o'clock to-morrow. It will then in all probability be sent back to the House with its many amendments, an entirely different measure from the original Hatch bill as passed by that body.

The first two of the regular annual appropriation billsare now on the calendar of the Senate—the Army bill and the Fortifications bill—and it is expected that the District of Columbia Appropriation bill will be added to the list early in the week.

It is also the expectation of the managers to call up the Cullom bill making amendments to the Interstate Commerce laws to meet recent judicial decision. As introduced, this bill contained the important "pooling" clause, which was afterwards cut by the committee on a very close vote, and it is possible that an effort will be made when the bill is under consideration in the Senate to restore this provision to the bill.

The House leaders intend to keep at work on the Appropriation bills to the exclusion of all other business. As soon as the Sundry Civil bill is passed, the General Deficiency, the Consular and Diplomatic, the Military Academy, the Pension and the Postoffice Appropriation bills, all of which are now on the calendar, will be taken up, probably in the order named, and sent over to the Senate.

There should not be much delay in passing the first three of these bills, unless an attempt to exploit the condition of the Treasury should involve the House in a general financial debate.

The Pension and Postoffice supply bills are quite likely to be the subjects of considerable discussion, owing to some radical changes in methods proposed by the former bill, and to heavy increase of appropriations proposed by the latter bill.

The passage of these bills will leave only three of the annual appropriation bills unacted on by the House. Two of these bills, the Indian and the Agricultural, are expected to be reported before the appropriation measures now on the calendar are out of the way. The Naval bill should follow close on their heels, its delay having been due to a desire to know the condition of the Treasury before recommending the construction of additional war vessels.

The special order for the Andrew-Cato Banking and Silver Purchase Repeal bill, which the Committee has agreed to report, may be brought in during the week, but it is not intended to call it up until the morning of the day on which it is to go into operation, February 9, so that this fight is off for more than a week.

CAPITAL SOCIAL EVENTS.

They May Not be Further Disturbed Because of Mr. Blaine's Death.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — Just what effect upon the official social life of the Capital Mr. Blaine's death will have has not been definitely decided. A meeting of the ladies of the Cabinet families will be held this afternoon to settle that question as far as it relates to them.

It is probable that a division of opinion will prevail. Some invitations have already been recalled, but Mr. Blaine had a decided repugnance to making any public demonstration of sorrow, and on two or three occasions in his career here, his house was opened when it would have been closed had the usual practice been followed.

Mrs. Blaine deplores any public recognition of her sorrow, and it may be that, in deference to her desire, the routine of social events will not be further disturbed.

IN OAK HILL CEMETERY

The Remains of James G. Blaine Interred With Simple Services.

HIGHEST NATIONAL OFFICERS PAY LAST TRIBUTES OF RESPECT.

A Short Prayer at the House, Followed by a Brief Ceremony at the Church of the Covenant—A Great Outpouring of the Masses—The Funeral Strictly Private—Mr. Blaine's Will.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, in the parlor on the north side of the second floor of the "Red House," Rev. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin, of the Church of the Covenant, said the first prayer over the body of James G. Blaine.

There were present, besides the members of the family, President Harrison, Vice-President Morton and Mrs. Morton, the members of the Cabinet and their wives, the delegation from Maine headed by Gov. Cleaves, a few intimate friends and the following, who acted as pall bearers:

Senators W. P. Frye and Eugene Hale of Maine and John T. Morgan of Alabama, Representatives Thomas B. Reed and C. A. Boutelle of Maine, Robert R. Hitt of Illinois and Henry H. Bingham of Pennsylvania; Gen. Thomas Ewing of Ohio, John Hay of Washington, Joseph H. Manley of Maine, Almet F. Jenks of Brooklyn and P. V. H. Weeks of Boston.

The body of the late ex-Secretary was removed yesterday afternoon and placed in the parlor, the windows of which open out upon Lafayette square, one of the most delightful spots in Washington. Across this plot of ground stands the State, War and Navy building, where the dead man achieved his latest triumphs in statecraft and diplomacy.

The casket was almost buried under the mass of floral tributes which had been received, many of them from a distance.

When the simple services at the house had been concluded, the casket was borne by the pallbearers to the hearse, and after the mourners had taken their seats in the carriages the cortege started for the Church of the Covenant.

The sidewalks were lined with rows of people, and in the vicinity of the church a vast concourse had gathered, desirous to pay by their presence a tribute of respect to the dead.

In the church flowers were banked along the railing of the gallery, palms were used around the pulpit and the chandeliers were hung with smilax. Everything was as observed as it could be made. It was Mrs. Blaine's desire that the funeral in all its details should be precisely like that of the late Walker Blaine.

William E. Curtis had charge of the details at the church, and the following gentlemen acted as ushers:

Capt. Alex Rodgers, U. S. A.; Lieut. R. H. Buckingham, U. S. N.; Francis B. Loring, Llewellyn A. Brown, Robert B. Chilton, D. W. Stevens, of the Japanese Legation; Capt. A. C. Tyler, Clifford Richardson, Ward Thorne, Archibald Hopkins, Frank C. Partridge, Sidney Smith, Lieut. T. S. Rodgers, U. S. N.; Horace Washington, Andrew H. Allen and William Heywood.

The mourners entered the church to the music of a funeral march played by Walter Damrosch, the dead man's son-in-law. The casket was placed near the chancel.

The first eight rows of seats in the church were set aside for the family, the relatives, and the pallbearers. Behind them, in order, were seated the President, Vice-President, Cabinet officers, Speaker Crisp, and the members of the Supreme Court, with their families.

In the rear of these were the Senators and Representatives. Owing to the limited room, it was impossible to make provision for their families.

On the south side of the church were seated the members of the various delegations, and on the north side personal friends who had received invitations.

Notwithstanding the fact that the funeral was a private one, the attendance upon the services was as truly national in their representative character as if a President were being buried.

The State of Maine sent a delegation headed by Gov. Cleaves; Massachusetts a delegation of five; the Union League club, of New York, sent 25 of its members to represent the organization, and the Union League club, of Philadelphia, 20.

From various other points in Pennsylvania, the several delegates of various societies and organizations. Altogether a hundred or more of these representatives were present.

Personal friends to the number of 60 from various parts of the country were in attendance. Mrs. Garfield was there, and others from cities as widely separated as Portland and Omaha.

The same simplicity that had marked the services at the house characterized those at the church. The ceremonies consisted of the reading of the Presbyterian burial ritual by Dr. Hamlin, and a fervent prayer. At intervals the tones of the organ, soft and solemn, stole gently through the edifice. The scene was most impressive and the congregation was visibly moved.

At the conclusion of the services the cortege proceeded to Oak Hill cemetery, where, after a short prayer by Dr. Hamlin, all that was mortal of James G. Blaine was laid in the bosom of mother earth.

The burial spot is one of the prettiest in the cemetery. The ground is sloping, and extends from the top of a hill to the frozen waters of Rock Creek far below.

Trees surround, most of them older than the city itself. By the side of the grave is the grave of Walker Blaine, the dead statesman's favorite son, and next to it is the grave of Walker's sister, Mrs. Coppinger.

In front and beyond is another hill. Houses of tasteful architecture grace it, and at the top a broad road circles toward a bridge which spans the creek far to the left.

To the right the tops of the old houses of the city can be seen, and towering over all and ever visible the sky-piercing Washington monument.

SAVED HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

Had Mrs. Kriney Slept Sounder, or Had Her Husband Lost His Presence of Mind, She Would Have Died to Death.

Mrs. Jacob Kriney, who almost died from loss of blood Friday morning, is improving every day although still confined to her bed.

Her escape was miraculous. She happened to awake about 4 in the morning, just after a varicose vein had burst above her ankle. By the dim light in the room she noticed a bright red spot on the floor near the bed. She thought it was a piece of red flannel and wondered as she lay there comfortably and quietly, what it was. Then feeling something warm and wet about her feet she turned down the covers and found her life's blood gushing from her leg.

In another room was a bandage she knew she must have to save her life. She got up quickly but fainted after taking a few steps. A sick aunt who heard her fall but could not rise from her own bed, tried to get help by calling. It was not till some minutes, however, that the children awoke and aroused their father.

Mr. Kriney raised his wife from the floor but she was already cold and hardly breathing. He had a silver piece in his pocket which he at once placed on the ruptured vein and bound down so tightly that not another drop of blood escaped. Thus her life was saved.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL.

Everything Harmonious Between Popular Clergyman and Young Men's Lyceum.

Sensational statements have been made in other papers concerning a little episode that occurred a few evenings ago in the Young Men's Lyceum hall. The story has been widely published that Father Cushing entered the place, found everyone waltzing, threw up his hands in shock and amazement, and indignantly ordered the wickedness to cease; that he was preparing to excommunicate the offenders; and that they were going before the Bishop with grievances against him.

The fact is, there is no trouble of the sort; everything in the parish is harmonious. The night in question the festivities were about at an end. Some one said, "Why not wind up with a waltz?" Father Cushing, as spiritual director of the society, said quietly that it would not be right. Everyone accepted his advice without a murmur. There was no unpleasantness, and no action in the matter is being taken. As was told in these columns at the time, Father Cushing permitted the square dances. The stories sent out of town by irresponsible persons were harmful inventions.

MRS. FORSBERG AT THE BAR.

She Gets Off Easier Than Her Daughter Agnes.

Chief of police George W. Grant told a PRESS reporter Saturday night that Mrs. Forsberg, mother of Agnes, of the notorious Leland avenue house, had quietly appeared before judge Coddington Friday afternoon.

She was still weak from illness, and leaned on the arm of her daughter, the fair Agnes, who accompanied her.

To the charge against her, that of maintaining a disorderly house, she pleaded non vult, and threw herself on the mercy of the court.

It was argued with the judge that it would be useless to fine the woman, as she had no means to pay it, and the men about town would not rally to her rescue as they had in Agnes's case; and to imprison her would be too great a hardship; she had suffered enough already. So the court was compassionate, and, taking the view that Agnes's fine covered the offense of the entire house, mercifully suspended sentence, and released Mrs. Forsberg with a sound talking-to and a warning.

WITHDREW HIS HAND.

One of Miss Forsberg's Assistants Repented of Helping Her.

When Agnes Forsberg was fined $75 for keeping a disorderly house, there was a great scurrying-about among the men interested in having the case settled quietly without unpleasant ventilation of it by testimony before the court. When the sum was made up, it consisted of $60 in cash and a $15 check. Judge Coddington declined to accept anything but legal tender, and an accommodating young man got the check cashed. Later the maker of the check regretted having assisted, and concluded to withdraw his countenance of the affair. Therefore when the check was presented at bank, payment was stopped, and the other contributors to the fund had to make good the $15 to the check-holder, to avoid further unpleasantness.

HORSES IN PERIL.

Fire Bravely Fought in Joseph Sullivan's Stables.

A lighted cigarette carelessly left lying inside the stable at the rear of Joseph T. Sullivan's saloon, 66 West Third street, was responsible for a serious blaze, Saturday night.

The fire was discovered, and promptly and valiantly fought by the Sullivans and their neighbors. They found the blaze well advanced, and they had hard work to save one of the imperilled horses from perishing in the flames.

Axes were used to chop away the woodwork, and with buckets of water the flames were deluged. By supreme effort the fire was conquered without calling out the department.

HIS EARTHLY SORROWS ENDED.

Peter Herlich Dies of His Self-Inflicted Injuries.

Peter Herlich, who after being arrested for forgery shot himself last Friday, in an attempt to end his disgrace, is dead and buried. His death occurred Saturday night at 10. The widow promptly arranged for the funeral, which took place this morning. There was no time to call the Jr. O. U. A. M's together to attend in a body, but members of the order served as pall-bearers, and others were present. Interment was made at Coontown.

Rock the Saloon Keeper to be Arrested.

By order of the mayor, upon complaint of a number of persons as yet unknown, chief Grant visited Bock's saloon on East Second street, Saturday afternoon about 5, to see for himself whether card playing was allowed therein.

The provisions of the ordinance, which a saloon keeper signs upon receiving his license, explicitly state that he "Shall not game himself, nor suffer any person to game for money or the value of money" on his premises, under penalty of forfeiting his license.

The chief found Bock himself and three others seated at a table in the public room, playing whist. There was no money, nor chips, nor drinks, nor anything but the cards, on the table. But Bock is to be arrested.

The Bad Wheel Will Be Replaced.

Car No. 3 of the street railway service has been running for days with a noisy wheel. A too-sudden application of the brake ground a flat side on the wheel, and the defect comes down on the rail with a big thump. The successive poundings as the car runs are very annoying. The only remedy is a new wheel, and that is expected every day, having been ordered promptly on receipt of report of the accident. The noise of the bad wheel was especially unpleasant during Sunday.

CHAPS And How to Get Rid of Them.

Nothing more annoying than chapped hands. And the more you wash the worse they chap! Soap cleans, but soap chaps. Now by neutralizing the alkali of the soap by means of a harmless acid we may prevent chapping. That is the philosophy of REYNOLDS'S LEMON JUICE AND GLYCERINE, and by using it as directed, you can get rid of the chaps. Originated and made only at

A SCHEME THAT MUST BE STOPPED!

PROTESTS OF MANY REASONS, PRESENTED THROUGH "THE PRESS", AGAINST THE CENTRAL AVENUE SITE FOR A PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDING.

Is It Seventh-Day Popery?—What Would Dr. Stillman Think?—The Voice of Experience—Not Dr. Hurlbut's Methods—Is Finch a Tool?—Have Tax-Payers Any Rights?

IS IT SEVENTH-DAY POPERY?

A Correspondent Protests Against the Denominational Atmosphere of the Locality.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Have you viewed the Board of Education scheme from its Seventh-Day aspect? Is there not discernible in the effort to get the High school next door to the Seventh-Day church another pull on the chain that is being tightened more and more about the city? The Seventh-Day church seeks to control the entire municipality of Plainfield. How well it is succeeding is seen in the fact that a Seventh-Day post-office handles all our letters; a Seventh-Day leader dominates and directs the political party in power and dictates to it who shall sit in the Council chamber; a Seventh-Day Assessor tells us who are not Seventh-Days how much tax we shall pay, and how little the others; a Seventh-Day Treasurer stands ready to take our tax-money, and handles all our finances; a Seventh-Day Freeholder represents Plainfield in the County Board, and seems to be a permanancy therein; Seventh-Day capital and personality rule the monopolistic concerns that supply our water, gas and electric light; Seventh-Day capital is becoming more and more prominent every day in the acquirements and control of the best business and residence sites; a Seventh-Day power presides over the Board of Education and dictates its policy; through that power's own personal effort and subjugation of the rest of the Board, a Seventh-Day principal was secured for the school; through that power the present obnoxious scheme is being consummated. Where will it all stop? It does seem as though the chief object of the project is to locate and run the school so that the surroundings and influences will all be Seventh-Day. It's a shrewd move to centralize the youth of the town directly into the focus of bigoted denominational influence. I earnestly plead that this enterprising church be prevented from getting any further clutch on the local educational institutions. The High school is too near the Seventh-Day church already. To put it on the proposed site means that every pupil will be constantly under the influence of the adjacent church, and drawn closer and closer to it with each day's growing familiarity. Keep the undenominational school and the denominational church apart. FREE-THINKER.

HAS THE TAX-PAYER ANY RIGHTS

That the School Board is Bound to Respect?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—From what has transpired concerning the purchase of property for a new school-building, and the price paid, and the location, it would seem at least that the Board of Education consider themselves the gods over the school question of our city, and that the tax-payer can have no voice as to how much he shall be taxed, or for what purpose, and where to be laid out. Is that "democratic, or constitutional, or by due process of law?" If so, I for one protest, and am in favor of an amendment to the constitution. If the school board have laws of their own make, as they have made before, as in levying a school poll tax as they did for years without any law but their own, it may be time to call for an investigation. The Republican party has ever held the control of office and mos. of the business of our city, and thousands of dollars have been spent or spirited away under laws of their own make or adoption. Our city has become big enough, and taxes are high enough, to call for a halt. If the position of the school board is correct, what is there to hinder them from purchasing any property in our city they may see fit, for school purposes? They might purchase grounds in some swamp, or on Short Hills, or in the midst of the most popular residences of the city, at whatever cost they please, and the people and tax-payer are helpless. For the board to assume such a right, is preposterous and tyranical. No man of common intereet with the people would attempt such a thing. Would the chairmar of that board be satisfied to have a school-house located in front of his residence? If so, let him change the order, and see what his neighbors would have to say! Certainly that would accomodate the children in the south-eastern part of the city much better than to have to come over so near the two large school buildings in the centre of the city. Will the board press their position? If so, they should be pressed out of their position as quickly as possible. I am of the opinion that any ex-bankrupt that has become suddenly rich is not a fit man to dispense with the common tax-payer's money, neither do I think that men that pay no taxes to speak of are the proper men to decide upon questions of taxations. They can not either of them ally themselves with the common working-man and common tax-payer; as they can not feel the pressure of high taxation. The rich man that has a plenty of money, and the man that pays nothing, has no fear from the collector. Much more might be said, and may be, if the board press this matter. I am a free school man; but not a free robber. A TAX-PAYER.

WHAT WOULD DR. STILLMAN THINK?

This Citizen Considers Mr. Finch Unfit to be a School Trustee.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In the matter of the purchase of the new school site, the Board of Education seem to have decided on two things. First—To buy the property. Second—That the man best fitted to conduct the negotiations was Mr. Finch. As he was very successful, it shows that their confidence in the man was not misplaced. The means he employed are now well-known. He informed the owner of the property that he had purchased it for a friend. To several of our citizens he volunteered the information that it was for the same friend, who at times, to be more explicit, he located in New York.

Now this may be one way of doing business, but is it not the way that one member of the Board of Education (whom everyone reverences) has been laboring these many years to teach us to avoid? Again, is a man who will without a qualm of conscience, transact a piece of business in this manner, fit to be a member of the Board of Education, where he is continually before the eyes and in the minds of our children? I do not know Mr. Finch. I do not care to. A man who uses deceit to accomplish his purpose, I do not think it safe to know, but "Shades of our immortal ancestors", what would Dr. Stillman think of a school-house built on such a foundation. TRUTH.

THE VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

New Brunswick's Example Protests Against the Proposed Depreciation of Plainfield Property.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Let me cite the experience of another city in the matter of forcing a public school on an aristocratic neighborhood.

In the neighboring municipality of New Brunswick a big High school building was erected in the midst of the most fashionable district of "toney" Livingston avenue, in spite of the protest of property-holders. The result was to drive beautiful homes away from the immediate neighborhood and depreciate permanently the value of adjacent property. As the broad avenue is a long one, fine dwellings are to be found farther up, some distance away from the school; but as a nice desirable neighborhood the immediate proximity of the school has been killed forever. Shall Plainfield suffer likewise?

INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS.

DOES N'T BELIEVE DR. HURLBUT KNEW OF IT.

Which is an Opinion That THE PRESS and the People Share In.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Although a Methodist and a member of the same church as school trustee Hurlbut, I am not biased in my opinion that he knew nothing of the bunco work of Finch in getting possession of the corner of Central avenue and Sixth street, until exposed by THE PRESS. I cannot deny that the few who hold a contrary opinion have grounds for it, but I think that wherein they are wrong is in deciding that because he must have known of the extravagant and ridiculous project of purchasing the site, he knew of Finch's methods.

I would appeal to the few who think so, to arrest their judgment a day or two. Dr. Hurlbut's position will be known thoroughly; not a feature or fact of it will be hidden, and even in the glare of the fullest publicity not a speck will be found upon it. METHODIST.

THINKS TREASURER FINCH A "TOOL"

And Laments That Such Impractical Men Dispense Public Moneys.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I was glad to see your straightforward, business-like article on the outrageous purchase for a school building site, that our learned Board of Education has just made. An indignation meeting should be called at once. There are plenty of vacant lots far more suitable for a school building. I am surprised that the treasurer would become the tool of the president and vice president of the board for such an unwise purchase. If tax-payers can not find more practical men to dispense the public moneys of this prosperous city it is to be lamented. Go on in your good work! TAX-PAYER.

WE CAN'T ALL GO TO EGYPT.

But for a Small Subscription All Plainfield Can Enjoy Prof. Goodyear's Personally Conducted Tour.

A class and course of five lectures by Prof. Wm. H. Goodyear, M. A., on "Egyptian Art and Literature" is proposed for this city. The intention is to give the lectures on successive Thursdays and Saturdays, at 4 p. m., beginning Feb. 16. The lecturer is already well known in Plainfield, having twice lectured before the Monday Afternoon club. He is a warm personal friend of Mrs. Edward D. McCarthy of 202 Park avenue, to whom the names of those desiring to join the class should be sent. The parlor or hall where the class is to meet will be designated later. The lectures will be fully and beautifully illustrated by lantern photographs. The subscription price will be $3 for the course, or 75 cents for each lecture separately. The full course embraces seven lectures, but two having been given here the seven will be condensed into five.

ENGINEER DUNHAM ABROAD.

He Is Doing Good-Roads Missionary Work with Union County as His Model.

(From The Saginaw, Mich., Courier-Herald.)

F. A. Dunham, C. E., of Plainfield, N. J., who was the engineer in charge in constructing the famous Union county, N. J., road system, is in the city, and knowing that he was possessed of a large fund of information in relation to the building of stone roads by reason of having had a large and practical experience in the matter, a COURIER-HERALD representative asked him to describe that excellent system and impart other information that would be of interest to those interested in better roads. He kindly consented to do so and spoke as follows:

[Here is given a description of the Union county system and methods, with which all Plainfielders are familiar.]

Mr. Dunham is on his way to Dubuque, Madison and other western cities, where he has been called to consult with the municipal authorities in relation to road building, paving, etc. He is now engaged in preparing an article for the New York World giving in detail the history of the better road movement in Union county and its successful operation.

Shameful Crime of a Youth.

Alfred P. White, colored, was arrested by borough marshal Pangborn Saturday night on complaint of a highly-respected colored family. The charge was that while boarding in the household he betrayed the people's hospitality and seduced their daughter, who is not yet 13 years of age.

White admitted his guilt, and gave bail for a hearing to-day. When told that his crime merited 15 years' imprisonment, he gladly submitted to compromise. The parents refused to permit him to marry the girl, but had him put under bonds to support the baby, pay all expenses, and give them a certain amount in damages.

The parents are overwhelmed by the blow. The girl is a mere child and does not realize the wrong nor her position.

The crime is a most contemptible one, and it is deplorable that compromise was accepted. Any beast of a man who would so deliberately and foully wrong a little girl does not deserve liberty. He is not fit to be at large.

For the afflicted parents and abused child there is sympathy, but for the fellow White contempt and ignominy are too good.

They'd Want Trains as Thick as Horse Cars.

A large number of Plainfield commuters who say that the 7:30 morning train from this city gets them in New York 20 minutes before office hours, while the 7:58 arrives a few minutes too late, are going to petition for a new train at 7:45.

But this won't exactly fill the bill for all. If it suits the man whose office is only 5 minutes walk from the ferry, it will be too late for the one whose office is 10 minutes distant, and vice versa. A train every five minutes would n't satisfy the average commuter.

Referred to W. H. P.

Division superintendent W. H. Peddle is hereby informed that it is the custom of his engineers from 11 p. m., throughout the night, to wake everybody in the East and West ends of this town by blowing 5 sharp whistles three and four times in succession, as loud as possible.

The reason is, probably, that as the outside tracks are used as coal storage, the through freight and coal trains have to change back and forth to the center tracks, and as it is necessary to call out a switchman, everybody around—including all the sick folks and babies—is awakened so as to be sure and get the man who is wanted.

More Business Changes.

Plainfielders are getting used to business changes and improvements among the prosperous merchants. With the completion of the building that has so slowly approached completion at 63 North avenue, there will be more moving. Mallinson's pharmacy, now at 65, will remove to 63, in roomier quarters. Ex-judge Ulrich will have his law-offices down stairs instead of up, at 65. Lyman & Anthony will occupy the improved location at 61.

Three Babies the Cause of it All.

The play of "Little Tippet" at Music Hall, Friday evening, introduces to Plainfield the well-known comedian, Charles Bowser, in the character of Austin Tippet, the innocent "father" of an obstructive baby that sets three families by the ears in the most ingenious confusion and constitutes the spring whence leap mountain torrents of fun. Mr. Bowser works with tireless zeal, and admirable results. He is an actor of large experience, a comedian of original methods and humorous personality, and a touch and go vitality that gives life and sparkle to all his performances.

If you want to be on the safe side, stick to the old reliable, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. It is sold by dealers everywhere.

It Isn't Afraid of Soap.

Soap has no terrors for the black made by diamond dyes; it is one of the few colors soap cannot make run. In fact, washing actually seems to brighten goods that have been colored black with the diamond dyes.

There are three kinds of this black specially made for home use and sold by druggists—fast diamond black for wool, for cotton, and for silk and feathers, every one easy to use and never fading or crocking.

THE TROOPS NOT NEEDED.

Sheriff Jenner Can Handle the Strike at Dunkirk.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Jan. 30.—The call for State troops by Sheriff Jenner to protect the Brooks' Locomotive works makes the strike, which began one month ago, and which the Brooks' officials then called an insignificant matter, now a very serious affair.

The strike was caused by the riveters in the boiler department rejusing to work under two contractors named Kane and McNamara, alleging inhuman treatment on the part of the two contractors.

They left the works without stating their grievances, which were printed afterward.

The lack of boilers made it necessary to lay off the men in the other departments, and now about 600 men are out of work in consequence.

The Brooks people engaged Philadelphia men to take the strikers' places, and brought them here Saturday by special train. The new men were hurried inside the works before the strikers could interfere.

The new men are quartered inside the works, and do not go outside the gates.

When President Hinman received private information that threats had been made against the works and against the employes he asked the protection of Sheriff Jenner. That official at once appealed to Gen. Doyle at Buffalo for State troops in case of necessity.

President Hinman says that this was done as a precautionary measure to guard against an emergency, which, however, may not arise.

Last night two of the new men ventured outside of the works, and were set upon and severely handled.

The call for troops has caused much excitement here, and the people fear that Dunkirk may be turned into a second Homestead.

This morning it is stated by the deputy sheriff that Sheriff Jenner is satisfied that he can now get along without the assistance of the troops.

The strikers waited on the sheriff and promised him that no act of violence would be countenanced by them, and said that nothing is further from their thoughts than violence.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren avenue, Chicago, Ill.

A JEWISH REFORMER.

The Eventful Career of Rabbi Isaac Wise, of Cincinnati.

Rev. Dr. Wise, the presiding officer of the central conference of American rabbis, recently in session at Washington, D. C., and the leading spirit of that body, was born in Eger, Bohemia, on April 3, 1819. He was educated at Prague, where he was graduated from the university and from the Rabbinical seminary. He came to the United States in 1846, and after a few weeks in New York city went to Albany, N. Y., where he officiated as rabbi until 1854. During his residence in Albany he gave the Jewish reform movement its first impetus, and in this work, writes Isidore Levi in Leslie's Weekly, he was obliged to face not only obloquy, but even personal violence, from the members of his congregation, a majority of whom differed from him in opinion, and who succeeded, in spite of the efforts of his loyal friends, in driving him from his position. His persecutors were ignorant people, who looked upon any deviation from the narrow religious customs to which they were accustomed in their rural German homes as a menace to Judaism. But so thoroughly have the Wise reforms been adopted at the scene of his first great contest that it would be difficult to find now any man who would confess that he or his father before him had participated in the persecution of Dr. Wise. During this time he was a liberal contributor to the Occident, then the only Jewish paper published in the United States, and he published in 1853 his "History of the Israelitish Nation."

In 1854 he became the rabbi of "Benjeschuron" congregation at Cincinnati, a position he still fills with unabated mental vigor at the age of seventy-three. During the first year of his residence in Cincinnati he issued the first number of the American Israelite, a Jewish newspaper which is an ably-conducted, widely-read and popular Jewish organ. In the following year the Deborah, a German weekly, appeared as a companion sheet to the Israelite under the same editorship. For years Dr. Wise devoted himself to the task of reform and union in Israel. In his pulpit "Let there be light" has been his favorite theme. "Let there be light" is the motto of his papers. The elimination from Judaism of everything not in keeping with the age we live in, the propogation of the elements of human brotherhood and true Americanism, has been his self-imposed task. He succeeded in 1873 in forming a union of American Hebrew congregations which to-day includes all except the most rigidly orthodox in the country. This "union" maintains the Rabbinical seminary at Cincinnati, graduates from which now fill some of the most important pulpits in this country. Dr. Wise's career has been a stormy one, and from the day when a mob of his ignorant coreligionists insulted him in his Albany pulpit to the present day, his reform measures have won enemies for him. Whether, in his zeal, he has ever gone too far; whether his proposition to tear down old landmarks in Judaism is wise, are questions which have given rise to discussion in pulpit and press, and in which all Jews are interested. Their final determination can be safely left to the future.

bandaged. The original design of the statue has been considerably modified. As a support to the gold ball on which the figure is poised is an eagle with outstretched wings. The arrangement of the drapery has also been changed.

MONSIGNORE SATOLLI.

He Came to America Vested with Papal Power.

He Is an Italian Churchman with the Rank of Archbishop—His Solution of the School and Mc-Glynn Problems.

Archbishop Satolli, who has been sent to this country by the holy father as apostolical delegate, is a prominent Italian ecclesiastic enjoying the respect and esteem of Pope Leo XIII. From what he has done and from what he has announced, it is clear what part of that mission was, at least. He has brought some definite conclusions to the vexed question of the parish schools, and he has adjusted matters in the case of Dr. Edward McGlynn.

The attempt to convey to the American public the idea that Archbishop Satolli comes here to inaugurate or exercise anything like the temporal power of the pope is a bugaboo, probably put in motion by those who would not object to Archbishop Satolli falling into ill favor here and who would willingly see him recalled.

It is probable that his mission to this country may have some effect upon the relations which exist between bishops and priests and it is to be expected that whatever he may do in this respect will be to the greater satisfaction of the priests.

Archbishop Satolli is a man of calm, mature judgment, wide grasp, a sympathetic and kindly spirit, and his intellectual powers are of a high order. He is eminently fitted therefore for the task of coming to this country, estimating the character and degree of such needs as may exist in its ecclesiastical life, and also of perceiving whether they call for remedies, and, if so, what these remedies should be. As ablegate he has necessarily certain powers, but what these powers are, beyond what he has himself indicated, no one can know until such time as he deems it suitable to reveal them.

The fact that America is a mission country makes it an object of care and attention to the propaganda, and consequently whatever the ablegate discovers to be the condition of the church in this country he will naturally report it to that body. Archbishop Satolli is here as the representative of the pope, and in his action he will carry out the views of the pope. On the larger definite questions which he came to arrange he received beyond doubt from the holy father the ground to be taken and the course to be pursued. In regard to ar generic cases which might fall under powers of adjudication committed to him, he will necessarily have to exercise his own judgment and then apply the power which he has received from the pope.

It is no unusual thing for the pope to send an ablegate in this way to a country. One whose judgment, clear and keen intuition and zeal he can trust is safely made the instrument to accomplish good to the country to which he has been sent and to accomplish which he is endowed with special though delegated authority. It would be well to bear in mind that Archbishop Satolli as Archbishop Satolli has absolutely no authority in the United States. It is as the representative of the pope that he has authority. Remembering this the action of Archbishop Satolli up to this time may well suggest to Americans the broad cosmopolitan character of the present pope. The adjustment of the school question was liberal compared to the treatment which it has received at the hands of the clergy in the past in this country, and to many Americans, Catholic as well as Protestant, it is almost startling in this respect.

The adhesion to the old view, or at least the disposition to relinquish it reluctantly, is the ground of any dissatisfaction which may exist on the part of some of the American bishops toward the ablegate. Here is where it should be recalled that Archbishop Satolli did not act except as the announcer of the views and decrees of the pope. The holy father did not come to such a decision without long thought, consultation and prayer. Rome does not act hastily in such things, and whatever opposition may exist to the views and arrangement of this question or to Archbishop Satolli will not be likely to affect the holy father. The ablegate has done part of his work, and has done it, to the minds of most, wisely and prudently. He will remain until he has accomplished the rest of it. Those who have had the pleasure of meeting him tell me that he shows a pleasant and enthusiastic admiration for American institutions, and they are charmed with this representative of Pope Leo XIII. They feel that he is capable of wisely and serenely fulfilling the mission that the pope has committed to him. This mission and the best fulfillment of it of which he is capable, says Father Ducey in the New York World, are matters of conscience with him, and he will simply carry them out to the best of his ability.

Rapid Transit.

It is said that mail matter dropped in the post office at Paris is delivered in Berlin in an hour and a half, and sometimes within 35 minutes. The distance between the cities is 750 miles, and the mail is sent by means of pneumatic tubes.

A Tart Reply.

"You sit on your horse like a butcher," said a pert young officer, who happened to be of royal blood, to a veteran general who was somewhat bent from age.

"It is highly probable," responded the old warrior, with a grim smile; "it is because all my life I've been leading calves like you to the slaughter."

Clear Proof.

"My wife is a singularly ingenious woman," remarked the married man.

"Indeed!" said the bachelor, with a languid effort at interest.

"Indeed, I assure you. It was only yesterday that she found a new place to hide my slippers."—Texas Siftings.

MISS MARY MURFREE.

Known to the Reading Public as Charles Egbert Craddock.

The able critics were mightily surprised when the fact was first revealed that the work of Charles Egbert Craddock, in which they had discovered so many masculine characteristics and evidences of masculine strength, in reality came from the hand of a little woman, that her real name was Mary Noailles Murfree, and that she was a Tennessee girl who had grown up among the people whose life, habits, thought and speech she had portrayed with the skill of a master. She comes of an old southern family which numbered among its distinguished members Maj. Hardy Murfree, one of the heroes of the revolution. His descendants have the sash he used in helping bear from the battlefield Gen. Francis Nash, who was mortally wounded in the fight at Germantown. It was at Grantlands, near the town of Murfreesboro, which was named after this soldier ancestor, that Miss Murfree was born. She became lame early in life as the result of a stroke of paralysis and, thus prevented from indulging in the ordinary amusements of youth, she turned to books and became a hard student. The civil war reduced the family fortune and her family removed from their residence in Nashville back to Grantlands and then to St. Louis. Under these circumstances she began to write stories of life in the Tennessee mountains, where she has spent much of her time. These under the pen name of Charles Egbert Craddock, she sent to the Atlantic Monthly, in which they appeared. They were followed by longer stories, but it was several years before her identity was known.

The wife wants health that she may be the companion of her husband and her family.

A Revolution In Eating

has been brought about by the introduction of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening. The discovery of this product, and the demonstration of its remarkable qualities, has attracted the widest interest. Hitherto the common shortening has been lard, or indifferent butter. Every one has probably suffered occasional discomfort from lard-cooked food; while it is well known that thousands are obliged to abstain entirely from everything of that kind. To such people, COTTOLENE is of peculiar value, widening as it does, the range of what may be eaten and enjoyed. COTTOLENE is a cooking marvel. It combines with the food—imparts to it a tempting color, a delicate flavor, and an appetizing crispness. No trace of greasiness remains to offend the taste, or disturb the digestion.

COTTOLENE is worthy of the careful notice of all those who value good food, of itself or for its hygienic properties.

PARLIAMENT IN SESSION

Important Legislation Promised in the Queen's Address.

A LENGTHY DEBATE EXPECTED.

It May be Three Weeks Before Mr. Gladstone Can Introduce His Home Rule Bill—Irish Leaders and the Premier at Variance Regarding the Land Question.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Both Houses of Parliament convened this morning. The following is a synopsis of the speech from the throne:

Besides promising the introduction of the Irish Legislative bill, an Electoral Registration Reform bill and a County Council Reform measure, the speech intimates that a Licensing Reform measure, a Local Option scheme, a bill dealing with the election of county magistrates, proposals affecting the Established Church in Scotland and the Church in Wales will be offered for the consideration of Parliament.

Next, legislation is promised to extend the powers of the London County Council, and a Board of Trade measure expanding the functions of the present Labor Bureau.

Reference is made to the newly-appointed Royal Commission on Poor Law Relief, which is to deal with the old age pension question; to the Indian Currency Commission as about to present a report to Parliament, and allusion is made to a royal commission to inquire into the land question in Wales.

The attention of the House is asked to the report of the Irish Evicted Tenants' Commission and the Government proposals based thereon. Allusion is avoided regarding agitation for the release of the dynamite convicts and political prisoners except in a guarded reference to the general measures which aim at permanent peace in Ireland.

Referring to international matters, the speech hopefully remarks on the Behring sea arbitration about to open in Paris, to the timely settlement of the recent ministerial crisis in Cairo, and the restoration of harmony with the Khedive, and to the Monetary Conference at Brussels as assisting the governments represented fully to understand each other.

Regarding the condition of home and foreign trade, the speech is more optimistic than might have been expected. The relations of Her Majesty's Government with all foreign powers were declared satisfactory, and hopeful reference is made to the future of commerce between the United Kingdom and the colonies.

It is expected that the debate on the address will bristle with amendments. Mr. Chamberlain will raise the Home Rule question by an amendment denying the advisability of a separate Irish legislature. Labouchere threatens amendments on the retention of Uganda, and the continued occupation of Egypt.

John Redmond has his motion as to Irish prisoners and James Lowther an amendment regarding destitute aliens.

Keir Hardie wants to condemn the Government's as overlooking the claims of the Labor Party, and the publicans' friends in the House, still a powerful section, will prepare an amendment protesting against interference with their vested rights.

Unless the House grows fierce with impatience, it will have some three weeks of oratory before Mr. Gladstone can have an opportunity of introducing his Home Rule bill.

Messrs. McCarthy, Sexton, and Dillon have in a hesitating way approved the clause in the Home Rule bill reserving the control of the land question to the Imperial Parliament for a certain number of years, but they differ with Mr. Gladstone as to the number of years during which the Irish Legislature has to wait.

Mr. Gladstone proposes ten years. The Irish leaders think five years too long, and demand three, with further advances from the Imperial Exchequer under the Land Purchase act, in order to reconcile their constituents to any delay whatever, however short.

It is doubtful whether Mr. Gladstone will be able to get the bulk of his supporters in the House to assent to any further grant, and the Irish members will reject the clause without its financial appendix.

THE HOMESTEAD POISONING CASE.

Veracity of the Cooks Impeached—Dempsey on the Stand.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 31.—At the session of the Beatty Homestead poisoning case a number of witnesses were examined for the defense who stated that the reputation for veracity of Gallagher and Davidson, the confessed poisoners, was bad.

One witness, John Campbell, a steamboat man, said he would not believe Davidson under oath.

Hugh Dempsey, master workman of the Knights of Labor, who was convicted last week, was put on the stand. He denied that he ever authorized Beatty to hire Gallagher or Davidson to go to Homestead and poison non-union workmen.

Dempsey then related his connection with Gallagher and Beatty. He said he told them to go to the mill and secure for him the number of men at work there and what was being done; that Gallagher made a report to him in accordance subsequently. He could not say when this report was made, but thought some time in August.

FLOOD DANGER PASSED.

Rivers Falling and Ice Moving Out Without Doing Much Damage.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 31.—All danger of a flood has passed. The rivers are now falling, and the ice is moving out to the satisfaction of the rivermen, as well as the owners of property along the streams.

The only damage was on the Allegheny river near the 15th street bridge, and was caused by immense quantities of ice and debris floating against the lumber rafts of Kopp & Voegtly, moored at that point.

The heavy lines were cut in two, and the rafts were swept down the river.

When the wreckage reached the coal floats of Hartley & Henderson, a coal boat partly filled with coal was wrecked and sent to the bottom of the river.

A coal float to which the boat was attached was also badly damaged. The loss is estimated at $30,000.

MAY CALL OUT TROOPS

The Kansas Muddle Fast Approaching a Crisis.

WARNING GIVEN BY POPULISTS.

If the Republicans Do Not Vacate Gov. Lewelling Will be Called Upon to Eject Them—Ady to Contest Martin's Election—Contests in Other States.

TOPEKA, Jan. 31.—The crisis will soon be reached in the House muddle. Just before the House adjourned last night Speaker Dunsmore, Populist, arose and handed to Speaker Douglass, the Republican presiding officer, a sealed communication.

Dunsmore said he desired Douglass not to make its contents known until to-day, and exacted a promise from him not to reveal its purport.

Then both Houses adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, and as soon as adjournment was had both Speakers rapped for order and announced a caucus. These caucuses considered the contents of the communication handed the Republican Speaker by Dunsmore, Populist.

The letter is a notice to the Republicans to quit. It sets forth that the Republican House is an illegal body, that the Republicans are obstructionists, delaying the business of the House, and notifies Speaker Douglass that he and all alleged Republican clerks and officials must withdraw and no longer attempt to usurp the powers of the Populist House, which is the only legal House of Representatives.

Representative Campbell, a Populist leader, says:

"If the Republicans do not go peaceably we will call on the Governor to exercise his prerogative, and he will have to act. He will send a company of militia here to see that the rules of the House are obeyed and the business of the House is not obstructed. Then the Republicans will have to retire from the Speaker's stand. We will let this responsibility go where it belongs. The Governor forced this muddle on us by recognizing our House, and now he must be responsible for the settlement of the matter."

Speaker Douglass was seen this morning and he said:

"The Republican House is the legally organized House and I propose to hold the Speaker's chair, and in doing so I know that I will have the law abiding people of Kansas with me. We know we are right, and we will maintain those rights until forced to retire at the point of the bayonet.

"We have a constitutional majority of the members elected and the law abiding people of the State will stand with us in our defense of constitutional government."

ADY CLAIMS THE SENATORSHIP.

Kansas Republicans Say the Populists Were Not Legally Sworn In.

TOPEKA, KAN., Jan. 31.—The Republicans now claim that they elected a United States Senator in the joint session of the two houses last Wednesday.

They assert that none of the members of the Populist House was legally sworn in, and consequently had no right to vote for Senator; that the State Senators, including the Populist members of that body, together with the members of the Republican House, constituted a quorum of votes or a majority of the quorum, and that Ady was, therefore, elected Senator.

Mr. Ady will be furnished with credentials signed by Speaker Douglass, of the Republican House, and by each of the Senators, and will proceed at once to Washington to claim the seat now occupied by Senator Perkins, to which the Populists claim to have elected Judge John Martin.

NEW WILL NOT WITHDRAW.

He Says He Will be Appointed Senator, If Not Elected.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 31.—The joint ballot stood: J. K. Okie, Rep., 16; New, Dem., 10; Taylor, Pop., 5; Tidball, Pop., 4; Hurt, Dem., 4; Halliday, Dem. 2; Beck, Dem., 2; Kabis, Dem., 2; Brown, Pop., 1; Conn, Dem., 1; Clark, Rep., 1.

A committee of Democrats called on Mr. New last night and asked him to forego his personal ambition and assist in the election of some other Democrat.

He refused to do so, saying he was entitled to a caucus nomination and if no election took place Gov. Osborne had promised to appoint him.

The Nebraska Senatorship.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 31.—The ballot for U. S. Senator resulted as follows: Powers, 41; Paddock, 21; Majors, 8; Thurston 6; Morton, 4; Hastings 4; Bryan, 4; Webster, 2; Martin, 1; Andrews, 1; Finnus, 1; Dawes, 1; Reese, 1; Boyd, 1.

AN ELIZABETH TRAGEDY.

John Nachent Shoots His Roommate and Then Attempts Suicide.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 31.—Alexander Brokaw, jr., 21 years old, of Lafayette street, this city, was last night shot twice in the head and, probably fatally injured by John Nachent, 35 years old, who afterwards attempted suicide by shooting himself twice in the mouth.

Nachent has for several years boarded with the Brokaw family, and roomed with Alexander. The two men have quarreled frequently since Christmas. Nachent has been out of work since that time, and said that Brokaw was trying to get him out of the house.

After returning to their room they quarreled about raising a window. Nachent finally ended the quarrel by drawing a revolver and firing two shots into Brokaw's head.

He then ran into another room, locked the door and shot himself.

He was removed to the hospital, where his wounds were pronounced not fatal.

Brokaw is lying at his home very low.

DUNKIRK STRIKE ENDED.

Many of the Old Men Returning to Work—No More Trouble Feared.

DUNKIRK, Jan. 31.—The strike at the Brooks Locomotive works is ended beyond a doubt. The strikers themselves acknowledge that their case is hopeless.

The strike fell flat when the Brooks people demonstrated that they could run the works with outside men.

Many of the old men have returned, and in a day or two the full complement of workmen will have been enrolled, and the making of locomotives move along as before.

President Hinman says the old men can return if they wish to, but that no good men now employed will be discharged to make room for them.

Everything is quiet around the works.

VESSELS AND CREWS LOST.

Two Big Schooners Believed to Have Foundered at Sea.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 31.—The schooner Daniel S. Williams, jr., bound to this city from Newport News, Va., is given up here as lost. She was last seen in a gale off Fire Island on Jan. 3. Her crew of six men are supposed to have gone down with her.

The captain was Daniel Castleton, of Jersey City, and the vessel had a cargo of 1,100 tons of coal for the Old Colony railroad.

The large four-masted schooner Haroldine has been at sea 29 days from Tampa, Fla., and it is feared that she has also foundered with all hands.

PROTEST FROM ENGLAND

She Instructs Her Minister to Make Complaint.

THE QUESTION OF ANNEXATION.

President, Cabinet and Senate Said to be Favorably Disposed—Mr. Harrison Approves of Consul Stevens' Action in Ordering Troops Ashore at Honolulu.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The British government has instructed Sir Julian Pauncefote, its Minister in Washington, to protest against the action of the United States officials and forces in Hawaii. The protest, it is understood, will be lodged with Secretary of State Foster to-day.

To what extent the protest goes cannot be stated now—whether it is restricted to a protest against the action already taken in Honolulu, or whether it goes to the length of protesting in advance against annexation sought for by the representatives of the provisional government now on their way to Washington.

Mr. A. Hoffnung, who is the Charge d'Affaires of the Hawaiian Legation, has received official news confirming the report of a revolution in the Hawaiian Islands and the dethronement of Queen Liliuokalani. The Hawaiian representative visited Lord Rosebery at the Foreign Office to discuss the situation with him. Lord Rosebery also hinted that England, France and Germany would not be likely to consent to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands by the United States.

The Princess Victoria Kawekiu Kalulani Lunalilo Kalaninuiahilapalapa, heiress to the Hawaiian throne, has also received despatches from her mother containing a record of recent events.

The Evening Globe, Tory organ, said last evening that the annexation of Hawaii may result in bringing the United States into foreign relations and vexations with the whole of their traditional policy, and cause friction and conflict between them and the English colonies. "American aggression on the Pacific," adds the Globe, "would occasion Australian remonstrance, to which the British would be compelled to listen. The internal affairs of Hawaii will settle themselves the sooner it is more clearly understood that they are not to be made a temptation to the United States to commit a most uncharacteristic act of folly."

The Pall Mall Gazette, now also a Tory organ, is neutral in its remarks on the question of American annexation of Hawaii, and suggests that it would be interesting to see how the Americans would manage a colony.

APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Minister Stevens's Action Meets With Mr. Harrison's Approbation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The Hawaiian question continues to be the great topic of discussion in official circles.

It is pretty clearly indicated that the administration is not in any way lukewarm in the matter, as was at first supposed.

The action of the commander of the Boston, against which Great Britain is about to file, or has filed, a formal protest, has received the official approval of the President and his Cabinet.

The sentiment in favor of annexing is rapidly spreading. Several members of the Cabinet have expressed themselves as being in favor of accepting the proposition, but as the action necessary to accomplish annexation must come as well from the legislative as the executive branch of the Government, these declarations do not in themselves amount to more than the expression of opinion of private citizens.

The matter will doubtless be considered at the Cabinet meeting to-day, but of course nothing will be decided upon except probably to arrange for the reception of the Hawaiian Annexation Commissioners upon their arrival in this city Friday.

It has been reported that President Harrison is in favor of the annexation of Hawaii. His action on the part taken in the revolution by the United States officials and forces may also be regarded as proof of the correctness of the report. Although the course pursued by Minister Stevens in ordering the Boston's marines on shore was without explicit instructions from his government, his action has been fully approved by the President.

Germany Should Keep Hands Off.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—The Vossische Zeitung, Radical, says of the revolution in Hawaii: "The restoration of the Queen certainly would be preferable to a tripartite control of the country. Our experience with Samoa by no means recommends a repetition of such an experiment. Germany has no reason to meddle further with South Sea affairs. America and Great Britain might better be left by us to settle their relations as they think proper."

England Charged With Inconsistency.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The Paris dailies taunt England with inconsistency because she objects to American aggression in Hawaii, while she herself excludes other powers from Egypt. The Moniteur Universel says that the great American people are not of the sort to be intimidated by British bluster.

The Monterey Not Strong Enough.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31.—Henry T. Scott, manager of the Union Iron works, states that it is not likely that the coast defense vessel Monterey will be sent to Honolulu, as the voyage would be too hazardous for a vessel of her construction.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

FREIGHT HOUSE TO GO!

A NEW LOCATION PURCHASED AT NORTH AVENUE AND RICHMOND STREET.

The Demand of the People and THE PRESS Acceded to and No Thanks to the Negligent Councilmanic Committee.

THE PRESS, which was the first to pray for the removal of the freight house, and the first to publish the news that the company would shortly establish a new yard near Richmond street, with a branch to follow at Grant avenue, is most happy and proud at being able to announce today that the new location is not only decided on but is already purchased.

The large property formerly occupied by the Central oil-cloth works, has fallen into the railroad company's hands, and they yesterday added to its extent by purchasing of A. D. Thompson his big tract adjoining.

Thus have the efforts of the people through THE PRESS at last been crowned with success, while the special committee appointed from the council some time ago, lies sleeping.

Everybody will rejoice except, probably, at first, some of the freighters. But their only objection will be the distance, and with ample facilities at last the freight can be handled so much more expeditiously that that objection will be overcome.

The Rev. Duncan McGregor, D. D., of Philadelphia, will deliver a lecture in Music Hall Feb. 22, under the auspices of Queen City Lodge, 226, I. O. O. F., on the subject "The Grip; or Grappling with Great Men and Great Nations".

A party of young people from this city went to Middlebush last night, by stage. There they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Totten and Mr. VanMiddlesworth, of New Brunswick, in the luxurious home of the former. Though the roads were in some places well-nigh impassable, and the young people had to trudge through the snow occasionally to lighten the load, the trip was accomplished in safety. Among the party were the Misses Oakley, Howell, Bonnell, Yerkes, Whiting, Robinson, Hasbrouck, VanArsdale, and Brower, and the Messrs. Robinson, Patton, Fuller, Brower, Chordan, Oakley, Maxson, and Bonnell, of this city, and Messrs. Siebert of New York and Vroom of Somerville.

TO MERGE THREE INTO ONE.

Freeholder Kyte Working for the Plainfield Water Company Monopoly.

As will be noticed in the Legislative proceedings in another part of this paper, Assemblyman Kyte of Fanwood has introduced a bill (House No. 131) to consolidate the Union Water company, the Plainfield Water company, and the Elizabethtown Water company. These corporations are now controlled by the same capitalists, and their interests are identical. The new bill has for its object a simplifying of their operations. The consolidated corporation will be a giant monopoly.

LIKE A FAIRY DREAM.

A Vision of Rare Loveliness Was Last Night's German at the Casino.

WHILE a fleecy mantle of snow wafted downward and shrouded the earth in white, last night, and the frost of winter gripped everything out of doors in its icy fingers, the atmosphere in the cosy Casino of the Union County Country club was one of tropical balm, and the interior was a scene of splendor and delight.

The german given by society's leaders was a most beautiful and successful event. The Casino was prettier than ever with its graceful decorations of pink shades to soften the glare of the electric lights, palms, and potted plants. Easy chairs and couches, heaped with luxurious pillows, invited to a most delicious repose in secluded nooks. Rugs ornamented the floor surrounding the dancing surface. Austin of Brooklyn furnished the witching music, and an elaborate supper was supplied by the Union County Country club. The favors of the evening were modest but very pretty; they were given out by Mrs. Fisk and Mrs. Reinhart. Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Waring, Mrs. VanBoskerck, Mrs. Huntington and Mrs. Munn received. The figures of the german were all new and jolly. The dance was led by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson and Harry V. Borden and Miss Maude VanBoskerck. The other participants were:

Mr. Harding Wharton and Miss Jessamy Harte, Mr. O. G. Waring and Miss Ham of New York, Mr. J. P. Munn and Miss Young of Louisville, Ky., Mr. Thomas R. VanBoskerck and Miss Huntington, Mr. E. M. VanBuren and Miss Murphy, Mr. Murphy and Miss Ellis, Mr. West and Miss Corlies, Mr. Huntington and Miss Ginna, Mr. Moore and Miss Massett, Mr. Streull and Miss L. VanBoskerck, Mr. F. Streull and Miss Wharton of Pittsburg, Mr. F. W. Walz and Miss Ellis, Mr. Wadsworth and Miss Chapin, Mr. Wm. Runyon and Miss Depew, Mr. Wm. Drayton, and Miss Bushnell, Dr. Baker and Miss Hull, Mr. Yates and Miss Cornwall of New York, Mr. Cokefair and Miss Yates, Mr. Wentz and Miss Stewart, Mr. L. H. VanBuren and Miss Walz, Mr. B. Erickson and Mrs. Corlies, Mr. A. D. Shepard, jr., and Miss Talmadge, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. D. CHAPS

And How to Get Rid of Them.

Nothing more annoying than chapped hands. And the more you wash the worse they chap! Soap cleans, but soap chaps. Now by neutralizing the alkali of the soap by means of a harmless acid we may prevent chapping. MODERN JONATHAN AND DAVID.

Pastor Richardson Preaches to the Members of Plainfield and Queen City Lodges, who Attend Service in a Body.

On account of the bursting of a boiler tube, and consequent lack of steam, services were held Sunday in the chapel instead of the main meeting room of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The room, which seats four hundred, was packed full at night, not the least attraction being the splendid appearance of the large body of Odd Fellows who occupied the entire centre section of seats. After a description of the times in which Jonathan and David lived, and an exposition of the text, I Sam: XIX; 1-3, the speaker, the Rev. J. W. Richardson, said:

History teaches us, there is such a thing as true manly affection, where men love each other so well, that for life they are loyal to each other. Jonathan recognized in David true manliness; and though David came from the sheep-fold, the king's son valued the friendship of such an one more than he did the diadem that sparkled on his father's brow. Sometimes, the pure regard of an outsider is worth more to a man, than the selfish esteem of one that belongs to his own family circle. Jonathan was not a snob, and David was not presuming. They are magnificent specimens of the men who refuse to allow the accidents of social station and financial standing to bias their opinion of each other. They had no connection with that peculiar class whose first questions are: "Is he rich? Does he belong to our set?" These two were the representatives of that nobler class of people who eschew mere veneering and simply ask: "Is he honest? Is he honorable? Is he a man?" This incident was chosen by the fathers of the Order to teach one of the true phases of Odd Fellowship: that of the prompt recognition of true manliness. In those days the lines of social caste were drawn as in our day. In our day rich apparel, a genteel location, and the show assumed in one's domestic arrangements, too frequently give a mere adventurer the entree to that recognition which he does not deserve. So it was then. The husbandman, a weaver, or worker in iron, or shepherd were not socially recognized. Only the warrior and his kinsmen belonged to the aristocracy. But when David appeared fresh from the sheep-cote, Jonathan recognized his sublime manhood, and welcomed him to his heart. So Odd Fellows are taught to look for the man, not money; to look for the character, not good clothes. This is the character of the teaching of Odd Fellowship. It seeks to bring out the best there is in the morality of men. It declares the necessity of sinking out of sight those petty social considerations that divide men in the outside world. Like the worthy pair, there are thousands of Odd Fellows who are on the alert to say, "Courage my brother". You may find them, those who laboring hard all day in office or shop, at night go to the home smitten with disease, there to watch through the weary hours with some sorely wounded David. This is the bud and flower of true manliness. True, there are some within the Order who have not so learned Odd Fellowship—but, so there are spots on the sun whose chariot fills the heavens with glory; but who is fool enough to affirm that the sun is all spots!

Then too, loyal allegiance to brotherly ties is emphasized. How interested Jonathan was in David: how David spurned to take advantage of the situation: O those two, are star and star coming into conjunction in the sky of fraternal love. So it is the aim of the Order to inculcate principles that shall bind as firmly together the hearts of its brethren. It provides a pleasant retreat from the dividing influences of business and social rivalries. It says to its members, "When business annoys you: when disaster threatens: when the heart is heavy because of harshness in the outside world, come into my courts. Here, you are not regarded for worldly wealth or honor, but for yourself—here we will give you sympathy and heart-help. Odd Fellowship has more garden, than wilderness. Odd Fellows are taught to respect each one as brother; to look at things from his standpoint also. It is a noble work to be engaged in a divine effort to uplift and purify the souls and aims of men. We honor the missionary and teacher for this. But not one whit less honorable are the efforts of that Odd Fellow who lives to bless his fellow members, and through them the outside world. The world needs great hearted sympathetic men who shall be quick to discern the feelings and necessities of others. It is our privilege, to have a share in the magnificent work, of giving Davids and Jonathans to the world.

The first degree, founded upon the text, teaches Odd Fellows to be ready to warn a brother of danger. Old Saul sought to slay David. Noble Jonathan! A mean, selfish fellow, would have said, "It is none of my business; I can afford to imperil my interests; let David find his own way out". That was not Jonathan. With a heroic spirit he shoved aside crown, and sceptre, and even his kingship, rather than have them stand between him and his brother. What was a kingdom to a man like Jonathan when a brother was imperilled! This is only another phase of the object teaching of the Order. Is David in danger? Does some Saul watch for an opportunity to sink his sword into the reputation and happiness of a brother? Then it is, if not strong enough to wrench the sword from the hand of some brutal Saul, that Odd Fellows should make out of their sympathies and encouragement a shield of steel, for the heart of poor David. O yes the symbols teach the truest kind of brotherly love. The Order makes no war on creeds or churches. But it does teach the immortality of the soul, and exhorts preparation for a higher life. The Order embraces humanity, and men of all classes and creeds, and through its rites and symbols, endeavors to fill up its membership to a just conception of the Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of men." Then followed a touching appeal for the men who had sung so grandly, to become personally acquainted with Christ the great elder-brother. It was a most impressive service.

With residents of Westfield the Stillman Music Hall at Plainfield is a very popular play house. There are many who do not care to make the trip to New York and return by the midnight train. In every respect the Plainfield Music Hall equals the better class of metropolitan theatres. Manager J. A. Demarest is careful to select only the best attractions and first-class companies to play at his house. The theatre and appointments are complete. It is handsomely and comfortably furnished and the courtesy and attention shown the patrons by attaches reflects great credit on the management. Last Thursday night Joseph Jefferson played Rip VanWinkle to a crowded house and next Friday night a first-class comedy company will amuse fun lovers.

He'll Tell All Plainfield of Egypt's Wonders.

Prof. Wm. H. Goodyear, who as was announced in these columns yesterday is to lecture in Plainfield on Greek Art and Literature, is from the Brooklyn Institute of Art and Sciences. The lecturer recently returned from Europe, where he attended and spoke before the Ninth Oriental Congress in London, being the only American given that privilege. In his Plainfield series Prof. Goodyear will treat of "The Land and the People", "Their Literature and Art of Expression", "Their Monuments as Seen by the Modern Traveler", "The Monuments as Seen by the Eye of History", "The Egyptian Pantheon and its Religious Art", "The Lotus in the Mythology and Art of Egypt", and "The Influence of Egyptian Art on Greece".

Admires the Able Young Preacher.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I was fortunate enough to be present on Sunday morning at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and hear the sermon of the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Richardson, on "Suspended Events; or, the Signs of the Times". It was a masterly presentation of the subject, and one of the finest sermons I ever listened to in this city. It was refreshing to hear a man strike out from the ordinary themes to which we are so accustomed. It was intensely interesting and profitable to listen to. I would congratulate the Park Avenue Baptist church on being so fortunate as to secure so able a young minister for their pastor. May the Great Head of the church bless them abundantly!

VISITOR.

A Most Interesting Occasion to Which All Are Welcome.

A public meeting in the interest of the Christian education of the negro and Indian races of the country, will be held at the Crescent Avenue church this evening at 8.

Brief original addresses will be made by negro and Indian young men from the Normal and Agricultural institute at Hampton, Va., who will speak in behalf of the people they represent.

The Hampton quartette will sing a few "spirituals" or plantation melodies, and remarks will be made by the Rev. H. B. Frissell, vice-principal and chaplain.

People with Poor Eyes will Be Glad to Know.

The public will be glad to learn that the eye specialist from Queen & Co., the famous oculists and opticians of Philadelphia, will continue his visits to Plainfield at regular intervals. His next visit is on Thursday of this week at M. M. Dunham's, 7 East Front street, and succeeding visits are every Thursday thereafter. He has been very successful in giving his patients comfortable and improved vision. Ask your doctor about Queen & Co.

Other Trains Would Only Spoil the Good Ones We Have.

One of many correspondents writing to THE PRESS on the subject, says the principal reason the 7:38 a. m., train from this city is of no use to the hundreds who must be in their New York offices by 9, is that it is "always late". So he, too, wants a train from here at 7:45.

Now it is just because the Central railroad company of this State, tries to satisfy everyone of its patrons—including the unreasonable ones like the correspondent above—that its morning trains to, and its evening trains from New York, are often a few minutes behind the schedule. There are now so many accomodation trains between New York, and Plainfield, and Newark, and Elizabeth, and Roselle, and Dunellen, and Somerville—all called forth by the demands and necessities of thousands of people—that they are almost tumbling over one another and delays result for that reason as well as for safety's sake.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 66 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 6-16-y

DR. LEWIS IN CONGRESS.

Plainfield's Pastor Ably Speaks on the World's Fair Sabbath Question.

In the argument before the Congressional committee at Washington, recently, against the Sunday opening of the World's Fair, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of this city spoke in behalf of the Seventh-day Baptists, who have been fighting the battle for religious liberty before Congress from time to time during all this century. He asked for a repeal of the present law, because, although by indirection, it was essentially religious. He urged the following points: Historically, all Sunday legislation is religious. The first was pagan, it gradually combined pagan and Christian, civil and ecclesiastical elements. The English laws out of which ours grew were pre-eminently religious. The colonial government was intensely theocratic. Sunday laws of our early history were deeply religious, and extremely rigid. In spite of them all, the decline of regard for Sunday has been steady and revolutionary. At the present time, with rare and unimportant exceptions, Sunday laws are not enforced; all corporations, and all forms of business disregard them at at will; they do not save Sunday, there is little or no conscience behind them; they do not and can not create conscience. Opening the Fair is only a side issue, a temporary incident in the real struggle; that is far broader and more important; Sunday is secularized, and destroyed by appealing to the civil law, when religious conscience is the only ground on which any true Sabbathism can exist. Congress should not interfere and attempt to establish the constitutionality of Sunday laws, when the decisions of the lower courts are most contradictory, and no case has been decided by the highest court; let the civil law take it hands off and turn the whole question over to the realm of conscience and religion where it belongs.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS.

In the Senate Monday night, Senator Marsh, of Union, introduced a bill, (57), which provides for the straightening of certain county lines in Union and Middlesex counties by making parts of Woodbridge and Raritan townships, Middlesex county, a part of Clark township, Union county. (Misc. Bus.)

Also No. 58, which provides for the appointing of a commission of three by the Governor to prepare a criminal code, to report at next session of the Legislature. (Rev. Laws.)

The Senate passed the following bills: House 2, provides that all electric wires shall have insulators made of red glass, to distinguish them from telegraph wires; House 90, fixes the salary of the Secretary of the Board of State Prison Inspectors at $500; House 10, amends the act relative to conveyances; House 12, authorizes health boards to destroy personal goods endangered by contagious diseases, and pay for the same; House 35, authorizes appointment of assistant overseers of the poor in cities of the first-class; House 47, amends the act relative to evidence; House 58, fixes terms of overseer of poor and township clerks at three years; Senate 18, the Freehold sewer and water bill.

In the House, Mr. Kyte, of Union, presented bill No. 131, which authorizes the Union Water Co., the Plainfield Water Co., and the Elizabethtown Water Co., of Union county, to merge and consolidate their franchises and other property. (Corporations.)

Resolutions of respect were passed in the House regarding the death of Hon. James G. Blaine.

A Live Baby In It.

In "Little Tippet", to be given at Music Hall, Friday evening, besides the principals, Harry Allen, as the domestic but eccentric Uncle Dunker, presents an unctuous and pleasing figure, and makes a generous contribution to the merriment with which the play and the representation bubble over. Other praiseworthy and therefore satisfying performances are the Newton of F. Thompson, Harry Morgan's Gibb, Henry J. Bradley's Rufus Delaney, a bibulous sheriff's deputy; Miss Violet Black's Madge Tippet, Miss Harriet Morgan's Clara Newton and Mrs. Harry Bloodgood's Geranium. A pretty feature of the play is the presence of a live baby.

Fashions in Children's Clothes.

Dame Fashion takes as much interest in the little folks as in the belles and beaux, and it is hard work for some mothers to keep their children stylishly dressed. Diamond dyes, however, solve the problem for them, and little suits, cloaks, bonnets and hose, of fashionable brown, cardinal or myrtle green are easily made from faded garments. Nothing equals diamond dyes for home dyeing.

Will Have to Fight for Its Life.

J. N. Smalley of North Plainfield has received a live wild-cat from his brother Will in North Carolina. It is a ferocious creature, and will turned loose from Campbell's club-house and the dogs set on it.

What They Are Good For.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the best medicine known.

First—They are purely vegetable, in fact a medicated food.

Second—The same dose always produces the same effect—other purgatives require increased doses and finally cease acting.

Third—They purify the blood.

Fourth—They invigorate the digestion and cleanse the stomach and bowels.

Fifth—They stimulate the liver and carry off vitiated bile and other depraved secretions.

The first two or three doses tell the story. The skin becomes clear, the eye bright, the mind active, digestion is restored, costiveness cured, the animal vigor is recruited and all decay arrested.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are sold in every drug store and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Osburn, 48 Warren avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Death of John Mannion.

John Mannion, proprietor of the Green Brook hotel between Dunellen and Bound Brook, died Sunday night after a short illness from pneumonia. Mr. Mannion was a member of New Brunswick's police force from 1883 to 1885. On leaving the police department he purchased a hotel property at Bound Brook, which he subsequently sold to the Port Reading Railroad company so that they could extend their tracks. The funeral will take place at Bound Brook on Wednesday.

The deceased was a good-natured, kind-hearted man, always willing to assist a worthy person at any time, and owing to this fact he made many warm friends.

Councilman Sebring as a Capitalist.

A certificate of the organization of the Bound Brook Electric Light, Heat and Power company was filed in the office of the Secretary of State on Monday. This company was organized by Messrs. Chas. P. Sebring, of Plainfield; Louis J. Auerbacker, of Newark; and Frederick H. Cook, of Bound Brook. The objects are the generation of electricity for the purpose above mentioned and furnishing the same to consumers. The capital stock is $5,000.

FRENCH DUEL FOR BLOOD.

M. Deroulede Seriously Wounds M. Pichon With His Sword.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Deputies Deroulede and Pichon fought a duel with swords yesterday afternoon.

It was the result of an insult offered by Deroulede to Pichon in the Chamber of Deputies on Saturday, when Deroulede called out to Pichon, "You are M. Hera's sleeping partner."

Afterwards in the morning Deroulede repeated the words.

Swords were the weapons, and the two men fought with considerable vindictiveness, Pichon, who is a collaborator with M. Clemenceau on La Justice, being evidently anxious to injure Deroulede.

The latter succeeded in wounding Pichon seriously in the ribs, while Deroulede himself received a scratch from Pichon's sword in the face.

The seconds then declared honor satisfied. Deroulede was warmly congratulated by his friends.

HILL LOST HIS SENSES.

The Missing Paymaster Had Been Wandering About Since Saturday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Theodore Hill, the paymaster and purchasing agent of the New York & New Jersey railroad, returned to his home in Hackensack, N. J., last night.

Mr. Hill says that on Saturday he suddenly lost his senses, and, as near as he can tell, he has been wandering around the city ever since.

He became more lucid yesterday afternoon, and finding himself very weak and sick, sent for Mr. Ainsley, a neighbor of his in Hackensack, who went to him and took him home.

His strange attack is attributed to overwork.

Mrs. Polly Rose 100 Years Old.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Polly Rose, of Mount Pleasant, Butler county, celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday. Her entire family was long lived. Her father lived to be 86 and her mother died after living six months more than 100 years. Her three brothers all lived to be old men. Hugh, the eldest, was 87 at the time of his death.

Much Sickness in Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 31.—This city has been afflicted with an epidemic of diphtheria, typhoid, and scarlet fever for several weeks past, and the reports of new cases are on the increase. Twenty-two new cases were reported to the Board of Health last night. Physicians state that the sickness is owing to the water famine existing here.

If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 66 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 6-16-y

Does it hurt the quality of our 50c. Corsets to sell them at 50c?

Does it make a really good Stocking any poorer to sell it for 15c. instead of 25c.?

Does it lessen the value of a Table Linen that is worth 50c. to sell it for 33c

Does it hurt the quality of a Towel that anyone will ask you 25c. for to sell it for 17c.?

Is a Gentleman's Unlaundried Shirt any poorer because we sell it for 50c., and others ask 75c. for one as good?

A GLORIOUS TRUTH.

And Women Will Profoundly Appreciate It.

A Vista of Hope and Happiness Opened Up for Women.

Facts In Regard To It Given by Some Well-Known People.

All women will be deeply interested in the following true story told by Mrs. Amos V. Dell, who resides at 235 Hancock ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J.

"I suffered from complete prostration and exhaustion of the nerves and physical system," she said. "I was tired and weak all the time, and hardly cared whether I lived or died. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now feel as if I had a new lease of life.

"I no longer have that tired feeling, and I do my work without getting tired. This wonderful medicine has done me more good than anything else I have ever taken. Why, I had only taken one dose on going to bed, and in the morning I woke up feeling like another woman: it seemed strange for me to know what it was to get up without feeling tired. I feel that I cannot praise Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy enough."

Her story is more than equalled by that of Mrs. J. B. Swift, of 2789 Washington st., Boston, Mass. She says:

"Four years ago I was in a position of complete physical and nervous prostration; had but little appetite, with severe indigestion, stomach distended with gas, constipation, palpitation of the heart, sleeplessness, pain in back of the neck and base of the brain, so nervous and despondent that life was a burden.

MRS. AMOS V. DELL.

"As a result of this condition, other weaknesses peculiar to my sex, fell upon me, until I was utterly wretched.

"After much medical treatment and constant failure, I was induced to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It was in a faint-hearted way and with little hope, but I soon began to sleep better, my digestion improved, the pain in the head became less severe and I gradually gained strength until I felt as if I had been extricated from a pit of abject darkness and despair and had emerged into the sunlight. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy saved me.

"Very many of my friends to whom I have recommended the remedy, can attest to similar results in their own cases. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is truly a wonderful medicine and might well be called the 'Woman's Friend.'"

This great remedy is purely vegetable and harmless and doctors recommend it because they know it is such a wonderful curer of disease and because it is the prescription and discovery of the noted physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor can be consulted by all, free of charge, personally or by letter.

No suffering woman should be without this sure remedy.

That Glorious Climate.

Eastern Man—Is that climate of yours all that it is claimed to be?

California Man—Healthiest climate in the world.

"Well, I've heard of a good many people who went there and came back worse than before."

"The climate is all right; but you see, as quick as their health returns, they get interested in the land boom and buy."

"Yes."

"Well, after that they worry themselves sick trying to sell it."—N. Y. Weekly.

Dangerous Experiment.

"I wish I knew whether my Robert really loves me or not."

"You can easily find out. All you have to do is to make an appointment with some other young fellow, only take care that Robert is informed of what you have done. Then, if he really loves you, he will certainly kill you, and if he doesn't you may rest assured that he is only flirting with you."—Fliegende Blatter.

Pretty Rough.

Father (wishing to impress the lesson)—Now, my son, tell me why I punished you.

Son—That's it—you've pounded the life out of me, an' now you don't know what you done it for!—Puck.

Cause for Regret.

Lady—I don't like this picture as well as I did the last one you took of me.

Photographer—Ah, madam, I have not the artistic taste I had when I was young; and, besides, my camera is getting old.—N. Y. Weekly.

We Don't Believe It.

Husband (to wife at the theater)—Have you brought the opera glass?

Wife—Yes, but I can't use it.

"Why not?"

"I forgot to bring my diamond bracelet."—Texas Siftings.

Obeying Instructions.

Hostess—Will you have a piece of pie, Georgie?

Georgie—Yes'm; but please make it double size, because ma told me not to ask for two pieces.—Good News.

Verging Toward Extremes.

Ethel—Ah, the years roll by, and some people are not so fresh as they once were.

Maud—Yes, and others are too fresh.

MISS JEAN INGELOW.

The Indisputed Mistress of English Poetry and Song.

Miss Frances Willard has proposed and Dr. Chauncey M. Depew has seconded the motion that Queen Victoria should appoint Miss Jean Ingelow her poet laureate.

What right we Americans have to dictate to the queen as to whom she shall grant the bay leaves is not exactly clear. If Englishmen ventured to suggest appointments to the president we would be pretty apt to tell them to mind their own business. Presumably the monarchs of Europe are so effete that they need the virile advice of the Gail Hamiltons and Frances Willards of the new world, says the Illustrated American.

Sixty-two years ago Jean Ingelow was born in the quaint old town of Boston, Lincolnshire, England. Her father owned a private bank there. Her mother came from Aberdeen, and "imparted her own canny ways of thought and feeling and expression to her daughter."

In her early poems Miss Ingelow exhibited many proofs of the influence her surroundings of sea, fine old churches and monastic ruins had had upon her. When she first came before the public, in 1860, by publishing a volume of "Poems by Jean Ingelow," she speedily found an echo in the heart of the English people, and was recognised by the critics as a genuine poet.

Miss Ingelow lives in old Kensington, "in a quiet street, where all the houses are gay with window-boxes full of flowers." It is a large square brick house, built in the days of Queen Anne, when Kensington was the court suburb, and is set back from the road, embowered in sweet-smelling hawthorn and golden rain laburnum trees. There she lives in the midst of a literary and artistic circle, the delight of those who have the luck to make her acquaintance. Her manner is rather constrained at first, but once she warms up in conversation her coldness disappears, and, though she is far from good looking, her pale, thoughtful face lights up into almost beauty.

Miss Ingelow has not been spoiled by fame. She once wrote: "I do not care about fame, or rather, scarcely believe in such a thing for myself, but it is a great pleasure, and a very true one, to be able to give pleasure to so many people for the time being, that is, while popularity lasts."

Her Dolls Had the Measles.

The dolls of children speak to them of love and hatred, of fear and of courage, of sorrow and of sickness. "Are you not afraid to speak to me?" said the little queen of Holland the other day to an ambassador. "No; why?" "Because my dolls have the measles!" This little story might illustrate more than one chapter in the philosophy of dolls.

Room for Doubt.

"I don't know," said Uncle Clover. "I kinder doubt these stories about Cousin Hunter bein' so awful rich."

"Why, father?" asked his wife.

"Well, the hull week I stopped ter his house, he never wunst had pie for breakfast."—Jury.

Family Resemblance.

"That slender young woman approaching is the sister of Bicketts, the football player."

"I don't see much resemblance."

"I do. Her face is powdered and his is pulverized."—Indianapolis Journal.

Gentle Persuasion.

Clara—Do you know, Mr. Nicely, that your father once proposed to my mother and she rejected him?

Nicely—Yes, I have heard of it.

Clara—Now, I am not a bit like mamma.—Truth.

Why Not?

Timid Youth—Sha-shall we go and sit under that w-w-willow, Miss Ethel?

Demure Maiden—Why not under that pop-pop-poplar, George? — Chicago Tribune.

Not What He Was Afraid Of.

"Why," said a counsel to a witness, 'are you so very precise in your statement? Are you afraid of telling an untruth?"

Witness (promptly)—No, sir.—Boston Globe.

Not Exactly Encouragement.

The Bashful Lover—Miss Emily, I—er—hem!—

She (sweetly)—Do you, Mr. Mammas-dear? Now, wouldn't you like to join our sewing society?—Harper's Bazar.

A GIFT WORTH RECEIVING.

"I am so thankful for that copy of your poems which you sent me, Mr. Dryden-Jones! I can never go to sleep without reading it."—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

Sufficient Unto the Day.

"What are your hopes for the future?" asked the solemn man.

"I have none just now," replied the youth. "To-morrow is my best girl's birthday and I'm worrying about the present."—Life.

A Profession for Him.

Fond Mother (of delicate dude)—I think it is time Clarence selected a profession. What would you advise?

Old Gent (reflectively)—He might do nicely as a typewriter girl.—N. Y. Weekly.
